I think I've got called to dinner. After that I had to sharpen my scythe for a high school boy I've decided to subsidize this summer to bring him to cut bushes. Next came something else, and along in the late afternoon I remembered that I'd been concerned about getting those bees transferred into the bearings on the wheel harrow. I laid they on a particularly good location and wiggled in under the right spot, holding a small wrench in one hand and a wire fitting in the other, so I could get disposed properly and be able to get a purchase on the right spot. Then I found my swarm of bees clustered all over the third and fourth discs, forward units on the right-hand side, precisely ahead of my most forward position. I'd missed them at first and, at once, but that's the closest I ever came to being a beehive.

THE EUROPEAN SCHOOL SYSTEM

A despatch from Bonn, Germany, regarding a Hamburg father's court battle against a decision that his son is not sufficiently talented to warrant his attendance at university is intensely interesting.

We do not know how many of the readers of the Ontario Intelligencer were aware of the fact that it is a German tradition that when a child reaches the age of ten his teachers decide whether he should attend the technical or academic branch of high school. Certainly we were unaware of this. Apparently this system is not confined to Germany. The United States High Commissioner in Germany, James B. Conant, a former president of Harvard University, is reported to have stated recently that "in Europe and Britain there is, in general, a tradition by which the first test of talent takes places in the tenth year of life."

We suspect that that qualifying phrase, "in general," is of great importance, at least as far as Britain is concerned. From a recent arrival in Belleville from Britain we learn that this division of children from the "technicians" is made, but apparently it is possible for those who fail in the test as scholars to continue their studies at grammar school if their parents can afford to pay a fee.

This system, however, is either new or far from universal, for the writer attended school in England until the age of twelve without being by any such test. Nevertheless, it is evident that in Germany at least there is a rigid sorting of the wheat from the chaff when a child reaches the age of ten and that in other European countries there is a tendency toward such a system.

This is in distinct contrast to the situation in Canada and the United States. Conant, in a recent address, stated that in the U.S. the decision as to whether a student should receive university training is not made until he or she reaches the age of 18. The same situation, in large measure, prevails in Canada, although the establishment of vocational schools in larger centres has resulted in the division of boys' classes being made around the age of 14, in some cases.

Conant expresses a preference for the U.S. system, holding that the fact that a child is intelligent does not mean that he also has the character and the will and the ability to work, in order to become a successful scientist, lawyer or diplomat.

This seems to be begging the question of whether it is only scientists, lawyers, diplomats and others who require university training who are in need of intelligence, character and the will and ability to work. To fill all technical jobs with people of second-grade rating in all these attributes appears to be asking for trouble.

Of course, the whole additional question of whether it is possible to judge, when a child is 10, how intelligent he will be when he is 18. That some European authorities are having doubts as to the accuracy of judgments made at such an age is revealed by the Bonn despatch which says that "thoughtful people are beginning to believe that this system is, in fact, depriving Germany of potentially great minds."

DEBT AND ABRACADOBRA

Mr. Solon Low, leader of the federal Social Credit party, frankly admits that the goal of the Socreds in the forthcoming election is to emerge with the "balance of power" in the next House of Commons.

Old time politicians in the east have long been baffled by the western political mind. It has been confounding them for nearly 30 years and in an election year when the word is in the mouth of every Social Credit speaking, the Social Credit bid in the western provinces has been viewed with some apprehension.

However, there must have been some sighs of relief this week, when an Ottawa correspondent described it, Mr. Low "took the wraps off his party's secret weapon." In Edmonton, Mr. Low told a party meeting that a Social Credit government in Canada would do no less than eliminate the national debt.

Now we can't expect to have a federal election without scaling the national debt kicked around a bit. And we wouldn't have it otherwise. After all, a nation without a national debt will be something of a curiosity. Any respect by our friends of not carrying our weight somewhere.

We are evidence of the country, and as national debts go ours is, to be sure, one of quite respectable proportions. At the end of March, 1952, the gross national debt amounted to $17 billions in round figures. The annual debt carrying charges are about $450 millions, close to the amount which Mr. Drew says can be sliced from present budget taxes.

But no pikers these Social Crediters. A paltry half billion! Mr. Low will abolish seventeen billions. Of course Mr. Low did not explain just how this would be done. He was not asked to explain, however, because a Social Credit Government in Alberta had been able to wipe out the debt in that province.

That is typical of Credit political logic reduced to its bare essentials for campaign purposes. With oil wells in everyone's backyard it sounds easy but some sections of Canada are dependent on oil wells at the moment. However, the Socreds have an assortment of political legerdemain which they assure one and all can produce wealth even without oil wells. Indeed they can only grudgingly concede that Alberta's oil resources have mattered a great deal.

Lacking oil wells Mr. Low is prepared by one stroke of the pen and a four-hour speech on the theories of money —which in translation means "abracabarra" — to dispense with the national debt. This is as much as anyone will ever know about the Social Credit secret for eliminating the national debt. Mr. Low says that that is all the average citizen is expected to know about it or can expect to know about it. He says that Social Credit is really quite simply and understandable thing and if it were not for a "conspiracy" on the part of the newspapers it would be understood.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

By mid July, most young animals this year's crop are already fully aware that man is the greatest predator of all. They avoid us like the plague, though they are only three to four months old. Somehow they know that the mightiest predator on earth walks upright and is reputed to prey upon his own kind. Even crows don't do that. So you can understand how quickly a young deer or a fox kit has reason only gentles for safety when the grim human form appears driven in the shape of a little girl with ringlets and wearing a sun suit.

Now and again, however, at this season of year, some young animal fails to appreciate the basic law of the wilderness. Some baby raccoon or cottontail meets up with a little girl or a ten year old boy. And contrary to the usual rule, when humans attack, it submits to the friendly advances of the dreaded human, and becomes tame.

The field naturalists again remind us that the greatest thing we can do to a young wild animal is to make a pet of it. For we deprive it of its greatest gift of all, its instinct to fear the human. And when we do succeed in taming a wild animal, as soon is over, and everybody packs up and goes home, leaving the animal to starve. In the natural devices once more, the pet marches into the wilderness, and there walks unconcernedly into the path of the hunter who will be abroad in the autumn woods. To make a pet of an animal is to doom it.

The field naturalists declare that what appears to be a lost infant animal in the woods is all, but when the human approaches the baby, which has strayed into the open, wild mother runs in perfect safety in panic. Extremely young deer fawns have often been found by people in human being; and this is constructed as meaning that the fawn has been abandoned. I do know of cases in which a doe has died, leaving a fawn. But for one instance of a doe being found, after a search of the area in which a very live doe was discovered hovering frantically but oh so silently around the immediate vicinity of the apparently wandering baby.

SWEET ROBBERY

Although I've never sighed or sobbed
Or told about it to the cops,
I've often been held up and robbed—
Always in front of candy shops.

A drug store I can seldom pass
Without the fear that there will be
Some little highwayman or lass
Is wait to say: "Shell out" to me.

"Your money or your life," they say,
In what to me are pleasant tones.
My choice is this: the dimes to pay
For lollypops and ice cream cones.

Shillelagh Is Blarney

(Brantford Expositor)

From Dublin, Correspondent Patrick Russell sent us the other day a useful (to the trade) bit of publicity about the shillelagh —pardon us ,the blackthorn stick.

He dignified this bit of branch (with bonbon) as "the souvenir most likely to be in greatest demand with visitors to Ireland this season." Well, he's entitled to his opinion—or his propaganda. And no doubt on the strength of it and other efforts like it, to secure nothing of an ingrained belief in foreign parts that all Irishmen carry shillelaghs, the blackthorn industry will not do so badly this coronation year. (I'm sure that, under the circumstances, dear, good Mr. DeVaiera will forgive this reference to Eire, which, however, much he may have disapproved of it, is certainly going to result in a lot of visitors going from London to Dublin before they go home).

Mr. Russell mentions that a Dublin shop which specializes in the sale of the ancient blackthorns exports up to 300 a season. This we can believe, though please note that key word "exports." Shillelaghs, as shillelaghs, are not going to sell mainly if not strictly for export. To the native Irishman, the shillelagh is a trusty stick, but something to sell to the foreign suckers who come eager to be had.

For that reason, while you will not find an Irishman openly selling a shillelagh on his native sod, you will find a lot of them on sale—and in the hallways of Irish-Americans and Irish-Canadians, who, on their occasional visits, removed from the Emerald Isle and their own kind, are more impressed than its practitees. Them, or course, a suitable residue is left over for the unsophisticated. The Irish-Canadians (whose absurd clowning, by the way, is the most unfunny, mannered Irish a bit annoyed.)

Still, far be it from us to toss the shillelagh into the discard. Even the windows of the blackthorn industry may, in the years to come, abound come demanding what they deem to be a traditional tool, implement, weapon to deprive them of their pleasure? Not the Irish, certainly. And why are we to destroy a pleasant myth in a world already far too short of these items?

Space Travel Hits a Snag

(Edmonton Journal)

A couple of science-fiction writers in the United States have presented would-be space travellers with a most perplexing problem. What is the best way to get a rocket from the space stations or rockets?

The problem arises from the fact fuss can't just be pitched out of the airlock, for it would be attracted by the small gravity field of the station rocket and "hang around" indefinitely. A little reflection, however, can imagine, would turn to the porthole to gaze upon the glorious vista of planets and stars, and be promptly frosted, instead, with the grinning face of a pinhead who had forgotten to call without charging a cent for it.

Pathos Found In Old Books

(Hamilton Spectator)

The lady George Bernard Shaw was fond of browsing in second-hand bookstores. The chance of getting a bargain is only a small part of the pleasure of browsing through old books. She was not one to miss a chance of saving money, there can be no doubt that his opinion of humanity received much those inscriptions in the inside covers of rejected volumes. For it is in secondhand books and stores that one finds the pathos that underlies all human relationships—the frailty of friendship, the coldness of ingratitude, the insincerity of compliments and the impermanence of fame—all are there for the discerning eye to see.

Shaw, browsing in a secondhand bookstore, found one of his early books thrown down on a cheap price and on opening it saw an inscription from a former friend. With compliments and good wishes, G. B. Shaw," scrawled in a pathetic hope that he was wise to be angry. He bought the book for a few shillings and sent it back to his friend inscribed, "With renewed compliments and good wishes, G. B. Shaw."

Not every one, however, would possess a philosophy like Shaw's. Rejected volumes are often the casualties of a busy, crowded life. One sees a pile, bound in morocco and stamped in gilt, the labor of days, the pride of much achievement. In imagination one sees the occasion—the platform, the throng of people, the words of praise, the quick blush, the handshake, the applause and the proud return gripping this very book. You may have seen it, or buy, with all its forgotten glories, for a quarter.

Another, a boys' adventure book, for a few cents, perhaps: dusty and neglected. It is the author's conscience, it will be handled fifty years hence by a boy who either bought or becomes so shabby that it ends on the trash heap. One wonders if that boy will become that Sonny might have become, and what his memories of Uncle Harry and Auntie Lou in the long years. Did affection weather the years? Is the rejected book a sign that it is dead?

Although the browser may find all kinds of things in secondhand bookstores—accounts, love letters, shopping lists, humility and faded flowers pressed when fresh and moist, there is interesting fields of all these cheapness, complacency, respectful . . . and forgotten.

Leave Leaves For The Lost!

(Ottawa Journal)

Poetry not pedestrian prose was needed to describe the predicament of people in which a couple of stranded geologists lived on "smoked, dried cranberry leaves."

The words were meant much to Canada with the Maple Leaf a revered symbol, and the cranberry emblem, with leaves (mixed discreetly with bark) the consolation prize for runners-up in the tobacco counter, with leaves of sorrow and gratitude strewn in the scrap on Mardi Gras sprees in the fall.

But leaves for food were no part of our reckoning, apart from the more heroic leaves of the caterpillars in the garden. The possibilities are enormous—"had a letter today from Uncle Ernest"—"Mary dishes up the nicest maple," and "those cooks need to be boiled a bit more."

We can imagine thrifty souls taking the leaves from the tea counter, storing them in a cool place and then hastening to prepare the waste when babes lost in the wood use good food for covering. We can also imagine the fun pundits who will write books about the best way to prepare the leaves to be avoided, leading in due course to leafy diets for reducing and illustrations on how to make delectable by choosing nourishing leaves and cooking them.

One thing leading to another we look for the day when there will be a flipper about the cars, with notes on the label about the vitamin content. And, and with our own imaginings, we reached the stage where we could see the day for door to door inviting people in for a cup of hemlock. Whereupon we decided it might be best to eat leaves and disliking them very much,

Neither of these alternatives attracts one very much, and certainly if an Edmontonial were hit on the head with a garbage can in the next-to-distant future, he would consider it the last straw and be very much annoyed. Perhaps the best waste war on space travellers. Garbage disposal is indeed a perplexing problem of this civilization.

CALCIUM INSTEAD OF ASPIRIN

Aspirin (acetylsalicylic acid) has the disadvantage that, even in small doses, it produces nausea and vomiting in certain people, particularly in those with high-acidity gastric conditions. It did is syncerary, there are many reports of feelings of weakness, collapse, acute

According to the same authority, death has resulted from five and ten grains of aspirin, and as much as an ounce has failed to kill.

Here I repeat that in my opinion, aspirin is far less dangerous than any other safe pain killer, certainly less dangerous than acetanilide.

We do not ordinarily regard calcium as analgesic, but there is no account for the effects in migraine neuralgic headache, rheumatic, nocturnal leg cramps, pains in persons and so-called "growing pains" in children, and intravenous injections of calcium are such painful conditions as black widow bite, lead colic, or gallstone colic!

The physiological function of calcium, provided one gets enough of it from food or food supplement I maintain normal functional health, is to regulate excitability of nerve fibers and nerve centres, heart muscles and coronary arteries.

Now I'm no authority on this or any other subject, as any good doctor can tell you, but from what I read in thousands of letters from people with various chronic painful maladies I am convinced that calcium itself is analgesic if taken in adequate amount over a reasonable period of time.

This does not mean that a dose or two of calcium will kill ache or pain regardless of cause, although in painful maladies of long standing (chronic), the analgesic effect of calcium becomes manifest in the course of weeks. The exact mechanism is not understood and shall not attempt to explain the extraordinary effect of, say 15 grains (10cc. of 10% solution, in ampule) of calcium chloride intravenously in agonizing colic of black widow bite, acute leading to agonizing of gallstone. Neither does any recognized medical authority, so far as I can learn, find satisfactory explanation of the pain relieving effect of calcium. It is a well-established fact simply that if supplements the individual's calcium-poor diet.

THE PRESENCE

When is a church a church?

A church is a church when the presence of the Living God comes into a building, or a home or an auditorium, and is recognized to be driving—or is experienced in the great out-of-doors. This does not mean in general that men and worship God as well on the country side as they can in a church. That sort of talk is rubbish, raked together by people who want to excuse their failure to attend church. But it does mean that wherever the Presence is manifested, there is the Church; and wherever the Presence is not manifested, there is a secular spot, although men call it a cathedral or a temple or the most beautiful church on the continent.

We all belong to different churches, and yet we all belong to the same church, namely, the Church of the Presence of God comes to bless sincere and devout hearts. The differences between the various branches of the Church are significant and meaningful to every one of us. We should not want to eliminate them. But what is important is the unity which sincere Christian people have the world over.

The Presence—which is the Spirit of the Living God—close creates and sustains the church.

THE SACRIFICE

As I have so often written, we can learn so much from baseball, while we are still watching it as a recreation. That is especially true of sacrifice. When skillfully executed, it results in advancing a runner on first to second, thereby putting him into better scoring position. Often a long hitter is ordered to do this, for he is the potential home run hitter, and if he is, there would result two big runs from one sacrifice hit. But it is all in percentage. The best among us do not succeed.

How many times we all have the opportunity to "go to bat" for a friend and thereby some sacrificial act do a kindly service to that one. We are temporarily lose, but the friend wins. In a larger sense however, the one who sacrifices is the more heroic.

Mothers and fathers are forever sacrificing for their children. And the reward is very great when these children develop into useful citizens, and acknowledge their indebtedness to their parents through consideration and kindly acts. Then it is that sacrifice pays large dividends.

Sacrifice is a tribute of love. When rendered it exalts the one who is performing the sacrifice and enlarges the sum total of goodness in the world. It turns on the light in the hearts of both giver and receiver. We cannot honor greatly the sacrifices of those in battle. We can only hope that they will be worthy of the many some day come to an end and good will and peace among nations.

It is love in the heart of the doer that so often results in his death in battle, and we fully serve his master. Sacrifice is always a love expression. It is godlike, and most permanent in this world has largely been the result of sacrificial love from or other. Think of the pioneers. Think of the scientists and leaders who have given their labor under all sorts of difficult circumstances with love in mind but to save and preserve life.

How many times the child lives by the sacrificial love dies. A sacrifice of life to give life

Catholics to Pay Tribute to Area's Patron Saint

CHEQUOTIMI, Que. (CP) — A colorful procession winds its way annually through the rolling, picturesque hills near this Sagueney district city as Roman Catholics pay tribute to the area's special patron—Ste. Anne de Sagueney.

Residents of the area have made their favorite saint with any miracles. But each year the procession to her shrine gets longer.

Recently, more than 30,000 people marched in a procession that marked the 76th anniversary of the first pilgrimage.

The first pilgrimage was made May 14, 1878, by four priests, eight seminarists and 26 students at the Chicoutimi seminary, then situated on a hilltop across the Saguenay river from Chicoutimi.

Travel was hazardous in the days of the annual pilgrimage. Historical annals tell how the pilgrims crossed Ha Ha Bay on the Saguenay by horse-drawn sleighs, carts driven by a team of horses walking in ideideal formation.

At times, the pilgrims were nearly drowned as movements of the horses caused the boat to lurch seriously, allowing waves to swamp the craft.

Annual journeys were made from 1878 to 1888, when the area was confirmed canonical of a scheduled pilgrimage. For some unrecorded reason, the pilgrimage was not made until 1895.

In 1953, local religious authorities encouraged the celebrations and they became diocesan in scope for the first time. Since then all parishes in the Chicoutimi diocese have been taking part in the pilgrimage.

The village of Ste. Anne is decorated and illuminated each year in preparation for the event.

Congress Action Enhances Start By Federal Govt.

By JOHN LaBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal quarters take the view that a new phase of United States Congressional inaction on the St. Lawrence Seaway serves to enhance the prospects of a start on the $750,000,000 project, with Canada taking the lead.

"The situation has never been so favorable as at present," Transport Minister Chevrier said in an interview after the U.S. Senate Inland Waterways Committee put off next January a bill calling for U.S. participation in the navigation end of the development.

The Canadian government wants to build the main navigation locks on this side of the river and officials here suggested the Senate slowdown improves chances of this. The Senate bill called for Canada to join the Senate act on navigation came a few days after the U.S. Federal Power Commissioner had granted the New York State Power Authority permission to join with the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission in developing by join with the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission in developing the 1,320,000 horsepower of hydro-electric power in the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence.

Should Proceed

On learning of the Senate leader-ship's move late Friday—just after returning from a general election campaign trip to the west—Mr. Chevrier said that "it now is clear Canada should proceed to act immediately, under the authority granted by the Federal Power Commission."

He said he expects the Canadian government will start to dig a navigation seaway on the Canadian side when the N.Y.-Ontario power bodies—who have to build dams to back up the water—get Commission."

Mr. Chevrier said it is his view that "if construction could be started at once on one or another of the dams in the international section, the Canadian government would proceed without delay on the navigational facilities."

Build Dams Jointly

(The dam where work is expected to start is a control structure across the river near Iroquois, Ont., upriver from the power dam near Cornwall, Ont. All dams would be built jointly by New York and Ontario.)

"The situation," Mr. Chevrier said, "has never been so favorable as it is now, and we should lose no opportunity to seize the initiative once again."

By "seizing the initiative" the transport minister — who is in charge of seaway matters for Canada — evidently meant pushing things through "on a unilateral basis without waiting" for U.S. action on the navigation job.

Windsor, Sarnia, Chatham Truckers Favor Action

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Truckers in the Windsor, Chatham and Sarnia areas lined up their employers on truck-using firms in the Hamilton area in diverting strike action midnight today.

The strike would involve some 2,500 drivers and helpers in 200 companies in Southwestern Ontario between Hamilton and Windsor.

Meanwhile, President I. M. Dodds of Local 880, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, (AFL-TLC), and President James Crest of the latter's Local 879 are scheduled to meet with Labor Minister Daley early Monday in an attempt to settle the dispute.

Union officials advised members to keep strike action after a conciliation board report recommended wage increases of seven cents an hour for drivers and five cents for mechanics. A similar contract was signed in the Toronto area ago by the Toronto local.

Drivers in the Windsor-Hamilton locals turned it down. Originally, the Toronto and Hamilton locals asked for a 20-cent hour increase for drivers and 30 cents for mechanics. They later asked for general increases of 25 cents an hour.

Two Down Proposals

Members of Local 879, which covers Hamilton, London, Kitchener, Galt, Brantford and Woodstock, had rejected a similar proposal ago after turning down the proposal Sunday. Similar action was announced until it was known what Windsor and Sarnia, which covers employees in Windsor, Sarnia and Chatham, would take.

Earlier, however, Windsor Friday that Local 880's decision was "practically unanimous" in favor of a strike.

Neither Mr. Dodds or Mr. Crest could be reached for comment and was postponed until after they have met with the labor minister.

George Delaney, London, an official of Local 879, said he could see no possibility of the strike being called off. Pickets had been asked to report to headquarters there for duty at the gates of 14 trucking firms in London.

Mr. Daley had left the negotiations to the presidents of the two locals he felt the "issues can be resolved without a strike."

Earlier, Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, Toronto, urged the workers not to cause "irreparable damage" to the industry by going on strike.

Although the railways have said they would be able to handle all extra cargo assigned to them during the strike, it would take some time before a system could be worked out to ensure the proper and efficient handling of the extra freight.

Trucks are used extensively in southwestern Ontario for short, inter-city hauls of heavy cargoes.

Forchu Rammer, Shark Says Head Biological Station

LOUISBOURG, N.S. (CP)—Cape Breton's inshore fishermen have an answer to the sea-monster theory argued for the last two weeks: What is the Forchu Rammer?

But with the killer fish still at large they don't feel any happier.

Dr. A. W. L. Needler, head of the Atlantic Fisheries Biological Station at St. Andrews, N.B., gave the answer, Friday. He said the Rammer is a shark and probably a man-eater.

He based his conclusion on a series of razor-sharp teeth marks of three the Rammer left behind when he ripped open a fishing boat at nearby Forchu last week. Burton Burns, 32-year-old lobster fisherman, drowned and his partner, John MacLeod, 21, nearly shared the same fate in that attack, most serious of several skirmishes with the fish so far.

"It is quite definitely the tooth of a shark," Dr. Needler said. "Quite probably a white or mako eater shark, not at all common in these waters."

The St. Andrews fisheries research official recalled that a few years ago a man-eater shark prowled off St. Pierre bank, south of Newfoundland, attacked fishermen's dories and terrorized the coast.

The man-eater does not normally appear north of New York, although found in tropical waters around the globe. Man-eaters over 20 feet long are a rarity.

Charlie Forchu, 70-year-old Forchu fisherman who rescued John MacLeod from drowning, said the Rammer was about 25 feet long and had a six-foot dorsal fin.

In the last two weeks he has attacked at least six times. His latest appearance was off Petit de Grat three days ago when he drove a fleet of herring boats to shore.

He has ranged along the whole 100-mile southeast Cape Breton coast from Main-a-Dieu, south of Glace Bay, to Arichat near the Strait of Canso entrance, terrorizing fishermen and pleasure boaters.

So far he has wrecked one boat but only luck and a fast getaway prevented a higher toll.

PICTON

Edwin Muxlow, Wyoming, Drowns In East Lake

PICTON—Here for a few days' holiday, Edwin Muxlow, 17, of Wyoming, Ont., was drowned yesterday afternoon in East Lake. The young man had arrived from the Sarnia district the previous afternoon to visit his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Ron. Sivel. In company with Ron Sivel, brother, he had gone to Cove Beach, near Bloomfield, for a swim. Two of the girls were on the diving tower which is located 50 yards from shore in deep water. He attempted to swim out to them. With a sudden cry for help, he sank in eight feet of water. The girls attempted to pull him to the surface, and on hearing the cries of others on the beach, brought Muxlow to shore. He had been in the water about three minutes. Artificial respiration was tried without success and Dr. Murphy was used to believe without success and pronounced the youth dead.

Friends of the boy, Mr. and Mrs. George Muxlow had visited Mr. and Mrs. Sivel until Tuesday. On their return home, their son hitchhiked to Picton. He attended Forest Colligiate and besides his parents is survived by a brother and a sister. The body was shipped last night to Wyoming where funeral and interment will take place.

Peewee Softball

Hook hurled for the winners and allowed but eight hits while whiffing three. MacDonald for Boyce's gave up 17 clouts and struck out four.

Bateman hit a homer and two singles for Boyce's with Brownbottom connecting for three singles. Keller hit a home run.

DUTCH BUTTER FOR REDS

The Hague (Reuters) — Holland is going to export 1,000 tons of butter to Russia, it was learned here. The price is reported to be considerably lower than the standard Russian price for Danish butter, but slightly higher than that for Britain, one of the Netherlands' best butter customers, is willing to pay.

Stratford Shakespeare Festival Is Major Success Dramatically

By ROBERT TANNER

The chief impression which a visitor to the Stratford Shakespeare Festival takes away with him is that here are performances of two plays which bear comparison with any of the great modern productions, and it is therefore a fair conclusion to say that one remembers that this festival is a truly Canadian effort with predominantly Canadian acting talent. The stature of the productions is confirmed by the fact that the two first nights were attended by the leading dramatic critics from all the major centres of North America and that the dean of this distinguished corps, Brooks Atkinson of the New York Times, stayed on to see "Richard III" a second time on Wednesday night. It is the privilege of critics to differ widely in their views, yet the general consensus seems to be that the Stratford Festival was a major success, dramatically, artistically, and it is to be hoped, financially.

The star of the show, Alec Guinness, was given a bigger part to play in the title role of "Richard III" than as the King of Denmark in "All That's Well", His interpretation of this role—basically a study of the humorous conspirator, subtly menacing yet deadly in his double-dealing, fascinated the audience in some quarters, yet surely left it unmoved in others.

The gradual change from the Richard of the first scene, almost gaily plotting to do his own brother to death solely because he stands between himself and the throne, through the monarch with absolute power, but bearing as regal as his twisted frame permits, to the broken wretch of the last scene, is a fine study and a remembrance of his villainous past and a strong premonition of defeat. All this requires acting ability of a very high order, an ability which Mr. Guinness amply demonstrated.

Mean Eyes

"Richard III" is very much a one-man play, yet makes considerable demands on the supporting cast. Performances that linger in the memory include that of Robert Goodier, Richard's chief conspirator with Richard in his rise to power, that of Douglas Campbell ready to stab the show with his delightful swashbuckling. Yet without a doubt it was Miss Irene Worth in the part of Queen Helena, the doctor's daughter who fails in love with Bertram and sticks at nothing first to win him and then to win him back after he has barely deserts her. Miss Worth gave a truly magnificent performance.

Acting with voice, body, hands, face and even eye lashes, she portrayed every shade of emotion almost as clearly by her action, as by Shakespeare's at times somewhat obscure phrases. From the moment of her modest and self-effacing entrance to her final triumph over all adversity, she held the audience by her clarity, intensity and mastery of a difficult part.

Alec Guinness' King was all that it should have been, dignified, commanding, regal, yet capable of unforeseen flashes of humor, a resounding voice, bearing and walk between the kingly and the feeble. Indeed that he is a truly great actor Elesnoy Stuart's performance as Queen Elizabeth in Richard II bears in the memory for its intelligence and its fine feminine grace, sharply contrasting with her portrayal of Queen Margaret of Florence, sharply contrasting with her portrayal of Queen Margaret of Florence, sharply contrasting with her Beatrice Lennard gave a lively and attractive portrait of her daughter.

Difficult Role

The part of Bertram is a difficult one to make convincing. Donald Harron did his best to make the most of a poorly drawn role, his character in a performance which was lacking in conviction, explaining why Helena should have fallen in love with him in the first place, why he should prefer the blame should be placed largely on the playwright's door.

From among the large, talented and lively supporting cast it would be invidious to single out a few names, though perhaps Tony Van Bridge's study of Polonius, for his versatility and feeling for the words he spoke.

Finally, the citizens of Stratford, and especially the Festival Manager Mr. T. R. Patterson, have earned our congratulations and our deepest appreciation and perseverance in bringing this project to such a successful conclusion. It should be remembered that it would have been impossible without the inspiration and genius of Dr. Tyrone Guthrie, and of Alec Guinness, but Stratford, Tommy Moiseiwitsch; to these four Canadians owes a debt which will be hard to repay.

A final word of advice to any interested visitors: read the plays first. It will help enormously to clarify the complex plots and distinguishing the many characters. Shakespeare, like Bach fugue, or an old wine, improves on acquaintance.

CIVIL DEFENCE
REFRESHER TRAINING FOR TRENTON PILOTS
By JACK BRETT

Among many Department of National Defence "Operations" is a relatively new one which has been labelled "Operation Chipmunk" which has for the purpose of keeping a back-log of ready-trained pilots to serve in case an emergency should develop.

The qualifications for "Operation Chipmunk" demand the war-time pilot be under the age of 35 years and have a minimum number of 200 flying hours. Other qualifications necessary may be learned from Herb Middleton at the Canada Life Assurance Company.

It is Mr. Middleton's dream to form a Belleville wing in the near future, a wing consisting of ex-pilots. As far as "Operation Chipmunk" is concerned at the present time, anyone who is interested in the venture would be required to travel to Kingston during the week-ends. However, should the Belleville wing become formed, the government would supply an aircraft for each wing organized. In other words, if 18 pilots from this city were accepted for the training, Middleton knows that it possible an aeroplane could be based at Trenton, exclusively for the use of Belleville pilots.

Train in Chipmunks

All this in turn, means refresher courses for the pilots, known as a "Chipmunk", just enough for the pilot to get practice again, after the "Chipmunk" well, that is the best part of the story. Mrs. Walter Calder, of Toronto renewed acquaintances here on Thursday last week.

Mr. Fred Gray recently returned home from a month's visit with relatives in Niagara Falls, Ont., and Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Mrs. Vera Bain of Detroit is visiting her mother, Mrs. William McCallum for a couple of months and Mrs. Bain's sister Mrs. Robert Webber, in Finlay's Nursing Home, Havelock, on Wednesday, July 15.

with the auxiliary air force squadrons for about two years. It is simply a two - winged monoplane seating two passengers, pilot and instructor. The aircraft is simply a means of reminding pilots of what they might have forgotten about flying. It would be a simple plane to brush-up on R.T. pets always said airport rules. Anyone who had either training is extremely thorough.

After the pilot completes the refresher course, he is expected to re-enlist in an R.C.A.F. auxiliary squadron. The entire plan ties in with everything we have been saying in this column over the past few weeks concerning defence. It would be a happy thing if this civil board a fully trained wing ready in case of attack.

Similar to Coast

Should war come, there would never be time enough to train pilots and other crew members. Train them now and we gradually build up a nucleus force, ready for instant action.

This is the final article on civil defence. The series has been presented to the public as a public service by this paper. It is hoped readers will profit from the knowledge which has been printed. There are probably fewer chances that will ever be given, but should there are chances it might be. Be it simply a down to the history of 'forewarned is forearmed.' The writings presented in the past few weeks will have been put through the kind co-operation of Belleville and district civil defence organization. They have offered every assistance to this writer both in information and other forms of help. The purpose of this series has been to familiarize you with what to do in case of emergency. All those concerned in its presentation will have won great victory if the readers have been able to better, mentally, that.....'it could happen here.'

Woman Begins 29th Consecutive Year in House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edith Nourse Rogers, whose trademark is a flower on her shoulder, has begun her 29th consecutive year in the United States House of Representatives. This 14 terms will be a record for woman lawmakers.

Only men have been served longer consecutively in the House than this Massachusetts Republican.

The first woman sent to Congress by a New England state, Mrs. Rogers has bettered the record of Virginia-born Lady Astor, who had served 25 years in Britain's Parliament when she retired in 1944.

Mrs. Rogers got into politics when her husband, John Jacob Rogers of Lowell, Mass., died suddenly in his sixth Congressional term. She was elected to fill out his unexpired term.

She was 46 then, and at the time she said she planned to be in congress only a few years. But add 14 terms to that decade to run again and she says "of course."

Gay, vivacious, calm and very feminine in her liking for perky hats and pretty clothes, Mrs. Rogers on occasion has been a hair shirt to colleagues. Back in the election year of 1932, when party members wanted to adjourn early despite war clouds, she launched a resolution calling upon Congress to stay in session.

The resolution was pigeon-holed, but Congress stayed on the job. Later she received a message in turn the clocks an hour ahead so there would be more daylight for war production.

Six Convicted, 3 Acquitted In Jewel Robbery

AIX-EN-PROVENCE, France (AP)—A seven-man jury today convicted six men accused of robbing the Aga Khan and his wife of $250,000 worth of jewels four years ago and acquitted three others.

One of those acquitted was George Lindsay Watson, ex-Royal Second World War hero who says he is the godson of Sir Winston Churchill.

Watson had vehemently denied he was the gangerman in the sensational, daylight holdup on the French Riviera. Throughout the 13-day trial Watson shared the spotlight with a long-smouldering policeman scandal, which exploded while the trial was in progress.

Defence Acquittals

Charles Vinciliconi, the Marseille restaurant owner who was accused of receiving the jewels and using his restaurant as a gang hideout, was acquitted.

The other defendant acquitted was Henri Waffelaert, who admitted that trial cutting up the fabulous $170,000 "La Marquise" diamond. Waffelaert, however, cooperated with police and the prosecutor had said during the trial he would not oppose acquittal for him.

Sentences handed out to the other six ranged from four, to 10 years.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

SLEEK AND BEAUTIFUL

The sleek and beautiful cuckoos are rarely seen—not that there are few of them, but because they slip quietly through the bushes, moving with the light quality and directly from the thick foliage of one tree to the next, rather than flying in the open. Their soft fawn plumage clings neatly. They progress in a wavering manner, trailing their excessively long tails behind them.

The entire length of a yellow-billed cuckoo is 12¼ inches, and 10½ inches full. And a beautiful, wedge-shaped tail it is, with white scalloped edges to its feathers. The black-billed, a slightly shorter, and slimmer bird, has a tail of similar shape, with the longest feathers in the middle, but smaller white tips trimming the ends. We wonder for the short, rounded wings are able to balance such an unequal load.

Yet they have carried the birds some way already this spring. Both cuckoos have come from South America. Some black-billed have started as far away as Peru, and some yellow-billed from Uruguay. All from the New England where they join bobolinks and continue north with them. Once in Canada, the rearing of the two species overlap, but the yellow-billed does not go as far north as the northern boundary.

The black-billed desires dense tangles of woody growth in a moist area, builds from two to four feet above the ground, and lays two or three dark blue-green eggs. The yellow-billed is very small for such big birds. The babies are born featherless and perfectly black, but in very few days quill-like feather tubes grow. These are pulled out by the little birds themselves. By the time they are a week old they are dressed in their feathers, and can climb about the branches. They are able to walk for days before they can fly. Both parents aid young ones "feed" when frightened, spreading their longish, slightly curved bills heavenward after the manner of bitterns.

The song of a black-billed cuckoo may be heard at night as well as by day. Composed of a series of "kucks", all on one tone, and uttered at very rapidly at regular intervals or divided into groups of three. Four, or five, it can scarcely be called musical.

Occasionally the individual varies the song and distinctly says "cow-oo, cow-oo."

Cuckoos deserve every protection. Their pet food is tent caterpillars, something most birds avoid. On examining the stomach of a Cuckoo it is found to be lined with little balls of fuzzy caterpillars.

Large Crowd Attends Big Community Frolic

Booths providing soft drinks and refreshments did a thriving business. All, in spite of the excessive heat, thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

Soldiers back from the Far East say that merchants over there are making a big effort to struggle with the British language in order to spur their business. This is evident in many of the little signs which have been put up outside the shops . One fur merchant in Pusan has a sign which reads: "We Make Fur Coats, Fur Skirts or Ours." A made-to-measure tailor has a sign on the inside wall of the little store which reads: "The Ladies Take Pile Upstairs."

ELECTRIC U.S.S.

We thought that the great U.S. had just about every electrical domestic appliance yet discovered, and that most women on the other side of the border had these things.

But we were quite surprised to hear exclamations of wonder from four U.S. friends when we brought out our electric kettle to make coffee in our room at a little summer resort. They had never heard of an electric tea kettle, didn't have the knack of electric coffee percolators, weiner spits and shavers.

If this attitude is general among the women to the south, there's plenty of business waiting for the appliance dealer who decides to acquaint them with this most useful gadget.

JAWS OF STEEL

Tree men employed by the Ontario Hydro have been trimming the foliage along a highway nearby. This time they don't have to pile the brush high on the trucks and cart it away.

A new machine is in use which when fed tree branches, chews them up and spits them into a bin on the truck. This fine pulp is later dumped into a ravine as means of municipal service in use for such scrap . . . Some food problems might likely figure out way to prepare the stuff for serving at cocktail parties.

Uncle Fruitcake says when he retired all he wanted was a rocking chair. For the first six months he was content just to sit. Then, after a time, he got to rocking a little. And he's still happy just sitting and a-rocking.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

When Should Parents Intervene In A Daughter's Marriage?

At what point should parents step in to take a hand in trying to straighten out daughter's unhappy marriage? Or rather, perhaps, should parents ever step in and involve themselves in such a situation?

One distracted mother, whose daughter appeals to her constantly for advice and sympathy over her husband, sends me this letter:

"I have a son-in-law who is giving my daughter a bad time.

"At the time they were married, he had nothing in the world but his clothes, while my daughter had worked and saved enough to furnish a nice four-room house for them without going into debt.

"Since their marriage, things have become worse rather than better. This man acts as though his wife's parents were not good enough for him, even though they have always been nice to him and treated him the same as we treat our own son. Not only does he not like us, but it really kills us to see the way he treats our girl — our daughter and our two dear little grandsons. He drinks quite a bit and he is always running around, and we have even been told that he has ruined a car that he has a small baby under a year old. He has even come home drunk and he has threatened to shoot our daughter. She never dares have company over, for he will not even have a friend visit her, because of the way he acts. Only our friends he himself has are beer-drinkers and loose-living men.

"His own folks are just nice poor people who only have what they work for. How can we ever wish to be the way he is, we cannot understand.

We simply don't know what to do about our daughter, and would like to know what you would advise."

Irresponsible Husband

At this juncture, of course, it is idle to wonder why the daughter ever married such a man in the first place. The mere fact that she had made no attempt to save money or have anything else ready for the girl he was to marry, while he had been working and saving toward their future, should, I would think, have warned her far enough in advance that, if she married him, she would be acquiring a completely irresponsible husband. And where were the parents, who now are so concerned over what they might well have foreseen, at the time this man was courting their daughter? Were they really satisfied with the man she planned to marry, or was it that they could do nothing to influence her against doing so?

Be all that as it may, however, the question is, should they, or can they, do anything now?

Undesirable as it must always be to parents to see a son or daughter suffer, it still remains a fact that married children should, wherever possible, handle their problems themselves. There are, of course, situations where for some special reason, an outsider must intervene. But, unless such special circumstances do exist, then I feel that the young people who considered himself mature enough to assume the responsibility of marriage, should stand up to, and cope with, any problems that may develop.

As a rule, interference from in-laws is the worst possible thing that can happen to a marriage. And sometimes—very often, in fact—when the in-laws are the victims of keeping out of the lives of their married children, marriages that may be headed for the rocks miraculously adjust themselves. Possibly they have been too much in-law interference in this marriage from the beginning, and possibly there may be a chance that if they would adjust itself if the girl's parents were to keep entirely away from the young people and leave them to work out their own destiny. At any rate, they might be worth trying, and I urge them to consider the suggestion. If they adopt it, however, I think they should first tell their daughter what they plan to do, and why, making it clear to her that they are not deserting her, but that they feel she may be better off if they step aside. At the same time, they might advise her not to take her husband's treatment too passively, but to assert herself now and then—in a quiet but resolute way, since quarreling will get her nowhere except into deeper trouble.

Of course I do not mean that their daughter should take abuse, or live in fear, indefinitely. If she continues to receive nothing but mistreatment from her husband, then I would think it fully to go on living with him. Since she was sufficient enough to be able to work and make money to support her children show, as many another wife has done since necessity demanded it.

But the decision to leave her husband, if it is finally made, should be her own, not forced upon her by her parents.

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

Answer:

You are wise to wrap the homemade candy for the bazaar in small packages and sell them for small amounts. You doubtless have noticed in most of the high-class candy shops that they group the 5 and 10-cent bars or patties much in the middle of the counter to tempt impulse buyers. Do you think you could wrap each piece in cellophane so that the appearance of the candy tempts the buyers? You certainly should have a fair profit. Do you think you could make the candy 1-4-inch thinner? Keep the shape of candy and number of pieces the same but make it thinner so it will go further.

You must have a candy thermometer.

Four cups white sugar, 2 cups milk, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 squares (4 oz.) unsweetened chocolate, 1 cup corn syrup, 1-4 cup butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Mix together sugar, milk, salt, unmelted chocolate and corn syrup and stir constantly until the mixture boils; sugar and chocolate are dissolved, mixture comes to a boil and bottom occasionally, to 238 deg. Fahr.—never go over that. It is better to cook it a little short of 236 deg. than to overcook it. Remove from heat at once and add butter but, do not stir. Stand aside to cool without stirring until it drops to 110 deg. Fahr. Add vanilla beat with spoon until mixture loses its gloss and it begins to retain spoon marks. At once pour into buttered pans. Mark in squares.

Notes—Eye appeal is important when selling candy. Be sure and sprinkle top of fudge with nuts or press one marshmallow and cherry in centre of each marked square. When cold cut in clean-cut squares with sharp knife and wrap each piece neatly in cellophane or waxed paper.

This is how you figure costs: roughly 1-3 for ingredients and supplies, 1-3 for labor and 1-3 profit. Since your labor is given free you should figure cost of all supplies and add 50 per cent. Weigh your candy. If it costs you 25 cents to make the above 3 1-2 lbs. candy cut it into 80 pieces and sell them 3 for 5c which will yield $1 and give you 80 per cent. profit. Don't forget to count the cost of the cellophane and added ingredients' such as nuts and cherries.

Question:

Am writing again for help but of a little different nature. I have a plaid taffeta dress which had two bad stains which dry cleaning did not remove. However, washing did remove the stains but also removed the resilient crispness of the dress. Is there any way of replacing this crispness? . . . I have a white hat of rather rough straw, almost like circular braid. It appears to have yellowed. Is there any way to clean it? Also a tan colored straw which appears soiled.— Mrs. H.

Answer:

I have talked to my druggist and chemist friends and here are their comments regarding your plaid and hats. You have washed the stiffening, as you doubtless know, out of the taffeta. It is probably rayon taffeta. Dry cleaning was put in the taffeta when it was manufactured. The only way you can make the taffeta stiff again is temporarily with each cleaning or washing and the only stiffener available to the retail trade is something like starch. There is a fine starch packaged with instructions for using it as voile and other summer dress fabrics. Try it, being sure you use the instructions carefully using boiling hot water to cook it. Make it more dilute than you would for cotton. I have written you separately telling you the trade name. As for the yellowed rough straw, make up a dilute bleach solution (like you use to bleach your white washing) and dip the hat in and out of it until it lightens somewhat. Then dip it in several clear waters to remove all traces of bleach, then dry the hat on a form made of wadded up paper covered with double towel—do not stretch back to the original size, for it will shrink. The yellowed hat is hopeless the druggist tells me. Straw hat dye would have been your answer, but very few large drug stores carry anything but black and black straw. I wish you luck in your rejuvenating efforts.

Fashionable Fabric

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Silk shirting crisp yet soft, makes a delightful dress that is cool and comfortable, right for city or country wear. The model is simple but is beautifully tailored and the color scheme is navy and white pen-line plaid. A classic collar tops the tucked gilet which fills in the V-shaped yoke. The skirt is side-pleated all around. Note the pretiest pocket flaps glimped at the very smartest levels are of pure silk brocade cloth shirting.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. BEECKMAN

World War II Widow To Re-Marry

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

(1) My husband was killed in World War II, and since then I have lived here with my parents. Now I am to marry again, we are to have a registered wedding in our church, with a reception after ward here in our home. Would it be correct for me to have my parents "sponsor" our formal invitations? They have been so wonderful to me that I would like to plan this, if it is proper. If it is proper, how is my name given on the invitations—with "Mrs." or how?

(2) Also I would like very much to have my father give me in marriage. Under the circumstances, would this be correct?

Helen H.

(1) Yes . . . in perfect taste for your parents to issue your invitations, and the proper honor and compliment to give them. But please don't use "Mrs." before name. The fact that you are a widow is indicated by the form of your name . . . your first name, your maiden surname and your married surname. For example:

Miss Mary Thomas
Mrs. Robert Thomas Robbins

request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter

Helen Robbins Hall

(2) Yes . . . your father may give you in marriage, as at your first wedding.

She Must Not Type The Envelopes Of Her Own Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I've been a secretary for several years, and my typing is (please pardon the "bragging") excellent. But my handwriting, I must admit, is terrible, neither good-looking nor even legible. I'm to be married in late September, and I'd like to order our invitations rather soon. Would I'd like to address the invitations myself. Would it be absolutely out-of-order for me to type the envelopes?

Marie S.

Yes . . . absolutely out-of-order for you to type the envelopes. They just must be hand-written. I'm sure you can enlist the friendly services of several people who have interesting and legible handwriting and who would be delighted to help. A sister, a cousin, one or two or more of your attendants?

Traffic Policemen At A Large Metropolitan Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

This is a "curiosity" question! My husband and I have always lived in a rather small town, but two years ago his secretary transferred him to this very large city. At the wedding we went to in our home-town there was even much a traffic problem, but in this metropolis we noticed at the large weddings we've been invited to (daughters and sons of the executives of my husband's company) that are always one or two, sometimes more, traffic policemen who direct the comings and goings of the cars. How comes my curiosity: Are these traffic policemen ever given any "gifts," and, if so, by whom?

Ursula

Yes, the bride's father generally gives a gratuity to each of the traffic policemen who are assigned to this "social" responsibility.

Last Thursday afternoon the the W.M.S. of the United Church entertained the members of the Mission Band at a picnic, the weather was cool the program was held in Roes Avenue Hall after which the children went to the Frankford Memorial Park for a picnic supper.

Mrs. Walter Morrow, the president was in charge of the meeting and opened by singing several well known hymns, after which she gave the devotions.

Business followed, after which Mrs. A. E. Johns gave the Scripture lesson, followed by an interesting program given by some of the members of the Mission Band: vocal solo by little Anne Beach; reading by Sue Anne Wallace; piano solo by Joan Caldwell; vocal solo, "I Is My Secret," by Patsy Brown.

A short time was then held by Mrs. J. M. Dafoe, after which the children went to the park for games which were in charge of Mrs. M. Poland and Mrs. Cecil Reid.

Later all returned to the hall where bounteous refreshments were served to a happy crowd of girls and boys, thus bringing to a close a pleasant afternoon, which was enjoyed by old and young.

Week-End Could Cut Yanks Margin To Game; 'Bums' Face 6-Game Lead

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

DON'T MISS IT!

The pickerel and muskies in Picton's salmral nautical racing amphitheatre had better beware, for reports sifting hitherway from the Prince Edward County coast have it that a monster number of speedboats will thresh the oceans came Civic Holiday.

A glance at the entry list shows that speedboats bluebook will be on hand, not to mention yachting "four hundred" with a few foam-kicking outboards loaned in for good measure.

The first Monday in August has been one of Picton's red-letter days since the first power boat sprinkled spray over the waterscape a few years ago. Skeeta, Bill McLean and the nautical gang over there practically shut up shop on the holiday and if you indulge in any topic of talk other than speedboating, you're a danged renegade, traitor and not worthy to set foot on the rich tomato-producing soil of the "west county in Ontario".

Called by many-racing experts, the best course, or one of them in North America, the waterway off Ferguson's Cove has been the home of many thrilling speedboat episodes since the handsome Prince Edward Gold Cup (worth six hundred smackgrat) was put up for competition.

We have been rain-soaked on "the Colonel's" Black Marie, a top-heavy lugger that was the original "official bargr". We have yielded one of many layers of epidermis to a skin-scorching sun, in reckless scorpion".

On another occasion we huddled in the cold grey dawn on the hurricane deck of an inflated raft watching the famous "Miss Canada" try for the world's speedboat record.

And we saw the death-blow handed to North America's grand old man of speedboating, the late "Pops" Cooper, by a freak squall that hurled his lithe 136 cubic inch end-over-end at the beginning of a record-breaking heat.

There has been many a spill, chill and thrill on the tree-fringed cognine since the "Flame," Frank Harris' orange-colored speedster, out of Arlington, poked a saucy snout on its pig-sticked, some 14 years ago.

And from here it appears next August 2 will be about tops for clean and speed in the proud history of the Yacht Club. The entry list is just about as colorful an array of "Who's Who" in speedboating as has ever graced the decks of the organization.

Topping the list is the well known Art Hatch, of Hamilton, who entertained the Gold Cup last year. Hatch is the Canadian who cut a wide swath in British speedboat circles with his Canadian speedster "Costa Lotta." The British took to Art and his craft like a Yorkshireman to his favorite roast beef and pudding and the proud Hamiltonian did a lot to cement friendship between Canadian and British speedboat people.

Hatch will drive a brand new winch of the waves, the "Costa Lotta II", a .286 job with a new fuel injection gadget attached. The new beauty had its face lifted a while ago at the Arrowhead regatta when it crashed with the boat driven by Tommy Sands. The boat was a total wreck but came through the water at nearly one hundred miles an hour when the rudder control of "Costa Lotta" went wacky.

The speeding craft were so close to each other that had Hatch had a throat-slasher razor handy he would have tickled Jack's face. The "Costa Lotta" went off course and "Mama's Mink", that's the Lou boat, leaped over the stern of the other. Art lowered the handicap without being decapitated by three hairs. Such minkey business.

Anyway Less will be back just to settle the little question of which boat is the faster, while several others will get into that nautical argument, too.

All-in-all it looks like a gala day with thrilling races in store for the fans. The spotlight racing craft of all designs will be there from Sprotsfield, Bantam, Belleville; Toronto, Ottawa, Brockville, Gananoque; Smith's Falls; Arnprior; Lachine, Que.; Montreal; Syracuse, N.Y.; Webster, N.Y.; Miller Place, N.Y., and others.

Additional thrills will be available when Tommy Turner of Kenmore, N.Y., will attempt to break the world's record for 136 open class craft. The mark is slightly over 100 miles per hour. He will drive his new boat "Rebel."

SOFTBALL!

It will be do or die for the Glen Roys' provincial junior softball champions at Alemite Field tonight when they tangle with the Wooler crew in a city league playoff berth. Both teams have chalked up a win and tonight's contest decides the city league team as far as those squads are concerned. The Glen will automatically go on into OASA Junior "A" playdowns as they are the only representatives in the district. The Wooler team has shown plenty of good form and with elimination from the city series at stake, tonight's game should be a thriller.

COBOURG HERE!

With the default of Northern Electric in its series with Sunset Anse, the Ox Polishers will be forced to sit around for a week twiddling their thumbs, unless arrangements can be completed with a Cobourg team for a home and home series. Manager Bill Miller says that last night there is a strong possibility the team will play in Cobourg Tuesday next and back here the following Friday.

American League Leaders Keep Pace With Unsteady Champs; Brooks Take Two from Cards

By Ben Pelegar
Associated Press Sports Writer

By Sunday night the American League may find itself with a tighter pennant race than the National League.

New York Yankees will still be ahead but their margin could be cut to a single game, Milwaukee, on the other hand, stands a chance of ending the week-end as much as six games in front in the senior circuit.

The Yankees finish a series with St. Louis today and then invade Chicago for a doubleheader with the White Sox. New York is nursing a four-game lead. Both the Yanks and the Sox, who play Washington, should win today, but a pair of Chicago pitchers Saturday may not be surprising. If it goes that way, New York will lead by only two games.

Brooklyn has won seven out of seven from the Cards at Ebbets Field and could well make it eight today in the windup of a two-game set. Then comes a pair with Cincinnati Sunday that the Dodgers should win. Milwaukee's schedule places Braves, now three games back, first Philadelphia today, and then have to play two Sunday with the revitalized Reds at Cincy. A combination of three Brooklyn victories and three Milwaukee defeats would place the Dodgers lead to six games.

Top Teams Wins

All first-division teams in the American League won Friday night. The Yankees beat St. Louis 6-4 with the help of a triple-play and four double plays. Chicago downed Washington 4-3 on Virgil Trucks' three-hit pitching. Bob Lemon threw a five-hit shutout for Cleveland against Philadelphia winning 2-0, and Boston edged Detroit 3-2.

The Dodgers trounced St. Louis twice 14-3 and 9-2 before a typically beat the Pirates 8-3 after losing five straight to them. Cincinnati ended Philadelphia's seven-game winning streak with a 3-2 decision. Three Giants and Chicago Cubs had the night off.

Casey Stengel gambled on his new lefthander from Kansas City, Art Schallock, against the lowly Browns, but Art didn't last long. The first time Schallock got into trouble Casey rushed him in favor of veteran Allie Reynolds, even though the youngster had a 4-0 lead. Reynolds won before Art and Johnny Sain finished up after the Browns scored four times in the ninth.

The galloping White Sox scored their 28th victory in their last 34 games with Trucks winning his sixth straight. The veteran fireballer hasn't lost since moving to Paul Richards' club from the Browns in June. His over-all record now is 11-4.

The Cleveland pitching and fielding fell apart in the first inning of the first game of a doubleheader and the Dodgers scored seven runs. Billy Fox hit a grand-slam home run in the third and Gil Hodges hit a homer with two on in the fifth.

Warren Spahn stopped the Pirates on four hits for his 12th triumph. Johnny Logan homered in the first inning to give the Braves a lead they never lost. Cincinnati came from behind to edge the Phillies 3-2 when Harry Perkowski scoring the winning run in the eighth inning. The loss was the sixth for Curt Simmons who has won eight.

CHILLS REFEREE

VIENNA (AP) — Ex-bareknld Austrian professional boxer, Karl Machata, was disqualified for life Friday night in Vienna after he knocked out the referee in a fit of anger. Machata, light middleweight, was boxing Alois Formella, 26, of Darmstadt, Germany.

The incident occurred in the sixth round of a fight after referee Hans Prabinger warned Machata about his low blows. Machata turned suddenly on Prabergar and knocked him cold.

SEEK RACKETEERS

BATH, England (Reuters)—Government officials in Westminster Abbey night that a phone cable to Australia was burned by fire. The acetylene torch Thursday—setting some $300,000 for betters on a 16-to-1 outsider in the Australian racing coup in British history.

Government officials were scouring the country for racketeers.

The severed overhead cable cut off all contact from their agents at the track, as they frantically tried to phone in the odds of the French horse, Francasal, could be switched.

The phone cable was burned dead just a half-hour before Francasal, an unknown colt which had never won a race, was to start. It won at 16-1, leaping ahead of a field of 17.

Police investigators said the job was done by fire setting out to "beat the book," bookies have complained, but still it is clear there was no fraud.

London Majors Nip Loss Streak; Defeat Elgins

By the Canadian Press

London Majors moved out of the doldrums Thursday night.

The fighting Majors swamped the axe on a four-game losing streak with a 3-2 victory over St. Thomas Elgins. The win put the Majors back on the move again and pushed them up to 2½ games behind Waterloo Tigers. St. Thomas was buried deeper in the league's cellar.

The sharp pitching of Bill Best did the job for London, But the Majors had to rally for three runs in the last of the eighth to make sure of the battle. Best pitched scoreless ball after the fourth.

Meanwhile, the Guelph Maple Leafs cut the leading Brantford Red Sox down with a 3-2 decision that left the Sox down by half a game ahead of Kitchener Panthers.

In other sessions last night Waterloo Tigers easily defeated Oshawa Merchants 6-2 and Stratford Terrics continued on the victory path with a 4-3 win over Kitchener.

At London, Charlie Moore put in the best performance at the plate, knocking in the first Major run in the fifth with a single and hammered in two more in the eighth with a single. Jim Tyrell led the Elgins with a two-for-three record. Jack Caffery of Toronto was the winning pitcher for St. Thomas mound for the loss.

But Ripplemeyer, the league's leading batter, who had hit record shattered when Oshawa bowed to Waterloo on home territory. Pete Koval scattered eight safeties for the visitors but was wild early in trouble. Two successive infield errors, a run placed and two singles produced two runs for Oshawa in the fifth. They matched two more in the sixth for the win.

Galt fastened well at the plate in pounding 13 hits off two Kitchener pitchers, nine of them off starter Mel Duncan who went the distance. Duncan was charged with the loss. Terriers put together their winning combination with one out in the third to score three runs. Two more came in with one out in the fourth, led to three unearned runs for the visiting Terriers and cost the home side the game.

Marlene, Cup Leave for Home Today Will Play in Canadian Tournaments

By Arch MacKenzie
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Canada's "Miss Golf" flies home today and with her goes the firs British women's amateur golf crown ever won by a Canadian.

Marlene Stewart is going but awfully glad to leave," said 19-year-old Marie Stewart yesterday. She's had an injured wrist—"but that's not the real reason. I've had about my own game," said Marlene. "But the other members can play far better than they did here at Wentworth. We talked golf, played it, ate it and slept it."

Marlene said her concentration slumped, although her other shots were good, in the round of competition, travelling and lavish hospitality.

But the tour still remained a wonderful experience.

Miss Stewart pooh-poohed suggestions that she may be turning professional, a topic several London newspapers discussed when she won the Open.

She will be leaving for Rollins College, Florida, for her sophomore year in October, probably to major in a business course.

The five-foot Canadian champion would like to return next year to defend her title but she doesn't know whether she can.

Vicious Hans Schmidt Sends Faithful's Hate Thermometer To New Low in 'Rasslin' Riot'

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

The television cameras don't like Hans Schmidt, whose mayhemic ring record is a story all by itself. He added to it last week when the irate lady-of-the house chucked my sad's bottle (full) through the screen, becoming, of "Hoisan the Golman's" behavior, lived up to advance notices here last night.

A savage, ice-cube type, of operator, the Terrible Teuton' sent the hatred thermometer of the wrestling faithful to a brand new low when he added his own particular type of beating to the regular Bobo Brazil, winning two falls of three in the main bout.

Sneering, snarling and error-prone, Schmidt is an excellent imitation of the Prussian type. He stops at nothing and only the famed "koko-bump" of the Bobo raised a chance of suppression on the poker-faced pachyderm.

Good Wrestling

But in fairness to him and despite his rough-house tactics, Schmidt is one of the best wrestlers to perform here in some time. He is fast, ruthless in his attack, and never misses an opportunity to turn the tables on the opponent no matter what method he uses.

This was proven in the last fall which lasted approximately two minutes, or less. Incensed at his defeat in the second fall, Schmidt launched his attack outside the ring before the gong rang. They slugged it out, climbed into the ring and Bobo went down before the vicious onslaught of the German. Schmidt pick-ed him up, hurled him at a ring-post, caught him on the rebound and the pair fell to the mat. Bobo thought he had won the fall as did a lot of the faithful, but Referee Maxwell, raised the Teuton's hand in victory and that was that.

Schmidt subjected Brazil to terrific punishment throughout the match. Bobo's chief weapon for his "inning" with the "koko-bonk". In fact in the second bout, he tapped with "Teutonic noggin so hard that Schmidt protested to the official that Brazil was wearing an army steel helmet under the kinky hair. Maxwell accepted his Bobo was wearing his head to the bone and the Teuton had to be satisfied.

The second fall was the best as far as the faithful were concerned. Brazil knocked down Schmidt's close-cropped pate to send him crashing to the floor and on another occasion flopped Hans on top of the ring.

Bobo Was Beaned

Came Heinie's turn and the Bobo was in bad straights. He too, was handed the soft treatment and drop-kicked all over the joint. Then he straightened up on the middle of the ring and "bonked" Schmidt with a "Cloroux Twirler" hand-chop and had leaped clear over the ropes to smother the Teuton for the fall.

Schmidt hit Bobo with everything but the filtration plant in the first fall. His sphynx-like map never changed expression as he coolly proceeded to twist Brazil into something that resembled a pair of pretzels doing a war dance. He pulled hair, jogged the cheap jugular, massaged his eyeballs, played handball with him off the ring-posts and rained hell in general with the Senegalese anatomy. He topped it off after a couple of "bonks" with his "back-breaker" and had after 13 minutes won him the fall.

The crowd surged around him as he left the dressing room and his ferocious attitude toward the spectators earned him the biggest boo of the night heard at any pachydermic pageant, not to mention a shower of crumpled paper cups.

Popular Timmy Geohagen sent newcomer Jimmy Mount 11 to Dean to "bye-bye" with his famous "Irish Hug" after fifteen minutes of mauling in the semi-final. The "Mountain" screamed to him heaven about the hair-pulling tactics but half the time was spent in rolling his own.

Handsome Robert Duranton, the "Pride of Paree," who believes in tit-for-tat, drew with the villainous Pole, Pirpo Zbysco, after thirty minutes of give-and-take wrestling that had the crowd in an uproar.

Petes Nudge Leading St. Kitts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Athletics are losing ground around their lead in the senior Ontario Lacrosse Association League. Peterborough Tradermen have taken over most of it.

The speedy Tradermen have moved within one game of the As who a couple of weeks ago had a lead far out of reach of the Traders.

Tradermen's latest win came Friday night, while St. Catharines were resting, when they trimmed Toronto-Orillia West Yorks 26-5 on home grounds. Tradermen closed up to a 5-0 lead in the initial period, added a 10-2 lead by through and were in front 17-2 at the third quarter.

In the only other game of the night Fergus Thistles downed tall and lanky Montgomerymen 15-7. Only rough spot in the game came in the hallway mark when Stan Kapasky and Thistles' Chuck Shaw

Curly Mason and Rusty Slater each notched four markers for Peterborough. Roger Smith, Brian Robinson and Jimmy Preston contributed three apiece. Bob Thorpe tallied twice, the others going to Ron Mosher, Jack Vitarelli, Don Ashbee, Nip O'Hearn and Mike Mackie.

Bob Hough, Mike Hay marksman for Fergus with four goals while Bobby Gordon notched three and Don Campbell and Harry Wood collected two each. Pete Bradkin was credited with the Montgomery markers. Joe Lubbock and Bill Menk tallied the others.

Bass in The Headwaters

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Selmar Tubes

You will find bass, of course, throughout the entire length of any good bass river. Unlike trout, bass are not migratory—at least, they are not in the sense that the term is usually used. In a manner of speaking they do migrate, but the journey is a gradual one, progressing with the years.

As a river flows from its source, gradually it grows in volume and width. Tributaries large and small add their flow to the parent stream. The pools grow longer and the riffles are fewer in number.

In a way this, too, is true of the bass which live in that river. In the headwaters the average size of the bass is small. As you fish your way downstream you will find this average to grow with the river.

Move to Larger Water

The bass, as they add inches and pounds, move on down into the larger water. This behavior—the movement—is above all characteristic of most bass rivers. Whether or not it is true of all of them I am not sure but I do know that it is true of the river's fish.

Conversely, however, as the waters become less in size the numbers of bass therein seem to dwindle. It may be that because the larger volume of water in which they live places more water around each individual fish, their numbers only seem to decrease, but I don't think so. Actually there are more bass in the headwaters.

Take, for example, the school of bass fry which live in upper Delaware when first the male parent leads the hundred or so tiny bass into the shallows, these little fellows are left to their own devices.

Predators make heavy inroads into their numbers during the early stages of their lives. The smart ones survive but the unwary soon are gobbled up by larger bass, frogs, water snakes, turtles, all kinds of things.

By the time they have become a year old and several inches long, perhaps but a scarcely more than ninety per cent of them. This shrinkage is inimical as they continue to grow. Predation, accidents, pollution and disease annually take their toll.

By the time our school of survivors has reached maturity—poundage it is unlikely that more than a fraction one per cent considered by anyone to have any fish will find for the most part in the lower river.

For that reason, we who like to fish for bass with fly-rod tackle visit each year the headwaters of our favorite rivers. After all, it is here that we find plenty of fish, and there are more bass in the headwaters.

Does Little Harm

To hook, play and release a small bass with fly-rod tackle does him little or no harm. The barb on the hook of a bass fly is a small affair and easily disengaged. We handle the fish with care and in turn them to the stream as good as new.

However, our fishing in the headwaters is not exclusively for small fish. Few rules of nature work out one hundred per cent and the rule of bass fishing is no exception. Here and there in the headwaters are the big bass that make their homes. The trick is to find these lunkers.

There seems to be no rule to guide the angler when it comes to locating large bass in small waters. Sometimes you will find them in deep pools. There they are difficult to reach and it is not easy to interest them in artificial lures.

Again you will find them in water not over two or three feet deep. Why large fish should live in such water I'm sure I can't say. Evidently the cover and food situation must be exactly suited to the tastes of large fish, as these spots produce fish year after year.

For instance, there is a stretch of water in the upper Delaware which my son and I call "the bass mine." This is a run about two feet deep and it lacks the attractive, "fishy" appearance of good bass spots.

The bottom is a jumble of large round boulders and it is a village out place in which to wade. Thus, it is rarely fished by the casual angler, as bait fishing among those rocks is costly in terms of lost tackle. Rarely does a year pass that the "bass mine" fails to yield its load or two or three pounders.

Meanwhile there are plenty of bass in the deep, fishy pools a few fathom bouts with their more robust relatives. A fly-rod angler is seldom bored in the headwaters of a good bass river.

Skill Is Necessary

When fishing the lower waters of a bass river, wading is out of the question. A boat is a necessity if you wish to fish the shore lines and "spots" of a large river.

In the headwaters of our northern rivers, however, the reverse is true. There a boat is a nuisance. Breast-high waders and hobnailed shoes are the ideal equipment. With these a man can fish where he pleases and there is but little water that can not be covered with comparative ease.

Fishing the lower waters of a bass river has its points without question. Here you know you are fishing over large fish. In the headwaters you merely hope you are. You start hope has a way of writing into reality often enough to keep you always interested.

As I say, you no doubt will take more large fish in the lower river. But the chances are that you will take fewer, and that much time will be spent in fruitless casting. In the headwaters there is rarely a dull moment.

Rochon, Main Give Canada 2-0 Lead Over Mexico in Davis Cup Series

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Thanks to the brilliance of Henri Rochon and the courage of little Lorne Main, who all but collapsed from sunstroke, Canada today holds a commanding 2-0 lead over Mexico in a first-round North American zone Davis Cup tie.

The Canadians won the opening singles of the tennis classic at the Mount Royal club Friday under a merciless sun that poured every heat down on players, fans and the grim grass courts. Shade temperatures reached well into the 90s.

The furnace-like setting didn't appear to bother Rochon, who raced through a three-set victory over Mario Llamas, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

With Main it was different. The Toronto - Vancouver boy had to overcome not only stomach sickness, dizziness and leg cramps but also Mexico's 24-year-old power hitter, Francisco (Pancho) Contreras.

Contreras, with Llamas and Cortez on everything he had to pull out the win, 9-11, 8-6, 6-3, 8-6.

Immediately after the matches, Dr. Georges Leclerc, Canadian team captain, announced that 22-year-old Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke Que., would team up with Rochon in the doubles today against the Mexican captain, said he would go with Jean and Cortez.

Main's distress from the sun was plain to see. He wasn't playing with sureness and overlooked chances where he might have forced Contreras into errors. At the interval after the third set, Main was reported running a fever. He took a moderately cool shower, and through the remainder of the match frequently sipped a cool drink.

"It was some sort of sun stroke," said Dr. Leclerc. "Main early as the fourth game of the first set. Main said he felt weak, with little strength in his arms and legs. He was dizzy and felt sick at his stomach and his breathing was difficult.

"At one time he told me he didn't know if he could finish out the match. Then cramps struck his legs and he couldn't even sit down after the change-over for the fourth set but the cramps tended to disappear after he got back on court."

Contreras piled up 14 aces against Main's seven. Rochon had each man beat in time and double-faulted eight times to Main's four.

Main played generally from the base line, occasionally taking the net behind his forehand. Contreras' serve was his strong game and his hard hitting, mixing it with a net attack, frequently forced Main into errors but Main overcame this situation with more placements.

Buffalo Rides Herd on Wings; Extends Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons widened their Inter-County International Baseball League lead Friday night, edging Rochester Red Wings 4-3. Montreal Royals beat Toronto Maple Leafs 11-inning decision to Baltimore Orioles.

The Bisons had overtaken the Royals Thursday night for the leadership and now hold a one-game lead. This marks the Herd's second time on top of the ladder. Both clubs have been fighting neck-and-neck for first place for some time now.

At Baltimore, Archie Wilson's 11th homer of the season was the big one for the Royals in the seventh.

Syracuse Chiefs downed Toronto Maple Leafs, 4-3, at Toronto with the help of former Leaf Jerry Hurley. Duke Markell, who played off a Leaf relief in the ninth, Lynn Lovenguth gave up 10 hits, fanned three and walked only one in the eight innings he pitched for his sixth win.

'Native Dancer' Favorite In Rich Arlington

Likely to go postward (5:45 p.m. EDT) a 3-5 favorite, Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Dancer has proved able to win his 18th victory in 17 starts before a shower-threatened crowd of 20,000 at Arlington Park.

The possibility of an "off" track for the one-mile event failed to keep the prohibitive favoritism of the beloved gave the Orioles the thrilling victory. Chief Pervano is the big one for the Royals in the event.

Dudley Hanover Wins by Head

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y. (AP) — Dudley Hanover, pacing colt from the Hayes Falls Acres Stable, Du Quoin, Ill., beat Direct Rhythm by a head in a stretch drive Friday night to win the $5,000 Albany free - for - all at Saratoga Raceway.

Driven by Benny Sclane, the son of Dudley Hall was clocked in 2:01, fastest mile of the current Saratoga meeting and just four-fifths of a second of the track record set by good time last year.

Veteran Umpire Says Most Gripes Come from Two-Months-Old Rookie

NEW YORK (AP) — Long after the ball game, Bill McGowan sat in his hotel room and told the salty tales of an umpire who has been calling 'em in the American League for 28 years.

"The gripes?", he said. "Eight of 10 come from some rookie who hasn't played more than a couple of months in the big league. They're the ones he does they're the aggressive type.

"Most of the big fellows never open their mouths. Fellows like Ted Williams and Joe Dimaggio, Jimmy Fox and Charlie Gehringer never said anything except "Hello", at the start of spring training and "goodbye" at the end of the season.

"Babe Ruth wasn't too bad, either, although he'd gripe now and then. And Walter Johnson never hollered in his whole life."

"While was on his way to being one of the all time champion gripers last year. He'd call me every pitch. Something happened to him over the winter. Somebody maybe Joe Cronin, must have had a talk with him. This year, he's one of the best. I guess it saw the light."

"You know those sweat shirts pitchers like to wear?", he said. "Well, Johnny had taken a knife or scissors and cut out chunks of cloth, a diamond shaped piece here, an orange here and a plum there. The idea was to distract the batter with the short sleeves while the pitcher threw the ball past him.

What life masters do in a championship match makes me have a higher respect for beginners. If pelodkas would realize that the simplest methods are better they would be much encouraged.

If you think I am kidding, go over the 28 hands played in the little master national championship. Deal number 12 is shown here:

	NORTH
	♥J 8 7 6
	♦Q
	♣K 8 3
WEST		EAST
♠K 10 4 2		♠J 6
♥A K Q 5		♥10 2
♦K 10 3 2		♦7 5 4
♣7		♣10 5 4 2
	SOUTH
	♠9 7
	♥9 6 4
	♣Q J 9 6

West is the dealer and will open the bidding. The final contract should be played by south in four circles, which will make. The correct rule bidding would go like this:

West	North	East	South
1 H	1 S	Pass	Pass
Dbl	Pass	2 D	3 C
3 D	4 C	All pass

Lacking the requirements for a true response, east will pass the opening bid by west. When west doubles for takeout and north passes, east is forced to bid. Diamonds is his correct reply.

South should not disturb the single overcall of one spade by north. But when west and east re-enter the bidding, south shows his clubs with intentions to defend in that suit.

It happens that east and west are not vulnerable. So, it would be in order for west to bid four diamonds for a possible sacrifice. With a spade lead from south it will go down one.

Only one of the 13 tables went to four diamonds. It was doubled and went down two. One north player went to three no-trump that should be defeated. But west let them make it.

One south got it for one no-trump that made two. Four norths in two or three hearts went down two or three. Three wests in one or two spades went down a couple. Only two were in three diamonds that made.

Not one was in the correct four clubs. Life masters? Really?

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, JULY 13, 1952:

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Venus and Sun should aid in personal interests, inspire one to better the quality of work. Mercury's aspect urges extra caution in written matters.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Friendly day on whole but some aspects advise general caution. Attend your affairs, of course, to help increase inner contentment.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Religion and thoughtfulness of others are Firsts for this day, week, year.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Sociability shouldn't mean energy dissipation. Neither does wise relaxation promote procrastination. It will be a better day and week than you think.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — The materialistic era in which we live tends to distort our views on life and the meaning of things. This watch carefully. Go to church for best inspiration.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — Through system and integrity you prosper rightly and make real advances. Pray, yes, but also act for private and public good.

September 24 to October 22 (Libra) — Too much time and thought often are given to trivia or to the wrong methods, and people. Study to eliminate such means and ends.

October 24 to November 21 (Scorpio) — Happy days, calm exterior (and inner calm for health's sake), plus prayer will bring you just rewards.

November 22 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — A full-time job is usually is the little things—those that build (or break) your eventual success. Remember prayers as a good start.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Enterprise is fine, but we are sometimes too necessary, too worldly in attitude. There's room for disagreement, but not bickering.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Established principles underlie a sound life. But that doesn't mean you shouldn't accept new devices. Examine all proposals critically.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Tender. Those whose knowledge was gotten by careful observation, study and thinking are those who can help you most. Consult them.

YOU BORN TODAY have many talents, strong mentality. You must put these assets to practice. Conserve energy without delaying activities that keep your mind lively busy. Be not too sensitive. Don't talk out-of turn; pray, have faith.

Readying Food for East Germany Despite Red Rejection

A load of flour scheduled for delivery to Eastern Germany despite Russian rejection of President Eisenhower's 15 million dollar food offer, is loaded aboard a freight car at a flour mill plant in Washington after inspection by W. T. Fling, superintendent of the mill. The mutual security agency has announced the first U.S. shipment of food for East German reds is already on its way overseas from New York. The shortage of food and smouldering unrest throughout Russia's satellite empire appeared to be the major reasons for a recent outburst by workers in communist East Europe. Reliable reports indicate food shortages are affecting millions in Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Albania and Poland. Actual death from starvation was reported among some of the poor. In East Germany, too, the harvest was expected to be poor because so many experienced farmers have fled to the West. — Central Press Canadian.

Second Crop Vegetables

BY FLORA M. SAVILLE

Our second sowing of radishes did not do well. After hoeing them out we put in a pound of dutch sets. Now we have a fresh supply of tender green onions to garnish cold plates and salads. Where the first head lettuce grew, we now have three-inch high beets. About the time we planted beans, the weather turned cold and wet. Some of the beans rotted in the ground. In the bare spaces we transplanted some peppers which were badly crowded between the tomato plants and the cabbages. The pepper plants were watered about an hour before digging time. Into the hole where we were going to put the plants we poured a half pail of water just before moving the plants. A handful of vigoro was mixed into the soil we packed around the peppers and then they got another drink. We did this in the evening to give the plants several hours in a cool temperature to get over the shock of moving. The tomatoes the next day was cloudy, otherwise we would have covered the plants with weighted newspaper to keep off the sun for another day. The plants have shown no sign of wilt, and the blossoms and little peppers are developing as well as those on the plants which were not moved.

Many Choices

The first sowing of broccoli made a poor showing. We are putting in the second crop of carrots, and a row of Chinese cabbage. When the second crop of leaf lettuce becomes too bitter, or shows signs of going to seed there will still be time for some kohl-rabi. It grows quickly and makes a welcome change in vegetables. The turnip like balls which form above the earth should be pulled when they are about the size of small basketballs. Cook and mash, or cube and serve with a mustard or cheese sauce. Kohl-rabi is delicious. It is good grated raw in salad too.

You pay taxes on that land so you might as well get all you can out of it. Just because the early crops are finished is no reason for the land to lie idle. It will grow weeds, better to make it produce vegetables. There are many varieties which will grow on into freezing weather. After one crop is finished pull out the remnants and add them to the compost pile. Turn the soil over lightly, add some fertilizer and replace the crop with something strongly different. Where the root crops such as carrot and beets were, you can now put in beans, parsley, broccoli, Brussel sprouts. Where lettuce, celery, cucumbers or beans were you can now plant turnips, carrots, or beets.

Best For Late Planting

Some crops do much better in the fall than in the spring. Brussel sprouts, broccoli, cabbage and cauliflower which have to be sprayed or dusted frequently to ward off those pesky cabbage worms in June and July will grow on into the late fall without that menace. Then, too, cauliflower which has to be tied up to keep the heads white in the spring will develop perfect white heads in the fall without trying.

Another good plant for the fall is Chinese cabbage. It should be started by mid-july or soon after. If it is too thick use the young plants as lettuce, or spinach. The tall erisp leaves may be sliced thin and used as cabbage, for salads, or cooked. It has a delicate flavor, that is somewhat like bleached celery. It will stand hard freezing weather, and is not hurt by freezing and thawing several times.

Hot weather spoils most types of leaf, and head lettuce, but several new heat resistant types have been improved to the point where they will go through weeks of heat and still remain crisp and sweet. They are slow to run to seed also which is an added advantage. Bronze Beauty is novel with its gold sheen, and it certainly dresses up the cold meat plate, and mixed salads. Salad Bowl is another new type which has proved good, and for color contrast plant oakleaf lettuce, its leaves are small, dark green, which means more vitamin packed. The brown edges and deep indentation add to its taste appeal.

Late peas, broadleaf cress, radishes and radishes are crops you can count on for October if you want them to supplement your root crops. If you have winter onions now is the time to pick off the seed which have formed at the top of the log stocks. Break them apart and start them off in a new row, or start some White Welsh onions from seed now to be gathered in March for early spring onions.

Time For Bush Beans

There is still time to plant yellow, or green bush beans, and dwarf Scotch kale. The curly green leaves are used while small in salads, and on into real wintry weather in stews and soups, or boiled and buttered.

Don't forget to keep an eye on those vegetables which are now in their prime, or nearly so. D.D.T. or other poisonous sprays should not be used after cabbage starts to head, or on leafy vegetables. End-O-Pest will discourage Colorado beetles, cabbage worms, aphis, carrot worms and bean beetles. Once a week is not too often to make applications

NEIGHBORS HELP

ST. THOMAS (CP)—More than 60 district farmers went to the aid of their neighbors Friday. Thursday morning, William Duffy, 70, was fatally injured on a New York State highway and M. G. McLaws, driver of the car was seriously hurt. When neighbors learned of the accident, they turned out and worked on the farms of Glen and William Duffy, sons of the dead man, and the McLaw farm.

Jet Liner to Continue Flight After Accident

LONDON (Reuters)—The Comet jet liner which burst its tires landing at Juba airstrip, Sunday, Thursday is expected to leave there in the next few days without any special assistance in its take-off, a company spokesman said today.

"The Comet can be flown from there with perfect, safety without any unusual measures and carrying the normal operating crew," he said.

The British Overseas Airways plane, flying on the London-Colombo run, touched down at Juba because of poor weather conditions at Bombay's main airport. The pilot slammed on the brakes to avoid coasting off the short runway and burst all the tires.

1,500 Truckers In Nine Cities Out on Strike

Hundreds Start Picketing Stopping Traffic on Roads

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

More than 1,500 truck drivers in nine southwestern Ontario cities struck today for higher wages. Thirty-six Interurban transport companies from Hamilton to Windsor were closed and picketed.

The striking drivers are members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL-TLC) and quit at midnight Sunday.

Only a few pickets turned up when the strike went into effect. However, hundreds started picketing the companies early this morning.

Scores of pickets spread across the highway leading from Burlington to Windsor, stopped traffic this morning. There were no incidents, and local truckers were allowed to pass the lines.

No Agreements

Conciliation officer J. W. Murray, manager of the motor transport industrial relations bureau, which represents the trucking companies, said that no companies have yet met Teamsters' demands. He also reported at Windsor Saturday that four companies had reached agreement with the union.

Although the strike began officially at midnight Sunday, transports were off the roads for the week-end by Saturday noon, Mr. Murray said.

Involved in the strike are 980 members of the union's Hamilton local, which embraces truckers in London, Kitchener, Galt, Brantford and Hamilton, and 550 in the Chatham area of Windsor which includes truckers at Leamington and Tilbury.

At Hamilton, spokesmen for gasoline and oil companies said the strike will slow down shipments in and out of company warehouses, but always has been.

In London, railways hired more workers to handle large quantities of freight normally carried by trucks. Non-union truckers operated as an unusual sight.

At Woodstock, 31 employees of the Overland Express Company are picketing the firm's premises on an eight-hour shift basis.

Transport firms in Buffalo area some 2,200 truck drivers and helpers struck early today and tied up freight deliveries in a 50-mile radius. Some 150 firms were involved. There was no indication that the Buffalo and Ontario strikes were linked.

Stop Transports

At Chatham, strikers stopped all transports on No. 2 highway and picked them up at terminals. Members or not, to pull into the Kingsway Transport yards and use the telephone their home offices to report having been stopped.

There was no picketing at the Wallaceburg office.

There were no pickets at trucking offices inside Chatham itself.

At Brantford, union firms with separate contracts were operating at full tilt and flooded with extra business.

Industry at Oshawa, 80 miles east of the strike area, was feeling the effects of the walkout. A spokesman for General Motors said many production line parts normally carried by truck from Detroit were being brought in by train.

Farthings Buy Room at Pool For Dressing

GLYNDE, England (Reuters)—Bill Freeman, the local milkman, hated the sight of farthings, British's smallest coin worth four to the penny.

Counting his takings every day, Bill would put the tiny farthings on one side. They filled a milk bottle, then a milk churn and finally two milk churns.

When Bill died at 84 he left his farthings to the council of this Sussex village, all 10,963 of them, worth $91.30. The council put the farthings on show and asked villagers to take part in a competition to guess how many were in the pile.

PC's Have Chosen Four Scrutineers For Army Voting

TORONTO (CP)—The Progressive Conservative party has named two men from Quebec and two from Ontario to act as scrutineers for the armed services in Europe and the Far East in the general election next month.

Dr. J. E. Perreliere of Giffard, Que., and Edward F. Coover of Meadowvale, Ont., will represent the party in London, where the votes of servicemen serving in Europe will be counted.

E. A. T. Paquet of Ville St. Laurent and William J. Archer of Toronto will officiate at the Far East returning office in Kure, Japan.

Each party with a representation of 10 or more members in the Commons is entitled to have scrutineers for the assistance of the overseas voting stations.

Immunization Can Reduce Loss By Hog Cholera

TORONTO (CP)—Early and effective immunization against cholera and swine fever reduces the loss of swine through intestinal diseases, the American Veterinary Medical Association said today.

A report by Drs. L. M. Hutchings and L. P. Doyle of Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., said hog cholera, swine fever, parasites and transmissible gastro-enteritis are the most common causes of intestinal problems, but hog cholera should be suspected and treated first.

The best way of combatting swine dysentery and transmissible among young pigs was to scatter them as widely as possible to reduce losses.

Dr. L. C. Swan of St. Catharines, Ont., told the association's convention good housing and best lamps will eliminate intestinal trouble caused by chilling and camp pens. He also recommended reduced feeding of the sow after farrowing.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: Mainly sunny weather with afternoon temperatures in the 80's prevailed throughout Ontario Sunday. However, a few showers developed over southern regions during the afternoon, and a band of thunderstorms, moved into Northern Ontario in the evening ahead of cooler air moving down from the northwest. This cooler air will spread across the northern half of the province today and Tuesday preceded by a few thunderstorms. Little change is expected in the weather over Southern Ontario.

MAJOR CLAUSES OF KOREA TRUCE DRAFT LISTED

War Stops 12 Hours After Truce Signed

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Here are major items of the Korean truce draft, expected to be signed soon after that the Red have given the go-ahead to proceed with final details:

Fighting stops 12 hours after the truce signing; troops withdraw from buffer zone about 2½ miles wide across Korea; troops and arms frozen at truce level but relation of 35,000 men monthly permitted; Allies withdraw within five days from Korean coastal islands.

Prisoner Agreement

Prisoners of war who want to go home are freed by Panmunjom and within two months; POWs unwilling to return home turned over to five-nation Red Cross commission (India, Sweden, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, Poland); India supplies guards for POWs; Red agents (seven per 1,000 POWs) are repatriated during 90-day period—in presence of neutrals—under custody of Indians. POWs who change minds repatriated on commission majority vote.

Civil Conference

Recommendations made for a political conference to begin within three months after armistice, discuss peaceful settlement to entire Korean question; withdrawal of all foreign forces, if persisting in refusal to go home handed to conference for 30 days; if after 30 days, those still refusing repatriation released to civilian status in South Korea with right to go to neutral nations of their choice.

The Communists reserved the right Sunday to place before the political conference the problem of 27,000 anti-Red North Korean POWs who refused to be freed on the order of President Syngman Rhee. They have disappeared into the South Korean population.

Drew and Coldwell Critical Of Government's Trade Policy

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

The leaders of the Progressive Conservative and CCF parties fired broadsides at the government's trade policy during the week-end. Instead of firing back, Mr. St. Laurent made a speech in which he said he hopes for greater Canadian autonomy.

In speeches at Cambridge and Amherst, N.S., Hon. George Drew blamed Liberal government trade policy for an "alarming" import balance in the first five months of this year. At Kirkland Lake, Ont., M. J. Coldwell said Canada should pursue British bonds by accepting some payment for her goods in sterling.

Mr. St. Laurent didn't discuss government trade policy, already fairly well explored in the earlier weeks of the Aug. 10 election campaign.

Instead, at Mont Joli, Que., on the upper St. Lawrence river, he drew a picture of a Canada which would have the constitutional authority to make all its affairs without reference to another country.

Drew to Quebec

Mr. Drew wound up his week-long tour in the Maritimes Saturday, big moves into Quebec today and will visit Ontario for three days there and in Ontario where 160 of the Commons seats are at stake.

Besides criticizing government trade policy, he took a shot at what he says is a federal government "snoopers." Tax investigators were "scouring the small taxpayers" and going back 15 or 20 years demanding records they can't possibly produce."

The question was not one of investigating those who occasionally make false tax returns, but of requiring persons who made honest returns to give explanations for tax savings several years later.

"They are acting as if they were your masters, not your servants," said Mr. Drew. "You have a far greater right to question and accounting from them than they have to question you."

Trade Questions

Of government trade policy, the Progressive Conservative leader said:

"The fact is that this government exploited Europe's great economic needs for our products in exchange for financial concessions to the point of 27,000 anti-Red North Korean POWs refusing to be freed on the order of President Syngman Rhee. They have disappeared into the South Korean population.

TWO YOUTHS HELD ON CAR-THEFT CHARGE

Two seventeen-year-old youths are in custody of local police, following the theft of an auto from the city on Saturday night. The two youths: Thomas Whitebean, from near Lachine, Que., and Howard Babcooke, RR. 4, Belleville, have been charged with car theft, police stated.

Mr. R. Bouman, Glen Miller, told police that he had parked his car on the Pinnacle Street and when he returned shortly before midnight the car was missing. Provincial police officers McBride and Fullerton picked up the radio alarm and spotted the car near Desoronto. They stopped the car and took the two youths into custody and turned them over to city police.

But Provincial police were not so lucky with a car reported stolen at Shannonville. Mrs. Vivian of that village, reported his 1949 model car had been stolen. Provincial police from Napanee found the car totally wrecked on a county road near Odessa.

The speakers included Roscoe Robson, M.L.A., who outlined several legislative matters that should be a change of federal government. "Sandy" Lumsden, MP for the electorate to help bring about a reduction of taxes by voting Progressive Conservative and Mr. Grills expressed his appreciation of the support and offers of assistance, which, he said, were coming in from all parts of the riding. Introduced briefly by Alfred Wickett; tap dancing by five-year-old Judy McKnight; a duet by Misses Howard and Thompson; accordion solos by George Guilford and humorous stories and readings by Ross Pier.

Refreshments were served by the ladies of Thurlow Progressive Conservative Association.

Police to Crack Down on Speeding In Point Ame

- Provincial police will crack down on motorists who persist in speeding through the village of Point Ame, endangering other traffic as well as children at play, it was noted today at police headquarters.

"There have been several complaints by village residents of speeding in Point Ame," one provincial police officer noted, "and a close check will be kept."

The officer explained that the curves and sudden grades on the street made speeding especially dangerous and several points the view ahead is obstructed.

C.N.R. Athletic Association Enjoys Picnic at Port Hope

It may not have been the largest picnic in the Canadian National Railways Athletic Association's history but what it lacked numerically was more than compensated for in the sheer enjoyment of the outing.

Everyone of the estimated 350 members and their families a decrease of 150 over last year, enjoyed every minute of the grand time held in Community Park, Port Hope on Saturday.

Unforeseen circumstances forced the change of venue of the picnic from Cobourg where the CPR held forth) to its neighboring town but this fact did not deteriorate one iota from one of the most enjoyable summer get-togethers in the history of the organization.

Did Plan Job

Picnic Committee Chairman Henry Drury and Mrs. Drury, both stationed at Cobourg, who was unable to be present due to vacation plans, Corner Digest, association vice president Mrs. Jack Fitzgerald, Mrs. Ben Shadbolt and other members of the ladies auxiliary did a fine organization job.

Others who were instrumental in the success of the picnic were Cy Clowes, Peggy Ronsky, the young softball mentor, Lorne Bell, the young swimming coach; Stan Buck, association second vice; Charles Newberry, Thomas Arthurs, Wesley Cecil Connors, Clem Bowler and many others. The association was represented by W. A. Easton, assistant superintendent of Belleville district and Mr. Galbraith, of the city ticket office, was passenger representative on the train.

And the weatherman gave the CNRAA a fine break. While Port Hope's beautiful park swelters under the heat of the current "heat wave" it was tempered somewhat by a cloudy haze and what by a cloudy haze and breeze, was a blistering sun.

Upwards of 275 members of the association and their families left the city via a CNR Picnic Special" train a nine o'clock in the morning leaving Port Hope at 6.30 p.m.

Travel by Car

The party arrived at the Port Hope picnic grounds shortly after ten-thirty. Just before lunch and during the afternoon, many arrived from Belleville by automobile. The fine beach off the picnic grounds proved popular with swimmers during the afternoon while the kiddies played their wishes at the playground facilities available.

Chairman Drury and his assistants arranged an outstanding program of sports for the afternoon entertainment. Each and every event on the "picnic" sports calendar was offered and many of the races were keenly contested. Handsome prizes were presented to the winners and runners-up.

Mrs. Reta Foster was the outstanding lady athlete of the afternoon finishing first second in the "married ladies' race," second in the "pop-bottle" contests and teaming with Bob Vaughan to win the "three-legged" event.

Mrs. Saunders was awarded the prize for the "oldest lady present" but Mrs. Mc. Albert Desmett won the award for the "oldest gentleman" present. He is 88. Mrs. C. Saunders had the largest family present, seven and was suitably rewarded. Ten-months-old John Reynolds won the gift for being the youngest baby on hand.

It was a great day for the kiddies. They were royally entertained on the main and on the grounds by an hilarious clown while they were given balloons and all-day suckers during the train-ride.

Pin-Ups Win

A feature of the afternoon's fun was the softball game played between "Peggy's Pin-Ups" and "Cy's Clowns." Peggy Ronsky captained a strong team as Cy Clowes and Lorne Bell seemed to get anywhere with the ludicrous umpiring staged by Mr. Bell. George Chapper and Larry Biron. They reversed every decision and the players remained all over the diamond. It was a barrel of fun and the last report was that the "Pin-Ups" had won by two safeties.

Perhaps the humorous event was the "Pop-Bottle Contest" open to the ladies only. A dozen or so bottles of pop were equipped with rubber nipples and the contestants were required to balance and finished drinking the bottle of pop via the nipple method. Mrs. Foster was the winner, Joan Keegan.

Reg Gambridge staggered over the finish line the winner in the fat man's race, Bobby Wood the best the field of buxom women in the "fat ladies' race". Mrs. Ben Shadbolt was the lucky lady accopping the married ladies' event with Mr. Shadbolt, players required to heels to the field in the married men's heat.

Henry Jaracz, 323 1-2 Front Street, held the lucky ticket in the draw for the transistor radio. Little Miss Beverley Brownley, a guest from Hamilton drew the ticket.

Race Results

Results of the various races were: boys' 3-4, Roger Anderson, Tommy Young; boys' 5-7, Ronnie Roxbury, Ricky Brisbane; boys' 8-10, Owen Moreau, Jerry Kingston; boys' 14-16, Charles Kingston, Bob Vaughan.

Girls' 2-4, Jean Frachetie, Mary Welch, girls' 5-7, Gail Langabeer, Ardell Sunderland; girls' 11-13, D. McLean, Jeanette Bothwell; girls' 14-16, Joan Keegan, Jacqueline Mondeville.

Chairman Drury and his assistants arranged an outstanding program of sports for the afternoon entertainment. Each and every event on the "picnic" sports calendar was offered and many of the races were keenly contested. Handsome prizes were presented to the winners and runners-up.

Deseronto Man Injured When Car Hits Bridge

Raymond Leween, 45, of Deseronto, was seriously injured early Saturday evening when the car he was driving missed the curve at the entrance to the York Road bridge in Mohawk Reserve and crashed into the side of the structure.

The truswork of the bridge was damaged, while the left side of the car was crushed. Leween was knocked unconscious by the impact and was later taken to Belleville hospital. Police said that Leween suffered facial injuries but the extent of other injuries was not known.

Provincial Constable McBride who investigated, said Leween was driving east when he apparently lost control of his car at the entrance of the bridge. The driver was alone in the car at the time of the accident.

TORONTO STOCKS

Industrials led the mild decline with a few issues trading as much as $1 lower. Base metals followed closely as key stocks turned in narrow losses. Golds featured a buoyant group of junior producers as they chalked up a small index gain while western oils traded actively at mixed to lower prices.

Uraniums and New Brunswick base metals were generally weaker as such recent favorites as New Larder U, Asacoo, Brunston and Landover showed minor declines.

Golds were the one firm spot in the market, thanks to a rising group of juniors. Seniors and holding companies moved up slowly to establish a pattern.

Base metals followed the lower trend set by such higher-priced issues as Smelters, International Nickel and Waite Amulet. Lower-priced stocks were also weaker.

2 Bike Riders Hurt in Crashes With Motorcars

TRENTON, (Special.)
Two bicycle riders have been injured in accidents involving motor cars.

Louis Pope, 11, of 37 Edwards Street, suffered cuts and bruises on the head and back when he crashed into the left front fender of a car driven by Boyd Ferguson, 23, of Glen Miller. The youth apparently failed to see the auto before it was too late to avoid the collision. He was riding down a steep hill from house 341 on Sidney Street. He was thrown into the windshield of the car causing light damage to the driver's vehicle.

Frank Johnston, 18, 68 Heber Street, was less fortunate. He ran into the side of a car in traffic opposite McCroden's Service Station on Dundas Street fracturing his left shoulder. The car was dented while the young man's bicycle was almost wrecked.

Candy Stolen

Believed to be the work of teen age boys, the tuckshop at the softball park was entered sometime during last night and 17 chocolate bars were taken in the morning when police checked up. Access to the building was gained by ripping a board off the side of the structure.

No Sympathy Strike Likely Say Local Managers

Local managers of two major transport companies in the city are in agreement concerning the truckers' strike, which is crippling trucking in southwestern Ontario hitting this city.

Both men are of the opinion there is little chance at the present time of Belleville truckers striking in sympathy with the unions in another part of the province. They explain the contracts of the striking drivers ran out as far end of 1952; whereas, the local A.F. of L. contract does not expire until December 31, 1954.

Elliott Whiteman, manager of Smith Transport here, said that fact will not necessarily prevent a strike if the drivers wish to call a vote. However, the manager felt a strike or his 42 city and highway trucks unlikely. He explained that each local has its own separate contract, giving a different wage scale.

R. H. Godden of Direct-Winters Transport also agreed with Mr. Whiteman. He does not anticipate any striking at his 18 city and highway drivers. However, the managers cautioned that although a 24hr strike is unlikely, it is difficult to say for sure that it would not happen.

Constable Injures Head in Fall

Suffering a faint spell as he was assisting a doctor in giving emergency treatment to a patient injured in an auto accident, Police Constable Lyle Davis, of the city police department, slumped to the floor at the hospital Saturday night and struck his head, causing a hairline fracture. The constable was put to bed and remained at the hospital for the night.

Constable Davis had investigated a motor accident on Pine Street and had been requested by the officer in charge at the hospital. Police Chief Probert said the officer suffered a faint spell apparently due to the heat and as he turned to leave the room, fell and struck his head.

CHARGED WITH CAUSING UNNECESSARY NOISE

City police frown on motorists who make a nuisance of themselves by making a lot of unnecessary noise with their machines.

Just this was found out over the week-end by a Stirling youth who found himself charged under the Highway Traffic Act with making "unnecessary noise."

Police said that Douglas Robson, Stirling, was cutting his ignition and causing the motor to backfire.

Logging Accident Takes Life of Mill Employee

SANCROFT (Special) — John Peplenski, employee of the Conway Lumber Company at Barry's Bay, was almost instantly killed Friday afternoon when he was crushed in a logging accident at Hennes, 13 miles east of here.

Acting as driver's mate to Ivan Hartwick, also of Barry's Bay, Peplenski was holding the brake on a log loader when the cable broke allowing the loader and two heavy logs to fall on him. Two other workers, Ewart Wilson of Boulter and George Whelan or Barry's Bay, assisted in getting the man out, but he died fifteen minutes later. Peplenski was married.

Coroner Dr. O. W. Anderson of Bancroft has called an inquest for Wednesday. Provincial Constable John Hawkins of Bancroft investigated.

Complete Plans For Picton Fair

PICTON — Plans for Prince Edward County Fair at Picton were completed at a largely attended meeting of directors of the Agricultural Society Friday night. Dates this year are Saturday, August 22nd, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, August 24-25-26. Many special attractions were reported booked to assure four full days of entertainment in connection with the biggest agricultural exhibit in this part of Ontario.

So great has been the expansion of junior farmer clubs in the county that the Monday will be largely given over to them. Nearly 100 calves will be shown by members and additional space is required for their general exhibit.

Secretary Phil Dodds reported that United States artists will present a vaudeville program the last two nights; that a horse show featuring two one-mile-and-a-half classes for carriage and road-ster horses is scheduled for the Monday night. Spectacular fireworks display are planned two nights. Three bands are being engaged and amateur and professional entertainers and novelty contests will round out a full program.

For the first time since NATO's South Europe command was formed, Italian jet bombardiers were able to call on F84 thunderjets based in Turkey and Italy.

Two contracts for the new dual-lane highway in this district were let on Saturday, Mr. Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A., announced today.

Mr. Sandercock was advised by the Hon. George Doucett, Ontario Minister of Highways, that the contract for the stretch of highway extending from the Trent River to Lots 18-19 Sidney township was awarded to the Scott-Jackson Construction Company, Toronto, while that extending from Lots 14-19 Sidney to Hillway No. 14 was let to the H. J. McFarland Construction Company, Picton.

Turtle Goes on Finger Diet Now It's Out of It's Head

Do snapping turtles snap?
Ask Bob Ellis, Burton Street.
He has the correct answer.

Ellis went turtle-hunting the other day with his young daughter and wound up near a muddy swamp in the vicinity of the bay bridge.

He poked a finger in the water at something bobbing on the surface. He let out a yell of pain, and jerked his finger from the water. A "good-size" turtle had the digit in a strong grip.

Ellis tried to shake the turtle loose. Without success. He shook, the tighter the turtle gripped. He tried to pull it off but the "soup-in-the-shell" refused to let go.

Ellis was in a dilemma. Blood trickled down his finger.

Eventually a passing motorist stopped to see what was wrong. The driver was a Chinese, associated with a city restaurant.

"Something long!" he asked.

"Get this thing off my finger," said Ellis.

"Me get him off, if you give me turtle," said the Chinese without a change of expression.

"You can have the blankety-blank thing," shouted Ellis. "Just get him off my finger."

They had the island-faced Oriental.

He pulled a knife from his pocket, and before Ellis could say "soup" the turtle was decapitated.

But the troubles of Ellis were not over. Every time pressure on his finger was released, that the would cause the head of the turtle was clamped on his finger in its death-grip.

Finally the jaws had to be pried open with an implement before Ellis' finger was released.

The turtle? It probably found its way into a Chinese soup pot before the sun set.

9th Anti Tank Sergeants Hold Annual Picnic

Warrant officers, sergeants and associate members of 9th. Anti-Tank Regiment RCA sergeants' mess were hosts at the annual picnic held for members and their families at Crystal Beach, Madoc, on Saturday.

Upwards of 150 enjoyed a full day of fun and entertainment, including softball games, sports and other contests.

Two buses took a large number of the guests to the beach, leaving the armouries at 10.30 a.m. Many went by automobile.

Two brief, but heavy, showers that fell on the grounds at noon and at four o'clock failed to dampen the spirits of the picnickers, or stop the day's festivities.

A feature of the afternoon was the softball game between Jack Murphy's "Associates" and Gord Carter's "Aces". The latter unit was a victory claimed by the "Carter Little Pills", while the Murphy "Spuds" disputed the decision, claiming that all officials were from the mess, office, hospital, or otherwise, was said to be "for the Aces".

The kiddies had an enjoyable time, swimming, racing and scrambling for peanuts and candies. They were given souvenir hats and waterballs, the gifts of the mess.

Following a morning swim the party sat down to the picnic luncheon and at 2.30 an enjoyable sports program began. Sprints and novelty races were held while special prizes were given to Andy Alma Shortt, the "oldest lady present" (74), and to five-month-old Brenda Anne McLuskie, the youngest person on the grounds.

Results of the races were: Girls under 6: Patsy McKenna; boys under 6, Bobby Moon; girls under 9: Nancy Brunton; boys under 9: Michael Foxan; girls under 12: Andy Bailey; boys under 12: Bernard Boulter; wheelbarrow race: Dick Laney, Esther Williams; sack spoon race: Dick Lacey; needle and thread race: WO2 Don Dafoe and Mrs. Dafoe; egg throwing contest: S/Sergt. Les Mason and Mrs. Mason; "Grandmother" race: Sergt. A. McKenna.

THE EMPIRE'S FUTURE — THE WRONG ANSWER

A London, England, weekly recently asked Lord Beaverbrook for a statement regarding Britain's future policy toward the Empire.

The statement follows:

"Nearly one hundred years ago, Joseph Howe, politician and leader in the Province of Nova Scotia said: 'Under the evidences of God, after centuries of laborious cultivation, a sacrifice of much valuable blood and the expenditure of an amount of treasures, the British Empire as it stands has been got together and the question is, what is now to be done with it?'

Now here, we suggest, is a statement which exemplifies a completely erroneous viewpoint of the Empire today—and the fact that this viewpoint is held by many in England is one of the reasons why it is proving so difficult to do anything at all with the Empire.

When Howe posed the question, it would have been true that the answer rested with Great Britain. But a hundred years have passed and conditions have changed. And that was true of the Empire then. It is not true of it today.

There is no reason to differentiate between the Empire and the Commonwealth and to regard Beaverbrook's objection as applying only to British herself and her crown colonies. However, has never shown any disposition to divest the Empire of its self-governing countries in this fashion and we may safely assume that he was referring to the entire Commonwealth.

In the future of the Commonwealth Britain has a place, for the present at least the most influential one, but there are other voices which must also be heard. Other countries have their hopes and desires considered. There is Canada—which must play a major role because of its close association, geographically, economically and culturally, with the most powerful nation in the world, the United States of America. There is India, which speaks as an echo of the desires and aspirations of that great and awakening land, the Asiatic continent. There is Pakistan, a voice from the Moslem world. And there are the voices from Africa. Burma, New Zealand, Australia and other far-flung corners of the globe.

The future of the Empire or of the Commonwealth must be settled jointly with all these countries and it is impossible for Britain to decide on her policies without consulting with them. Only what will be the future policies of the countries of the Empire towards her. The task of doing something with the Empire is much more difficult today than it was in Howe's time — but the opportunity to influence the future history of the world by the use of this instrument is thereby enhanced.

SOMEBODY SPOILS THE FUN

Senator Joseph McCarthy has decided not to call ex-President Harry Truman to testify before a Senate investigations sub-committee.

Aw, shucks! Somebody is always spoiling things.

The prospect of Truman, freed from the necessity of maintaining that dignity required of a president, getting into a tussle with McCarthy was definitely alluring.

Everyone probably felt the same way about it. Certainly he fired few warming shots. Asked by reporters in New York to comment on the Senator's proposal to refuse to testify, Truman said he had no comment. But there could not resist adding a phrase. He was silent, he said, because "what I could tell you, you would not print."

Then perhaps he chuckled and inwardly digested that statement. Perhaps that was the reason that he decided to accept assurances from the FBI that Truman had not withheld any information he needed in connection with the assassination plot. There have been occasions in the past where some people have felt that McCarthy's assurances from a rather noticeable reluctance

Astounding Tale of German Espionage Revealed in Book

NEW YORK (AP)—How German agents literally took over the British-Dutch spy and sabotage ring in Holland for 18 months during the war is told in a book published here today.

Britons Trapped

Titled "London Calling North Pole" and written by H. J. Gibbes, the German anti-espionage chief in wartime Holland, the book relates that:

1. Fifty-four British and Dutch agents fell into German hands during the North Pole operation, as it was called. Forty-seven died.

2. Nearly 200 drops from airplanes of Allied men and material were made into the waiting arms of German "reception committees."

3. Twelve four-engined Allied bombers used in the drops were shot down immediately afterwards by German night fighters.

4. Allied sabotage, spy and partisan warfare plans in Holland were so confounded that the Allies would have courted disaster had they tried to land in Holland in 1942 or 1943.

Revelations Cause Stir

These revelations caused such a stir when the book was first published in London earlier this year that they dust hasn't settled yet. A member of Parliament, Arthur Lewis, who demanded a public hearing on the affair, says:

"It seems this is a secret the government wants kept to itself. Yet it is conceded by high-informed sources that the story is substantially correct."

In Amsterdam, Dutch officials who served with the Dutch government in London, say Gibbes' account is basically true.

Now 51 years old and a business man in Hamburg, Gibbes wrote the book, he says, because Germany broke her pledge not to execute the Allied agents that fell into his hands.

Dutch Agent Caught

The project began when Gibbes' men pounced on a Dutch agent who had been sending radio messages to London. The Germans got him to continue to operate his station as if nothing had happened, but to send out carefully faked messages instead of genuine spy reports.

The Dutch agent explains in an epilogue that he had been instructed to act that way if caught, that he transmitted numerous coded warnings to London of the true situation, but that somehow

London never caught on.

Meanwhile the British secret service poured men and supplies into Holland, landing them by parachute. The German reception committees, acting like underground workers, got all the information possible, including code words and arrivals into jail. Some of these new arms also were worked into the project.

Clever Faking

Gradually the fake spy ring built up until at one time it had 14 radio links with London. To keep up the front, the Germans shipped downed airmen back home by "spy" courier routes, and committed some obvious but inconsequential acts of sabotage in Holland.

The artificial structure came tumbling down at last when a couple of the captured agents escaped and carried word of the setup back home. But by then the Allies had lost two years' time in their underground warfare on the Dutch front.

Civic Officials Ask That Mines Remain Closed

TIMMINS (CP)—Civic officials issued a public statement Sunday, calling on owners of the three district gold-base mines—Hollinger Reef, Hallnor and Preston East Dome—not to make any attempt to resume operations just yet.

Mayor Will Spooner of Timmins, Reeve Victor Evans of Tisdale Township and Reeve Al James of Whitney Township said they felt if no attempts were made to get the 900-odd strikers back to work there would be no violence in the touchy situation.

"If we receive that assurance from the companies," their statement read, "we will immediately request Premier Frost to call a meeting of the operators, the unions and ourselves to resolve the differences which exist."

The differences which do exist are mainly over wages and new contracts, the seat of the trouble being at the Broulan Reef property. The miners at Broulan, all members of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), walked off their jobs July 2. Since the same [illegible] their mine was tied up [illegible] lines.

Wednesday, Broulan Reef obtained an injunction restraining picketing of their property. Broulan strikers immediately agreed to go back to work, but five minutes later the Hallnor workers walked out. Broulan miners refused to cross their picket lines.

The picket lines were comparatively quiet over the week-end. Only a few picketers were at each gate Sunday. Some workers passed through without incident.

Statue Unveiled To Men Who Tried To Kill Hitler

BERLIN (Reuters)—Men who once fought for Hitler and the families of men who tried to kill him attended two functions in West Germany Sunday.

In Berlin, widows and children of German officers executed for trying to kill Hitler in 1944 attended the unveiling of a memorial to the plot leaders.

The memorial—a bronze, statue of a chained man—was erected in the yard of Hitler's war ministry where the leaders of the plot were executed as army flunk against nine years ago.

Orange Lodge

The Frankford chapter of the Orange Lodge, numbering 50-60 members, went by bus and car to the lodge walk in Campbellford July 11th., which was attended by fifty-six lodges from the district.

The Frankford band, led by Charlie Butcher, led the Frankford lodge, which consisted of the L.O.L., or men's division, who were dressed in white shirts and dark trousers, and their lodge sashes. They were headed by Worthy Master Max Houlden; the L.O.B.A., or women's division, led by Worthy Mistress Mrs. Wilmot Rose, were in their traditional white dresses, with white shoes and carrying scarlet umbrellas, also with their colored lodge sashes.

The Juvenile Lodge, attended by their directors, Mrs. Mary Blakely and Mr. Cecil Palmer, were a feature of the "Walk," with the girls in their white dresses and hats, and wearing red satin capes. The boys were wearing white trousers, shirts and pillbox hats and also wearing red capes.

The lodge members were all quick to praise the fine music played by Charlie and his band, and insisted there was none better at this lodge district walk.

Chinese Seize Two Key Outposts From US Marines

By GEORGE McARTHUR

SEOUL (AP)—Some 2,000 Chinese drove United States Marines off two key western front outposts today in a relentless assault meant as Allied and Communist truce officers met to wipe out last barriers to a cease-fire in Korea.

Allied observers speculated the Reds grabbed the Berlin outposts in the belief no effort would be made to retake them with an armistice apparently imminent.

A burst of machine gun fire signaled the end of the Marine resistance to the savagely-charging Reds, who drove up the slopes through their own shell fire. U.S. casualties were not disclosed.

Planes Pound Outposts

The fighting on the western sector likely was the most violent along the 110-mile front, although smaller-scale but equally fierce action flared along the tense Kumsong sector in east-central Korea.

There, Allied troops are attempting to regain ground lost in last week's massive Red assault were pushed back slightly.

A Chinese battalion—some 750 men—hit the RoKs as they advanced cautiously near the junction of the Kumsong and Pukhan rivers, just south of Lookout mountain.

It was the farthest northward penetration of the South Koreans into the 20-mile Kumsong bulge sector that was flattened out by an 80,000-man Red attack last week.

The U.S. 8th Army reported 33 skirmishes—mostly small patrol clashes—along the sweltering front during the night. Temperatures soared to almost 100 degrees Monday after a high of 97 Sunday—the hottest day of the year.

U.S. Air Force and Navy planes had a big day Sunday. Sabre jets bagged nine Communist MiGs—including their 1,000th destruction of the war—and the navy struck one of its heaviest blows of the war, the services reported.

Strike Ends In Peterborough, Saskatoon Plants

Announcement of the settlement was made in a joint statement by L. H. Ingram, company vice-president in charge of labor relations, and N. R. Riches, UPWA western director.

Workers at the Peterborough plant voted July 12 to settle the strike but did not go back to work pending settlement of the Saskatoon strike.

Members of the Saskatoon local voted to accept the latest company offer after it was recommended by the union negotiating committee.

It provides for a 40-hour work week, effective immediately upon return to work and an average wage increase of 19 cents an hour. The previous work week was 44 hours. It was agreed all employees in the bargaining unit would pay union dues whether or not they are members of the union.

Provision was made for three weeks vacation each year after 15 years service, replacing the former required 20 years service.

The strike, which started 12 weeks ago, affected 15 workers here and more than 200 at Peterborough.

Vote-Seeking Techniques Developed To New Perfection by Party Leaders

By JOHN LaBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's party leaders are adding new touches to the vote-seeking techniques in this election campaign.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, for instance, has refined the whistle-stop art to the point where he could give lessons to Harry S. Truman, the old master.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, has added a different twist by developing the campaign press conference beyond where it has ever been used by a Canadian political chief on tour.

Sharp Contrasts

All four leaders have their own particular methods, and they show sharp contrasts in the types of skills used to draw voter support.

The 71-year-old Mr. St. Laurent has been playing largely—at least in the early stages—to the fatherly approach of his successful 1949 campaign, with some 1953 embellishments. He tells of his family including his 17 grandchildren, of how he has tried to be a good father, and of how he tries to do his best for the larger Canadian "family" of 14,000,000.

Children play a big part in the prime minister's campaigning. They are cheered wherever he stops—at stations, in front of schools, at outdoor meetings. He seems to enjoy talking to them as they hang onto his coat-tails with legs dangling from his speaking platform.

Mr. St. Laurent talks to them of the Coronation, of Queen Elizabeth, of the fine thing it is to be a Canadian.

Makes No Promises

For his grown-up listeners, too, he has been stepping a relatively lazy-going pace. Mostly, he has said the government is standing on its record, is shaking no new ties. Only occasionally, he has taken a swipe at some of the Progressive Conservative policies.

For the most part, he has ignored the CCF and Social Credit party.

On his train-whistle stops, Mr. St. Laurent has ditched the conventional speech from the back platform in favor of getting down among the people at the station. He walks around shaking hands and talking. Then, standing in the middle of the crowd, he'll make a small speech. If it's a sizable crowd, he'll use a hand microphone hooked up to loudspeakers on the train platform.

George Drew has been waging a harder-hitting, on-the-offensive type of campaign, as is natural for the challenger. He has been punching at government "waste, extravagance and inefficiency," and promising deep cuts in taxation.

Mr. Drew has been speaking largely from the platform, using the whistle-stop comparatively seldom. His speeches generally run somewhat longer than the prime minister's.

Press Conference

The Progressive Conservative leader has been holding press conferences fairly regularly—a contrast with Mr. St. Laurent, who has not yet initiated any of his tour, though he readily talks to reporters who may want to question him on a point.

Mr. Drew gets two advantages out of the press conferences. He may hit a town in the afternoon with a night speech scheduled. A meeting with reporters from the district gives him coverage in that day's afternoon papers.

The second benefit from the press conference is that the newspaper men's questions post Mr. Drew on the issues that are of most immediate interest to a particular area. He will work in references to these at his subsequent meeting.

On his train stops is the early part of the campaign, Mr. Drew has mainly confined himself to discussing and chatting with a few people on the platform. However, he is expected to do more whistle-stopping as the campaign progresses.

Straight Stuff

The other two leaders of the parliamentary contingent—J. Coldwell of the CCF and Solon Low of the Social Credit group—have been "politicking" by and large in the orthodox fashion. They speak almost exclusively at public meetings, some of them of the outdoor picnic type.

Both talk off the cuff, though Mr. Coldwell often has a carefully prepared section on a specific point, which his Ottawa headquarters will issue to the press.

Mr. Low has added some deviations from the routine. Sometimes he asks his audience what they would like him to talk about, and then proceeds to discuss the subjects. He also has been known to pitch in with the haying as he tries to convince a farmer constituent of the virtues of Social Credit.

Mr. Low also was the first of the leaders to bring his wife into active campaigning. Mrs. Low, a schoolteacher, joined him on a national radio broadcast in late June, writing her own part of the script.

Medical Association Tests Filter-Type Cigarets, Holders

CHICAGO (AP) — If you're a heavy smoker and worry about it but can't seem to cut down, what's the answer?

The American Medical Association is engaged in a broad study to help should show whether smokers filters will solve the problem.

For the last year, the AMA's chemical laboratory in Chicago has been testing filter-type cigarets, filter-type cigaret holders and especially low-nicotine cigarets to learn how effective such products are in reducing the amount of nicotine and tars in the cigaret smoke that reaches your mouth or lungs.

The researchers said the results of this study could tie in with other surveys to find whether a relationship exists between heavy smoking and a sharp increase in lung cancer in recent years.

In its first report on the study, which will run another six months to a year, the AMA described the results of tests on four large-selling brands of cigarets. They included one brand of "regular" cigarets and others made with cotton or filter tips.

Using a machine that puffs like a smoker, the researchers found that, less than one-fourth of the tars

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IMPATIENT YOUTH MUST LEARN TO WAIT

It is one of those strange paradoxes that the more time an individual seems to have, the less willing he or she is to wait for anything.

Take, for example, the matter of youth and age.

With years and years ahead of them, young people must have everything right away — if they can possibly get it. If they can't, they mope, they sulk, they get dramatically tragic, and are quite certain that if life denies them something they want immediately, it means they are never going to have it at all.

The elderly, on the other hand, whose time is growing short, face their Here-and-Now with philosophy and patience, hopeful that before their days come to a close, they may perhaps still be granted the joy of seeing some particularly cherished dream come true, if not willing, if need be, to accept some alternative joy.

For youth and impatience go hand in hand. To learn the art and the wisdom of waiting, when occasion demands it, requires years of full and thoughtful life.

That, of course, is why the very young who write me about their troubles are so apt to say: "Don't think that I am not really in love because I am only 16 because I know I am" or — if the romance has come to a sudden sharp finish—"Don't tell me to forget, because I can't. I know there will never be anyone else for me."

The first of these two statements comes from a girl who will be a sophomore in college next fall and who is convinced that she is in love for all time with a young man just graduated from the same school.

"We have been dating occasionally the past year, but in a very quiet way," she writes. "That is, we seldom go out anywhere, but just stay home and talk,' watch television or listen to the radio. We never neck, but just enjoy being together. Doesn't it show that we are unusually compatible when we have fun in such a quiet way?"

Nice Friendship

To that, I say a hearty "Yes, Indeed!" I'd say further that this seems to me a pretty nice kind of friendship for a college boy and girl to have, and one they ought to find unusually comfortable and satisfactory.

But, is it? No! Not for impatient youth!

"My problem," this 18-year-old goes on to say, "is that I am afraid this boy looks on me as just a friend, and nothing more, and I can't seem to reconcile myself to going on indefinitely just as friends. I'm sure he's not dating any other girl, but nothing more ever comes of it, and I don't know what to think.

"As far as I'm concerned, I know I am in love, and I believe it is lasting love, but I can't seem to figure out how he feels."

"It's not that I want to get married right now. Neither of us is old enough to be ready for that. But I want to know where I stand with him, and whether it would be better to make a clean break now, while I still can, or go along with things the way they are and keep hoping something will eventually come of it."

Now, while I'm sure this girl doesn't want anyone to dispute her statement that she knows she is in love, one thing she says makes me feel that she might possibly be willing to look at his in regard to her belief that it is "lasting" love. For she wonders whether it might not be better to make a clean break now "while I still can", which seems to suggest that she thinks she might get over it if she did it in time.

If that is so, then she might find herself doing just as comedie the possibility that, if nothing came of this particular romance, another might come along later on. If, again, she is prepared to make this concession, then my idea is that she would perfectly safe in letting things ride as they are and permit events to shape themselves as they will.

But if, on the other hand, she has sold herself so firmly on a belief in this love as the only one she will ever have that she refuses to entertain any contrary view, then she had better take the other alternative and welcome "a clean break." For by such a course of action, and whether she believes it or not, she would hasten the day when she would become interested in someone else.

Play in Your Own Back Yard

By Mary Moore

At a highway accident last week a nurse from the car behind the accident, so capably looked after a gentle lady whose collarbone was broken, that I, by some silly quirk of the brain, decided the truth of this pseudo-wisdom: When a girl is 45 she needs good parents; when she's 35 she needs good looks; when she's 33 she needs personality; when she's 48 she needs brains; but when she's 49 the only thing she needs cash.

Amanda is very smart at the time of first hearing it but at the scene of an accident what is required is human kindness and patience and a cool head. The nurse I speak of was about 40 and while the officer kept the traffic flowing the cool-headed nurse sat down on the grass beside the injured little lady. She turned out to be 73, and while appearances showed she had the cash it was a fortitude that she needed at that point, and believe me she had it.

I'll never forget that wan little smile at the nurse as she murmured, "you must be a good Samaritan."

The incident sickened me of highways. We've decided that until we go on our vacation we will stay at home and have our fun right in our own garden. Besides, I'm reading Kennett Roberts' 'Northwest Passage' which is 700 pages of enough travel and adventure to hold anybody.

In the last week the menus by which follow have been tried by us.

I'm trying to cut down running and dish-washing. You'll see when we cook outside it's so entertaining that somebody else wants to take charge of the cooking. Me—I just sit.

Barbecue Supper Number 1

We had a guest at this meal who does not like mayonnaise on salad; so I cut things in strips and piled them in groups on a big divided dish; strips of green pepper, strips of dill, strips of fresh cucumber, radishes celery and carrot strips, even 3 or 4 little hard lettuce hearts, and some midget tomatoes.

Raspberry Chiffon Pie

Wash 1 pint raspberries in sieve, drain and measure 2/3 cup and reserve these. Mash the remainder and make up to 1 cup by adding water if necessary. Place this in top of double boiler with ¾ tablespoon gelatin, let stand until gelatin is soaked, then place over hot water and heat until gelatin is dissolved. Mix 3 egg yolks with 1/3 cup sugar and stir them in, then beat over hot water until very light and thick. Water should be at simmering point. Remove from heat and add shake of salt and cool. Then add reserved berries and 1 teaspoon lemon juice and a few drops of red coloring if desired. Beat 3 egg whites until stiff and slowly add 3 tablespoons sugar to them, then fold into the raspberry custard. Pour into pastry-lined pie plate (this may be graham cracker crust if desired. Chill. This is usually served with whipped cream.

Barbecue Supper Dinner 2

Toasted wieners on toasted half buns. Barbecue sauce. Cabbage and tomato salad; vanilla ice cream; plain cookies; tea. Vanilla Ice Cream (skim milk Powder). (Nine servings.)

One and a half cups skim milk ½ cup sugar (or 24 sucaryl tablets for the reducers or diabetic). 3 eggs yolks and whites separated, 1 teaspoon plain gelatin. 2 teaspoons vanillah shake of salt. Mix ¾ cup of the milk with the sugar (or sucaryl) and scald over boiling water. Slowly pour this over the beaten egg yolks, stirring. Sprinkle the gelatine over the remaining milk, and when soaked stir it in to the hot mixture until dissolved. Cool. Add vanilla and salt. Pour into freezing tray and freeze firm. Remove from tray to bowl and break up with the wooden spoon. Beat with rotary or electric beater until free of lumps, but not liquid. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Return to tray and freeze firm.

Fashion Flashes

IT'S EASY to turn a dark silk sheath into a stunning ensemble with a cardigan box jacket cut on the bipline. It is of white spun rayon with a linen look, has a red silk carnation and is lined in red. Looking through the separate shortie and jacket racks at the stores should produce many such costume aids if the wardrobe includes dark silk dresses.

YOUTHFUL APPEAL and fresh charm distinguish a new group of smart cotton dresses. A Provincial print of tiny pink moss roses, with touches of black on natural-color wrinkle-resistant cotton makes a pretty dress with sleeveless, shirtwaist bodice, the little collar edged with black. Chantilly type lace accent the vertical slit pockets at the hips of the moderately full skirt.

NOVELTY FABRICS are no novelty any more, as there is wide quick acceptance for a silk and rayon mixture with a ribbed surface and a rich silk sheen. It is nice for suits of the tailored or

Beauty

By HELEN JAMESON

BE CATTY AND STRETCH

Consider the cat. She knows the secrets that will keep your body beautiful. Of course being catty is something else again, something with another meaning that does not contribute to charm. We're talking now about the way the feline stretches herself when she awakens and her supple body is at its best. It is a law with her and it would be well if some of our less exercise-hating young ladies would go and do likewise.

The cat is not a strenuously athletic animal. She doesn't chase around like crazy for no reason at all as do the noble house dogs. She lends a cushion-and-cream existence, but she keeps a natty figure all her life. She knows how to stretch.

Stretching is a part of the program in figure-remodelling salons, but it can be done at home without drawing on the balance in the check book — an advantage, as every woman knows.

More and more teachers of physical education are getting away from elaborate calisthenics and substituting simple, natural movements that are just as effective for muscle toning and cultivate grace as well. Says one director "The body is like a piece of string. You can let it sag in coils and curves, or you can stretch it taut to its full length. And that is what you should do all the time, walking, sitting, standing, if you would retain the youthful silhouette and have good posture, a beauty quality that is pretty close to the head of the list."

All right! Let's go! Lie on the floor with both shoulders flat. Then, without lifting the shoulders or back, swing one leg over the other, touching the floor with the toes. Now, with scissor-like kick, swing the other leg over and touch the floor with the toes. These movements bring the muscles of the hips, thighs and legs into action. If there is adipose padding on those areas, it will lessen in the course of time. Fat cells can't stand any kind of physical activity.

Here's a good one. Stand tall, chest up, tummy tucked in. Stretch your arms out at your sides on a level with your shoulders. Drop them. Let them relax. Then up for another stretch.

With arms out, let your body take up the movement, bending from the hips, first at one side then at the other. Now follow with your legs, stretching them out as far as you can at the side—at a time, of course, since you are not a contortionist.

AUTHOR TO MARRY

LONDON (Reuters) — J. B. Priestley, 58, novelist and playwright, Thursday will marry Jacquetta Hawkes, divorced wife of a university professor. Priestley was cited as co-respondent last month when Prof. Charles Hawkes of Oxford University divorced his wife, Jessie Jacquetta, 43-year-old writer, lecturer and broadcaster. Hawkes, "professor of European archaeology, claimed his wife committed adultery with the twice-married author during a tour of Japan last fall.

Contestants Say 'No' To Cheesecake

BURLINGTON (CP)—Two lovely contestants in the Miss Canada contest said "no" Friday to requests for bathing-suit photographs.

Rona Butler, a 22 - year - old mezzo-soprano from St. John's, Nfld., and 21-year-old Anne Grant, a lyric soprano, of Chatham, weren't in the cheesecake line-up of the 15 contestants.

"With the work I'm going to do (concerts and opera), I really don't think it would be right to have my picture taken in a bathing suit, said Miss Butler.

Miss Grant said simply: "I don't think a singer should."

The girls are judged for talent as well as beauty.

The contestants have a heavy schedule Saturday and Sunday, prior to the actual judging Monday night.

Patience and training are paying off for Don and John, Winnipeg twins suffering from a rare type of cerebral palsy. When they were three they came to Winnipeg Children Hospital cerebral palsy clinic. They couldn't walk and couldn't be understood. A speech therapist, Mrs. Lyle McDonald, undertook to teach them to speak. She spent countless hours getting them to concentrate on forming basic sounds with their lips by following her example. She then moved among the hospital with the aid of tiny canes, voicing greetings to doctors and nurses. — (CP Photo.)

Patience, Training Paying Off For Winnipeg's Identical Twins

WINNIPEG (CP)—Patience and training are paying off in a big way for Don and John, fair-haired Winnipeg twins.

The brothers are identical twins, both suffering from a rare type of cerebral palsy which nudged their dance off kilter, affected their speech and, to a lesser degree, their co-ordination.

They became the pets of the Winnipeg Children's Hospital cerebral palsy clinic, up to 1940. Three years old at the time, they couldn't walk and couldn't be understood, let alone by each other.

Their strange, incomprehensible communication system had to be stopped off before they could be taught to speak properly.

Six months of physio- and speech-therapy, the boys learned to walk with the aid of canes and to speak rhythmless, single syllable words. They became more perceptive mentally.

A speech therapist, Mrs. Lyle McDonald, undertook to teach the children to speak. She spent countless hours getting them to concentrate on forming basic sounds. Seated before a mirror, they learned to form basic lip exercises.

In time they were moving around the hospital with the aid of tiny canes, voicing greetings to doctors and nurses. They appeared at a luncheon at the Kiwanis Club, founders of the clinic, to stand on a table top and thank the club, haltingly, for all it had done for the cerebral-palsy field.

They went on to kindergarten last year and now are enrolled in a grade - one public - school class where their canes are gone, they walk unaided and carry on an almost normal flow of conversation. They are especially adept at reading.

Still Plenty of Problems For Candidates on 'Stump'

By JOHN LAZLARC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) Cross-country jumping isn't the rugged job it used to be, but there still are plenty of jumps left for the political leaders as they hustle back and forth across Canada's 3,000-mile girth.

The rigors of the old days have gone, but the swift pace of the election tours over many thousands of miles and by a variety of transport has multiplied at least the usual headaches of campaigning. There are such worries as train-line - automobile - boat connections, getting speeches written on the fly, hotel reservations, clean laundry, watching stomachs and sleep-pary and — for some — the hot bath.

Aided by Staffs

Prime Minister St. Laurent and George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader—travelling basically private trains can—are relieved of some of these by staffs moving with them.

But J. Coldwell, CCF leader, and Solon Low, Social Credit leader, are close to the 1953 version of roughing it. They have been travelling alone for the most part, getting help from aides in Ottawa and from local constituency organizations.

Mail in Advance

Generally, the planning is done well in advance, and in any particular section of the country, transport connections, meeting times and accommodations are all by the time the leader reaches stop. Regional arrangements, however, often are shifted because of developments or on advice of local party members.

Speech preparation is a fluid job. The leaders are equipped with a skeleton of basic material. But what they say at any given point will depend on the day's news, the local political atmosphere or what the others are saying—perhaps a combination of all three.

Daytime Preparation

The prime minister may deliver seven or eight off-the-cuff talks during a day but usually prepares at least one of these textually for his main meeting in the evening. His dictates and notes, then reads the typewritten draft carefully, usually editing it.

Middle Ahead

If he is on a train, it will be choreographed on his special, secure for distribution to newspaper men with him. Otherwise, an aide will hustle ahead to the next stop to see that the car's chef serves up. He nibbles at Canadian cheese frequently.

Daughter in North

Mr. Drew eats in the same fashion, but more heartily. Mr. Coldwell and Mr. Low get the ordinary travellers' meals, plus those of lunch or dinner meetings. When in his far-north Peace River riding, Mr. Low sometimes stops for a meal and a night's lodgings at a private home.

In his frontier area, the Social Credit leader has a tougher life than his opponents. In earlier campaigns, he occasionally has had to sleep in his automobile when poor roads prevented him making the next stop. No report of that kind of thing have reached here this time.

Mr. Low also has his laundry difficulties in the north. Recently, he sent a batch of linen to be cleaned and had to head east before getting it back. He went on short rations until it caught up with him.

The other leaders have done better, either carrying along enough to last them on various legs of the campaigns or getting quick jobs done at hotels here and there.

Week-End Rests

All four are showing plenty of endurance in standing up to the tiring job of campaigning. They work vigorously during the week but manage to back in some rest over the week-ends.

In the east, Prime Minister St. Laurent has spent two week-ends at his country home in Quebec. He also gets at least eight hours sleep a night on the road, usually in bed by 10.30 p.m.

None of the leaders are taking any other special measures to guard their health, though the 71-year-old Mr. St. Laurent has been noticeably careful about guarding his voice. In St. John's, Nfld., he spoke at two outdoor meetings on a raw evening, and had Premier Smallwood explain to his hearers that his speeches were not going to be too long on that account.

The prime minister evidently was mindful of 1949 campaign, when he had to take five days off from speaking because his voice failed him.

ROSLIN

ROSLIN — Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sills and Miss Phyllis Sills spent a recent week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Coulter, of Fort Hope.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Hartt and Vicki spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. D. Chisholm at their cottage on Stoco Lake.

On Monday evening around 50 members of St. Paul's Anglican Church met at the rectory to welcome the new rector and his wife, Rev. Wm. Hall and Mrs. Purvis, and present them with a pantry shower.

The July meeting of the Women's Institute was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William Bates with a good attendance. The guest speaker for the day was Miss Marguerite Hicks, of Carmel, who reported on the recent conservation convention at Guelph, which she had attended as convener of Home Economics and Health.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sayers and Miss Helen Sayers spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. Knight of Napanee.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Steinberg and son, of New York, spent several days with Mr. and Mrs. H. Chisholm.

Storm Damage

On Sunday afternoon last a rain and electric storm passed mainly north and east, then south of the village. About a mile east from the village lighting did some damage to a phone at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Vance. A barn southeast of the eighth line corner, on the Burrows Colden farm was struck and burned. Considerable hay had been stored in the barn and it was destroyed.

Birthday Party

Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Davis and Rocque, of Belleville, have spent two weeks' holidays at their cottage on Sayers' Lake, and on Sunday afternoon and evening entertained at a birthday party in honor of her father, Mr. John Johnson, on the occasion of his 80th. birthday. Around 20 guests were present.

RAWDON

'Carmel Night' Held at St. Paul's United During Centennial Service

By MRS. PERCY McMULLEN

RAWDON — A unique service was held Sunday evening at 8 p.m. in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling. The Carmel congregation with guests from Wooler, Marsh Hill, and other rural points gathered early and all enjoyed a sing-song of good hymns under the leadership of Rev. A. E. Baker.

Mrs. Arthur Pryer presided at the console of the church organ and a full choir of 24 voices rendered Vine's Message.

Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.R.C.T., presided at the piano and accompanied the Misses Lelia and Donna McColl, Wooler, who sang "A Prayer of Thanksgiving."

Mrs. Ross Hart, Carmel, sang "Jesus Lover of My Soul." Mrs. Pryer played suitable music throughout the service.

Sister Congregations

Carmel church in Rawdon township is the oldest congregation of St. Paul's, Stirling, and they pay one-fifth of all circuit expenses. When the church presbyting station was set up on the town-line Carmel and Stirling were sister charges and for almost 30 years these two church groups have worked together in harmony and enjoyed fellowship together.

The early plans call the church Mount Carmel, and it has been called "The Church of the Prophets", but to many people it is known simply as "Carmel United Church in Rawdon."

Under Mr. Baker's leadership the two congregations have been linked together with a greater bond than ever before and each group needs the other to share the experience and benefits of a combined circuit.

As the large audience sang "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning", the choir took their places in the church vestry.

Mr. Baker announced the processional hymn, "O For a Thousand Tongues to Sing", and then all repeated the perfect prayer in unison.

Mr. Harold Hagerman, recording steward, graciously welcomed the office bearers, members, adherents and choir of Carmel, as well as the vocalists, and other visitors from Wooler and the visitors from nearby points.

Competing Teams

The main feature of the evening was the quiz competition of two teams. The first was Carmel — Miss Marion Carlisle, Mrs. Archie Bailey, Mrs. Joe Grills and Mrs. Ross Hart.

Wooler — Miss McColl, Mrs. Terrill, Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Teal.

The second quiz was

Carmel — Messrs. Ernest Carlisle, Harry Brown, Charles Bailey and Jim Nobel.

Mr. Baker conducted the quiz which is a new and informative idea of putting across everyday facts of church life. The questions were pertaining to Bible characters in both Old and New Testaments, church laws and organizations, various periodicals used by churches, groups, sacred songs, the life and work of the Bible, and a host of interesting questions.

When the teams were unable to answer the quiz in 10 seconds the answer from the congregation had a chance.

Mrs. Russell Pryer kept the score of points and it was close.

In Unity

Mr. Baker read part of the third chapter of Amos, and brought a brief message on "Together? He said: "Can two walk together except they be agreed?" And can two churches on the town-line Carmel and Stirling activities unless they are in unison? The pastor enjoyed the mutual partnership between Carmel and St. Paul's and told of the great Christian fraternity and voiced the opinion that this evening's pleasant year would bear much fruit in future days.

In closing his message, Mr. Baker urged both congregations to continue to share and to support each other and to do justly, to love mercy, and walk humbly with their God in the days ahead.

The pastor gave a bright, concise message on the theme of "Stewardship" and gave many thoughts for each congregation for which they might be benefited.

The service closed with "The Day Thou Gavest Lord is Ended", after which a fellowship hour was held in the church dining hall when members of St. Paul's W.M.S. executive served refreshments and all enjoyed a happy fellowship.

Mr. Harry Brown voiced thanks to the ladies for hospitality.

There will be no church service at Carmel for two weeks. At St. Paul's members of the Salvation Army will conduct services on Sundays July 19 and 26.

Special Centennial Service

On August 2nd., at 11 a.m., a special Centennial civic Sunday is planned.

The councils of Rawdon, Sidney and Stirling have accepted invitations to attend in a body, and the guest speaker will be his Worship Mayor William J. Mayler of the city of Oshawa. Invitations have been forwarded to all the other school boards, inviting the trustee boards to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Baker plan to be away for a few holidays and during their brief absence Rev. W. M. V. Walker, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, has graciously consented to answer any calls.

Windsor Woman Receives Serious Head Wounds

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A Windsor woman, Mrs. Julian Gorski, 38, is recuperating in hospital today after receiving serious head wounds in a robbery-assault at her eastside home Friday.

Mrs. Gorski said the beating occurred when she was doing on the sun porch of her home.

"I was awakened," she said, "by blows about the head. I looked up and saw a man about six feet tall standing over me."

Mrs. Gorski said the man continued beating her while she struggled to escape. Finally she broke away and staggered to a rear porch and then to the street, where she called for help.

In a statement to police, Mrs. Gorski said that a purse on a table beside her had contained $475. Police said the purse had only five dollars in it when they examined it.

PRODUCTION INCREASE

NEW DELHI (CP)—The agriculture ministry estimates this year's tobacco crop in India at 211,000 tons, an increase of 19,000 tons over last year. About 786,000 acres are under cultivation.

RAWDON

Flannelgraph Story, 'Handful Of Wheat', Told at Miss. Aux.

RAWDON — On Wednesday afternoon, the regular July meeting of Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, Missionary Auxiliary was held at the church hall with about 70 in attendance. There were 13 members of the auxiliary, 15 adult visitors, and this included Mrs. James Sharp, Mrs. McIville Donnan and Miss Doris Donnan, Hidge Road; 25 children, members of the Mission Band and Baby Band.

The Mission Band leader is Miss Ruth Linn, with Mrs. Herbert Smith assistant, and the Baby Band leader, Mrs. James Hoard, with Mrs. Ross Jeffs as assistant.

The auxiliary president, Mrs. Burton Sharpe, welcomed the group and read a poem, "The Story of Jesus' Love." Mrs. Ross Hoard presided at the piano and all sang "Blest Are the Pure in Heart." A Psalm was read in unison, followed by prayer and usual business. The August meeting on the 12th. will be held at the church.

Misses Donnan David and Gail Jeffs gathered the offering and Mrs. James Sharpe dedicated it. The loose collection was divided

Gift of Money

Mrs. Percy MacMullen presented Miss Ruth Linn with a gift of $10 from the "Hubble Hill Cemetery Fund" for the splendid work the leader and Mission Band members did at the memorial service when they served refreshments at the close of the service to 125 visitors.

Ruth graciously thanked all those who had assisted with the serving and was pleased with the gift which would help along their allocation.

Miss Ina Scott presided for the Mission Band and Miss Marie Simpson gave her report, after which Misses Gail Jeffs and Raye David sang "That's Why I Love Him So," with Mrs. Will Jeffs as accompanist.

Miss Ruth Linn introduced Miss Doris Donnan, who is a student of the Brockville Bible College. Doris led in the singing of two missionary choruses with special words.

The speaker gave a flannelgraph story of an Indian boy, entitled "A Handful of Wheat." She pictured hope for the hopeless, starving people of that land and told a true story of a native evangelist. Doris pointed out to the children that dusky faces of India look to us in Canada for joy and peace. She closed with a vocal selection, "Send the Gospel Tidings Over Land and Sea."

Mrs. Herbert Smith, assistant leader, voiced thanks to Doris for her message and little Jean Sharpe presented the speaker with a lovely bouquet of roses.

The Mission Band had a grab box sale and realized $8.

The auxiliary members served sandwiches, cookies and lemonade and all enjoyed a social time.

KIDDIES ALL!

Circuses and big summer picnics have something in common. You get as much "kick" out of them whom you are ninety as when you are nine. Both make young people young and the oldsters wish they were.

Browse around a large summer picnic in full swing and you'll see proud grandpappies and grannaws sitting at tables, eyes beaming with pleasure and five pink yeatzes, the first thing they will say "It's a great day for the kiddies."

Don't let them fool you. . Sure, it's a great day for the youngsters. Every day in summer out of school is a great one for Junior and Jane. But grandpop and grannaw and doting pops and moms get just as big a thrill swinging axis off the egg sandwiches, pouring lemonade out of the family thermos jug, peeling hard-boiled eggs and spreading pestiferous mosquitoes as does the youngster of the brood.

Take a stroll to where the kiddies are anxiously awaiting their turn in the afternoon sports. Bright-eyed, excited youngsters mill around the starting line, asking last minute questions and leading the starting officials a dog's life. But watch Junior's old man when the gun fires. He'll crouch down, talking to himself and is as excited as if junior was Native Dancer bidding out front by ten lengths with ten of the old man's dollars on his grey nose.

Then keep your eyes on him at the finish. If Junior rallies over the line in a scant foot ahead of the upstart "Jones" kid from next door, he'll heave and he'll shout, smite the nearest bystander a mighty blow on the back and gurgle "That's m'boy."

But if Junior loses, it was a bum start, half the field beat the gun, and besides the other kids are a lot older, anyway. Whaddya expect? A milkborne to smaggle past Man-o-War?

Wander over and take a seat near the older folks, the grandpops and the grannaws. You'll hear very little about the CCF members' chances in Ulcered Tooth, Saskatchewan; the Liberal's chances in Splinter Gulch, Alberta, or the Progressive Conservatie's chances in Mare's Whinny, Nova Scotia. No sirree, sub.

You are more likely to hear about the time the Ancient and Honorable Order of Razpickers, Local #7485352, held the big picnic down in Hazzigan's Grove. . . . "That's when Artie over there was just a young whippersnapper in short pants."

"Them were the days, son. One of them big brewers' dray took twelve kegs of suds down to the grounds and the rain had no trouble locatin' the old man come supper-time. Why none of the boys had enough foam aboard to make 'em look like Lake Ontario in a gale."

"That's right, grandpaw," grannaw will likely say. "I remember come eatin' time they had to drag you up from the ground. You were lyin' on your back under the spigot of a keg catching the last few drops."

And so they will reminisce. It takes a picnic to revive the memories of those grand old days of the long ago when radio and television were yet unborn, and the kids had just as much fun as your modern drape-shape youth or the dungaree'd teen-age mine with her hair done up in a "horse's tail."

Industry and big business are realizing that summer picnics for the staff and other employee personnel are becoming an institution in the Canadian way of living. Here for a day out of 365 the "brass" can shake its "polish"; the "big shots" can become little cops and Tom and George and Dick and Harry can throw away their neckties, take off their shirts if needs be, mingle with Milly, Molly and Mary in a day of unrestricted enjoyment.

They, too, will tell you, "It's a great day for the kiddies."

But the "kiddies", in all classes, range between the age of nine months and ninety years. And that's the way it should be.

Lopat, Rashi Lead Champs To Twin Wins Over Chicago; Red Sox Take Over from Tribe

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ed Lopat and Vic Raschi, a couple of seasoned veterans who count World Series pay as regular income, have straightened out New York Yankees.

For the first time in weeks, there is no frantic patter of pursuit in the American League. Chicago, whipped twice Sunday, is six games back. Cleveland's disastrous collapse has dumped the Indians into fourth place, 11 games behind. Boston, working on a six-game winning streak, is fourth but still a distant 10½ games to the rear.

There is no change in the National League pattern after three split doubleheaders. Brooklyn still holds a three-game lead over Milwaukee. Philadelphia remains third six games behind the Dodgers, and New York Giants, who took over fourth place Saturday, hold a one-percentage-point edge on St. Louis. Both are seven and one-half games behind.

Braves Beat Rookie

Big news of the day in the National was that somebody finally scored a run on Chicago Cubs' rookie hotshot. Milwaukee snapped the righthander's scoreless string at 21 innings and beat him 2-1 in the second game of a doubleheader, called after five innings because of darkness. New York had won the first game 7-5 on Hank Sauer's three-run homer in the ninth.

The story in the American League was the twin job the Wanks did on the White Sox, 4-2 and 3-0, before 54,213 fans, an all-time Comiskey Park record crowd.

Lopat stopped Chet to boost his season record to 10-1 on an eight-hitter.

Mantle, returning to action after a two-day layoff despite a sore knee that still bothered him, came in three runs to help Lopat.

The upstart Boston Red Sox rolled over Cleveland 3-0 and 7-5 to oust Cleveland from third place. Maury McDermott gave the Tribe only one hit, Al Smith's single, in eight innings of the first game and homered himself. When he threw two balls to the first batter in the ninth, veteran Ellis Kinder was called and finished the job in 1-3-3 order. Mickey Vernon's three-run homer in the eighth wrapped up the second game.

Ralph Branca won his first American League game for Detroit 13-6 over Philadelphia. The Tigers and As settled for an 8-8 tie in the second, called after 11 innings because of darkness. Ray Boone hit two big homers—second slam in the opener and a three-run clout with two out in the ninth to tie up the second.

Washington turned five walks and seven hits into 11 runs in the third and fourth innings to grab the second game from St. Louis 13-4 after dropping the first 5-4.

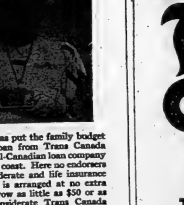
Brooklyn had to come from behind with five runs in the eighth and then stave off a Cincinnati rally for a 7-5 victory and an even break with the troublesome Reds. Cincy won the first game 4-1 with Ted Kluszewski's 27th and Harry Perkowski's 7th. Joe Black notched his first win for Brooklyn in the second game.

The bobtailed game, in which the veteran Max Surkont won his 10th for Milwaukee with a fine two-hitter, goes into the record as an official game, called by darkness because the clubs are not allowed to toss a doubleheader on Sunday.

St. Louis, on the other hand, won a game at Pittsburgh 8-2 and trailed 6-4 with one out in the Philadelphia ninth when Del Ennis' two runs in the ninth to top Chicago Cubs 6-5. They're losing operator 5-3 on home runs by Dee Fondy and Hal Jeffcoat. Willie Jones' single drove home the winning run in the ninth inning apart.

Neale Takes London Trophy



LONDON (CP)—Jim Neale of Streetsville, Ont., captured the London and District Golf Championship and the Logan Winery Trophy in the annual 36-hole tussle at the Highland Golf Club Saturday.

Neale shot a 70-72—142 score, two under par, to take an one-stroke edge over Jack Nash of London Hunt and Moe Norman of Kitchener Stockyard.

Gerry Kesselring and defending tiilist Mick Weslock had trouble in the late round. Kesselring shot a two-under 70 and Weslock a 71 in the first 18-hole test. They both finished with 73s in the final with Kesselring shared third place with Emerson Creed of London Hunt.

Marlene Gets Warm Reception On Arrival

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Marlene Stewart, the quiet, small-town girl who won one of the world's biggest golf tournaments, arrived here Saturday for the Canada Cup matches beginning a gal could get." The 19-year-old golfing sensation from Pontiac, Ont., stepped from a plane at nearby Malton airport to be met by her parents, her younger sister and scores of well-wishers.

Marlene had come home after winning the British Open Amateur Golf title at Porthcawl, Wales, last month.

"This is just too much for words" she said. "What a home-coming. This is almost as exciting as winning the tournament."

Gordon McInnis, the pro who taught Marlene the fine points of the game at the Pontiac golf course, was there, too. That's when Marlene exclaimed:

"I did it Gord. I came through for everyone."

What is she going to do now?

"I'm going home for a good rest. I had nothing but golf for the last two months. In a few days I'll start warming up for the Canadian Women's Open and Closed Championships at London, Ont."

The Canadian tournaments start early next month, Marlene will defend her closed crown, and try to regain the open title she won two years ago.

After that it's back to school at Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla., where she plans to major in business administration this year.

Frankford Sport

The Frankford juvenile team currently playing in the Sidney district softball league are combining with juveniles from Stockdale to form a team for entry in the O.A.S.A. playdowns. Coaches Harry Wickson of the Frankford team and Bob Kidd of Stockdale think that the boys will put up a good fight, and hope district fans will get behind the boys and give them their support, which up to now has been noticeably absent, except in Stockdale where every one turns out for a ball game except those in the graveyard.

Lorne Main Leads Canada to Win Over Mexico in Davis Cup Series

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Little Lorne Main, back on the tennis court only two days after a slight cerebral stroke, scored the all-important singles victory Sunday that won for Canada the Davis Cup tie with Mexico.

Main's straight-set romp over Mario Llamas, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3, came in the first of the day's singles. It proved to be the decisive match in five in the first-round North American tie.

Losers in Friday's singles, Llamas and Francisco (Pancho) Contreras brought Mexico temporarily back into contention Saturday by taking the doubles from Henri Rochon and Bob Bedard, 6-2, 6-4, 2-6, 6-2.

It was just as well sin settled the issue. Although nothing depended on the final singles except the glory of winning, 19-year-old Pancho banded out a 6-4, 6-4, 7-5 setback to Rochon, who is 10 years older than Contreras and was competing for the eighth time in Davis Cup tennis.

Canada will meet Cuba next month, with play again at the Mount Royal Tennis Club.

Light sprinkles of rain fell during Sunday's matches. The grass court became slippery during the second match and Rochon and Contreras often skidded going after shots. Main, the Toronto - Vancouver star, scored 20 placements to Llamas' 11 and had only 18 outs to Llamas' 36, but he netted 30 times to the Mexican's 23.

Llamas couldn't break through Main's serve in the first set, losing his own in the fourth game, when he double-faulted, and the eighth when forced into errors. His erratic play cost him his serve in the second game of the second set and he broke through Lorene's serve for the first time in the fifth when Lorne suddenly began hitting long. Lorne practically wrapped up the set in the eighth game by forcing Llamas and volleying well to break service.

Each broke service in the first two games of the final set, but when Lorne did it again with placements on ground strokes, Mario could never recover.

Against Contreras, Rochon was unable to regain the sharpness he showed against Llamas Friday. The hard-hitting young Mexican wasn't bothered with Henri's left-handed and unorthodox style. He broke through Henri's service in the first game and held his own service five times in winning the opening set. In the final set, with Henri leading 5-2, Pancho reeled off five straight games, including two service breaks.

Contreras and Llamas proved too good a team combination for Rochon and Bedard in the doubles Saturday. The young Sherbrooke player, called on because of Main's illness, couldn't fit himself into Henri's unusual style although he improved as he went along and overcame a hesitancy to come into the net.

The Mexicans covered court better. Contreras' supplying a powerful overhead and Llamas's scoring often with placements. They suffered only two service breaks, both in the third set, won by Canada.

Buffalo Leads Royals by Two; Toronto Splits

By The CANADIAN PRESS

The high-flying Buffalo Bisons strengthened their hold on the International Baseball League leadership during the week-end—and at the other end of the ladder Joe Fusselman Cubs continued their losing ways.

The Bisons won only one game, but increased their lead over Montreal Royals to two games. The Royals failed to come up with a victory.

Buffalo split a doubleheader with Rochester Red Wings Sunday, dropping the first 8-1 but winning the nightcap 3-0. A Saturday contest between the clubs was rained out.

Montreal dropped two week-end games to Baltimore Orioles, then jumped into third place ahead of Rochester. The Orioles won 9-6 Saturday and 14-5 Sunday, making it a clean sweep of a three-game series with the Royals.

In the Buffalo opener, the Wings registered seven of their tallies on homers by Ed Sanford and Mickey Owens whacked a pair, Charley Evers rapped his 15th and Joe Fusselman another.

Earl Harrist pitched four-hit ball to earn the Bisons their second game for the Bisons. Jake Crawford's 18th homer was the first losing accounted for the winning run. He hit his 15th in the opener.

Three clubs had a 2-2 tie on with Montreal's loss to the Orioles at Baltimore Saturday. The former league leaders also were outhit 20-7.

Jack Sanford went the route for Baltimore's Sunday win. He gave up eight hits in the nightcap while starter Earl Mosser of Montreal and two relief pitchers were belted for 18 safe blows.

The tail-end Cubs lost their 58th and 59th games of the current campaign as the week-end ended, compared with only 28 triumphs.

Seventh-place Braves, Athletics were the masters both times. They edged Cubs 3-2 in the Sunday nightcap after splitting a morning game at Springfield and walloped them 7-1 Sunday, behind the hitting of Joe Taylor and Jack Littrell. Taylor doubled home two runs and Littrell got four straight hits.

Toronto Maple Leafs, who are fifth, won once and lost once in a sixth-place Syracuse Chiefs. A third game, the seven-inning nightcap of a Sunday doubleheader was called at the end of six because of Toronto's Sunday curfew law. Syracuse led 5-2 at the time.

In the Sunday opener, Mike Gollat's home run with two aboard in the ninth broke a 1-1 deadlock and gave Toronto a 4-1 decision. Vic Lombardi went the distance for the Leafs, allowing only five hits and one walk.

Syracuse dowped the Leafs 4-2 Saturday behind the six-hit performance of Al Hartley.

All clubs are scheduled to see action again tonight.

ITALIAN WINS

EXHIBITION HOCKEY

NORTH BAY (CP) — Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League are scheduled to play an exhibition game here Sept. 24 or 27, Hawk scout Bob Wilson said Sunday.

The teams will also play exhibition clashes at Sudbury, Sept. 25 and at Pembroke, Sept. 28.

'Native Dancer' 'Blurs' Home In Arlington

CHICAGO (AP)—In the opinion of those who watched him make Saturday's $15,000, 1½-mile Classic little more than a comic horse opera, Native Dancer is the greatest thing since Man o' War.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt's gray colt ambled aloof in the pack for three-fourths of the classic's mile distance and then, in a blurring burst of speed, rammed home for an astonishing nine-length victory.

Not far behind were such as Van Crosby, the early leader who tired in the stretch and finished third to Sir Mango; fourth-place Ace Destroyer and Jim Norris' 27-1 Eddie Arcaro-ridden Jamie K.

Navy Page, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto and ridden by Vic Vina, was in third place during the early part of the race but dropped back to fifth at the three-quarter pole and then finished sixth in the eight-horse field.

Sports Roundup

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Happy Chandler was in town during the week-end, beaming his best "ah love baseball" beam while the Ebbets Field organ pealed "My Old Kentucky Home." Happy has been making himself scarce around the baseball scene since he "resigned" as commissioner in 1951, after the owners failed to re-elect him.

"They have been two great years," he said. "I've kept busy publishing my little old country paper, raising tobacco, running my radio station . . . . I'm in the insurance business too, vice-president and board of director of the same company that Earle Combs is with since he quit baseball.

"Each and I are life-long pals. I used to play ball together on the old Lexington Reds before he went to the big league.

Chandler amused himself, swimming in old memories, as he sat with Walter O'Malley, owner of the Dodgers. Later he went on television with Red Barber, visited the clubhouse to talk with the players and umpires. Then, to cap it off, he rode back to town in a cab with Dan Topping and Del Schoendienst of St. Louis Cardinals.

Chandler's visit to the Dodger clubhouse wasn't purely a social call. The players, who were in his corner during his futile battle to win another term as commissioner wanted to talk about their problems. There have been stories that the players would like to hire Chandler as their agent in dealings with owners and league officials.

"I don't want any job. I'm not looking for anything. If I could help the players with my advice, without cost, I would be glad to do it. Several players on both clubs talked with me.

"There are some people who want me to assist them buy the Cubs. My information is that Wrigley (owner Phil Wrigley) would sell to the right people for the right price. We have talked with Jimmy Gallagher (Cubs general manager) but not with Phil. I can't tell you anything more about it now. But I'm merely helping."

Tennis Stars Of Four Nations Clash Today

TORONTO (CP)—A classy field headed by Davis Cup players from four countries went into action today in the opening rounds of the Canadian Tennis championships.

The top-ranked Canadian, Lorne Main of Toronto and Vancouver, fresh from a double victory over Mexico's Davis Cup squad, was drawn against Hugh Murray of Hamilton.

Bob Bedford of Sherbrooke, Que., who set action in the doubles against Mexico over the week-end, was drawn against George Cunha of Toronto and his teammate, Paul Sanford of Vancouver, was matched with Robin Arnold of Toronto.

The top-ranked American entries in the tourney, from Orange, N.J., seeded No. 4 in the foreign ranks, and Vincent of New York, 1951 champion, No. 7.

All four members of Japan's Davis Cup team, which lost to the United States at Vancouver a week ago, are entered, as well as the Mexican team.

CHATHAM CHALLENGER

TORONTO (CP)—Argyle Grattan won his 15th race in 16 outings Saturday and then suddenly found himself challenged as the top horse at Thorncliffe Raceway by a three-year-old gelding from Chatham, Ont., named High Lee Baldwin.

Grattan, the spotlight had been focussed on the final of the $3,000 Canada Pace which Argyle won by a length in 2.07 3-5.

Then suddenly, two races later, High Lee Baldwin, owned by Lafe Morgan of Chatham, spun a gaudy 2.06 4-5 performance to set a week.

The Chatham horse's time was just 3-5 of a second off the meeting's best set at 2.06 2-5 set a week ago by Argyle Grattan.

London Majors Victors Over Sox

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Old Man Weather knocked the senior Intercounty baseball schedule for a loop Saturday as rain forced postponement of three games in the southwestern Ontario circuit.

Only at Brantford were the skies clear enough to play ball, with the revitalized London Majors pulling off a 10-inning 5-3 victory over the league-leading Red Sox. The win moved the Majors within 1½ games of third-place Waterloo.

Sheverts at Waterloo, Galt and St. Thomas halted the three other contests. Oshawa was scheduled at Waterloo, Guelph at Galt and Kitchener at St. Thomas.

Jack Brumm and Letty Burke combined on the London mound to handcuff Brantford and allowed the Red Sox only three hits. Brumm performed for five frames and gave up two safeties before being relieved, allowing a single hit. All Brantford's runs came off Brumm.

The Red Sox took a 3-0 lead early in the game, but London bounced back in the eighth when Jim Halkard homered with two aboard. Singles by Halkard and Jack Kinney in the 10th scored Jim Wilson from second for the Majors' winning edge.

St. Kitts Regain Lacrosse Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Athletics hoisted themselves into top spot in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior series Saturday with a resounding 20-13 victory over fourth-place Fergus Thistles.

Orillia Terriers kept up their fight to hold the first division by downing Hamilton Tigers 14-8. The wins left Orillia Terriers in third place and Hamilton holding down fifth.

Jim Bradshaw and Al Frick led the St. Catharines attack which had Fergus snowed under throughout. Each scored four goals for the winners while Bob Dobbie was top man for Thistles, notching five markers in the losing cause.

Lentzbladt tallied three times for Hamilton while Joe McNulty scored three for the Terriers.

Gregg Jones was the only casualty of Saturday night's play, being hit by the ball while guarding the Orillia nets. He was replaced by veteran Sam Arbuna.

Bridge players with life master rating are brilliant in their play of the cards. They have to be. Since their bidding is not very accurate, they must have something to fall back on. In their recent national championship, hand after hand ended in wrong contracts. Not only that, except for the simplest and most obvious bids, there was a wide difference in their endings.

♠ K
♥ Q J 9 8 7 6
♦ 6 5
♣ 8 5 3 2

WEST
♠ A 9 5 2
♥ K 10 4 3
♦ A 10 9 8 5
♣ None

EAST
♠ Q 8 7 6 3
♥ 5
♣ Q J 6

SOUTH
♠ J 10 4
♥ A 9
♦ K 3
♣ A K 10 9 7 6

The correct bidding goes like this:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 C	1 D
1 H	1 S	2 C	2 S
3 H	4 S	Pass	Pass
5 C	5 D	All Pass

Some experts might prefer to double for takeout with the west hand instead of using the simple overcall of one diamond. There is practical merit in this. But it is not strictly correct.

If east does not come in with a bid of four spades, south would say four hearts, which would be defeated. But the loss would not be as great as letting the opponents make a game.

Five diamonds or game in spades can be made by east and west. However, of the 14 tables in this match, not one life master was in either. In fact, all managed to let south-north play it in something

Four were in five clubs, two of which made and two did not. One was in four clubs doubled that went down one. Five in four hearts were all defeated. The three in two hearts were also defeated.

Remember, I am not talking about a bunch of beginners. This is a match in which the highest rated players in the world competed; and only south, if there are the best, their ways are a jest.

Farm Boy Played By City Slicker

OTTAWA (CP) — Nine-year-old Jimmy Home, a "city slicker" from Regina, plays a farm boy in the new National Film Board production "musician in the Family."

But Jimmy didn't get the job because of his acting ability. He got it because he can ride a horse and play a trombone.

The NFB film—being entered in the Edinburgh Film Festival this summer—will be seen by a total Canadian audience of 13,000,000 through the NFB's non-theatrical circuits.

The film was "shot" around Milestone, near Regina. It tells about a farm boy who wants to play trombone in a small-town music festival despite his father's feeling that farm work is being neglected.

Canadian Loses Queen's Prize By One Point

Winner of the coveted prize was Sgt. N. W. McCaw of the London Rifle Brigade who scored an aggregate of 279—one point ahead of Johnson.

Col. Johnson needed six bullseyes and a bull's-eye to win when he prepared for his last shot at 1,000 yards. McCaw had already completed his shoot. The wind came up just then and he misjudged it, scoring a magpie.

That gave him a total of 272, the same as E. Bennett of Guildford, Surrey. But Bennett had a better inner range score and took second prize of £50 and the silver badge.

Johnson said afterwards he had no alibis.

"I thought I might have got it, but it was bad luck and a tricky wind."

Appiah wore the brilliant crimson, green and yellow striped ceremonial dress of the Ashanti tribe. The bride, who was given away by her brother, John Cripps, wore a gown of embroidered silk brocade with ankle-length skirt and long, tight sleeves.

Held in connection with the annual Toronto Police field day, the beauty contest saw 60 girls turn on the charm to try for the coveted title.

Betty, whose five-foot, five-inch frame is distributed neatly around a 36-inch bust, a 25-inch waist and 36-inch hips, has been entering beauty contests since she was 14.

After the flash bulbs had stopped popping Betty ran to the side of the platform to plant a kiss on Norm Roffey, 22, the boy whose engagement ring she has worn since last December.

"I didn't think she'd win," said Norm, quite obviously proud that she had.

No Negligence In Army Death

OTTAWA (CP)—Army headquarters said Sunday there is nothing to indicate that Pte. Frederick Joseph Burke of Regina, who died Thursday after undergoing punishment at Petawawa military camp, received anything but normal treatment.

The Army said a board of inquiry has found there was no negligence or lack of proper consideration on the part of the staff of the detention barracks.

Burke collapsed after a 20-mile exercise on the Petawawa obstacle course while serving seven days' detention for being absent without leave and died in camp hospital a short time later.

Directs $8,000,000 Election Job

Directing a $8,000,000 job is Nelson Castonguay, Canada's chief electoral officer. That's the estimated cost of the Aug. 10 federal election and it will be the most expensive one in Canada's history. Mr. Castonguay normally has a staff of 60 in his Ottawa office, but during election times his staff swells to about 200,000, most of them enumerators. And as soon as this election is over he starts preparing for another. — Central Press Canadian.

New Threat Made RoKs May Change Attitude on Truce

Want Prompt US Assurance That Korea Will be Unified

By ROBERT R. TUCKMAN
PANMUNJOM (AP)—New rumblings of opposition came from South Korea today as Allied and communist staff and liaison officers put finishing touches on a Korean armistice.

All signs pointed to a cease-fire soon, possibly within the week, but there was no indication just when the historic signing would come.

One group of staff officers and liaison officers recessed without scheduling further meetings. A second team of staff officers who were reported revising the truce line across Korea worked on into the night.

The meeting broke up at 6:45 p.m. and the officers scheduled another session for 10 a.m. Wednesday (9 p.m. EDT Tuesday). This is the only meeting set for Wednesday.

South Korea's foreign minister told reporters his government might "change its attitude" toward obstructing a truce unless it gets prompt assurance from Washington that Korea will be unified.

Will Guarantee

He said South Korea also wants guarantees from the United States on how to meet possible new Red aggression.

Two separate teams of staff officers from each side worked at most secret meetings, while nearby, a swarm of North Korean and Chinese workmen hurried to complete a building where the truce will be signed.

The communists labor troops worked all through the night under floodlights put up for them by U.S. soldiers.

One group of staff officers is reported to have completed revising the line that will separate opposing forces during an armistice. The other group was believed mapping the route to be used by neutral nation inspectors and observer teams to and from the five ports of entry on each side.

Working Fast

The feverish pace began Monday, a day after the communists agreed to go ahead with final preparations for the signing of an armistice.

While truce sessions appeared to be progressing smoothly, the RoK leaders hinted new troubles. President Syngman Rhee himself has made no public comment on a communist statement Sunday.

The Red statement, revealing portions of secret Panmunjom negotiations, disclosed the Communist promised not to support any Korean reunification if South Korean forces after a truce.

Await Reply

The Red and government leaders let it be known they were awaiting a reply from Washington on questions they had submitted after the end of the conferences in Seoul earlier this month by President Eisenhower's special envoy, Assistant state Secretary Walter S. Robertson. Robertson has conferred with Rhee and returned to Washington. Rhee's government spokesman Rhee would not block a truce.

What questions were left unsettled were not clear but a highly placed source in the South Korean government said there were two questions which were beyond Robertson's powers to give a final answer while he was in Korea.

Truck Skids Strikes Train On Second Try

Smith, 34, was driving his truck during a rainstorm. Too late, he saw the red caution lights blinking at a railroad crossing.

Smith slammed on the brakes, and the truck started skidding. It skidded all the way across the tracks, clear of the approaching train, and Smith was about to breathe a sigh of relief when the vehicle suddenly did a U-turn and skidded right back on the tracks. The train smashed into the truck and destroyed it. Smith walked away uninjured.

U.S. Government Seeking to Void Alcoa Pact

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. government went to court Monday in an effort to void a contract for Aluminum Company of America to buy 1,300,000,000 pounds of aluminum from Aluminum Ltd. of Canada during a six-year period.

The contract "precludes the complete dissociation" of Aluminum and Alcoa, the justice department said in a suit filed in U.S. District Court in New York.

This dissociation, the petition contended, was a prime objective of a 1941 court judgment against Alcoa and owners of controlling shares of Alcoa and Aluminum in directing them to sell their shares in the Canadian firm.

The petition asked the court to terminate the judgment. It provided for three trustees to exercise voting rights while the shares were being sold during a 10-year period. Bidder Competition

The U.S. government petition said:

"Unless the contract between Alcoa and Aluminum Limited is promptly cancelled, it will impair further the competitive situation existing in the domestic industry which did not contemplate such anti-trust law, and prevent the creation of requisite conditions.

"Unless the contract is cancelled it will deter, delay and prevent any efforts on the government's to promote competitive conditions in harmony with the law."

In New York, a spokesman for Alcoa said the company could not give a formal reply to the government's suit until its lawyers have had a chance to study the documents.

In Montreal, officials of Aluminum Company of Canada, Aluminum subsidiary, had no immediate comment on the U.S. action.

Hydro Worker Killed When Struck by Truck

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—James St. Onge, 39, of Welland died in hospital here Monday shortly after he was run over by a huge dump truck at the Ontario hydro-electric power commission's Sir Adam Beck No. 1 generating station, under construction at nearby Queenston.

St. Onge was walking through the station on his way to report for work on the evening shift when struck. It is believed he did not notice the truck because of all the noise at the work site.

St. Onge moved to Ontario recently from Campbellton, N.B. He is survived by a widow and three children.

The funeral will be held at Campbellton.

BONES IN FIRE LATEST CLUES TO HUNTERS' FATE

Police Stay Silent On Visit to New Town

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GASPE, Que. (CP)—A sudden turn in the investigation into the fate of three Pennsylvania hunters in dense Gaspe peninsula wilderness takes provincial police today to the new town of Murdochville, site of Gaspe Copper Mines Limited.

The hunters were Eugene H. Kingsley, 45, his brother-in-law Richard, and Fred Clear, 20, all of Hollidaysburg, Penn. The remains of one of the trio have already been identified.

Sgt. Henri Doyon, head of the Quebec provincial police squad investigating the mysterious disappearance of the three Americans, left Montreal by car for Murdochville development. He reported Monday that a Murdochville woman discovered bones in an old camp fire between two and four miles from where the Americans disappeared in the Quebec wilds June 15.

Sgt. Doyon said game warden Rosaire Lemieux found the bones when he kicked over the ashes of an old camp fire.

Human Bones

Meanwhile in Montreal, Dr. Jean-Louis Rousseau, provincial anthropologist, said bones found in the Gaspe bush last week were those of a human being. He doubted if he hopes to establish within 24 hours whether the bones were murdered or a victim of wild animals.

Dr. Rousseau said the bones he brought back from the scene were those of a youth presumably Richard Lindsey.

The father of one of the hunters, Clarence Clear, declared Saturday in a coroner's inquest that tattered clothing found by police were those of his older children.

Fifteen experienced bushmen and Quebec provincial police are combing the area.

Searchers Armed

The men, armed with rifles, will cover about 100 square miles in district where the first bones and pieces of clothing were found. Following this they will cover a fourmile area where the three hunters camp and the stalled truck of the trio. The searchers carry food for 10 days.

At Gaspe, police waited the return from a trip to Montreal by Quebec of Wilbert Coffin, a prospector thought to have been one of the last persons to see the three hunters before their disappearance.

Pickets Given Right To State Their Case

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Ivan Rand in a ruling Monday that pickets at the James R. Kearney Co. Ltd. plant in Guelph will be allowed to state their case to persons passing through their lines "provided they do not coerce or intimidate."

Mr. Rand has allowed a modified form of injunction restraining the two-man picket line from "coercing or using threatening words.

The Guelph plant is not strike bound, but pickets are carrying on the picketing of a teamsters' strike at the Kearney plant in St. Louis. The Guelph plant is a fully-owned subsidiary.

Princess 'Obviously Happier,' May Win Permission to Marry

LONDON (AP)—Princess Margaret may yet win official permission to marry handsome Peter Townsend despite his divorce, a close source to Buckingham Palace said Monday.

The informant, who cannot be identified further, said the Princess has been told of government and palace objections to such a marriage.

"Princess Margaret obviously now is in a different frame of mind," he added. "Every evening since her arrival home from her African tour last Friday she has spent at least an hour writing letters—and she is not ordinarily over-fond of letter writing."

Rupert Group Capt. Townsend, former equerry to the Royal Household, was transferred to Brussels as air attache and left for the Belgian capital just 48 hours before Margaret's return. Some British newspapers charged he had been "exiled."

As Regent, Princess Margaret would take the sovereign's place as titular head of the Church of England when Queen Elizabeth is in the Commonwealth countries. She could scarcely uphold this position if she were married to a divorced person.

Both St. Laurent and Drew Speak at Thetford Mines

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

The election-campaigning head men of the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties hit the absentee town of Thetford Mines, Que., Monday—at different times of day —while the CCF chieftain got on television.

Prime Minister St. Laurent and PC leader George Drew spoke from the same platform in the town school yard. Mr. St. Laurent drew an afternoon audience of 1,500. Mr. Drew, who arrived at Thetford nine minutes after the prime minister left, attracted more than 7,000 in the evening. Mr. St. Laurent spoke in French and Mr. Drew mainly in French.

Mr. St. Laurent said the day will come when Canada will have an ambassador to the Vatican. An appointment couldn't be made now "because there are still honest Canadians who would interpret this gesture as an insult against their religion."

"They are wrong and I might add that if the matter rested only with my colleagues the appointment could be made," the prime minister said. "But what would be the good of arousing a religious quarrel?"

He said his government is striving to make Canada fully autonomous and that so far many steps have been taken without causing quarrels, in constitutional matters affecting both the federal and provincial governments, assent of the British Parliament was still required; but it was hoped some system could be worked out so that Canadians could settle these matters themselves.

He said he wanted to make clear that he was "as much of a provincial autonomist as any citizen of Quebec province, not for Quebec only, but for all 10 Canadian provinces."

Mr. Drew also brought up the subject of provincial autonomy, but in a different light:

"If Quebec is afraid of anything it is certainly not a bogey, because nothing is more real than the centralization of the Liberal party, which will surely lead you to a country like if you don't stop its advance next Aug. 10.

"If Quebec has anything to be afraid of, it is the centralizer, the Liberal party, and not the Conservative party, the only party now supporting provincial autonomy in the House of Commons."

Alan Ormshaw of Trenton Is Killed by Lightning Bolt

TRENTON (Special)—The whole community was shocked to hear that Alan Ormshaw, better known as Ormshaw, 23, was killed instantly by a bolt of lightning Monday. He was cut down as he hurried through an open field four miles north of town to seek shelter from a heavy rain storm, accompanied by some thunder and lightning. The blast shattered a rubber ground sheet he had covered his body with.

The bolt, which discolored parts of the body ripped clothing to pieces and burned the shoes off the victim's feet.

Before the storm, when the sky blackened, the young father left his father-in-law's place to close the doors and windows of his new bungalow. When he did not return for sometime his wife and her mother became alarmed and started a hunt for the young husband. A relative, Mrs. A. Whaley found the body slumped, somewhat naked, in a nearby field.

The young constable, with a promising future in police work ahead of him, served as a volunteer fireman four years before joining the local police force. He was a popular athlete at school. He was a reserve seaman in the Royal Canadian Navy, with headquarters at Kingston.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Ormshaw of Trenton, Constable Ormshaw married June Whaley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Whaley, living on the Wooler Road four miles north of here. He leaves his young wife and a 14½-year-old son Richard.

Fishing Trip For Pay Boost May be Costly

ST. THOMAS (CP)—The electrical workers are "most fishing"—with fishing poles—for 10-cent-an-hour wage increase Monday were still fishing while management officials taken the first step to upset the boat.

Papers are reported filed with the department of labor by the contractors calling the "fishing" by employees illegal. If this position is upheld by the department the fishing trip" expenses are liable to run a little high—a possible $1,000 fine a day.

Union officials reported that 13 electricians went fishing because contractors Russell Neville Limited refused to sign a contract they agreed to sign last week.

The union is asking for an increase this year, but a 10-cent increase after Jan. 1, 1954. The present wage rate, established last year by the contractors, is $1.65 an hour.

Higher Crude Prices Cause Says Oil Firm

TORONTO (CP)—The Imperial Oil Company announced today that effective immediately wholesale gasoline prices will be increased by more than a cent a gallon because the company must pay more for crude oil. Retail prices will go up similarly "within a few days," the company said.

The wholesale price has been boosted 1.4 cents a gallon in all provinces except British Columbia where the increase is ½ cent. Retail prices, which now run from about 38 to 43 cents a gallon, will go up about 1 2-5 cents.

Officials said other oil companies will probably follow suit in a few days.

The reason for the boost, Imperial said, is the result of recent increases in world crude oil prices and the higher exchange value of the United States dollar.

Prices for light fuel oils were also increased by one cent a gallon on the Prairie provinces to one cent in B.C. in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes, the boost is ½ cent.

Shell Oil Company officials said they will probably increase their wholesale price by the end of the week.

Report Partisans Seize Two Towns In East Germany

BERLIN (AP)—The West Berlin newspaper, Nachi Depeche, said today Soviet troops had attacked partisan bands made up of Poles, Czechs and Germans who seized two towns in a former East German region now part of Poland.

The newspaper, a pro-Western organ, another West Berlin newspaper put out by the same company that publishes Neues Deutschland, the paper, saying Polish partisans fought for hours after Soviet troops last Thursday in a forest near Niesky, in German town 50 miles from the Neisse river frontier with Poland.

No Confirmation

There was no confirmation from official sources. They recalled that previous West Berlin rumors of widespread Polish rebellion and martial law in Warsaw and Krakow had been discounted later by Western diplomatic missions in Poland.

This was the Nachi Depeche report: Russian troops supported by jet fighters attacked the partisans. The towns seized were named as Hennersdorf and Seifenhennersdorf, both near Zittau, in the mountainous Riesenhige area along the Czech-Polish frontier southeast of Goerlitz. A few renegade Russians have also joined the partisans.

Many Foles Captured

The report in Telegraf: "Many Polish soldiers were killed and wounded and captured by Soviet troops in the battle near Niesky. Soviet military and East German police casualties were treated at Goerlitz.

Niesky broke into the news Monday when the East German radio ADN disclosed 16 of its citizens had been sentenced to prison for burning down the local secret police headquarters and beating Red officials in the June 17 revolt.

Rescue French Mountain Climber Who Hung 3 Days at End of Rope

CHAMONIX, France (AP) — Georges Barbacki, a French mountain climber who dangled for three days at the end of a rope in an Alpine chasm, was hauled to safety today.

The Paris university student had been trapped since last Friday in "The Fool's Needle," a sharp peak in the Alps, since Saturday, when he was hurled from its side by a storm. A companion was crushed to death.

Barbacki was pulled up from his perilous position early this afternoon and taken to Chamonix. His condition was described as satisfactory.

Barbacki had spent three sleepless nights in a tiny coffin rope. Able to make himself heard in the echoing mountain stillness, he was in good spirits throughout the long wait.

Barbacki's companion, Claude Chuillat, a Paris technician, fell 1,000 feet down the chasm after a severe storm which whipped the Alps Saturday morning.

Chuillat's body was found Monday.

Frost Gives Order For Police to Halt Highway Picketing

Will Prosecute All Those Who Obstruct Road Traffic

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Labor Minister Daley scheduled talks with union leaders and representatives of the trucking industry today as a walkout of some 1,500 drivers kept an estimated three-quarters of southwestern Ontario's highway transports off the road.

Mr. Daley held his first meetings with members of both sides a few hours after the strike began at midnight Sunday. There was no comment following the initial talks and no indication of progress in settling the wage dispute.

Pickets of two big locals of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL-CIO) at Hamilton and Windsor fanned out to check highway traffic in such centres as Sarnia, Guelph, Galt, Kitchener, Waterloo, London, Chatham, Brantford and Windsor.

Trucks carrying perishables, bonded goods and livestock were exempt on the strike's first day, but the exemption was to be lifted today after a meeting scheduled before the strike began reaching their destinations.

Rock Was Thrown

The first report of violence came after the pickets were pulled into Windsor from Leamington, when a truck's side window and until it had been shattered by a rock.

The truck was chased by pickets in several automobiles when it stopped at a police-supervised roadblock on Windsor's eastern outskirts, but was allowed to cross the border into Detroit without interference.

Police warned the strikers against mass-picket drives. The pickets operated in flying squads, flagging down truckers on the highway or at roadblocks established at key points and persuading them to leave their trucks. Non-striking drivers faced expulsion from the union and possible consequent loss of their jobs.

Picket lines also were set up in front of the gates of the 35 trucking firms affected.

Strike in Bathtub

Carpenters in the southwestern Ontario strike was a walkout of 600 drivers in Niagara Falls, N.Y. area, where 150 companies were affected. Many U.S. drivers also parked their trucks in Windsor to avoid entering the Ontario strike area.

Howard Gibson, Jr., boss of the Hamilton picket line, said the drivers had orders "not to be found around with the government."

830 Prisoners Taken

It also reported that 830 prisoners were taken during the 24 villas in their biggest raid since Nationalist troops evacuated the mainland in 1949.

Informed sources said about 300 guerrillas were killed and 30 others have been flown here for treatment.

The attack began last Thursday and the raiders withdrew the following day. The raid involved the first use of paratroopers against Red-held island.

BAND CONCERT ENJOYED

Lively music aided heat-weary downtowners forget the temperature last evening when the Belleville Citizens' Band played a concert on Fireman's Park.

The band offered a variable program and its music was greatly appreciated by a large crowd who responded the benches or sat in the comfort of their cars.

Berry Patch Yields 4,600 Boxes in Day

WELLINGTON (Special) — Red gold is bursting out all over the raspberry patches of this district with growers predicting a slightly-above normal yield.

There is blue gold, too, and pickers from all parts of the area are converging on fruit-laden canes, that bow with the weight of the berries.

Several pickers are working in the 12-acre patch of Geo. Bailey, farmer residing one mile northwest of this village. Yesterday from 8.30 a.m. to 5 o'clock the harvest was 4,600 boxes.

Rain, however, is badly needed. During the past two weeks with the exception of a slight downfall last Saturday night, growers watched their crops fall all around them, but not directly.

ROUX
COLOUR SHAMPOO

Highways Minister, Hon. George Doucett, will meet with Hastings county councillors at their next general meeting to discuss the Madoc-Foxboro county road, according to County Warden Jack Kincaid of Madoc.

Late in June's special meeting of council was held to consider the offer of the highways department to take over the Madoc road, providing the county would assume maintenance of No. 14 highway from Foxboro to Marmora.

Following a day's discussion no decision was reached on the matter and in a telephone conversation Mr. Doucett agreed to meet with council to discuss the problem.

Hit-and-Miss Rains Feature Of Recent Storms

The weather man has been picking his spots insofar as rain is concerned during the past few weeks.

Various parts of the district have been the targets of the rain snipers while others have been more or less neglected.

Yesterday a deluging rain fell over the Trenton district, accompanied by a severe electric storm that took the life of a young Trenton policeman. Heavy rain fell in the vicinity of the Bay of Quinte Country Club but only a brief shower was seen here.

Wellington did not "have a drop", neither did Madoc.

On the "glorious Twelfth" heavy showers fell at Tweed, but Thomasburg was "dry as a bone" on "dry" day. The next day Tweed was the scene of another heavy downpour, yet this part of the district sweltered in heat.

Last Sunday a deluge fell in Kaladar district that halted cars in their tracks. Nearby areas did not get a drop.

Rotary Invites Group to Visit Children's Camp

More than 100 invitations have been sent out to Easter Seal donors to visit the crippled children's camp at Marywood-on-the-Moira during the county's weekend, Saturday, July 29. Marywood is approximately half way between Perth and Smiths Falls. It was announced at the noon luncheon of the Rotary club, that children under the age of 16 years would not be admitted into the "inside camp."

Rotarian Ernie Mallory presided over the meeting with the presentation of cocos. Joseph Vallis, recently returned from Bermuda was presented with a "birthday cake". Herb Dickey received a rose as an expression of the club's appreciation for work Mr. Dickey did on the financial statement. Mike Sakel, the Rotarian from the most distant point present was presented with a rose. Mr. Sakel is from Fort Pierce, Florida.

The sales promotion and public relations manager Don Madden of Bell Telephone, addressed the meeting. He spoke on the problems encountered in the advertising field. Mr. Bull stated that brewery advertising is the most difficult to handle for the institutional method of acquainting the public with the brewery's title. He suggested that the present Ontario Government regulations are too restrictive in approach to advertising. He hoped for a more reasonable approach to these problems in the near future.

The speaker was introduced by Jack Vowyer and the appreciation of the club was extended by George Campbell.

Ivanhoe Boy Tells of Life In Far North

Glen Haggerty of Ivanhoe, presently stationed at Clyde River, in the North West Territories, wrote the following letter home. Son of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Haggerty, of Ivanhoe, he was formerly employed at the Income Tax office in this city. The letter follows:

There are about three months of the year when the Bay here is clear of ice or partially clear, and we have a Peterborough boat and a ten horse motor to put around in. That will be a welcome change from eating on a dog sled.

Have gotten pretty well over the strangeness of the country and everything is pretty much routine. We are waiting around for some promised spring activity, in the form of erecting new living quarters, power house, and so forth. Rumour has it that we are going to install a Radar Station about five miles away. That is the driving command now, what with our little village of natives nearby.

The natives are a lot of skiing in. It's perfect country for that. The station is already the owner of a 3,000 ft. ridge of hills or mountains, whatever they are. Anyway, it is a long expanse with the seven inches of new snow that fell.

The natives are a friendly bunch, controlled entirely by the R.C.M.P. and the local Hudson's Bay manager. Once a year with the Eskimos from the missionary from Pond Inlet, 300 miles up the coast, pay a visit by dog team, also the R.C.M.P.

They were here during March and April, for a couple of weeks each by sledding. It doesn't take much to travel by sledding. Have a couple primitive beliefs though, especially when there is a new baby born. Have been here a couple of weeks ago, called Pingo-Pingo, and the local Eskimo believe he has supernatural powers in casting spells, and so forth. Saw the man and a kitchen boy here to do the work, so it's pretty good (I'm not complaining.)

In January, another fellow and myself went on a caribou hunting trip with two natives and their dog teams, for a couple of weeks. That was really rugged, especially the Fahrenheit sitting on 50 below. Each night on the trail we made an igloo to sleep in. Don't let anyone ever tell you they are warm. Had two primus burners for heat and cooking, but they were on, the heat from them would melt the roof and the drip from over the place. Anyhow, it was interesting and altogether.

Up until now we have had nice weather all winter, clear and cold, starting now, the sun will be shining 24 hours a day. Queer country. Seems funny to wander around at 2 or 3 a.m. and see the sun sitting up there large as life.

In bad weather we play chess continually. I can't seem to get anyone interested in bridge. Chess is a surprising absence of poker playing, some crib and euchre. Otherwise that's the skiing and the odd hunting trip, makes up the entertainment. Will forget to mention hamming. We have been talking to England, Germany, and the U.S. on phone a bit, and of course have regular talks with the other stations in the Arctic.

On Valentine's day our living quarters burned down, just before dinner. For awhile thought the radio room was going to go too, so slaved away ripping out all the wiring, and got the transmitters, one weighing 640 lbs., and the receivers, and heaved it out the window into a snow bank. The wind changed at the last minute and we managed to save it. Then came the job of putting everything back in again. What a mess that was, everything blackened by smoke and soot, bandies all over the place. Took about three weeks to get back to normal.

To make things worse, the other Canadian operator had been called out to Toronto on a lark, on an aircraft that landed here, and I was all alone with an all too sufficient knowledge of radio. Luckily the equipment worked fairly well after being patched

Jail Term Given For Drunk Driving

A seven day jail sentence and suspension of one dollars and three dollars costs, were the sentences handed out by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in magistrate's court on Thursday morning to Clifford Cotton, Purdy Street, following pleas of guilty to charges of drunk driving, driving a car with no lights and having intoxicants in a place other than a residence.

Detective Harold Reid told the court that Cotton had been seen by police officers as he sped along Dundas Street without lights on the night of July 17. The car had turned onto Herchimer, where a check by officers revealed a quantity of wine.

Cotton was given the jail sentence on the drunk driving charge, and was fined on the two other counts. In default of payment he will spend consecutive terms of seven days in the two latter counts.

Cotton denied knowledge of the presence of wine in his car but entered a plea of guilty, noting that "I couldn't do anything else as it is my word against that of the policeman."

"No conditional plea such as that will be entered in this court," replied Magistrate Wills. "If you feel that way about it a plea of not guilty will be entered and the evidence taken."

together, and I only missed two days at a couple of weather schedules. Don't know how the fire started, but think it was in a light socket somewhere, didn't save a thing except what we were wearing. An emergency aircraft arrived three weeks later with another load of Arctic clothing.

Have a complement of 11 men here, two Canadian operators, two Canadian radiosonde men, one cook, two American operators for their airways frequency and two maintenance and power men. We have direct contact with Resolute, Isle Island, (T-3), and the rest of the Arctic weather stations, by wire on radio. Send our weather out by code to a relay station in Hudson's Bay, called Nottingham Island, six times each day.

Junior Farmers Field Day Held At Frankford

FRANKFORD — Frankford school grounds was the scene on Wednesday of one of the best attended events held in Frankford, this event being the Junior Farmers' Field Day, sponsored this year by Sidney township Junior Farmers.

The athletic part of the program went well for the hosts and hostesses as may be seen in the following results:

The Sidney boys' team defeated Tyendinaga 18 to 2 in the first round, when they failed to get the Sidney team out in the third inning, while Madoc downed Thurlow in a more even fixture 4-2.

In the second round Sidney boys took Madoc by a 21 to 4 count, thus earning the right in the semi-finals. The second day of field day at the O.S.D., which will be held shortly and is the Quinte District day.

Girls Defeat Madoc

The girls also earned the right to represent at the O.S.D., by defeating Madoc girls in the first round and then downing Thurlow in the second and final round.

The girls' events were also taken over by Sidney as Frank Harry captured the 100 yard dash and with Ted Aikens (Sidney) in third place. Frank combined with Bob Burkitt, Wynn Harder and Ted Aikens to capture the four man relay (mail) just to show he still had lots left. Frank entered the high jump and came in third in this event too! Adding insult of injury Frank got in the boys' ball throw and they haven't found the ball yet.

The girls from Sidney made their presence known too, when Helen Burkitt and Jean Frost copped first and second place in the 75-yard dash. Sidney girls also took the girls two (mail) relay race with Eloise Sine and Donna Rae combining for the win. Jean Frost and Bernadette Thompson, of Sidney, came in one, two in the high jump to take that event. Bernadette also took the girls' ball throw.

The boys were sent to Thurlow boys after they defeated Madoc and then Sidney.

When the scores were added, Sidney came in on top with 61 points and was the winner of the 4 28 score.

During the dance, which commenced at 9.00 p.m. to the music of "Ruth Wilson's Variety Band", Commander Ross, on behalf of the community hall, the "Lee Grills" trophy was presented to Jean Frost and Frank Thompson, both with 18 points, by the donor. Frank Harry was the winner of the Kincaid trophy, which was presented by donor Jack Kincaid, of Hastings County.

IN MEMORIAM

SEMARK.—In loving memory of our darling daughter and sister, Anne Semark, who passed away July 21, 1952.
Please God, forgive a silent tear
And grant that I may meet her there.
There are others, yes we know them
But there is only one like her.
Two years ago, we had to part
With those we loved with all our heart
Just to show we still have not lost
Love those who have lost know
What it costs
If we could speak with Betty Ann
We would
Laugh with her and smile and cry
Then tell her how much we love her still Always.
Sadly missed and ever remembered by Mommie and Daddy and Sisters. 721

SEMARK.—In loving memory of our darling daughter and sister, who passed away July 21, 1952.
Just a little white rosebud,
The sweetest flower on earth,
Heaven plucked it in its beauty,
Because she was needed there.
Always remembered by Nancy Lou and Margaret. 721

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Prices opened firm but turned mixed in light forenoon stock market trading today.

Industrials weakened along a fairly broad front following Monday's mild advance. Golds continued to rise slowly and base metals joined in with small gains. Western oils settled back to weaker prices after an early recovery attempt fizzled.

In industrials, weakness was most evident in banks, papers and steels.

Base metals were buoyed by strength in lower-priced issues, among them Sherritt-Gordon, Barvue and East Sullivan.

Western oils tended irregularly lower as gains by Trans Empire and Albermont were more than balanced by losses for Jupiter, Peruvian and Model.

RED TEACHERS MEET

VIENNA (AP)—A Communist-sponsored world conference of teachers opened in Vienna. About 230 persons from 53 countries were present for the congress, which continues through Saturday.

Welcomed Home, Princess Dances Until Early Morn

LONDON (AP)—Princess Margaret celebrated her return from Rhodesia by dancing until 4 o'clock this morning.

Because there was not enough room inside for dancing, the Marchioness "borrowed" the flat roofs of a house and post office next to her apartment. Workmen erected two giant tents for dancing and refreshments.

Skates Off Cold

The Princess, who had apparently skated in a cold caught while she was in Africa, danced right through the night and outplayed many of the guests.

Missing was RAF Group Capt. Peter Townsend, who was transferred last week to the British embassy in Belgium. Many Britons think he was sent abroad because the Princess is reported to want to marry him.

Though Margaret was over her cold, the Queen mother came down with the sniffles today and remained indoors at Clarence House, their London residence.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP)—Trade was dull with prices easier at the Ontario stockyards today. Receipts: Cattle 600; calves 250; hogs 200; sheep and lambs 90; both are from Monday 2,100 cattle.

Choice light steers 30-20.65; good 16-18, 19-19.50; medium downward to 15; common to medium heifers 13-14; a few good bitlers 19; good cows 12-13; good heavy bulls 13-14.

Grade A hogs were steady at 23.50 dressed cwt. down 25.

Alert Police Officer Arrests Two Suspects

Thanks to the perseverance of an officer of the Napanee provincial police detachment, two 18-year-old Montreal youths will appear in county magistrate's court here on Thursday on charges of stealing a Shannonville owned auto over the week-end.

Following the report of the disappearance of the vehicle, Napanee police picked up the car but it eluded them in a brief chase. The car, owned by D. C. Vivian, was later found wrecked on a county road near Odessa.

Police continued their search for the occupants and hours later Constable Rice spotted two youths walking along a railway track near Kingston. They were apprehended and turned over to the Belleville O.P.P. Following questioning in Belleville the two youths, Raymond Parker and Gilles LaLonde, were charged with theft of the car.

Oystermen Endeavor To Gather Own Seed

LADYSMITH, B.C. (CP)—Thousands of oyster shells, their sacred contents long since removed, are going back "into service" on the British Columbia coast.

The shells are being strung together in groups of about 100 to a string and hung from scows to catch oyster seed or eggs for planting in commercial oyster spawning grounds. About 15,000 strings, each weighing 15 pounds, are being assembled here.

B.C. oystermen sponsoring the scheme are hoping the attempt to gather oyster seed here will eventually make Canada independent of Japanese seed growers who now supply the bulk of oyster seed for west coast spawning grounds.

BUILDING BURNED

WOODSTOCK (CP)—Fire of undetermined origin caused thousands of dollars damage Monday night when it burned through two floors of the Grafton building on Dundas street and ravaged four upstairs apartments. The blaze, which for a time threatened to get out of hand, broke out on the south floor of Snell's electric appliance store in the building and burned a six-foot hole through to the second storey.

Duke of Westminster Was One of World's Richest Men

The peer, four times married and three times divorced, owned vast estates in Scotland, Wales and England, as well as about 600 acres of London's expensive Mayfair and Chelsea neighborhoods.

Only this year he bought an island in the Fraser river in British Columbia, and launched an industrial development project estimated to cost £63,000,000 ($176,400,000).

His London holdings alone were valued at £20,000,000 ($56,000,000) before the Second World War and land values have increased greatly since then.

One of his biggest real estate deals was the letting of a long lease on part of Grosvenor Square —London's "Little America" to the U.S. government.

In the square are the embassy and other U.S. government buildings. The price of this deal never was made public but one report estimated it at not less than £3,000,000 ($2,800,000).

Though he was married four times he left no son to inherit his titles and vast fortunes. They pass to a bachelor cousin William Grosvenor, 59.

The duke was an cabinet collector of lands and property — 160,000 acres sprawling across England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, Canada and Australia.

In Scotland he specialized in reforestation. In Wales he concentrated on sheep-farming and in modern.

The new duke, William Grosvenor, lives in retirement. He became heir-presumptive to the title only a month ago when Capt. Robert Grosvenor, the duke's nearest male relative, died.

Urges Railroads End Opposition To Seaway Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—A request that railroads withdraw their opposition to the St. Lawrence seaway project, to "exhibit statesmanship in the national interest," was made today by U.S. Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem.-Minn.)

Humphrey said the presidents of eastern U.S. railroads are meeting in a strategy session here today to determine what action they should take on the proposal to build a deep channel in the International Rapids section of the river.

Senate leadership has indicated that the measure to authorize joining Canada in building the $1,000,000,000 project likely will be held over until the next session of Congress, starting in January.

In a letter to William White, president of the New York Central Railroad, Humphrey said he hopes the railroads will withdraw their opposition at today's meeting.

Urges Statesmanship

"This meeting should provide the eastern railroads an opportunity to exhibit statesmanship in the national interest by withdrawing the opposition of the eastern railroads to the seaway project," the senator said in his letter.

Humphrey said it has been reported that White had said proponents are indulging in "impractical bubble blowing" or in "deliberate misrepresentation" when they contend the project will cost only $1,000,000,000.

The Eisenhower cabinet has given its unqualified support to the seaway, Humphrey said. He added: "You will agree with us that all the eminent members of the Eisenhower cabinet can not possibly be accused of indulging in 'impractical bubble blowing' or in 'deliberate misrepresentation'."

SUBPOENA QUASHED

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A subpoena served on Harry S. Truman calling on him to explain why the United States entered the Korean conflict was quashed Monday in district court. The subpoena, served by Fyke Farmer, Nashville, Tenn. lawyer, and leader of a world peace movement, had directed the former president to produce certain records of his administration.

But Judge Albert A. Ridge held that Truman had submitted an affidavit to the court saying he was not now in possession of these documents.

Missing Pilot Being Hunted In Northern Bush

NORTH BAY (CP)—A solitary Lancaster bomber droned through the darkness over wild Northern Ontario bushland last night on a lonely mission.

The RCAF search plane was on the lookout for flares from the pilot of a missing Mustang fighter, down in the bush since Saturday, when it fell out of a formation of RCAF reserve planes returning to their Calgary base from a civil defence exercise in Ottawa.

The single - engine, propeller-driven aircraft, piloted by FO. J. L. Suttie of Saskatoon, was making a hop from North Bay to the Lakehead when it disappeared.

To Resume Search

Today, weather permitting, a 30-plane search armada was to resume its salient screening of thousands of square miles of rugged terrain north of Michipicoten on Lake Superior's north shore. Its low-level hunt already has covered 36,000 square miles of territory and 25,000 more were to be scanned in today's dawn-to-dusk operations.

Sqdn. Ldr. A. R. Halbert of RCAF search and rescue, Trenton, said the search area will continue to be extended and more aircraft will be called in if no trace of the missing plane is found.

"It may take days to get word out of that bush," he said. "We want to have a plane up there if word comes out."

Rescue Crews Ready

Trained para-rescue men were ready to go into action if needed. A fresh detachment of 200 air and ground crew arrived in North Bay from Trenton Monday to join the search.

A float - equipped Norseman hopped from lake to lake at tree top level Monday checking reports that a plane resembling the Mustang was seen in the area Saturday. But the little bush plane found no clues.

Will Probe Soldier's Death

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost announced Monday night that Senirle Lawson, Ontario's chief coroner, will conduct the inquiry into the death of Pte. Frederick Joseph Burke of Regina at Petawawa military camp last week.

Burke died after going through an obstacle course as part of his punishment for being a week late returning from leave. Relatives said Burke was delayed because of illness and was still ill when he returned to camp.

Date of the inquest has not yet been set.

ACTION NEEDED ON SPEED LIMIT

On Friday Hon. George H. Doucett, Ontario Minister of Highways, again announced that provincial police would "crack down" on motorists who exceeded the province's 50-mile-an-hour speed limit.

The Minister of Highways is concerned about the heavy accident toll on our highways. He believes that the way to reduce this toll is to enforce the present speed laws. That is why he issues his frequent warnings. They have had practically no effect. The law is continually flouted — not by a handful of reckless drivers but by the great majority of the province's motorists.

It seems to us that there are two things Mr. Doucett can do.

He can announce once more that the 50-mile-an-hour limit will be enforced, set a deadline—and then get every available traffic constable in the province out on the highways and charge every driver who exceeds the limit.

The other alternative is to revise the existing speed limit in keeping with present conditions on our highways and the performance of our automobiles.

A week-end spent on the highways of the province showed motorists on the open highway travelling at speeds varying between 60 and 85 miles an hour. The speeds varying between 60 and 85 miles an hour. The speeds varying between 60 and 85 miles an hour. The man who was travelling at that top rate of speed was risking his life and the lives of others — but it is doubtful if he took much more toll of life than the slow driver.

Traffic flowed, when unimpeded, at various rates of speed, as would be expected in view of varying driving conditions. In most places through the province the average rate was well above the speed limit. If all drivers who exceeded the speed limit over the week-end had been stopped by the police and charged, the courts of the province would be flooded.

Most of these motorists did not pay the slightest attention to Mr. Doucett's latest warning. And they were not the biggest offenders on the highway. That distinction must be reserved for the man who, possibly, had read Mr. Doucett's warning—and was heeding it by travelling well within the speed limit. Driving at 40 miles or less within the speed limit, on the highways of the province at an hour when the rest of the drivers thought they could travel safely at 60, he was not himself a danger to anybody — but he constantly caused other drivers to take excessive risks in attempting to pass him. If all traffic had been driving at 60 the roads would have been much safer.

Is it not time the authorities faced the fact that the slow driver is a menace and enforced a minimum speed limit, as well as a maximum?

And would it not be safer to increase the maximum limit, say to 60, an enforce it than to continually warn motorists to observe a limit which is almost universally ignored?

LET THE TRUCE COME SOON

War is never pretty nor comforting.

But there is something doubly revolting about the continuation of slaughter when a cessation of hostilities is momentarily expected.

Most people, in the western nations at least, must have been deeply disturbed during the past month or so as, side by side in their newspapers, they read one story telling of progress towards an armistice in Korea and another story telling the details of some recent attack and the consequent heavy casualties.

It was different in the early days of the truce talks, when it was unknown whether or not it would be possible to reach an agreement on the terms for an armistice. Obviously, then both sides wanted to reserve the right to continue operations.

But that month the situation has been different. Continued attacks often seem senseless.

It has, of course, been the Communists who have engaged in offensives which have kept the casualty toll mounting. For while when these attacks were aimed at the South Koreans, the reason for them was apparent enough, since there was for a time strategy behind them, it is hard to believe that the RoKs might not observe any truce.

But the week-end assault against a position held by U.S. marines was of another pattern. Why did these men, Americans and Chinese, have to die when it appears that the last obstacles to a truce have been hurdled?

STORY WITHOUT A MORAL

When folks in Glynde, England, get undressed to go swimming, it is to be hoped that they do not give overmuch thought to the reasons why they can do so in comfort. For out of Glynde comes a story with a moral that is demolishing.

Bill Freeman, the local milkman, with a thrift worthy of a more northerly locale, saved farthings throughout his life and left them to the council.

So what did the council do? Used the farthings to stage a guessing competition and from the proceeds of the competition built new dressing rooms at the local swimming pool.

The Reuters editor, evidently a man with a high regard for virtues like thrift and generosity, says that Glynde got the dressing rooms thanks to Bill Freeman's farthings. It seems to us, though, that Glynde's progress is the result of a universal human weakness, a desire to get something for nothing. Glynde council could probably have done as well if Freeman's farthings had been pebbles.

But at least modesty is a recognized virtue in Glynde. The folks of Glynde can now undress in privacy. Thanks to the gamblers.

THE HAPPIEST DAYS

"These are the happiest days of The happiest days haven't your lives," passed, I would about.
Said an orator gray. There are new joys to know.
And I thought for young That the future holds gladness graduates, grim that appears. for you never doubt

Done the delight of youth's laughter and song?
Nothing further to gain!
Only burdens to bear as they journey along,
All the rest of life, vain!

There are countless delights to be found in these days,
Time alone can unfold.
Notwithstanding the stress and the heartaches and tears,
It's worth while to grow old.

Child Meets Laurier

(By J. M. Dunsmore in the Stratford Beacon-Herald)

I read the other day that Wilfrid Laurier, on campaign trip in Quebec, took hands with a four-year-old named Louis St. Laurent, and that our Prime Minister has never forgotten it.

There is no way of telling now, I suppose, how long Laurier himself remembered the encounter—political campaigners who goes in for kowing up to the kiddies may or may not find them interesting in childhood dreams. But I like to think that the engaging old Kidnid found something a little different in his meeting with me here in Stratford, Ontario, when I too was four, or about.

As children, we were conscious of the person we were conscious of anything. The stories could do no wrong and the Grits no right—at least to hear Father snort and carry on about it. Nearly every day brought some provocation that would put Father into a fine old damning the Grits, and a denunciation of their ways as "a fraud and a delusion and a snare."

As for Laurier, I suppose the greatest, Father had ever heard about him was when Aunt Magdalen, who probably was about 19 at the time, danced at her wedding, said in (for her) a comparatively mild moment that Sir Wilfrid Laurier I'd like to take him out in the middle of the barn and drop him over to the sharks."

Mother, I think, did not really give a hoot about party politics; but gave a hoot about Father's rant and partly perhaps as a rebuke for damns, she sometimes confessed a liking for Laurier. Alberals. This fictitious conflict never came to a head when children were present—and, and then Father and Mother played a game of their own, which had nothing to do with children to expose one side or the other and procured for us, from time to time, blue ribbons. (When did that custom die out?) The game was to see who candy and popcorn, and extra tales of adventure on the Grimes-Tamherst Mother might make us new marble-bags or a special cake. We were the, of course, to see who was worth; and I for one long believed that my game was the best, even if I was the youngest of both. From the time I was able to walk, until my education was interrupted by my having to start to school, I nearly always accompanied Father on his morning excursion down the town. (How I'm getting back to Laurier, in case you're wondering.) On this particular morning, without my realising that anything unusual was about, we turned in at the Albion Hotel; and the next thing I knew we were in a large room crowded with what I recognized as many of the leading men of the town, and I was being introduced to a white-haired gentleman seated at the far end, who patted me kindly and set me on his knee.

It had all happened so suddenly that it was a minute or two before I realized that this was Sir Wilfrid Laurier—the person I had always thought was the father of all the fiends. I was aghast; all I could see in his smile was the Moloch in one of my illustrated Bible dictionary grinning at the infants being tossed to immolation in his incandescent lap. And Father was acting as if nothing were amiss—as indeed, undoubtedly in the general geniality.

What Laurier said then to me, or to him, I have no idea. I eased myself to the floor and stood, a little guessing that his relief was probably as great as mine, while Father and Laurier talked on the hood, urging him to the door. Such-and-Such, Esq., M.P.P.: Sir Wilfrid called after me. Bolder now that I had hold of Father, with my head near level with his hand, I ejaculate "No!" back at him, and with a little more steam into my hustle.

Then my cursed consideration for people came into play. What if Sir Wilfrid had been hurt by my current denial? After all, he looked kind, and he had been nice to me, if not while I was in his power. He even seemed a little lonely, sitting there. I turned and, in a rather charged atmosphere, and I wondered for a moment why the sweat, after another step or two, paused, turned, and, with what I hoped was a disarming smile but which my agitation may have turned into something like a wolf's leer, I called out clearly: "But my Mother is."

I don't know it at the time, but if I had ever craved that sort of thing, I would have taken out my own curtain calls on that exit line, all the way home and right in here: and so, with Father chuckling and the room in a riot, we got out.

IS DEADLY C-O A POISON?

In this column May 19th, a young reader tells me, I said: Carbon monoxide is not a poison in itself. All of the effects of carbon monoxide are due to anoxia, deprivation of oxygen.

The young reader goes on to say:

"I have consulted three chemistry text-books and one medical dictionary which state that carbon monoxide is intensely poisonous, for it combines with the (hemoglobin in the) red blood corpuscles, forming a compound, carboxy hemoglobin. This is contrary to the statement that it is incorrect and unscientific to refer to asphyxia from carbon monoxide as poisoning; it is anoxia (properly spelled anoxemia) and not poisoning."

Then the young reader finishes me off with a blow to the solar plexus:

"Who is correct, the text-books or you? And from what source do you base your statement (Such and Such, Jr.)

I base the assumption that Such-and-Such, Esq., high school student or college fresh man on the very best of authority—standing question.

Instead of contesting the case it might be better for me to hide out until it blows over.

I have been feverishly studying textbooks, dictionaries and the like since the young reader caught me off balance and I regret to say I found no reference or interest in splitting hairs.

After considerable reflection I have decided that the late great Prof. Yandell Henderson was the main source, perhaps the sole source, of opinion on which I base the statement that C-O is not in itself a poison.

Formerly medical authorities believed that C-O had a direct destructive action on the delicate cells of the nervous system, causing paralysis in acute cases, psychoneurosis in chronic cases.

Medical authorities now believe there is no evidence that C-O damages the cells or tissues in any way other than through crowding out oxygen, asphyxia, anoxia. Henderson proved that tissue cultures grow in an atmosphere of carbon monoxide.

A college chemistry professor deplored my bad judgment about this. He said many readers would get the impression that I said carbon monoxide is harmless. That's why I call carbon monoxide deadly. As little as one part of it to a thousand parts carbon monoxide in a thousand parts of air, breathed for an hour, may cause headache and other symptoms, and two parts per thousand may cause utter unconsciousness and loss of consciousness.

Russia Offers Germany Food In Trade Deal

BERLIN (AP) — Soviet Russia countered the United States' food offer to East Germany with the promise today of 1,237,500,000 extra victuals and cotton for the hungry satellite, but it was a propo-nation payable in manufactured goods.

The Russian agreement, an extension of a pre-you East German-Soviet trade deal, was made public just one day after President Eisenhower renewed a 30-day old U.S. offer to send $15,000,000 worth of U.S. food to Germany's Soviet zone with no strings attached.

The East German Communist government and Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov had angrily rejected the American offer as a "propaganda manoeuvre" and said the East Germans didn't need food relief.

Step Up Shipments

The Communists announced the stepped-up Russian shipments would include 7200 more tons of cotton and 25,000 more tons of foodstuffs, 27,000 tons of butter, 8,500 tons of fats, 10,000 tons of vegetable oil, 15,000 tons of meat, 20,000 tons of meat and 1,500 tons of cheese.

Under the East German government's trade treaty with Moscow, announced in April, grain was the only food item Russia supplied the hungry satellite. That was before the June 17 East Berlin riots followed by slowdowns in East German industry as workers demanded more food and better working conditions.

Asked All Before

Today's announcement of the Russian food offer also admitted the East German government had been forced by Moscow to help "several times" to ease food shortages.

The U.S. White House said last week that the American offer "still stands" regardless of any Soviet rejection of that offer or any Soviet allegation that the people do not need food."

With no American ship on the high seas loaded with gift food, the Communists apparently felt obliged to come through with a food statement. The Reds' announcement said the East German government had sought Soviet special assistance two weeks ago, before the U.S. offer.

U.S. Pilots Hold 65-to-1 Edge Over Red MIGs

By GEORGE MCARTHUR

SEOUL (AP)—The United States 5th Air Force today announced a 65-to-1 victory margin over Communist MIGs met in the last two months of flashing aerial battles high over northwest Korea.

A comparative lull fell over the ground battle front after a hill clashes between the Communists and South Korean troops as truce preparations proceeded busily at Panmunjom.

Announcement of the aerial victory came with the disclosure that two U. S. Sabre jets were shot down Monday—the first since May 17 — with one pilot blasting two MIGs out of the sky before he went down.

Destroy 181 MIGs

And, more than two months, allied Sabre pilots have destroyed the sleek, swept-wing MIGs, the USAF said. The period included a record day—June 18, when 15 MIGs were destroyed. Seventy-four were shot down in June.

In Tokyo, U. S. Far East Air forces reported 27 U. S. Superforts smashed at two Communist airfields blasted in the Sinanju area of far northwest Korea. Crews reported Communist night fighter and anti-aircraft opposition was light.

The 5th air force reported 1,089 missions flown by land-based Allied planes in 24 hours ended at 6 a. m.

Most of the ground fighting centred in the still-unsettled Kumsong sector of the central front where Chinese divisions striped into Republic of Korea lines last week.

Mrs. Miniver's Creator Dead

NEW YORK (AP)—Jan Struther, poetess and author who was best known for her whimsical novel, "Mrs. Miniver," died of cancer Monday at Columbia-Presbyterian Hospital.

The 52-year-old Britis born writer had been in hospital for two weeks. She had undergone an operation two years earlier.

In private life she was Mrs. A. K. Placzek, wife of the librarian of Avery Library at Columbia University.

Born in London as Joyce Anstruther, she adopted the pen name which was to become famous in order to avoid confusion with her mother, also an author.

The inspiration for heroic, witty Mrs. Miniver was a suggestion from a fellow worker that she invent a woman and write an article about her every few weeks for the Times of London.

The collection of essays later was published in many countries and was produced as a motion picture in the United States.

Pickets Stone Truck Convoy In Oshawa

OSHAWA (CP)—Jacques Pigott, president of the Pigott Construction Company, charged Monday night that a convoy of five company trucks was stoned here in the latest of several strike attempts by truckers' picket lines.

The trucks hauling gravel for the new General Motors plant were passing through picket lines set up by independent truckers in an effort to win an increase in the five-truck convoy for hauling rates paid for hauling material.

The five-truck convoy first forced its way through the picket lines early Monday morning after Mr. Pigott, driving the lead truck, and four supervisory workers took over when the company's drivers declined to do so, because of what Mr. Pigott said was fear of violence.

Mr. Pigott charged no effort was made by police to halt the pickets in their efforts to block the trucks.

The company head said the convoy made two round trips to the gravel pits under a barrage of rocks, tomatoes and stones. Later three more round trips were made unmolested after a police inspector arrived on the scene.

The striking truckers, many of whom are, in effect, owner-operators, are being represented by the Windsor local of the International Teamsters Union (AFL).

Missing Boy Found on Beach

PICTON — The long stretch of sandy beach at the Outlet proved intriguing to four-year-old David Strachan, of Belleville, on Sunday, and he decided to investigate its possibilities. He had been left safe on shore while his parents went into the water. Their discovery that the lad had disappeared led to fear that he might have fallen into the water. A sound truck owned by Bruce Martin was pressed into service through the efforts of Mr. Martin and the father the boy was found on the beach nearly half a mile away.

PICTON

George M. Hicks Well-Known Picton Man Dies

PICTON — One of Prince Edward County's best known citizens, George Milton Hicks, for forty years a funeral director, passed away very quietly at his home, Paul Street, Monday morning. "Mr. Hicks' passing came as a great shock to relatives and friends alike. Although he had suffered from a heart condition for some years, he had been at the store daily. He had been in Kingston General hospital from Wednesday until Saturday for a check-up and Sunday night had taken his usual walk around town.

Mr. Hicks is resting at the Funeral Home of O. M. Hicks and Son, 2 Centre Street, Picton, where service is being held at two o'clock on Thursday afternoon. Interment will be in Glenwood cemetery.

Mr. Hicks had been in the funeral business for the past forty years, in which the last 32 had been spent in Picton. Leaving the farm in 1913 to go into business, he attended the School of Embalming at Cincinnati, Ohio, that year, and then purchased a business at Smithville in the Niagara district. Six years later, Arthur Irvine, a contractor of that town, became his partner. In 1921, they decided to locate in Picton, purchasing the Dedmon and Minaker business from the late F. H. Minaker. This partnership continued until March 1925 when Mr. Hicks took over the business himself, Mr. Irvine going to London. Since 1932, Mr. Hicks has had his elder son, Winston C. Hicks, associated with him.

Mr. Hicks stressed service in his profession and boasted of many "firsts" in this part of Ontario. For six years he was a member of the executive of the Ontario Funeral Association, one-time as director and as vice-president. In 1935, his leadership in the profession was recognized by his appointment as president of the Association.

To many hundreds who turned to Mr. Hicks in time of trouble, he was a kind and sympathetic friend whose quiet and helpful way made the hours of sorrow lighter. Though in recent years unable to attend many funerals in person, he always took an interest in the business and spent most of the day at the store. Without special advantages he built up a business which is recognized among the leaders in the province and this he attributed to the service rendered.

Mr. Hicks was a valued member of the United Church, serving on the Board, and one of its most generous supporters.

When health permitted, he was active in fraternal organizations, being a member of the Masonic Lodge and a Shriner. He was a life member of the Oddfellows' Lodge.

In war years he was a generous supporter of the Red Cross and other organizations which worked to remember those in the services.

Mr. Hicks was born on a farm at Point Traverse, South Marysburgh township, 71 years ago, and that community and its activities always held a warm place in his heart and enjoyed his support.

When the Kiwanis Club was active in Picton some years ago, Mr. Hicks was an active member and a member of the board of directors. He was formerly chairman of the Children's Aid Society and former vice-chairman of County Hospital Board.

Mr. Hicks is survived by his wife; two sons, Winston C. Hicks of Picton, and Dr. Merlin W. Hicks, of Montreal; also by six grandchildren.

Farmer Seen Key To Conservation

TORONTO (CP)—Fifty-one recommendations are embodied in a report on soil and water conservation presented Monday to the provincial government by the Conservation Council of Ontario.

The council—representing some 100,000 members in 1,200 clubs and forestry and wildlife organizations —visualizes the farmer as the key figure in conservation. For selection of flood control, erosion and soil fertility, all features of conservation, rests with the farmer.

The report recommends that Agriculture Minister Thomas, recently named co-ordinator of conservation for the province, be allowed to assume the role in fact as well as name. Under him a department should be formed to co-ordinate the several government departments concerned with conservation.

It also suggested that 20 per cent of southern Ontario should be forest covered. From 1901 to 1952, the forested area of the province dropped from 16.6 per cent to 9.7 per cent.

Protest U.S. Plan To Cut Imports Of Oats and Fish

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has lodged "strong protest" against possible "serious implications" if the U.S. imposes import restrictions against Canadian oats and groundfish fillets.

An official Canadian government note of protest and appeal against American trade proposals was handed to the U.S. state department Monday by the Canadian embassy in Washington.

The new note followed by just three weeks a previous note of protest against new American duty-import curbs. Officials here said the previous note received nothing more than a routine reply.

The Canadian government has become concerned over the possibility that the U.S. may slash imports of Canadian oats and ground-fish fillets. The American tariff commission has held hearings on a U.S. agriculture department proposal to cut imports of Canadian oats to about 23,000,000 bushels a year from 75,000,000 bushels in 1952.

Canada exports between 40,000,000 and 50,000,000 pounds of groundfish fillets to the United States annually.

The Greatest Gasoline Development in 31 Years
TCP*, a Shell-discovered additive now blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, actually re-powers your engine by stopping short-circuiting of spark plugs and controlling pre-ignition. Gives up to 15% more power . . . increases spark plug life up to 150%.
Today's driving—often at low speeds in traffic and around town—increases the amount of combustion deposits, which actually short-circuit spark plugs and cause pre-ignition of the fuel-air mixture.
Because these deposits accumulate in all engines—both old and new—Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP is essential to keep your engine delivering full power—because the TCP additive actually stops the power-crippling effect of these deposits.
Today, Shell Premium with TCP is available in this area, but only from your Shell Dealer.

Canada's Scouts Stage Jamboree 2,500 Assemble

SOUTH MARCH, Ont. (CP)—Across Canada, from one-elevator whistlestops on the Prairies to centres of heavy population, scouting is growing.

In 1912 there were only 13,500 Boy Scouts in Canada; now there are more than 150,000.

At the mouth of the Mackenzie river in the Arctic is the little village of Tuktoyaktuk, which has a population of a few Eskimos and one woman missionary. Miss Dorothy Robinson is the Scout leader there and the community's eight children comprise her troop.

At Port Radium in the Northwest Territories there is a Cub pack of three boys and a girl. The girl insisted on joining because she would be left out of the playmates during Cub meetings. The Boy Scout association gave in and admitted her.

Hold Jamboree

Scouts from every province are gathered here this week for the second Canada-wide Scout-jamboree. The 2,500 youths represent nearly every conceivable ethnic and religious group in Canada.

The camp are 655 boys registered as members of the United Church of Canada; 1,247 Church of England; 244 Roman Catholic; 99 Baptist; 89 Presbyterian; 36 Lutheran; 11 Ukranian Greek Orthodox; 12 Salvation Army; 12 Hebrew; 10 Christian Science; 10 Latter Day Saints; four Unitarian; four Mennonite; and scores of others of varying denominations.

Ontario Leads

Ontario has more Scouts than any other province—60,000. British Columbia is next with 17,000. Prince Edward Island has the smallest number, 950.

At isolated fairs and trading posts in the north are Scouts who may never see a fellow Scout from one year's end to another. These are the "Lone Scouts" who number nearly 800. They can get scouting credits by mail, a sort of correspondence course in the ways of self - reliance, gentlemanliness, honor and the lore of the woods.

Governor-General To Visit Stratford

Mr. Massey will inspect the Festival facilities, meet the artists and attend a performance of "All's Well That Ends Well" tonight and "Richard III" the following evening.

Ontario Market Seen Existing For Natural Gas

CALGARY (CP)—There is a potential market for Alberta natural gas in southwestern Ontario if it can be delivered at a competitive price, United Gas Co. Ltd., of Chatham, Ont., said Monday in a voluntary brief to the gas-export hearing of the provincial and natural-gas conservation board.

The board now is hearing applications from pipeline companies who seek permits to export the province's natural gas.

Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., would build an all-Canadian gas line from southern Alberta to Montreal and Western Pipe Line from southern Alberta across Saskatchewan to Winnipeg, then swing south to enter the US. market.

If the applications were granted, some of the gas would be distributed in communities which fall in the area served by the Ontario company.

The United Gas brief was presented by Thomas Weir, vice-president and general manager. He said southwestern Ontario is a potential market for an additional 5,000,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas a year provided it can be delivered to the company's system at a price which will enable it to compete readily with other fuels.

The Union Gas brief dealt only with the company's present territory. The company, serving some 81,000 customers in four Ontario counties, obtains supplies from its own wells, purchases from other Ontario companies, and from the United States.

Will Not Be Cheap

Mr. Weir said various public pronouncements had left the impression that Alberta gas would provide "everyone in the eastern provinces" with a "large supply of cheap gas."

He did not agree "with unqualified statements that such gas will be cheap fuel. Natural gas now being distributed by Union Gas costs substantially less than any estimated price we have been for gas delivered in the east from Alberta."

Radioactive Bombing Cures Brain Tumor

DETROIT (AP)—Canadian doctors bombed a young boy's brain with the radioactive isotope cobalt 60 32 times in the last six months to destroy a tumor that threatened his life.

His father said Monday the boy will start school in the fall.

Doctors from Victoria Hospital in London, Ont., told Theodore Kidal of suburban Berkley that his six-year-old son, Danny, is "perfectly normal" after the bombings.

They said that the bombings had completely destroyed the part of the tumor that surgery had failed to reach. They put off his next check-up until October and said that the boy is ready for school.

The marriage took place in Port Hope, on Saturday, July 18, of Esther Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Martin, and Robert John Hunter, Post Hope, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hunter, Belleville. The Rev. John Galloway performed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents in the presence of the immediate families.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Josephine Martin. Mr. Bryson Leslie, Belleville, was best man.

After a wedding trip through the Eastern United States, Mr. and Mrs. Hunter will reside in Port Hope.

HOUNSOME—LIDSTER

On Saturday, July 11, at 11:30 a.m., a quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized by the Reverend W. R. Merrick at his home, Belleville, when Audrey Irene, daughter of Mr. Raymond Lidster, of Toronto, and the late Mrs. Lidster, became the bride of Wallace Edward, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hounsome, of Bradford, Ontario.

The bride was charmingly attired in a street-length dress of white nylon marquisette over satin trimmed with lace and rhinestones. She wore a matching floral headdress and corsage of red roses.

Mrs. Raymond Lidster, of Toronto, attended the bride, gowned in pink floral nylon with pink headdress and corsage of white carnations.

Mr. Raymond Lidster, Toronto, father of the bride, supported the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for the immediate relatives at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ketcheson, of Foxboro, uncle and aunt of the bride.

Later, amid showers of confetti and best wishes, the young couple left by train for Toronto, Bradford and Niagara Falls. The bride travelled in a rose gabardine suit with white and navy accessories, and wearing a corsage of white roses. Mr. and Mrs. Hounsome will reside in Trenton upon their return.

This occasion was also the 13th wedding anniversary of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lidster, Belleville.

Mrs. Robert McMillan of Belleville, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a beige nylon dress with brown accessories. Her corsage was of Talisman roses.

Mr. Robert McMillan, brother-in-law of the bride, was groomsman.

After the ceremony, a luncheon was served with only the immediate family present.

For the wedding trip to points west, the bride chose a brown and white sport dress with matching hat and accessories, and corsage of white carnations. Mr. and Mrs. Olsen will reside in Belleville.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was the guest of honor at showers given by Mrs. Clarke of the Northern Electric staff, of which the bride was a member and another shower was held by the bride's sister, Mrs. Frank Ellis, Bath, Ontario.

Friends, Relatives Present Gifts At 25th Anniversary

On Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. John Armstrong, 65 Donald Street, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at their summer cottage on the banks of the Moira River, Foxboro, with the immediate family and distant friends and relatives present.

During the evening an enjoyable sing-song of old familiar songs and a general social get-together reminiscing of the happenings of twenty-five years ago formed a pleasant combination, after which, refreshments, served from an attractively appointed lace-covered tea table, included two anniversary cakes, one a gift of a relative and her family.

Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong were the happy recipients of several useful and lovely gifts, for which they most graciously expressed their deep appreciation and thanks, both for the gifts and also for the kind wishes which accompanied them. They also received many beautiful cards of congratulations extending to them good wishes for their golden anniversary.

Those present from out-of-town were, Miss Lillian Smith, of Toronto; Mr. Robert Armstrong, of Kingston, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jamieson, of Tamworth, Ontario.

2:52: "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man." Each day, the lesson and the flannelgraph Bible stories centred around the theme and attempted to portray ways in which children can mature through such characterbuilding traits as love, courage, forgiveness, obedience, and kindness.

There was time allotted to the singing of action-songs as well as the handicraft period in which each child worked to make name plate, paper plate holders, flower vases, cleanser can covers, and dish gardens.

The youngsters showed their willingness to "do for others" by making a scrap book to donate to the Children's Ward of the Belleville General Hospital.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Maybe She's Collecting Marital Disasters

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Like some other foolish women, I was engaged to a fellow for eight years and then he suddenly went off and left me. I was so mad I married the next one who came along.

Of course, it didn't work out, and I am now separated from my husband and waiting for my divorces to come through.

It just happens that there is another fellow who wants to marry me when I am free and, while I love him very much, I'm not sure if I ought to marry him or not. He is very jealous, and if I even go to the movies with a girl friend, he follows me, because he thinks I may be going to meet another fellow. The funny thing is that he likes to flirt with other girls and laughs at me if I object. He isn't very steady about owning either, but is always finding fault with a job and quitting it. — Tess M.

Dear Tess:

Don't you ever learn? Or do you enjoy going through curdled romances? Do you think for one minute that this fellow will be one bit better than the other two who have disappointed you?

What, for heaven's sake, is the matter with you anyhow? I can't imagine a young woman who has gone through your experiences being still apparently without any stability whatever to judge character.

Be thankful that this poor specimen of manhood has shown you so clearly just what he will be before you are free to marry him. If you had been free, you undoubtedly would have married him and, by now, been separated if not divorced from him. Are you out to collect marital disasters by any chance?

If you have any real idea of making advice — and I doubt if you have — you will put all thought of marriage out of your head and devote yourself to some worthwhile, interesting work that will provide some sense as to how to pick a husband.

Lonely? — Make Yourself More Interesting!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 28 years old, unmarried and unhappy.

The reason I am unhappy is because I am unmarried, and the reason I am unmarried is — well, that's what I want you to tell me. Because I guess nobody ever really knows the reason why nobody has ever asked them to marry.

I'm reasonably good-looking, have a job I like very much and people seem to like me. Men are always friendly and pleasant to me, but rarely ask me for a date. I wish I knew why.

Peggy B.

Dear Peggy B.

Any girl who can write as good a letter as yours is intelligent enough to solve a problem, even a problem as seemingly hopeless as you believe yours to be.

What may well be the trouble with you is that you don't have enough interests and enthusiasms to make you a stimulating person — the kind of person whose company everybody enjoys. Think maybe that might be the reason?

You've probably been analyzing yourself till you're all confused, trying to make your own diagnosis of what's the matter with you. Am I right? Well, the thing for you to do is to stop spending so much time inside yourself with your thoughts and get busy outside yourself. Join some club; take part in some community activities that will bring you in contact with lots of other people; take a course in some subject where you'll find both men and women taking the same. To shake common interests is the best and easiest way in the world to make friends, because when you're thinking about the interest you've yourself go, and forget to think about yourself and how you're doing socially. That gives the real You a chance to emerge and get acquainted. Take a lively interest in people and in things to do for and with them, and the first thing you know you'll find that people are taking an interest in You!

Hands You Want to Hide?

Come out of the garden, Maud, and give your hands the once-over. If they don't look as though they belonged to a tidy, fastidious woman, what have you been doing to them? You have been digging in the dirt, pulling up weeds with your once-lily-white fingers. That's no way to treat them. Where were your gardening gloves? Right there on the ground beside the forget-me-nots, and completely forgotten. What if gloves seem clumsy? Better a little awkwardness than hands that look as if they had been shoveling coal.

Those pretty pink finger nails of yours are the only ones you have, so you had better be good to them. Scrub and buff with them as they ruin fine fabrics. They will make them beautiful, so be sure not to break just at the wrong time—probably at the very moment that friend is waiting to take you places.

Hand care is ninety per cent protection. The rest is just a matter of daily treatment which can be limited to a few minutes of creaming and massaging with a soothing lotion.

We know what your alibi will be, Maud. You'll say you haven't time or that often you must forget, being otherwise occupied with keeping your complexion from getting wrecked and doing your pin curls night after night.

All right. But remember, your hands can suddenly look older than your face. Not only do they get leathery looking unless they have cosmetic care, but they can take on wrinkles and you will hate to look at them.

Buy several bottles of hand lotion. Keep one in the kitchen, one in each bath room. Place them where you will see them and they will remind you if you don't use them.

The next time you battle a path through the shoppers at the toilet-ries counter, purchase a jar of hand cream, too. These cosmetics are made a finer formula a little different from those of complexion creams. They are usually heavier and give a richer cream when you massage your hands.

Use the cream at bedtime, massaging each finger from base tip and all little crinkles on the flesh surrounding the nails. If the cuticle is allowed to creep up on the nail itself, you will be afflicted with hangnails. Cream each palm and wring your hands together. Then slip on large cotton gloves for the night.

You Asked For Them Cool and Sweet

By Mary Moore

What with fruit season crowding me and young people swarming over our house and me having extra assignments to write I'm not doing my duty by the girls who are calmly keeping house properly.

For it is ice cream weather and they want recipes for their letters politely to remind me.

So—I have to curb my natural impulse to chat with you and produce, instead, You asked for these.

Raspberry Sherbet

(Two methods—cream or milk)

Mix two cups sugar and 1 cup water and let stand for 2 hours 3-4 cup crushed raspberries (or peach or apricot pulp) and 1-3 cup lemon juice and 3-4 cup sugar. Soak 1 tea-spoon gelatin 2 tablespoons cold water for 5 minutes, then stir that into 1-4 cup boiling water, until dissolved. Stir this into the fruit mixture which has stood for 2 hours. (Note—If you are using milk stir 1 cup in now.) Pour into freezing tray and freeze until it forms a firm mush. Whip until stiff 1-3 cup whipping cream. Beat until light 2 egg yolks. Fold these last two ingredients in. (Note—If milk is used leave out the cream and egg yolk.) Fold in 1 stiffly beaten egg white. Return mixture to smooth return to tray and freeze firm. Now is that clear? If you use milk leave out the cream and the egg yolk.

Coffee Parfait

Boil gently together for 2 minutes 1-2 cup sugar and 1-4 cup double-strength coffee. Beat 3 egg yolks until very light and very slowly pour the coffee syrup into them while beating. Cook this over boiling water, stirring until thick. This takes about 15 minutes. Cool. When cold fold into it 1 cup whipping cream beaten until stiff and 2 egg whites beaten until stiff. Pour into freezing tray and freeze firm. This requires about 3 hours. Serve three-quarter cup boiling hot maple syrup may be used instead of the coffee syrup to make Maple Parfait, which is delicious.

Chocolate Mousse

In top of double boiler heat together until blended 2 squares unsweetened chocolate with 1-2 cup sugar and 3-4 cup hot water. Whip until stiff 2 cups whipping cream, then beat into it 1-2 cup icing sugar and 1 teaspoon salt. Soak 1 teaspoon gelatin in 1 tablespoon water, then dissolve it by stirring over hot water. Stir it into the blended chocolate syrup. Cool. Fold in the sweetened whipped cream mixture. Pour into freezing tray and freeze until firm without stirring.

Newcreede Pudding

This is a rich ice cream made with a French type vanilla ice cream base. It is used in some areas in the south as a traditional Christmas dinner dessert. Scald 1 cup rich milk. Stir together 1-3 cup sugar, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 3 beaten egg yolks. When milk is hot gradually stir it into the yolk-sugar mixture. Return to double boiler and cook over low heat, stirring until it coats back of spoon. Remove from heat at once, cool, and pour into freezing tray and freeze for 1-2 hour. Whip until barely stiff 1 cup heavy cream. Add 1 tablespoon vanilla. Turn the partially frozen mixture into a cold bowl, beat with electric or rotary beater until smooth. Fold in the whipped cream and 1-2 cup cut-up candied raisins, 1-4 cup chopped toasted blanched almonds. (Note—If desired 2 tablespoons cocoa may be added to the sugar mixture.) Pour into freezing tray and freeze until ill firm, stirring often during first hour of freezing to prevent fruit and nuts settling.

Note—If nuts and raisins and cocoa are left out of Nesselrode Pudding you will have French Type Vanilla Ice Cream which is rich and smooth.

Note No. 2—If you make French Type Vanilla Ice Cream and would like a variation you can do it quite simply by adding 1 cup crushed peanut brittle when you will have Peanut Brittle Cream.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. SEDGEMAN

On Visitors and Telephones

Some people find it practically impossible to pass by a telephone in a friend's house without using it. Using with an even a "by your leave." This, I've noticed with practically no delight, is particularly true of visitors, and most particularly true of summer visitors. Your business won't make a bit if you use her telephone on the occasions when it is necessary. But you just won't endear yourself to her if you are that grim pest, the telephone - monopolizer or the telephone yak-yak yak-er. And don't stoop to using a long-distance call on the q-t; first ask your hostess if you may make the call; reverse the charge if it is at all possible; if not, promptly ask the operator how much it should leave this amount in an envelope by the telephone, with a notation of the date and the number called. Follow this up and considered the key to her goodness . . . and you'll get an A-Plus for Telephone-Conduct!

Black Bow Tie Is Summer White Dinner Jacket

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

For our middle-of-August evening party which will be held at my home in a nearby suburb, I'm planning to wear a white dinner jacket and black trousers. My husband has one and my best man, four ushers, and the bridegroom will be wearing the summer attire. Last evening, when I was talking over this plan with my attendants, one of the ushers suggested that we all wear white bow ties. Most of the usual black ties-he said this was now considered correct for the men at the wedding party. I've never heard of such a thing. Is he right about this? — Ann.

He's definitely wrong about this. White ties are for dinner jackets. As you and your attendants and the bridegroom will be wearing the correct black bow tie for a dinner jacket, whether the regular black tuxedo or the white one, it is quite right. (And please not maroon or any color!)

The Formation of the Receiving-Line

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. At a reception following a wedding, should the bride and groom be in the line of those to greet the guests? And where should the bridegroom be?

2. The reception is planned for, say, 8 to 10 P.M. Who should open the refreshments and when? Or should they be opened—as the bridegroom says—until later in the evening? — B.W.

1. The usual procedure is to have a receiving-line immediately inside the entrance to the room. First in the line would come the bride's mother, because she is the hostess of the wedding and stands first to receive the guests. If the bride's father is to be in the line some time he and she sometimes be prefers to mingle with the guests but more often he stands next to the bride's mother. Next is the groom's mother, who is the hostess of the groom and next to her may be the groom's father, or like the bride's father, may prefer to mingle with the guests. Then the bride and groom, the bride is at the right of the groom. At the bride's right, the maid of honor, and last, the bridesmaids. Sometimes the bride's mother, as hostess, stands near the entrance to the reception-room, usually with the groom's mother; then the bride and groom, with the bridal attendants, form the receiving-line opposite the entrance.

2. All wedding presents, if possible, should be sent before the reception to the bride at her home. If some are brought to the reception (not good taste), bride and groom receive them whenever she finds it convenient.

Principals in London's "Wedding of the Year"

Joseph Emmanuel Appiah, 32-year-old Ashanti tribal chief, is shown with his bride, the former Peggy Cripps, daughter of the late chancellor of the exchequer Sir Richard Cripps, after their marriage at St. John's Church in London. Some 200 British socialites and African chiefs were on hand for London's most-talked about wedding of the year, which saw the bride wearing a gown of embroidered silk brocade with long tight sleeves, while the groom wore the brilliant striped ceremonial dress of the Ashanti tribe. Currently studying law in London, Appiah and his wife will eventually settle in the Gold Coast, British colony on the west coast of Africa. — Central Press Canadian.

Fashion Flashes

Sooner or later every fashion of yesteryear returns to popularity. Now it is the jumper arm bracelet, a natural in view of all the sleeveless dress season. Textured gold snake bracelets, slave bangles in gleaming gold plating, as well as stone-studded designs are coming into the stores.

A nod to the city child and commuter is apparent this season with the advent of hatchisme but incorporated with practicality, as a slim one-piece dress of gray cotton jersey in a tweedy weave, made with short sleeves, a kick-pleat skirt and a detachable pumpcoat bow of white silk organdie. Bow replacements give a varied appeal to this good basic.

Changeabout wear is the happy theme of some of the new day-time sun fashions. Striped seersucker is used for a pretty dress with a self-color glazed cotton ruffle at the square neckline. Dress comes with a brief bolero and also with a matching stole having a glazed cotton ruffle that borders knee pockets going across each end.

Many more gala events than usual bring out dresses that, while they are Summery, have more formality than is usual at this time of year, even in town. Pale green silk organdie makes a handsome model with a tiered all-around skirt. Gown is trimmed with self fabric roses on the scoop neckline and midway on the skirt. Tiny crystal baguettes accent the roses and mark the skirt just below the waist.

Polished black cottons are tops for town. Ribbed and polished black cotton makes a handsome Summer sheath dress. It has brief sleeves and the high neckline bowties beneath a tiny white piqué collar. Slim skirt has trouser pleating and a kick-pleat in back.

Planes from Six Countries Prepared for Race in Fall From England to New Zealand

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. (CP)— ...and machines in six countries ...uning for the longest air ...e ever held.

...e race begins in England and ...s at the opposite side of the ...ld in New Zealand, a distance ...about 11,000 miles. It is due to...t Oct. 8, but already preparat...for the event are intense.

...ere are two sections in the ...test. The speed section, an out...and test of speed, has 12 entries. ...transport section, to be de...ed on handicaps calculated by ...complicated formula, may prove ...more significant in giving ...ir ideas of long-distance/passen...flying schedules.

...ost British, the United States, ...land, Denmark, Australia and ...w Zealand have entries, but fav...tes in the speed section are of...ial entries of the Royal Air ...ce and the Royal Danish Air ...rce.

...e Contender

...Barring mishaps, Britain's still-...et Vickers Valiant four - jet ...mber will be the leading con...der. Performance of the big ...ed-wing plane has not been re...aled, but it is believed to have ...speed well in excess of 600 ...p.h.

...It will be up against five Can...rra two-jet bombers—three en...ed by the RAF and two by the ...stralian Air Force.

...The British entries are the photo...reconnaissance version of the Can...rra, stripped of armor and carry...g less weight. One of the Aus...alian entries is the first Aus...alian-made Canberra.

...The only modern United States ...ilitary plane to try out with these ...e British jets is a Republic F84G ...underjet entered by the Danish ...r Force. It has not the range of ...ese bombers, but it can refuel ...the air.

...rivate Entries

...The other five entries in the ...peed section come from private ...ompetitors flying propeller-type ...lanes, but most of them have in...educed modifications of their ...es to give their planes greater ...ings and speed. One pilot plans ...o freeze his plane's gasoline with ...y ice to increase carrying cap...city. Another plane has small ...am-jet engines fitted to the wing...ips to increase acceleration.

British European Airways will be competing in the transport section with its new Vickers Viscount 701 turbo-prop airliner.

Competition will come from Royal Dutch Airlines, famous line which just missed victory in the great London-to-Melbourne air race held before the war. It has entered an American Douglas DC-6A Liftmaster which will carry 50 Dutch immigrants going to settle in New Zealand.

Women Have Entry

One of the most publicized entries is an almost all-woman crew entered by Mrs. Gertrude McKee of Melbourne, Australia. The only man aboard the Douglas DC4 will be Capt. J. R. Kemp, a senior Australian National Airways pilot.

Mrs. McKenzie will act as first officer, and two co-pilots will be Mrs. Evelyn Koren of Australia and Miss Betty Haas of New York. Flight engineer will be Miss Constance Jordan, Australia's only woman aeronautical engineer. Mrs. Koren's sister, Miss Margaret Gunneson, a painter and farmer, has signed on as cook and "general roustabout."

New Zealand is pinning its hopes on a Hastings four-engine military transport entered by the Royal New Zealand Air Force. Two full crews are in rigorous training under the watchful eye of a doctor who will fly as a crew member, and the plane has already made a return flight over the course to check every detail of the route, refueling technique and equipment.

Route Optional

No fixed check points exist for the race, so that competitors will be free to choose any route they wish on the easterly course round the world to New Zealand. The only requirement is that log books be stamped by authorities at one refuelling point on the easterly route.

Many competitors have not announced their route. Secret examination is going on of the weather, altitude and wind currents to choose a channel most suited to the time of year and type of machine.

The planes will leave London at two-minute intervals. The first is expected here early Oct. 10, New Zealand time.

Life Is Easy These Days For Chief Electoral Officer Thanks to Four Years' Work

By JOHN LaBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—It may sound paradoxical, but the man in charge of the complex machinery of an Aug. 12 general election is taking life fairly easy these days.

Nelson Castonguay, the chief electoral officer, can afford some relative relaxation now because for the last four years he's been getting things set for the one big day.

Now, they are pretty well out of his hands and into those of his officials in 262 constituencies. Like an army chief who has committed his forces, about all he can do is tie up loose ends here and there and keep his fingers crossed.

Minor Problems

That doesn't mean the work is all done. There is still the inevitable host of minor problems cropping up in one riding or another as election day nears. Constituency officers keep running into problems such as printing difficulties or getting polling places, and maybe 100 a day still wind up on Mr. Castonguay's doorstep.

He hasn't made the final decision on anything of significance, and that's why his office is open from 8 a.m. until around midnight daily But, with feet hoisted comfortably on his desk, the 39-year-old former navy skipper will tell you he's just coasting in now—comparatively, at least.

His Behind - the - scenes work started right after the election of June, 1949. Some 9,000 mailbags of documents poured into his office then—reports on the election preliminaries, on the balloting and lists of returned supplies.

Voluminous Report

The first big job was Mr. Castonguay's report to Parliament on the election, a 71-page book giving the whole story in exhaustive detail.

In between staging occasional by-elections, Mr. Castonguay screened the many suggestions on election procedure, from the public, from his officials and from candidates. Many of these he brought before sessions of the Commons elections committee, along with his own ideas. The result was various changes in election machinery during the last four years.

Meanwhile, the election chief started ordering the 350 tons of supplies that his office has had to send out for the voting. There are 164 different forms and a whole raft of instruction booklets for officials. The biggest of these, a general instruction book, has 314 pages. The chief electoral officer and his staff have to bring these up to date for each election.

One item in the paper work is 1,500,000 large sheets of ballot paper. The basic printing job is done here by the Queen's Printer, and federal printers add the various names of the constituency candidates and make up books of ballots.

Likes Up Workers

While the flood of paper work was going on, Mr. Castonguay was lining up his election officers across the country. There is a heavy turnover in returning officers between elections, and the old hands in the new ones have to be brought up to date on election procedure.

Since the start of this year, Mr. Castonguay has travelled from coast to coast giving short lecture courses to the officials. He held these in 15 key cities, bringing each of the 263 returning officers to convenient points. They were completed by mid-May.

All this meant that by the time Prime Minister St. Laurent announced the election date in June, Mr. Castonguay was ready to trip the switch and start off the nondescript machine he had been putting together for years.

There is one irony to the whole thing. Mr. Castonguay probably knows more about voting than any person in Canada. Yet he doesn't get a chance to exercise the franchise. The chief electoral officer is barred from the polls.

FRANKFORD — The Frankford sited Church Sunday school superintendent, Mr. Sid Martin, presented Mr. Raymond Scott with a leather bound standard revised version of the Bible in recognition of his service as secretary-treasurer of the school. BOTH ST. LAURENT

Mr. Drew said federal-provincial relations are "the issue at stake" in the election campaign. Liberal party speakers were trying to characterize the issue of centralization "of power at Ottawa as the issue," being used by the Progressive Conservatives to frighten voters in Quebec.

Mr. Drew said his party is "determined to block the trend toward centralization and to respect the letter and the spirit of the Confederation agreement."

The choice for voters was not between himself and Mr. St. Laurent "but between the maintenance of the federal constitution or the gradual establishment of a single government in Canada."

Coldwell on T.V.

CCF leader M. J. Coldwell, in a meeting at Hamilton, said both the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties are controlled and financed by big business. Part of the meeting was filmed for television.

Perspiring in the TV lights, Mr. Coldwell said some vested interests contribute to the funds of both parties. Neither party was controlled by its own members.

He contended that though the CCF has yet to hold federal office it "may justly claim to have improved the whole pattern of Canadian life."

His party and the men and women who had presented it had played leading parts in the struggle for family allowances, unemployment insurance, the rights of labor, federal aid for education and abolition of legal appeals to the Imperial Privy Council.

But there "still are many more battles to be won"—greater aid for education, national health insurance and housing programs, guaranteed farm prices and recovery of farm markets in Britain.

P.C.'s Have Team

The Progressive Conservatives threw a four-man team—their own word—on ops recorded half-hour political free-time broadcast over a CBC network. The team comprised Donald Fleming, member of the Commons for Toronto Eglinton, Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, member for Nanaimo, James Macdonnell, member for Toronto Greenwood, and A. J. Brooks, member for Royal. They were introduced by Mr. Drew and all spoke on how their party plans to carry out its promise of a $500,000,000-a-year tax cut.

Mr. Fleming said the Liberal government is feeding "the fires of inflation" by "exporting" indirect, hidden taxes from Canadians, thus increasing living costs.

"Inflation has robbed the people of half of their savings, half of the value of their insurance policies, half of the value of their bonds.

High taxes have resulted in high prices. High taxes have resulted in driving up the cost of production and thus pricing Canadian products out of the market, both in Canada and abroad. High taxes have reduced take-home pay and deprived wage earners and salaried persons of their rightful share of Canada's prosperity."

Dumping Danger

At Cornwall, Ont., Transport Minister Chevrier told a public meeting the government is working on a revision of Canada's anti-dumping laws which would save the textile industry.

Trade Minister Howe, speaking from the same platform in the textile town, said: "I believe that when full buying starts in October we will find that demand and supply will be in balance again."

Mr. St. Laurent and Mr. Drew continue their Quebec tours today while Mr. Coldwell moves on to another industrial city, Windsor, Ont.

Gordon May Be Invited to Head British Transport

LONDON (CP)—Published reports suggested Mon. that the British government may invite Canada's Donald Gordon to succeed Viscount Hurcomb as chairman of the commission which runs the nationalized inland transport system.

The Daily Telegraph said Transport Minister Alan Lennox-Boyd may invite a Canadian to head the commission and The Daily Express said it is believed the man in question may be Gordon, Scottish-born president of the Canadian National Railways.

A CNR spokesman, here however, said today the whole idea seemed "unlikely."

Lord Hurcomb will retire next month. The commission, comprising a chairman and four other members, is the central executive body for Britain's inland transport system, publicly owned since Jan. 1948.

Farmer Han Has Experienced Nothing but Many Troubles From Invasions of His Land

The Korean fighting has swept to and fro many times across the ancestral fields of Farmer Han in the shadow of towering Three Horn mountain. It wrecked his home and forced seven times forced Farmer Han and his family to become beggars. The old farmer told the story of his wartime suffering to AP correspondent Edwin Q. Adolph, a veteran of the Korean war front beat, and Bill Shaw, interpreter.

By JOHN RANDOLPH

CHANGDONG, Korea (AP)—The fields of tender rice were brilliant green, and summer rain clouds hid the jagged crown of Three Horn mountain.

Farmer Han Chul Hi sat cross-legged on a rice straw mat in the courtyard of his ruined home. He puffed slowly on his old man's pipe, with its tiny brass bowl and long bamboo stem.

His deep brown eyes looked through the little knot of village children gathered around, across the broad valley, and beyond to the foothills of soaring Three Horn.

For 67 years farmer Han had looked across those fields, watching the young rice grow green each spring, cutting it down in the fall, and waiting patiently for winter snow to melt and start the eternal cycle once again.

And behind this, stretching back beyond memory, deep into the story of his country, 17 generations of the family Han had tilled their acres of land and watched the seasons turn and turn.

Seventeen generations. Five hundred years.

And now he sat in the ruins of the farmstead his ancestors had left to him, his body slowly wearing out, waiting with quiet dignity for the death that is as natural as the fall of ripe grain.

With profound courtesy Han spread three rice straw mats on the ground beside the squash vine, and we sat.

Han told me of his boyhood. How he was seven when the Japanese first came past the little farm, fighting China, then Russia.

"We heard their guns at Chongchu," he said. "We had heard the stories and we knew we had to go.

From his village of Changdong it is seven miles to Seoul. Han, his wife, their children and their grandchildren struggled into the frantic capital that was jammed with bewildered soldiers and hordes of fleeing country people.

Somewhere in the crowd Han was shoved aside. He grabbed for his wife, missed her, and was alone.

He trudged up the north road, back through smoking Seoul. He plodded out the north gate and up the road that leads to his village. There, unharmed and unbelieving, were his wife, children and grandchildren. There was joy and tearful weeping.

But the big old house was gone. Fire had done its work and the tile roof and plaster walls were a heap of ruins. Only the little chicken house stood and there the family lives today.

But the chickens are dead and gone, the great earthen jars of rice and peppers and soy sauce and hot sauce and pickles and corn are smashed and scattered. The fields are rank with weeds and untended rice.

"We work," Han says, "we have to eat but we get some rice from the fields and we save some for winter."

He says the 1950-51 winter was one of the bitterest in his long memory. It was so cold there was eight inches of ice on the Han River, a blessed thing when the Communists came again on New Year's eve and the little brigades hacked its rice and fled south across the frozen river.

This time they stayed together. "We were beggars," says Han, "we had nothing. People took us in."

Then the armies moved north again. Six times the armies had passed over the Han farm. All that was left was the land itself and the mud walls of the old chicken house.

"We were beggars on our own land," Han said, and he shook his head sadly. "The UN people, they gave us a little rice and a little cloth."

Two years passed.

"It is getting better," he says. "If we all work, we can eat. But nothing more. Someday we must make the big house again. I have saved the tiles. But I know now I will never see it. My body is growing paralyzed and I can only do a little work in the fields. But maybe my sons can build again."

It was a strong head, burned brown by the sun, with sunken eyes and stiff, short-cut hair that was more white than black. Beneath a big nose was a straggly but enormous grey moustache, its outer hairs an inch and a half long, sloping down. On his chin was a short and bristling white goatee.

Then he spoke again in the guttural, musical language of his people.

"For myself I have no hope. I am just an old man now. I wait to die. For my sons and daughters, maybe I have a little hope. But not much. There is too much trouble. Too much ruin."

Oshawa Priest States Chinese Fed Up with Reds

HONG KONG (AP)—A 54-year-old Canadian priest dressed only in frayed shorts and a polo shirt arrived last night from a Chinese communist island and said the people there were dissatisfied with Red rule.

Rev. J. E. Venini of Oshawa came here from Lowong Island, carrying all his worldly possessions in a potato sack.

He said the Chinese public still does not know that the Russian leadership has kicked out Lavrenty Beria, head of the Soviet secret police.

Father Venini said the Chinese are fed up with communist rule and, if there were a free election the Reds would be out.

The priest spent 27 years in China. He was accused by the Reds of cutting the hearts from cadavers to make medicine in his small mission clinic.

No Word In Year

In Oshawa Mrs. Leo Kanaph, Father Venini's sister, said the last letter she received from her brother was 14 months ago. It appeared to have been smuggled out of the country. The address was written in a strange hand and the letter was postmarked from the British embassy in Shanghai.

In the letter, Father Venini said he had received some mail from Canada, including one from a member of a religious order in Toronto in which were enclosed clippings telling of the death of King George VI. He said he was called to communist headquarters and given a severe grilling before he was given the clippings.

Romance Rumors About Princess 'Ill-Conditioned'

LONDON (Reuters)—The Conservative Sunday Times criticized "ill-conditioned" publicity about the private affairs of Princess Margaret.

The newspaper said the marriage of the Queen's sister "is indeed a matter of public moment; but its consideration is safely left to those who have the experience, wisdom and discretion to deal with it."

Popular British newspapers have speculated about the transfer to Brussels of Group Capt. Peter Townsend, 38, whose name they have linked romantically with that of Princess Margaret. He was equerry to the Queen at Buckingham Palace before he took up his new duties as an air attache in Brussels this week.

The Sunday Times editorial said the campaign of certain newspapers about Princess Margaret and her supposed matrimonial problems is "conducted by those who well realize the embarrassment and distress it must cause both to the princess herself and to the Queen Mother and the Royal Family and their intimate friends.

DIESELS BACK!

The Belleville District Softball League executive met in special session last night and reinstated the CNR Diesels to good standing in the loop. It was stated that through an error in dates the railroad crew had been given the heave-ho, but a study of the situation brought a change of heart and the Diesels will swing in to quarter-final action tonight.

It was stated the Empey brothers, the bone of contention, are not eligible to play in the city league playoffs.

However, the first game between Frankford and the Diesels stands in the record as a victory for the village team and the squads clash in Frankford tonight in the second game of the two-of-three series. Should Diesels win the third and deciding tilt will be played at the CNR Recreation Field tomorrow night. The winners of this series meet the Glen Roy juniors in the two-of-three semi-finals and the two winners of that series clash with Point Anne in a best-of-five series for the title.

The game played last night between Frankford and the Glen Roy juniors, which the youngsters won by a 3-2 score, will be classed as an exhibition game.

BASEBALL

The Regent junior baseballers are guests of the Bloomfield-Wellington Combines in the canning factory village tonight in what appears to be their last but one scheduled game of the season. The Bryson Reid kids have come from behind to snatch victories from the village crew on their last two outings and they would like nothing better than a repeat in the Combines own backyard. They have a habit of breaking out in games featuring many extra innings and reaching a finish with the B-W's and this added to some nifty hurling has brought them the laurels.

TWO FAIRS!

Hats Incorporated will send two of its best emissaries here come Friday to do battle in the wrestling ring. They are those two congenors of "urfane," Rollo Wilson, the barrel-rock from Murray Bay, and Sandy Stolz, the Horrendous Hindu, who dislike the world in general so much they have their pictures taken and tear them up in sheer rage.

Facing this menace of the human jaw are those two near-perfect physical specimens, Don Jordahl, the handsome freeman from Salt Lake City, and none other than popular Timothy Geoghegan, the best-liked Irisher to come from the shadow of the blarney stone to cuddle the hearts of the faithful in many a moon.

• • •

Ferocious Freddy, the "Austry'lian", and Nanje the Basher from the foothills of the Himalayas, are about as scrawny a pair of cusses that ever garroted a rasslin' windpipe or played mayhem with the opposition's eyeballs. They are not nothing, in fact they broke all the rules in the book two years ago, then wrote some more just for the sheer baliery of breaking them, too.

But they should have their hands full when they tangle with Timothy (and that ain't hay, brother), and Don Jehn. Both have youth, speed and agility on their side and the seasoned veterans of many a rough and tough bout are not immune to the sleep-producing clutch of the Geoghegan or the lethal firing kicks of Le Jonathan. Should be a lolly old brawl.

• • •

SEE THE STRANGLER!

Speaking of wrestling, much has been written and said about it being a big "sports phoney." We're not taking any sides on the matter but it should be said that wrestling is no more "phoney" than some of the present-day movies.

The venerable Strangler Lewis, now 65 years of age and who did not quit the grunt-and-groan game until seven or eight years ago, is one of the sport's strongest supporters. He does not go along with some of the types who try to make a circus out of a bout, but he insists that good wrestling is the best attraction of all.

As a good-will ambassador of wrestling, Lewis says it is the cleanest sport of all, that it never has been mixed up with gambling and that those who are in it are intelligent and not law-abiding men. "Did you ever see a drunken wrestler or did you ever see a punch-drunk wrestler," he asks. "And I have visited many prisons in my travels. I never find a wrestler there."

And wrestlers are the best-trained athletes, he adds. "I have seen them stabbed; crowned with bottles and chairs and injured in a way that would put other athletes in a hospital," he explains. "But they have great recuperative powers. They will be wrestling the very next night."

Lewis tells of seeing Jean Humberie, who has been wrestling since the twenties, come into the dressing room with a deep knife cut below the ribs. "He pulled open the wound and poured iodine in it, laughing about it," says Lewis. Humberie recalled that he had to have part of the knife blade removed but that he wrestled three nights later.

Dodgers Score Second Shutout In 7th Game to Stretch Lead; Meyer, Hughes Blank Chicago

By Ben Pillegar
Associated Press Sports Writer

Some of the National League's best pitching magic must have rubbed off on cheerful Charlie Dressen at the all-star game.

After associating with the likes of Robin Roberts, Warren Spahn and Co., Charlie has come home to Brooklyn and with a wave of the hand—the one he used to wag frantically at the bullpen—he's suddenly converted a staff of throwers into a reasonably-dangerous assortment of pitchers.

Russ Meyer and Jim Hughes combined Monday night to pitch the second Dodger shutout in seven games, a five-hit 3-0 effort against Chicago that stretched the Brooklyn lead over the idle Milwaukee Braves to 3½ games.

The only other action Monday was in Pittsburgh, where the Pirates pummeled Dick Hall in a suspended Sunday game to beat St. Louis 10-3. Meanwhile, the Reds bowed in a regularly scheduled contest to the Phillies, 5-4, as Del Ennis batting slump with two home runs and a pair of singles.

Were Lucky

Meyer and Hughes were lucky to get out of the jam they got into in the second inning when Hughes threw a screaming knee-high drive toward center field, struck Hughes on the leg. The ball rebounded out automatically, the ball was safely and Meyer struck out Kiner with a single.

With Pooley on second and Kiner on first, Dressen switched from Meyer to Hughes. Jackson looped one over the infield that fell in short right for an apparent hit, but Kiner held too long at first and was forced at second by Thompson's throw.

For the Pirates Paul Lapalme picked up where he left off Sunday and pitched four more scoreless innings to win his fourth game. The Cards had been at bat in the sixth with one out when the Sunday curfew forced a halt.

In the regular game, Pittsburgh jumped off ahead with four runs in the first inning against Sisler Miller, but the Cards soon caught up. Bilko homered with the bases empty in the fourth and with manager Eddie Stanky aboard in the ninth. Peanut Lowrey drove in two runs with a triple in the ninth inning. Cliff Chambers, second of four St. Louis pitchers, received credit for his first victory of the season.

Everybody gets back into the act today and tonight.

New York Yankees continue their scorching tour through the West with a night game against the sinking Cleveland Indians. Chicago White Sox, stopped cold Sunday by the Yanks whom they now trail by six games, entertain the red-hot Boston Red Sox. Philadelphia visits St. Louis and Washington is in Detroit for a day game.

In the National League Philadelphia plays host to Milwaukee in a twi-night twin bill, St. Louis moves to New York for a night game, Cincinnati is in Pittsburgh at night and Chicago is at Brooklyn for an afternoon contest.

Elgins Thump Kitchener 11-6, Majors Win

By The Canadian Press

St. Thomas Elgins, perennial underdogs of the senior intercounty baseball circuit, came up with a powerful 15-hit attack at Kitchener last night to upset the league-leading Panthers 11-6.

It was only the ninth victory of the season for the Elgins who have dropped 28 games for a measly .222 average. The St. Thomas cellar-dwellers are in 7th place, one full game behind the Panthers, the same team they doubled last night.

In other intercounty games last night, London Majors moved within their drive for third place with a 9-7 decision over Galt Terriers. Ottawa Merchants moved into fifth place with an 8-6 win against Guelph. Maple Leafs and Waterloo Tigers drubbed Brantford Red Sox 13-3.

The Elgins assaulted three Kitchener pitchers with left-hander Bill Allan getting credit for the loss. Ezra Ler banged an inside-the-park homer for the Panthers with two aboard while Mel Dunbar got a two-run homer over the left-field fence in the fifth.

Bill Butler and Art Reitmour each had a pair of homers to help pace the Majors with four-for-six. Neil Rasmussen hit three-for-five.

Gib Hallam, ex-Londonite, Mikaiz' double was legitimate. So was Reitmour's. But Bill Kiser's blow, a screaming knee-high drive toward center field, struck Mikaiz on the leg. The runner was out automatically, the ball was dead and Umpire Jack Kiser with it singled.

With Pooley on second and Kiner on first, Dressen switched from Meyer to Hughes. Jackson looped one over the infield that fell in short right for an apparent hit, but Kiner held too long at first and was forced at second by Thompson's throw.

Herd is Humped By Ottawa; Montreal Beaten

By The Canadian Press

Buffalo Bisons possibly are wondering what hit them Monday night.

Full of confidence in their new role as International Baseball League leaders, the Herd romped into Ottawa for a doubleheader with the seventh-place Athletics, and after it was all over—you guessed it. The As swept both ends of the bill 8-4 and 7-3.

However, the Bisons have one consolation. Their nearest rivals, Montreal Royals, dropped their sixth straight game, this time a 12-6 slugging decision to the Maple Leafs at Toronto. This kept Buffalo still 1½ games ahead.

Allan (Dutch) Romberger pitched his way to victory in the Ottawa opener, allowing only five hits, the same number as his losing opponent, Ernie Nevel. The only run of the abbreviated contest came in the sixth when Walt Rogers singled, stole second, advanced to third on a fielder's choice and scored on Lou Limmer's single.

Ed Stevens' three-run homer in the ninth and Lee Morton's circuit clout in the 10th gave the fifth-place Leafs the nod over the Royals, a crowd of 8,073 fans saw the Leafs nibble away at a lead that Montreal held from the third inning until Stevens' homer tied the score 5-5 in the ninth.

Stevens' and Morton's circuit clouts were only two of the game's seven homers, the Leafs getting four of them, Joe Rossi and pinch hitter Frank Mancuso the other big ones for the Leafs, while Roy Hartsfield, Fran Marchio and Rocky Nelson held down the third Royals.

Pitching had a lot to do in deciding two other scheduled contests.

Lefty Dennis Reeder hurled a three-hitter at Rochester to give the Red Wings a 5-0 shutout victory over Baltimore and snap the Orioles' winning streak at six.

Junior Golfers Show Well in U.S. Tourney

WASHINGTON (AP) — Junior golfers from Ontario made an exceptional showing here Monday in combination qualifying rounds for the United States Golf association's Junior championship and the Middle Atlantic Junior championship.

The eight-man team from Canada, here for the Simpson Cup matches Friday with the district's top juniors, won three of the seven places to the USGA junior tourney which starts next Wednesday in Tulsa, Okla.

Jack Lowrey of St. Catharines shot a 73 over the 6,160-yard par 35 Chevy Chase course. George Sherer of Hamilton Burlington, and Hugh Patterson of Toronto St. Georges fired 76s.

They will go to Tulsa, leaving Washington Saturday night.

The three Ontario youngsters who qualified for the USGA junior also made the championship flight of 16 of the Middle Atlantic junior.

Patterson meets Bruce Keesler, Washington youngster who shot 80 in the first round of match play today. Lowrey plays Del Bermay of Bethesda, who had 79, and Sherer plays Charles Rinker of Fairfax, Va., who had 80.

Bill Bell of Aurora Highlands, top-ranked Canadian player and Ontario junior champion, developed a sore hand but played anyway and shot 84. His hand was x-rayed and showed no broken bones, but a severe sprain.

Three of the Ontario golfers qualified in the 15-16 year-age flight. Garry Cowan of Kitchener Rockway with 85, Bill Stager, Galt, with 86 and Dave Emery, Toronto Lakeview, each had 90.

Phil Riwenko, 19-year-old from Toronto Cedar Brae, who was the talk of the club after a practice round 84, shot a 91. He qualified in the special flight for 19-year-olds and under. He is four-feet nine, and weighs only 89 pounds.

Topflight Tennis Stars Victorious In Sluggish Opening-Day Matches

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian tennis championships were expected to serve up today's other action-packed opening-day round that wasn't tough enough for the seeded players to work up a sweat despite the 90-degree heat.

The lesser light of the men's and women's singles competition served up the sidelines fodder the big names in the week-long tournament appeared to be in a hurry to get their initial matches over with.

Included in the first-round victory list were Davis Cup netters from Canada, Mexico, Japan and Australia and all the seeded netters in both men's and women's division with one lone action. The latter crowed of about 300 at the Toronto Tennis Club courts to see the lone chear about, but they were given an indication of better things to come when the big toys are drawn against each other.

Only One Tough

Forty-four matches were played Monday and all only one proved tough. Bob Bedard, Sherbrooke, Que., and George Lott, Montreal, both locally described as tough for a seeded player. The 21-year-old Bedard, rated No. 3 in the domestic section, was extended to three sets before he won 6-4, 4-6, 6-2.

The others followed the trend of the opening-day results as Ted Schroeder, ranked No. 1 in the domestic section, seeded No. 2 in the foreign section, defeated Syd Herman of Toronto 6-1, 6-1. Love sets and scores of 6-1, 6-3 were the order until the last.

Mervyn Rose, No. 1 seed and hotting favorite for the men's singles title, almost blasted Jim Duff of Toronto off the courts with a 6-0, 6-2 triumph. The 23-year-old member of Australia's Davis Cup team got it over with in a hurry—less than 30 minutes.

Lorne Main of Vancouver and Tommy Lott, No. 1 seed of the Canadian section, whipped Hugh Murray of Hamilton 6-1, 6-1, in another fast-moving match.

Today Rose meets Masanobu Kimura, 30-year-old member of Japan's Davis Cup team, who whipped Al Love of Toronto 6-4, 6-4 in the first round. Main is matched against Fred Rissmuller of Hamilton who galloped over Joe Opos, London, Ont., 6-1, 6-1 Monday.

Hartwig's second-round opposition promises to be much tougher. He is scheduled to meet Jiro Yamagishi, 43-year-old captain-manager of the Japanese Davis Cup team who swished through Bob Hunter of Fort William, 6-0, 6-1 Monday.

Eddie Moylan of Trenton, N.J., fourth ranking in the foreign section and called by some experts to take the title Saturday, breezed through the first round, 6-1, 6-3, over Fred Fennell of Halifax.

Possibly the toughest match today will bring together Francisco Contreras of Mexico's Davis Cup team and Tony Vincent, the swarthy netman from New York who won the Canadian title in 1951. Contreras eliminated Peter Bernard of Oakville, Ont., 6-1, 6-2 in the opening round and Vincent posted a similar victory over Reg Hillyard of Toronto, 6-2, 6-4.

George Worthington, 18-year-old New Zealand star, is scheduled to make his initial appearance here this afternoon against Stan Harrison of Toronto in the first round. A couple of hours later the winner of this match will meet Rafael Ortega, Mexican Davis Cupper who blasted Fran Kennedy of Fort William 6-0, 6-4 Monday.

Defending champion Mcitta Rahnier of Mexico, a late entry in the tournament, is scheduled to open her campaign in the women's singles today. She is seeded No. 1 ahead of Mrs. Thelma Long, Australia.

Mrs. Hannah Sladek, formerly of Czechoslovakia, who now makes her home in Toronto, eliminated Irene Borecki of Toronto 6-2, 6-1 in the first round of the women's singles. She is the No. 1 seed in the domestic section.

Canadian Open is Next on "Little Ben's" List

Not content with becoming the first Canadian ever to win the British women's golf championship, Fonthill's diminutive golf whiz, Marlene Stewart, has set her sights on regaining the Canadian Open title which she lost to Edean Anderson of Montana in 1952. The 19-year-old British champion is seen with her parents after she was given an enthusiastic welcome home by relatives and friends.—Central Press Canadian.

Bantam Baseball

Behind the two hit pitching of Pat Asselstine the C.N.R. Bantams won their second consecutive game defeating the Picton Bantams in Picton on Friday night by the score of 8 to 1. Asselstine struck out nine and walked but one. Picton jumped into a 1 to 0 lead in the first inning on Asselstine's only walk and two errors. From there on he held them completely in control while his mates pounded three Picton hurlers for 13 hits. Mike Ryan with a single and double paced the winners, while Meagher had two singles. Asselstine helped his own cause with a brace of singles.

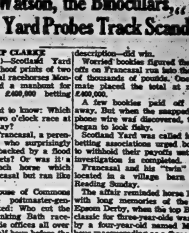
"Quick Watson, the Binoculars..." Scotland Yard Probes Track Scandal!

By PHILIP CLARKE

LONDON (CP)—Scotland Yard sleuths took the hoof prints of two strangely identical racehorses Monday and ordered a number of people suspects in a £400,000 betting scandal.

Detectives want to know: Which horse won the two o'clock race at Bath last Thursday?



Was it really Francasal, a pereial "slow run" who surprisingly won at 10 to 1 backed by a flood of last-minute bets? Or was it a mysterious French horse which looked like Francasal but ran like the wind?

And in the House of Commons Wednesday, the postmaster-general will be asked: Who cut the telephone line linking Bath racecourse with bookies offices all over Britain—just a half hour before the big race?

The line was cut with a blowtorch.

Then, during the half-hour before race time, the bookies were flooded with bets on Francasal. Because the line was cut, they couldn't phone the frantic "lay off" their bets with track bookies and bring the odds down.

Result: almost nobody, figured Francasal to win. But Francasal—or a horse answering his bets.

Worried bookies figured the payoffs on Francasal run into the tens of thousands of pounds. One estimate placed the total at nearly £400,000.

A new bookies' jold off night away. But when the snapped telephone wire was discovered, things began to look shaky.

Scotland Yard was called in and betting associations urged bookies to withhold their payoffs until the investigation is completed.

Francasal and his "twin" were located in a village barn near Reading Sunday.

The affair reminded horse lovers with hazy memories of the 1946 Epsom Derby, when the top British classic for three-year-olds was won by a four-year-old named Mascarbeus masquerading as a three-year-old.

The sharpies who were in on the deal placed their money with William Crockford, who ran a London gambling club. Crockford fell dead while talking one of the bets, which normally would have meant that all bets with him were void.

But the bony corpse kept up in an armchair with a pink sheet in its hand and he looked lively long enough for his aides to pay off the bets.

Glen Roy Jrs. Edge Frankford

Glen Roy Juniors downed Frankford 3-2 in an exhibition game at the CNR field last night. They played scoreless ball until Frankford walked one and stole it in the fourth. Glen Roy went into the lead in the fifth, getting two on three hits. They got the game winner in the sixth. Frankford threatened in the top of the eighth, but could only get one and they left two stranded on base.

Radnor went all the way on the mound for Glenz. He got five on strikes and passed two to first. Whitney was at work for Frankford. He struck out two and walked five.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Batting: Steve Bilko, St. Louis Cardinals, broke out of a batting slump with two home runs and two singles in the Cards' 9-4 victory over Pittsburgh.

Pitching: Russ Meyer, Brooklyn Dodgers, struck out nine and combined with Jim Hughes, who worked the last-two-thirds of an inning, to shut out Chicago, 5-0.

How Come 'Dancer' Lost the Derby? Guerin May go Down as Jockey Goat

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Is Native Dancer another Man O' War? The ex-favorite is beginning to pile up on his side. The Dancer his won 18 of 21 and $606,334 for Man O' War lost only one of 21 and earned $249,465 before they retired him in the pre-inflation days of 1919 and 1920.

As Al Vanderbilt's Gray Ghost continues to dwarf the three-year-old field, his defeat in the Kentucky Derby becomes more difficult to figure. Call it bad racing luck or a superb performance by Dark Star, the fact remains that Eric Guerin is destined to go down through the years as the jockey who "lost" the Derby on the Dancer.

Jim Norris might as well go back to the fight business and get busy signing Randy Turpin-Bobo Olson. His Jamie K. just isn't going to catch the Dancer.

Any doubt about the Dancer's ability to run on an off track was last removed by his performance in the heavy going at Arlington. He won on a sloppy track at Saratoga last year but all his other races had been over a fast strip. Never did he win as easily as in the Derby.

The Saratoga-at-Tamaica season opened Monday. That's the gimmick by which they make enough money from the New York citizens to run the meeting at the beautiful upstate horse park. They actually move to Saratoga Aug. 3 to run through Aug. 29.

The Giants found a pitching staff on the bargain counter while everybody else moaned there were none to be had. Jim Constantine cost only a $5,000 bonus as a free agent. Marv Grissom carried only the $10,000 waiver tag and Allan Worthington was brought from Nashville through a working agreement for $25,000 and two players last fall.

Tigers Trounce Mimico 24-5

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Tigers, battling for a playoff spot in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior series, trounced Mimico Mountaineers 24-5 Monday night. The win moved the Cats within two games of the fourth-place Fergus Thistles and the last playoff berth with seven games left to play.

Bill McLean and Jack Dorney divided 11 goals between them, McLean scoring six and Dorney five. Barney Welch and Chub Brown counted three each; Jack Sibbald and Bill Rankin two apiece at Algoma Mills, 94 miles east of and Al Doyle, Tony Capula andhere. He suffered a heart attack.

Juvenile Baseball

Elliott Motors, "Coffee" Nookes' smar juvenile baseball team racked up its seventh victory in eight starts at the Fair Grounds last night when they turned back the Picton Bruat by a 9-3 score.

Morrie Archer, the Motors pitchy hurler, notched his third straight win with a three-hit effort. He hooked up with Stewart, Picton flinger in a neat pitching duel with the visiting hurler giving up but four hits.

Picton got to Archer for three runs in the first innings but the youngster settled down and pitched no-hit-no-run baseball over the rest of the six-innings route.

Elliott's scored two in the second innings and tacked the game away in the third with three runs.

West should be in four hearts, whether it makes or not. And it should make with only the loss of three tricks if the three aces. But only one pair in that group was in four hearts. It made.

At the other 13 tables, nine were in either two or three hearts. Three of them took ten tricks; the others took only nine. Which is an indication that some did not even give it the best of play.

The east and west pair finished their contracting at a bid of three no-trump. Their opponents did not even know enough to double. But the declarer went down four tricks. Think of that!

Three of the north players were permitted to play it in spades and went down one. Another was in three spades undoubled; down two. Another in three spades doubled was down two.

C.N.R. 'College' Trains Future Top Executives

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's publicly-owned railway system, in a move to develop young executive officers, has completed a unique experiment in training.

A group of 47 promising young employees from various parts of Canada were put through a six-week course devised by officials of the Canadian National Railways in consultation with business education experts at the University of Western Ontario.

Results of the course, first of its kind ever conducted by the railway, will be watched closely. If results warrant the move, a permanent Canadian National staff college will be established.

The CNR, with 128,000 employees from coast to coast, has 1,100 supervisory officers. Many of them will retire within the next 13 years.

The course was designed to provide suitable replacements.

In Three Parts

Divided into three parts, the course put student executives to Montreal, Western University at London, Ont., and Bishop's University at Lennoxville, Que.

The first part of the course, given in Montreal, consisted of lectures and discussions on company history, competitive problems, labor relations, personnel methods, legal problems and company policies.

The second phase at University of Western Ontario dealt with the principles of administration, accounting, production, marketing, public relations and financial management.

The third stage, at Bishop's University, covered actual problems encountered in railway management.

Benefits Forecast

Donald Gordon, president of the CNR, described the course as one that gave promising employees an opportunity to gain wider perspective; to study the science and practice the arts of management under laboratory conditions.

No immediate decisions were taken to test the results of the course. Officials said the results would show in the work of the men when they returned to their posts.

Kelowna Beauty Judges' Choice As Miss Canada

BURLINGTON (CP)—Hazel-eyed Kathleen Ann Archibald, 19, of Kelowna, B.C., was chosen Miss Canada 1953 from 11 entries in the beauty and talent contest held in this suburban Hamilton town Monday night.

Kathleen, whose sparkling personality and charm helped make her Queen of United States music critic Dennis Taylor and his fellow judges broke into happy tears when the shimmering crown was placed on her dark brown hair by last year's winner, Marilyn Reddick of Agincourt, Ont.

Betty Billyard, 23, Niagara Falls-born Queen from Welland, Ont., placed second and Joy Barrow, 18, of Toronto, was third.

is typical of what the masters did throughout this match. It is typical of the differences in the opinions of those who claim to be the best.

It is sad to contemplate that these players are assumed to be the models of best bridge. However, if he has its good points for the future, it encourages beginners to learn better methods.

It makes advancing players realize that a system is not good because it is complex. Soundness and accuracy can more easily be found in a simple system. They find it in Horse Sense.

GODFREY RECOVERS

Mau Mau Wound Their Nemesis

NAIROBI (Reuters) — Bearded Sidney (Dave) Davidson, husky Kenya government official reported to have killed 33 Mau Mau terrorists, was wounded Saturday while leading a jungle raid against the anti-white cult.

But with four bullets in him, he managed to club his assailant with his own rifle before collapsing.

Davidson, 41, was shot at point-blank range by a Mau Mau man armed with a sub-machine gun. He was leading African troops in an attack on one of the cult's terrorist camps in the Aberdare forest, one of the worst trouble spots in Kenya.

Gilmore Says Russia Showing Signs of Real Stress and Strain

It took 11 years to write this story. These were the years Eddy Gilmore spent in Moscow as a correspondent of the Associated Press of New York, a hectic home to the United States.

The lack of normal news sources in Russia makes it more effective than censorship for a reporter to find out what goes on there, so Gilmore does not pretend to have all the answers. But he has certain definite impressions and this story sums them up.

By EDDY GILMORE

STOCKHOLM (AP) — I saw Soviet Russia put into action the greatest fighting force in history, the Soviet Army, by official United States reckoning, to help win the most terrible of all wars.

And I saw this same Soviet Union, while a weary world sighed for peace, embark upon a policy of imperialism more ambitious than any czar's.

This all happened under Joseph Stalin, the self-styled man of steel who drove Russia, you can never say led, to a position of power never before achieved by that country.

But today the pinnacle of power seems to have been reached. With the grim dictator gone, the monolithic communist party of Russia and the huge, lumbering state machine of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics are showing signs of real stress and strain.

This has taken place while I have been living in the Soviet Union and trying under a cold calculated state censorship to report Russia to the outside world.

Whither Russia?

Whither Russia

Nikolai Gogol, 19th century Russian satire writer, asked the question as he compared his vast, sad and unfortunate homeland to a troika (a vehicle drawn by three horses) plunging headlong and recklessly into the future.

Gogol didn't have the answer. Present experts haven't the answer. I, a reporter, and no expert, haven't the answer and I doubt if anyone has.

Stalin beat Russia into a world power. Ivan the Terrible pounded it along a terrible and bloody road. So did Peter the Great. They all did a lot for Russia, and to Russia. I doubt if any of them was loved very much, but all were feared.

When Stalin died you could almost see Moscow relax. Some the funeral and the feeling was incapable that the lamesaide was ceasing.

Stalin, said a taxi driver to me the day before I left Russia, "was too much I, I. He didn't know how to get along with America and he thought he did."

In the Western world such pontification from the front of taxis is normal. In Russia, especially when the audience is a foreigner, it's amazing.

Lash at Police

Premier Georgi Malenkov, and his associates have lashed out at the political police in freeing the framed doctors. They disgraced the police and condemned their methods, jailing Ryumin, the head of the investigations department and in Russia that covers a great deal of terror. They fired his immediate minister, Ignatiev, a high ranking member of the Communist party.

As they moved to meet the slow but mounting resentments of the people, they grabbed for power. Lavrenty F. Beria, the super politburo member, did the way things were going. He is gone.

Malenkov ordered a price reduction. It was a good one too, not phony like so many of the others. Some reductions were as much as 50 per cent and many items of consumer goods were included. Prices, however, are still up.

Then the Malenkov government ordered the amnesty and many people were freed. But not political prisoners.

Other Signs

Communist officials started to treat Western diplomats and the handful of correspondents in Moscow with courtesy and, in some cases, consideration. There were other signs too:

The signal went up to change the tactics in Korea; the Soviets took steps to regularize relations with Yugoslavia; the sharp and at times ludicrous propaganda of the West slackened. The press department invited correspondents to take a trip through the Kremlin. Then they organized a trip to the Volga-Don canal. I was one to get out of the buildings they'd occupied for years, the British and U. S. embassies were informed they could stay if they liked. The British did; the Americans went into a new building; six Russian wives of Americans were told they could leave the country with their husbands and children.

Some in the West, and the East, said everything was changing in Russia.

"You people think a revolution is going on here," he said. "It isn't. We are normalizing a lot of things though."

That was a Borgia plot with a Conan Doyle twist and an O. Henry ending. Or has it ended?

Is there a new Stalin in Russia, or is this Stalinism with Malenkov sauce? I saw enough to make me feel, with some reservations, that a lot of Stalinism is dead.

I can't get it out of my head that unless Malenkov plays his cards right, down to the last deuce, someone from the army, or V.M. Molotov, or Nikolai Bulganin, or Nikita Khrushchev or some dark horse may come rushing into the act.

Well, I'm glad I'm out, out of Russia with my wife and my two children after 11 out of my head.

And I'm also glad that I'm not in the political business in Moscow. That has always been one of the world's most dangerous games. It would be even more hazardous now.

Big Three Plan Clemency Boards For Jailed Nazis

BONN (AP)—Britain, the United States and France Monday announced new clemency plans which are expected to speed the release of scores of German war criminals still held in Allied jails.

The scheme is designed to relieve Allied-German friction over the war criminals issue and also to help Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in his campaign for critical federal elections, as he will get popular credit for winning the release.

The Allies agreed with Adenauer's government to set up consultative boards in each of the three western occupation zones which will review the sentences of those still in jail and make recommendations for clemency or parole.

In Ottawa, officials sources said it will be up to cabinet to determine whether Canada joins in sentence-reviewing bodies that are to be set up.

The No. 1 prisoner held in the British zone on behalf of Canada is Maj.-Gen. Kurt Meyer, serving life for the murder of Canadian prisoners of war by his SS storm-troopers. He was moved from New Brunswick's Dorchester penitentiary to a British prison in Germany two years ago.

Informant in Ottawa said there is no disposition on the part of the Canadian government to accord any special treatment to Meyer. Friends of his have been making continuous attempts to get him released on the grounds of illhealth.

However, it was indicated that the Canadian view is that Meyer should be treated the same as other prisoners—without representations from the Canadian government on his behalf—under the tribunal system to be set up.

Canada, under the proposed arrangement, will be enabled to name a member of a British-German tribunal that would deal with the cases of war criminals in the British zone.

STRIKE CONFERENCE

WALLACEBURG (CP)—Norman Fish, president of the Local United Auto Workers and Arthur Last, Sarnia, international representative and several other union officials left Monday night for Eau Claire, Wis., where they hope to have a cooker company has been closed talk with officials of the National since the latter part of March as Pressure Company. The pressure-la result of a strike.

Good Substitute Found to Replace Heavy Concrete

OTTAWA (CP)—New lightweight building materials of shale and clay, embedded in concrete, are expected to prove a boon to Canada's construction industry.

Technically known as coated lightweight concrete aggregate, the material when mixed with concrete, takes away little from its strength while greatly lessening weight.

The industrial minerals division of the mines department, which has tested thousands of shale and clay samples from areas spread across Canada, predicts "excellent" results for the product. Deposits are located near most larger cities where construction possibilities are greatest.

Decreases Load

Division spokesmen said that the greatest single advantage is a 31-per-cent decrease in basic dead weight for structural concretes, and up to 50 per cent in load weight for insulating concretes. The aggregate costs more than sand and gravel type of mix, but would be justified by savings in other ways.

After four years of research, a plant at Edmonton is making lightweight concrete aggregate. Interest is due to start at Ottawa while plans have been drawn up for still another plant to be located in the southern Prairie area.

Cost Decreased

Use in multi-storeyed buildings would be particularly valuable. The division said a decrease in dead weight carried by structural steel framework would mean valuable savings in the amount of reinforcing and structural steel needed. In addition, the structure would have improved heat and sound insulation properties.

By using lightweight aggregate concrete, additional storeys have been added to already existing structures. Longer spans without use have been possible with conventional heavy concrete.

For small structures, like homes, not using structural steel, lightweight aggregate concrete can be used as prefabricated roofs, floors and walls. Because of relatively light weight the slabs would be easy to transport and handle, and would cut time required for home erection with resulting decrease in labor costs.

Aggregates are made by firing clays or shales in kilns. Individual pieces bloat under heat and rise on surfaces, hence "the term "coated." Inside each piece are numerous porous cells which make them so light they float on water.

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP)—Great Slave Lake in the Northwest Territories is the centre of a booming fisheries industry which last year marketed some $1,500,000 worth of whitefish and lake trout in Chicago, Detroit and New York.

The current issue of Trade News published by the fisheries department describes the growth and activities of the Great Slave fisheries during the past summer and winter seasons.

Two new freight boats were launched in the lake, 500 miles north of Edmonton, and two icehouses and packing-plants were completed, one at Hearnigan Point on the north shore near Yellowknife, and the other at Dawson Landing on the southeast shore.

500 Fishermen

Some 500 licensed commercial fishermen netted 7,224,000 pounds of fish in the 250-mile-long lake. Whitefish at 4,008,000 pounds accounted for the bulk of the catch. There were 2,800,000 pounds of lake trout and 218,000 pounds of other species which included pike and pickerel.

Total marketed value of all species exceeded $1,750,000 of which the fishermen received some $537,000.

Two fisheries department launches equipped with radio-telephones patrolled the lake, Trade News says, giving assistance when necessary to fishing-boats. The patrol boats discovered several new fishing-grounds.

Several new lakes in the vicinity of Great Slave were opened for commercial fishing last winter and from these 13 licensed fishermen produced 57,400 pounds of pickerel whitefish and lake trout.

May Open More Lakes

The publication says there is a "distinct possibility" that more of the thousands of small lakes which lie in the vicinity of Great Slave may be opened soon for commercial fishing.

Trade News describes the rebirth of another fishing industry in northern Canada, the quest by Eskimos and Indians and some white hunters for beluga or white whale in Hudson's Bay and in the Churchill river near Churchill, Man.

The beluga, a milky-white creature which may reach 17 feet in length and 4,000 pounds in weight, roams in herds near the mouths of rivers. Fishermen trap the animal by driving it on shore or into nets previously set up.

The fishermen, the Eskimos often use kyaks, drive the whales by beating on the water with paddles and sticks. When grounded or entangled in nets, the whales are killed and towed away for rendering into oil and meal.

899 Whales Taken

The publication says that between 1941 and 1948, some 50 belugas were captured annually. With the establishment of a rendering-plant at Churchill in 1948, the fishery boomed. Some 300 were taken in 1951 and a total of 899 in the summer of 1952.

The hunters received some $7,000 last year for that part of the catch which was rendered into oil and meal. Much of the meat was eaten in the region.

CAMPBELLFORD

New Hospital To Open On August 30

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford's Memorial Hospital, an institution which cost $380,000, will open officially on August 30 according to an announcement made this week by W. F. Scott, president of the board of directors.

The new institution will be the most modern in the province. Although the first sod was turned more than six years ago, the board has kept up with new developments in the field of hospital equipment, and when the doors officially open to receive the first patient, the equipment in the building will be the most modern and up to date that can be obtained.

Superintendent of the new hospital is Mrs. M. Daniels, Reg. N., who hails from Wellington. She was the former superintendent of the Prince Edward County Hospital in Picton and came to Campbellford Memorial well recommended.

The staff of the hospital has been engaged, and all members are well qualified to look after the 61-bed patients the hospital is capable of accomodating.

Cost of the new hospital has been kept to a minimum, largely through the efforts of the building committee, who adopted a 'pay-as-you-go' policy from the start.

The cost per bed will come to only about $6340, which is reported to be considerably lower than for most other similar hospitals built in the province during the past few years. The 61 beds will accommodate 36 maternity and active treatment cases as well as 23 chronic patients.

With the exception of an elevator and a dumb-waiter, all the equipment will be operating when the building opens on August 30.

The Campbellford Branch of the Canadian Legion will place a bronze plaque in the lobby of the hospital, containing the names of all those who paid the supreme sacrifice during World War II, from the town.

The hospital will serve about 15,000 persons, contained in an area of about 15 miles surrounding the town.

The board of directors are planning an impressive ceremony to commemorate the opening, and invitations are being prepared which will be sent to government dignitaries, and members of local groups and clubs who contributed greatly to the building fund.

Princess Margaret Soon Free To Wed

RoK Agreement With U.S. Broken Says Rhee's Aide

Queen to Permit Sister to Marry Peter Townsend

Richard Butler Announces Regency Act to be Changed

LONDON (AP)—The government indicated today that the Queen has given or is about to give permission to her sister, Princess Margaret, to marry a divorced man.

He is RAF Group Capt. Peter Townsend, air attache at the embassy in Brussels. He is 38 and the Princess 22.

The acting prime Minister, Richard A. Butler, told the House of Commons that the government proposes to introduce legislation to amend the Regency Act of 1937. A change in the act would make it easier for Margaret to follow her heart's desire if she wants to marry the divorced air hero.

Opposition leader Clement Attlee asked if the contents of the proposed bill were agreeable to all members of the Royal Family. Butler replied in the affirmative and said the personal feelings of all concerned should be respected by everybody and "the present deplorable speculation and gossip brought to an end."

Under the present act, Princess Margaret would become regent if the Queen died or became incapacitated before Prince Charles, 4, was able to take the throne.

Townsend brought a divorce action against his wife on grounds of misconduct. The Church of England frowns on remarriage of divorced persons.

Any change in the Regency Act would require each of the Commonwealth countries except India to make similar changes. India is a republic and recognizes the sovereign only as head of the Commonwealth.

Commonwealth prime ministers meeting shortly after the Coronation in June discussed the proposal to change the Regency Act. The same subject has been under discussion among the Commonwealth countries periodically since 1936, but today's announcement of the proposed change took on new meaning in the light of stories on Margaret's romance with Townsend.

Robber Steals $50 Bad Check And Cashes It

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A $53 check, worthless for 22 years, was cashed by a burglar who stole it from a Minneapolis plumbing shop.

Arthur A. Johnson, shop owner, said the check was one issued him for pay. He dated it January 15, 1931. There were no funds to cover the check at the time so Johnson saved it.

The thief cashed the check in a Minneapolis bank without trouble. It was drawn on a Minneapolis bank no longer in existence.

Antibiotic Drugs Not Cure-Alls, Veterinaries Told

TORONTO (CP)—The antibiotic wonder drugs have their limitations in treatment of animal diseases, the American Veterinary Medical Association was told today.

Dr. J. D. Nadeau of St. Hyacinthe, Que., told the Association's annual convention antibiotics are not the answer to nutritional problems of poultry. They were drugs and could not be expected to replace vitamins in rations.

Dr. Nadeau said antibiotics also may interfere with chickens' natural immunity to infectious diseases. He recommended that the use of antibiotics be limited to the rations of starting poultry and preferably confined to treatment during disease symptoms.

The AVMA's public health committee warned that the milk of cows treated with antibiotics can remain an antibiotic sensitivity in persons consuming it. Milk from such cows should be withheld from the market for at least three days after treatment.

After conferring itself largely with hog-breeding problems in Tuesday's sessions, the convention devoted most of its discussion to poultry today.

Little Men In Green Suits Didn't Show Up

Neither did their silver saucer.

Here was where Black said they saw the little men climb from their space ship, dig some water and then leave by the way of fire and brimstone.

A hundred spectators waited . . . a Milwaukee businessman was ready to take 3d movies . . . a California archer was set with arrows tipped with suction cups . . . photographers stood alert . . .

Black's faith however, was firm: "They'll be back . . . I know . . . sometime this summer."

MILLION PARCELS OF FREE FOOD ROUSE REDS' IRE

Soviet Commissioner Demands Gifts Stop

By DAN DE LUCE

BERLIN (AP)—A million packages of free Western food threw Easy Germany's communist rulers into a frenzy today.

Soviet High Commissioner Vladimir Semyonov, in a startling diplomatic note, called the mammoth relief program a U. S. plot to "enslave" Germans and criminal elements" for a new anti-Red revolt in the Russian zone.

He demanded that U. S. High Commissioner James B. Conant immediately stop said gifts to hungry East Germans because these would "be used for actions in line with the elementary demands of maintaining public order."

Within 24 hours, thousands of workers were set to wrapping the 1,000,000 packages of foodstuffs for delivery on the Iron Curtain border here beginning next Monday.

The supplies came from a West German government reserve maintained in this isolated city since 1948 to protect it against a new Russian blockade. The reserve will be replenished by donations from the United States, where President Eisenhower offered $15,000,000 worth of free food to hungry East Germany on July 10 and stuck by it after Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov denounced the offer as "a clumsy propaganda manoeuvre."

To Reject Protest

The East German official said the Russian protest would be rejected because the U. S. offer was termed it "too absurd to comment on except to implies that Russia will go to extreme lengths to cut off outside aid to the Germans they are suppressing."

West Berlin welfare workers who pushed 20,000 free food parcels through the Iron Curtain Tuesday expressed fear the note meant Russian Red Army units soon might seal off East Germany so that no Western relief at all would enter.

Piano Manufacturers Enjoying Greatest Sales in Thirty Years

By STEVEN V. DAVID

NEW YORK (AP)—Piano manufacturers are making merry music on their cash registers these days, business hasn't been so good in nearly 30 years.

With the help, surprisingly enough, of television, the industry is counting on selling 90,000 units this year, the largest number since the 1920s.

The future of the piano industry looks very bright indeed," says Harold S. Morse, a director of the Baldwin Piano and Organ Company and head of its New York office. Baldwin makes pianos, although manufacturing to capacity, is thousands of units behind its orders."

"The present piano boom has built up since the Second World War," Baldwin, largest in the field, did 20 business of more than $21,000,000 in 1947, the record Baldwin set in 1947.

The radio killed the old player piano, and no one but a piano maker ever regretted its passing.

But, says the industry, television has been largely responsible for the upsurge in piano sales since the end of the war.

Baldwin officials figure it this way: A child learns to play what is invisible, and a good many listeners will testify it is one of the instruments in an unseen orchestra. On television, however, the piano is seen as well as heard. Its decorative qualities as well as its tone appeal.

Moreover, by keeping families home evenings, television has helped make the home an entertainment centre again. Seeing pianos on TV sometimes makes them seem real, created a desire to own one in countless thousands of homes.

Another factor: Smart redesigning of pianos has made them more practical for the average home, and easier to move.

Better - grade pianos aren't cheap. The popular spinet type ranges from around $600 to more than $1,000. Grand pianos may cost $2,700 to $7,000. The studio upright is available around $800.

Gilmore Believes Stalin Died Natural Death Despite Many Rumors of Murder

Editor's note: This is the second in a series of stories by Eddy Gilmore, who spent 11 years in the Soviet Union as a correspondent of the Associated Press. He now is en route home to the United States.

By EDDY GILMORE

PARIS (AP)—It was early that March morning when the telephone rang, and the Russian voice said:

"Mr. Gilmore, we will have a press release in a short while announcing the serious illness of the chairman of the council of ministers, Comrade Joseph Stalin."

The telephone call was from Tass, the official Soviet news agency. I ran for the telegraph office, and the rumor...

Stalin—and the Stalin myth—were dying.

The Big Question

Did death come to Stalin as they said, from a stroke of the heart, with a squad of Russia's best doctors marshalled around his bed in the Kremlin, doing everything they could to save his life?

Frankly, I don't know. I know only what I saw.

Rumors and stories flew around Moscow. There were reports that he was murdered. Stories that this wasn't Stalin at all. Reports that he was already dead when the first call for grave illness was announced.

But from what I saw it seems reasonable to believe happened about the way the official story was told.

During the days they said Stalin was dying, I passed the Kremlin many, many times.

There was always a great coming and going of automobiles at the two traffic gates of the Kremlin.

On numerous occasions there ambulances among the cars rushing in and out of the gates. Several times I noticed small first-aid cars carrying what certainly looked to be oxygen tanks.

Then one day I didn't see any of them.

Death Announced

Early the following morning they announced the death of Stalin.

It had been my luck in his state, but not for long, in the Hall of Columns.

The United States embassy at that time was located between the Kremlin and the Hall of Columns.

An embassy friend saw me on the street.

Drew Says Liberal Win Would End Federal System

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prime Minister St. Laurent and George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, carry their election campaigning into rural Quebec today for the third straight day.

Mr. St. Laurent went through the toughest day of his campaign so far. He made four speeches, one from the back of a ferry before crossing the St. Lawrence to Berthierville. He urged everyone to vote and talked about the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Lead to Unity

The prime minister repeated a theme he says that the Liberal government aims at making all Canadians feel they are part of the country. That was the best road to national unity.

During an evening meeting in the market place at Joliette, Mr. St. Laurent said that the election chances of the Progressive Conservatives in Quebec. Even in New Brunswick, where the provincial government was Conservative, there was no indication of a change federally.

Probe Report Two Shots Fired at Truck at Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP)—A report that two bullets were fired at a transport truck was investigated by police today, third day of a strike for higher wages by 1,500 truck drivers in the Hamilton area.

Provincial police at Dundas near Hamilton said the driver of the Canada Transport told them he heard two sounds like backfires and saw marks like bullet scratches on the windshield in front of his head.

He said the glass wasn't penetrated. The trucker was from Harrow on the U.S. border did not release his name.

It came after disorders by members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL-CLC) called off a threatened blockade of Hamilton and removed from the highways flying squads of strikers which carried orders to interfere with vehicles.

The flying squads were removed after Premier Frost said the Criminal Code will be enforced to halt such tactics. More than 100 union pickets had been prepared to set up roadblocks at the seven main gateways to Hamilton to seal off transport traffic.

Many drivers adopted new tactics, sending "reception committees" ahead to meet incoming drivers at their normal coffee shops and persuade them to strike.

No incidents were reported at the terminals, where about 200 truckers are involved.

James Groat, president of the Canadian Teamsters local, said it would take exception to "any manhandling" by provincial police. He said the atmosphere at the coffee stops "is peaceful and it will continue peaceful."

The union cancelled plans for putting pickets on streets throughout the 15 cities affected by the strike.

Less than an hour after the Hamilton pickets dispersed, a convoy of 22 transports from the Direct Winters and Consolidated Transport companies moved through the outskirts of Hamilton bound for Toronto.

FIND BONE, HAIR, BLOODY CLOTHES IN GASPE SEARCH

Police Still in Dark As to Hunters' Fate

By BERNARD DUFRESNE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

CASPE, Que. (CP)—A few articles of blood-stained underwear, some suits of hair and a solitary 13-inch bone provided police Tuesday with the latest "weird" twist in their investigation of the mysterious disappearance of three American bear hunters in the bush country for weeks ago.

Provincial police emerged from the rugged country of the Gaspe Peninsula without finding any evidence that would clearly establish what happened to the trio. But they brought with them ragged strips of outer wear splattered with dried blood, and tufts of hair of two colors, brown and black.

They found these beside a tree with a single bone near the same campsite, where part of a human skeleton were discovered several days ago. The skeleton had no skull. The bones appeared to have been gnawed.

From the earlier discussions, it is believed one of the three hunters, from Hollidaysburg, Pa., had been accounted for. The remains are believed to be those of 17-year-old Richard Lindsey. What happened to his father, Eugene Lindsey, 45, and to Fred Clar, 30, remained a mystery.

Bones Analyzed

Some of the bones were sent to Montreal for analysis by Dr. Jean-Marie Rousset, Quebec provincial medico-legal expert, but so far results of the examination have not been made known.

Dr. Rousset, however, said Tuesday night he had found traces of lead-shot in some of the bones. A sights of a rifle that was picked up from the camp-site at the time. Both the hair and bone found Tuesday are believed to be human. Specialists said the hair might have come from the same person as the bone, the body, the other from the head.

Churchill Makes Good Progress

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill, who has been resting from overwork at his home outside London since the end of June, is continuing to make good progress, his doctor said today.

The prime minister is active and in good spirits, receiving visits from his country home, Chartwell, reports said.

R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer and acting prime minister, side-stepped questions posed by Socialist leader Clement Attlee in the House of Commons Tuesday night on the possible date of Churchill's return to duty.

Fewer Newfoundlanders Fishing Other Industries More Attractive

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Fewer Newfoundlanders are fishing.

That, to a province once the fish pier of North America, is an economic revolution.

The number of men going to the Grand Banks last year was down from the previous season. And the Newfoundland Federation of Labor says there will be still fewer this year.

At the peak of the 1952 season, about 10,000 men were employed. The estimate for this year is 6,000.

The Labor say fishing fleet has dwindled to less than a dozen schooners and only one of the privately - owned fishing factories operated last year.

The future of the $25,000,000 yearly Newfoundland fish is bright, but on the other hand there are no hard times ahead either.

The fact is that men aren't going fishing because they are finding other work and, in most instances, better pay in forestry and heavy construction at Goose Bay and Seven Islands.

The Newfoundland government also has taken a part of the responsibility to finance construction of a $1,000,000 processing plant at Burgeo and provincial capital is providing the rest of the money.

And with fewer men fishing and less fish being landed, prices are generally good although an unsettled market keeps the industry wondering.

Caribbean and European markets take the bulk of the export fish and the price level this year is expected to be at least as good as that of 1952.

Charge U.S. Has Gone Back On Promise Limiting Talks

SEOUL (CP)—South Korea declared today her understanding with the United States over a truce with the communists has been broken and she "will not observe any implementation of the armistice."

The statement was issued by Foreign Minister (Pyun Yung Tai at noon after President Syngman Rhee had announced South Korea felt free to "follow our own course of action". It a post-armistice political conference failed to "persuade" the (Chinese Red) aggressors" to withdraw from North Korea within 90 days.

That period Pyun made his statement, another South Korean cabinet minister, who refused to be named, declared Walter Robertson, President Eisenhower's special envoy, had promised Rhee the U.S. would "walk out" of the conference if it failed to reach agreement in 90 days.

Says Promise Broken

He said the U.S. now seems to have "mysteriously" gone back on this promise.

The South Korean rebellion came tonight after United Nations and Communist officers met twice in a favorable atmosphere amid hopeful indications from both sides that a truce was imminent.

Pyun earlier warned that South Korea would act independently unless the U.S. republics some assurances given the Communist which the Reds announced at Panmunjon last Sunday. The assurances ceased at the way for a quick armistice.

Rhee's sudden statement came as the U.S. state department sent a secret note to Rhee. It presumably dealt with South Korea's role in the armistice. Pyun said the note contained "nothing new."

How the Reds will react to Rhee's ultimatum was the big question as staff officers prepared early at Panmujon on final details of a truce. There has been speculation that an armistice would be signed within the week.

Pyun considered Rhee's closest adviser, declared "the United Nations is now ready to illegalize any action on our part to achieve our unification."

Wife's Legs Out of Window Cost Man $50

Police, whose attention was drawn to Wright's car because of the attractive limbs dangling from the window, forced Wright over to the curb, but not before he had run through a red light.

Wright explained, there was nothing really wrong. His wife was lying on the front seat, her head in his lap and her legs out the window "to cool off." He said he "might be one way to beat the heat, but it's also reckless driving . . . $50."

Hundreds Attend Funeral of Singer

PORT FRANCES (CP) — Hundreds of persons attended funeral services Tuesday for Florence Forsberg, 25-year-old singer who was stabbed and beaten to death at her New York apartment last Thursday.

Peter Johnson, 25 a Korean war veteran who apparently took his own life in a cell in which he was held. "I killed Flo Forsberg because of passion and drink."

Rev. R.U. Dolan of Winnipeg, minister of King Memorial United Church, who conducted the funeral service said the "one-sided evidence at the scene of the crime was passed on upon by American journalism, placing the sweetheart of Port Frances in a light she did not deserve."

The minister said she was the victim of circumstance."

He said people here know Florence was not what the New York newspapers and wire services said and they need not think that two notes left by a suicidal maniac will change the opinion of them.

It was the largest funeral ever seen in Fort Frances."

Authorization from the Ontario Highways Department for construction and regrading of an additional two and a half miles of the Foxboro-Frankford road as a road development project, has been received by the county, it was stated today by W. E. Sandercock, M.L.A. for Hastings West.

Mr. Sandercock said he had received word from Highways Minister Doucett that another section of the road would be rebuilt.

The Ontario Highways Department has authorized construction and regrading of an additional two and a half miles on the Foxboro - Frankford road as a road development project, it was stated today by W. E. Sandercock, county road engineer Larry Langiois.

Early next year close to four miles on the Frankford end of the county road was rebuilt, and the work was authorized for this year is a continuation of the project which will ultimately see the entire Frankford-Foxboro road rebuilt.

This year's program will be carried out on the same principle as that of last year when the county forces do the actual construction, the work of regrading, placement of culverts and application of a coat of gravel being paid for by the province. The county pays the cost of purchase of any required land for road right of way or for fencing.

On completion the road is turned back to the county for maintenance.

At the present time county road forces are completing a three-quarter-mile stretch of resurfacing scheduled for last year but uncompleted before freeze-up time.

Cost of the two-and-one-half miles of development road authorized for this year was said to be approximately $30,000 as regarding to this particular type of country costs about $12,000 per mile.

No starting date for this year's section of the road was given as this would be dependent upon other regular work to be carried out by the county.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices held closely to a mixed to lower pattern in light forenoon stock market trading today.

Steadiness appeared in a majority of industrial issues. Golds settled back at mixed prices. Base metals and western oils showed weaker.

Uranium and/New Brunswick base metals brightened along a narrow front as Anacon, Graham Bousquet and Lake Dufault led the rises.

In industrials, refining oils, steels and agriculturals made steady progress. Lower were liquors and manufacturing companies.

Golds were almost ignored in all groups except juniors, where Malartic and Preston East Dome firmed.

Western oils showed an almost unbroken list of losers as the group began its fourth day of slow decline.

Suspension, Fine For Sox Manager

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Commissioner John Gillies of the senior Intercounty Baseball League announced today that Harry Lipka, playing manager of the Brantford Red Sox team, is suspended for three games, and fined $25.

The action was taken by Commissioner Gillies after Lipka was ejected from last Wednesday's contest in Brantford against Waterloo Tigers by umpire John Sing for persistent arguing and jostling.

This was Lipka's first ejection this season. Two of the ejections came in London.

Gillies, in handing down the penalty, warned that players must accept the circumstances of umpiring or physically interfere with an umpire.

Urges Mayors' Meeting

Windsor City Council Tuesday night passed a resolution urging Labor Minister Mitchell Hepburn call a meeting of all mayors of western Ontario cities and towns in an effort to settle the strike. The resolution said settlement should be reached "before violence flares and someone gets hurt."

Also in Windsor, provincial police said all roadblocks set up to stop transport trucks entering Windsor have been removed.

Firms Pleased

William Murray, manager of the Motor Transport Industrial Bureau which bargains for the 36 strike-bound transport firms in the area between Hamilton and Windsor, said the trucking operators "are certainly pleased to learn that the government is not going to tolerate the irresponsible teamster action which has prevailed in the United States."

The Hamilton local is insisting on a 20-cent increase for drivers and 30 cents for mechanics and Windsor on a 15-cent-an-hour increase.

A driver on long hauls makes about $80 a week. Those on short trips earn about $60.

No Transports

Transports operating from Hamilton are not being sent into the strike-bound areas of southwestern Ontario. However, some driven by members of the Teamsters local which is not on strike have been sent on trips to the Niagara area, which comes under Toronto jurisdiction, and many of these were delayed at Burlington near Hamilton Tuesday by union pickets.

OLDEST CITIZEN

EDMONTON (CP)—One of Edmonton's oldest citizens, Herbert M. Worden celebrated his 96th birthday Tuesday. He and Mrs. Worden, who is 94, have been married for 73 years. A native of New York, Mr. Worden went to Brockville and became manager of a chemical plant there before the turn of the century.

Many Cheese Factory Salesmen Reluctant to Accept Current Price

Many cheese factory salesmen in the Bay of Quinte district are showing preference for the 30 cent cash price for cheese guaranteed next October through the marketing board rather than accept the current price offered by buyers.

This was indicated at the Belleville Cheese Exchange Tuesday when many salesmen turned down bids by buyers and said they would sell to the marketing board. A few salesmen simply said they "would hold their cheese." Kingdon district factories generally accepted bids by buyers.

Under marketing regulations farmers selling cheese to the marketing board receive an initial price of 34 cents now with a guarantee of 20 cents for all cheese held by the marketing board next October 30th. Farmers accepting board bids from buyers receive the whole amount now.

There was one bid of 27 1-3 cents for white cheese on Tuesday night's board but most of the white cheese sold to buyers went for 27 3-8 cents. More Candidates Seeking Seats Than Last Time

THE CANADIAN PRESS

The record number of candidates at a Canadian general election was set in 1945 with 854. The hot-weather campaign of 1953 likely will not produce that many aspirants for a seat in the House of Commons, but 1949's total is almost certain to be exceeded.

Up to Tuesday, five days before the official close of nominations next Monday, the number of candidates reached 622, an unofficial compilation by The Canadian Press shows. This was only 16 short of the 1949 total of 848, but 122 under that of 1945.

In 1949, 262 seats were filled; in 1945 there were 245. This year, because of redistribution, 265 are at stake. There are two two-member ridings, Queens in Prince Edward Island and Halifax in Nova Scotia.

Party Standings

The Liberals have nominated 265 candidates, the Progressive Conservatives 234, the CCF 54 and Social Credit 45. The Labor-Progressive (Communist) party has 56 to its field, compared with only 19 in 1949 and 68 in 1945. There are 2 others, including two Independent Progressive Conservatives in Quebec constituencies.

Forty-two women are candidates; 30 Labor-Progressives, 10 CCF, eight Progressive Conservatives, three Liberals and one Social Crediter.

The greatest concentration of candidates in any one riding is in Manitoba's Springfield where seven are running.

Two Men Executed For Wounding Minister

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Firing squads Tuesday executed two men accused of breaking into the home of George MacKay, Canadian Presbyterian missionary, and seriously wounding him June 2. A third man, who surrendered shortly after the missionary was shot, was sentenced to life imprisonment.

MacKay, 69, now is reported recovered.

Bishop Cleared Of Un-American Activity Charge

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House of Representatives committee on un-American activities today cleared Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam a clean bill of health today so far as any record of communist party affiliation is concerned.

But a gruelling, sometimes short tempered hearing that dragged on after midnight brought charges by some members that the Methodist clergyman's zeal for social reform, plus what one congressman called "muddled thinking" had led him into suspicious company.

And Chairman Harold Velde (Rep. Ill.) said it was "impossible to make any definite conclusions" until the bishop has submitted further information he promised.

The marathon affair left in doubt the political future of Oxnam, said to be active: Would the committee after the files on him or, better yet, halt the practice of giving out unverified and unevaluated information?

Two Ministers Reds

The unusual afternoon-into-morning session produced one incident which brought down a storm of protest from a previous secret hearing that two U.S. clergymen once had been active members of the communist party.

The two witnesses by the committee as Dr. Harry F. Ward, retired member of New York's Union Theological Seminary faculty, and Jack McMichael, said to be still in the Methodist ministry somewhere in the western United States.

Oxnam promptly challenged the committee to put its evidence before the public and which, he said, will expel them from the ministry if communist membership charges are proved.

As for himself, Oxnam said he would make no apologies to anybody for working in good faith with now-accepted organizations he was associated with in the belief they were dedicated to human progress.

He said, however, he would investigate some of them more carefully hereafter and maybe would not join as many.

QUEEN TO

Butler did not go into details but said Parliament's financial responsibilities as regent would be transferred to the Duke of Edinburgh.

Butler said the government's bill would be introduced before the Queen leaves on her Commonwealth tour later this year. Butler made the announcement on behalf of Prime Minister Churchill, now recuperating at his Chartwell home from the rigors of office.

Recesses in Fall

The House of Commons is scheduled to recess July 31.

Presumably the regency amendment bill will not be brought in until the House reconvenes in the fall.

It is expected to have the support of the official Labor Opposition and if all goes according to plan the measure will become law before the Queen leaves for Australia Nov. 24.

The Commonwealth prime ministers are understood to have agreed to the change.

Butler, who corresponded with Press Association said the bill generally will transfer Margaret's regency responsibilities to the Duke of Edinburgh and will make, during Margaret's minority, a council of state which functions when the sovereign is out of the country.

Tided in Line

Princess Margaret needs only the sovereign's permission to marry and that only until she is 25. She would then be free to do so.

As the regency law now stands she would become regent if the Queen died or became incapable of carrying out her duties before Prince Charles reached 18.

Townsend was a "Battle of Britain" pilot in the Second World War. In 1945 he was appointed equerry to the late King George VI under a scheme to distribute "recognition of honor" from the ranks of the heroes.

In July, 1941 he married Rosemary Pawle. There were two children.

Earlier this month while Princess Margaret and Queen Mother Elizabeth were touring Southern Rhodesia, Townsend's connections with the court were severed.

He was posted as air attache in the Brussels embassy, and told to take up his duties 48 hours before Princess Margaret arrived back in London. Some London newspapers said he was being exiled.

Following the death of King George VI, Townsend had continued in his post as royal equerry. Until his transfer abroad he had been generally expected to be appointed comptroller of the Queen Mother's household at Clarence House, which also is the residence of Princess Margaret.

A CHANGE FROM THE "OLD DAYS"

Speaking at Timmins, Rodney Adamson, M.P. for York West in the last Parliament, said that if a general strike of long duration develops in the Porcupine camp not a single gold mine there will resume operations until there is an increase in the price of gold.

Mr. Adamson is generally recognized as an authority on the mining industry.

What a change there is in the picture as he paints it today and that which Canadians watched during the depression years.

Then the gold mines of Canada—and particularly those in Northern Ontario—were one of the few bright spots in an otherwise dreary picture.

To Canadians the gold mines was the dream of many a young man in southern Ontario towns. Talk of circulars receiving as much as sixty dollars a week used to circulate in depression-stricken towns. To the north was a dream-land. But while many went north to seek their fortunes, the mines could not provide work for all. It helped, in those days, if you could handle a hockey stick or swing a baseball bat. Many a youth found his athletic ability provided the key to a good job.

Some of those who went north learned to love that land and established homes there and spend the remainder of their lives there. Others drifted back home. But it was not until the war years that there was any great exodus. Then the shortage of labor in war industries, coupled with higher wages in the factories of the industrialized south, brought many of these men back to their former home towns.

The gold-mining towns have never recovered their former status as areas where wages were far above the national average. Few people, even in Northern Ontario, will deny that gold mining is infinitely preferable from the standpoint of the country as a whole. Still, we might do well to remember the role that the gold mines played in our depression years. Keep in mind the possibility that they might once again prove an extremely useful prop to our national economy in time of need.

FROST'S ORDER IS WELCOME

The action of Premier Leslie Frost in ordering police to stop striking truck drivers from obstructing highway traffic will be received with almost universal approval.

Picketing, in any strike, is almost always the subject of controversy.

But there is all the difference in the world between picketing patrolling before a factory and pickets stopping vehicles on public highways.

Most of those people who would support the right of striikers to picket a plant will yet endorse Premier Frost's decision.

The stopping of trucks by pickets could create many hazards to other travellers on the highway, endangering life and property.

The Premier's order does not prevent the striking truck drivers from exercising the right to peacefully picket the premises occupied by trucking firms.

TRAINED BEAUTIES

Who trained your wife?

Oh, you think she's a stupid question and that any fool, or at least any married man, ought to know that wives are the trainers, not the trainees?

Well, we get your point, Buster, but you still think your wife is beautiful, don't you?

You do, but what has that got to do with who trained her? What's the matter, Buster, have you not been reading the newspapers?

Just pick up any paper, in any city which runs a beauty contest, and a little page-picking will reveal that the winner is always trained by this or that school for models.

No training, no beauty contest prizes. Now this could be a very nasty case of collusion between the selection of the contests and the operators of training schools for models. Could be, we said, but we don't believe that is so.

It just seems that people who judge beauty contests have a taste for the trained beauty. Which just goes to show you to what a pass we have come when a pretty girl, doing what comes naturally, has no chance of winning over another pretty girl who has studied the art of being beautiful under professional teachers.

About the only amateurs who are able to win top honors in beauty contests are those who enter the tiny tots who vie for attention with their cute sayings. And even some of them get prompted by their fond mammas.

FATAL LURE OF MINK

There seems to be something about the lowly mink which brings out the worst in people.

In the United States, when the scandals of the Truman administration, the mink coat has become the symbol of graft and corruption in high places. The appearance of even a mink shawl on a politician's wife is now enough to drive him from public life.

In Britain, this ill-omened fur seems to have a magnetic effect on burglars. Lord Chief Justice Goddard recently warned Britishers not to buy their wives mink coats. "It is extraordinary," he said, "how thieves find out about such things . . . You will not be able to sleep safely."

At this point, some mink will doubtless remark that all this lawlessness and moral decay could be avoided if people would just leave the mink coats on the mink. — (Edmonton Journal.)

WEATHER THOUGHT

Men seldom with their letter
Contentment "now."
When summer days are hot,
They long for snow.

When January storms
Go raging by,

They want the sun that warms
June and July.

Yet, every day is fair,
If rightly understood.
The summer heat we bear,
The winter cold, are good.

THE PACKSACK
By GREGORY CLARK

The role of a game warden is, have pampered strangers from cities like a policeman's not a happy one, especially as he often has to deal with the people in the hobby seasons and in the holiday mood. But there are compensations. There is a good deal of humor to be met with. Aldus Dube, a ship's captain who has been induced to function as an enforcement officer on part of the great Georgian Bay section of the Canadian Shield, encountered an Indian guide named Alex Nanebush with an American angler in his canoe. It was before the bass season was open, but Alex Nanebush was grieved to discover two bass on the stringer towed behind Alex's canoe.

The enforcement officer gravely asked Alex and the sportsman if they knew that the bass season was not open. Alex took command of the situation. With the customary broad smile of the Indian, and entirely unperturbed, Alex admitted he knew it, but that was not open.

"It is quite all right, Captain," he assured. "We weren't going to keep them. We were only going to eat them for lunch."

Settlers in the backwoods have but the most part a good humored if not humorous attitude towards the game laws. It is hard to persuade them that they have not a higher claim on the game that shares the wild with them than to the dogs.

When Butter Was Better
(By JOHN GOULD in the Christian Science Monitor)

The invitation for wives to deserve their husbands now seems to be an established technique in advertising margarine. It was amusing at first, but lately they've taken on a look of know-what, and the husband, a perfect dope, beaming with total delight as he gobbles some I-Can't-Imagine on a hot biscuit and thinks he's getting better.

Honestly, and fairly, I have no argument with spreads. I eat them if they get served to me, and I'm certain that their nourishment is high. I do have an argument with a social system that enforces right regulations, a system of farm activities, and then permits those regulations to be circumvented and shaky by giving competitors an unfair advantage, I also have a kind of moral objection to the word "color" campaign was waged—it was a deceptive one—and the conclusions were loaded.

Furthermore, I don't sympathize too much with the butter people, because they aren't really making much of a product anyway. I think this last is the point that needs clarity, and the one which readers of this column have back her husband.

It occurs to me that the poor fellow is the victim of poor butter, and not of good margarine. The basic status of butter is such that it isn't hard to find something better. It is, in fact, very hard to find a good butter, today, as is hard to find an Arrow shirt that hasn't been short of the Fifth Amendment.

As to color, the whole argument seems to be that butter is naturally colored, but it is colored yellow artificially to make it appear more of butter. Therefore, by some acrobatic maneuver of the intellect, margarine, which is naturally white, I've seen winter butter, when it was pale, and I've seen it when it was abegas, and swamp hay, that was approximately as yellow as it could be, and for those who need their country metaphors explained, last year I ate a hen's egg that was confused with colored margarine.

What has happened to butter is the same thing that has happened to a lot of the goodness of the past. Mass production has killed off the specialty, has given way to mass production and area marketing. With many things this is a boon, but with some things, including butter, we have merely swapped quality for reliability. Good butter is hard to find.

But I have seen butter, made with individual skill, which could stand up in company and make a loud speech full of invective and scorn. Good butter can be made, but a lot of people couldn't seem to make it. Once Ed Leeny walked 18 miles from his woods camp into Rangeley Village to buy five pounds of butter. The storekeeper weighed it out and said, There you are, Ed, five pounds—strong." Ed started to walk back into the woods and had gone about 13 miles when he got wind of a stout aroma, and suddenly realized what that last word meant. He found the butter inedible, and ate it by itself but the bears and woodchucks turned it down, and he finally used it to grease chainboots and things like that.

If the modern butter-grinding plant has learned the knack of the atrocities, so much the better and we should all be glad. But the modern butter-maker, and the dietitically, given us the best possible butter in exchange for it. Margarine butter is a thing of delight, worth going miles to acquire, and worth every penny it costs, and finally used it to grease chainboots and things like that

If the modern butter-grinding plant has learned the knack of the atrocities, so much the better and we should all be glad. But the modern butter-maker, and the dietitically, given us the best possible butter in exchange for it. Margarine butter is a thing of delight, worth going miles to acquire, and worth every penny it costs, and finally used it to grease chainboots and things like that

Butter, as butter should be, lovingly nursed out of cream, and satisfied (or left deliciously fresh) is a treat that you don't, if you know what's good for you, ever find in the you-can-guess. If you fool him, lady, it because you've been good about butter, and I'm here to say so from long and pleasant experience. Don't let him have that butter-makers.

Butter-makers are they? The art is perishing, and the butter crust has substituted its patent formula. One second looks and tastes like another, the year round, but the pan of milk at the back door, the cream on its rise, is now a gleaming laboratory, of white-tie and piped refrigerators, and the man who makes which husbands can't tell from the manufacturers of an alien trade. Alas that the pan is gone.

A husband is a matched-set now, and there's much to be thankful for. A wife is a conniving you know-what.

A lot of people, today, can't tell margarine from butter. But a lot of people, today, can't tell butter from butter, which I think is worse, still.

How to Become a Poet
(By Thomas Saunders in the Winnipeg Free Press)

I sometimes think there must be more aspiring poets in Canada than in any capitalist land in any other country in the world. Every so often I have to answer snobby bards, usually with a request to pass judgment on their efforts for the largest means of publication. This article is directed primarily to them.

There is always a danger in writing on a subject like this that the author might appear to be putting himself on a pedestal and presuming to speak with the voice of Olympian heights. In so far as I may, I should like to disclaim any such attempt or impression. Like the Apostle Paul presenting his credentials, I can only say, humbly say, "not as though I had already attained, either were already perfect: but I follow after . . ." Thus, while I may presume to write as a poet to other poets, I should also ask an apprentice to offer apprentices.

To begin with I think it needs to be said that the poetic muse is a demanding mistress. She does demands that the poet must first of all be a craftsman. The first requirements is there it has still to be harnessed.

It has long ago been pointed out that blank verse, which observes the rhythm of the spoken word, is the easiest to write badly and the hardest to write well. Therefore, beginners would usually free verse would do well to heed a similar warning. Free verse is not the complete master of his craft will sink in deceptively easy waters if he attempt on such a voyage without adequate preparation.

The best advice I can offer to a novice in poetry to start out by being an imitator. Begin with the simple lines of a poet like W.H. Davies and the complex lines of T.S. Eliot. There is no humiliation but, helpful experience.

Learn from that to, the sooner, I cannot think that anyone can write poetry of any value without working a long apprenticeship on this short but exacting form. Be patient with the poet in, as it were. It lays before him. Study its conventions and demands that he use them.

It is a discipline in its rhyme sequencing and insists that, the sum-total of fourteen lines, there must be a certain unity of theme. And every syllable must count. The poet who has to use padding to get his lines out has not mastered his craft. The true poet must practice a rigid economy of words and there is no finer discipline for this than a faithful apprenticeship on the note form.

After that, go back to the lyric poet now, instead of imitating the masters, try some rhyming exercises on your own. Don't pretend that if anyone follows the above suggestions he (or she) will become a poet overnight. I do not even pretend that he will become a poet. I am merely offering and only suggesting the lines along which a prospective poet may start his journey. It must be a journey which he learned by mind, and by heart and which breathes life into the craftsmanship, transmuting verse into poetry and craftsmanship into art.

Leave Leaves To the Lost
(Ottawa Journal)

Poetry not pedestrian prose was needed to describe that northland of lakes and forests where stranded geologists lived on "smoked, dried cranberry leaves."

The leaves have meant much to Canada with the Maple Leaf a respected and widely - recognized emblem, with leaves (mixed discordantly with tacks) the consolation of the pipe smoker far from a tobacco coupher, with leaves of gorgeous color unfolding in the landscape as Mardi Gras sprees in the fall.

But leaves of food were no part of the bewildering menu from these chosen for which escape the caterpillars in the garden. Mrs. Beeton, the domestic guide, —"had a nice tasty bit of elm for lunch"; "Mary dished up the leaves of the sow-thistle and cooked them like spinach"; "Jane would need to be boiled a bit more."

We can imagine the pots gathering leaves against the winter, storing them in a cool place in the backwoods, preparing all warm when babes lost in the wood use pots for covering. We can also imagine all the pundits who will write books about the leaves to be eaten and the leaves to be avoided, leading in due course to tasty diets for reducing and illustrations making feasts delectable by chosen and illustrations making feasts delectable by chosen colors.

One thing leading to another we look for the day when there will be crushed-leaf juice in cans, with notes on the label about the vitamin content. And mad with our own imaginings, we reached the stage where we could see a hag at her door inviting people in for a cup of hemlock. Whereupon we decided it might be best to leave the leaves, and the porcupines, for the poor unfortunates bereft in the barrens, compelled to eat leaves and distilling them very much.

Personal Health Talks

ALOHA TRISTAN DA CUNHA

Dr. Brady

We spent six weeks landing stores and troops to set up a Radar station on Tristan da Cunha during the war. The troops the doctor's wife and I were the only women on the island. There were wearing only the long white garments they wear on themselves. The inhabitants told us they had never suffered from the common cold. I wonder whether our people carried the germs to them. I'm sure you are an extremely busy man, but I suppose a radar station would be a mile, more or less, up on the rim of the island.

The women of the Isladn were ordinary dresses, looking quite attractive as you describe, yet nothing so nifty either. Their clothes, for the most part, looked like gift clothing.

When our ship anchored a few miles off shore and the natives came out in their four-oared boats to carry us ashore, we were disappointed, or at least I was, to find a certain drab dreariness about the ship's dentist opined, till those fine teeth go the way of all teeth in the same haphazard and rather "civilized" lands.

Then let's not talk about it anymore. Saddens me to think about it.

Aloha Tristan da Cunha.

MAKING FRIENDS

True friendships are like trees, not like mushrooms. They take a long time to reach maturity; they cannot grow into fullness over night. Those mushroom-like acquaintances which people mistake for friendships are about as substantial as mushrooms, too—and are likely to last about as long.

Lasting friendships are based on reality, not delusions. People who are to become and remain friends must eventually know each other very well. The early impressions that each formed of the other are gradually corrected. Thus the friendships that are formed too hastily on the basis of impressions come to an end as soon as they have put to the test of time.

True friendships demand something in common. They do not begin and grow because the people are identical, or even similar; they need not be alike, but those responsibilities or of the same political views. Yet there must be some common ground.

And this common ground is every important. The more important it is, the less secure the friendship is likely to be. The deepest and more significant it is, the stronger is the friendship will grow. Shared convictions about right and wrong, and religious faith,- however, lead to friendships that outlast life.

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TIE TO AN INTEREST

One reason why there are so many who look upon life as dull and uninteresting is that they have never wrapped themselves in an absorbing interest. The artist, bird lover, explorer, and their kind not only live happier for their interest in something big, but they inspire others to do likewise.

Robert Louis Stevenson said: "It is always a better policy to have an interest than to make a thousand dollars; for when you make the money, you have to spend it, and soon be spent, or perhaps you may feel no joy in spending it; but the interest remains inexhaustible and ever new."

Tie to an interest and your brain will not take a long nap! It will, on the contrary, be constantly growing and improving in power. It will look out upon an enlarged world. It will have friendships, and a source of property that will not follow the path of the stock market—up today, down tomorrow.

You invest in happiness when you take on an interest. You store wealth which you can draw on in safer and more permanent than that represented by dollars! In some bank vault. And there are no thieves to worry about. It's wealth and everlasting life that comes to those proverbial "treasures in Heaven."

You keep alive when you have an absorbing interest. People know you are alive. You augment your influence. You keep leaving something behind you. People with a worthwhile interest have rich memories. They remember them and help to make this a better and happier world. So, tie to an interest—and you are as near it as it pleases and inspires you.

Tie to an interest and your brain will not take a long nap! It will, on the contrary be constantly growing and improving in power. It will look out upon an enlarged world. It will have friendships, and a source of property that will not follow the path of the stock market—up today, down tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. George Bamber Wed 50 Years

Congratulatory messages from Prime Minister St. Laurent and from Ontario's premier Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy were received by Mr. and Mrs. George V. Bamber of Frankford on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary. The couple are shown cutting their anniversary cake.

Family Reunion and Dinner Held on Golden Anniversary

The recipe for a long happy married life, according to George V. Bamber, of Frankford, is "Trust in God, good care from the missus, and good family relations."

It was a real family reunion at the Bamber household on the fateful day; when all but one of their nine children were home to pay tribute to their father and mother. There was a big family dinner at the town hall in Frankford and during the afternoon and evening the couple received "at home" to a wide circle of friends and acquaintances.

Take Holiday Trip

This week Mr. and Mrs. Bamber left with their son, Earl, for a month's holiday in Corunna, Michigan. A staunch Liberal in politics, Mr. Bamber said his only regret in taking the holiday was that he would lose his vote in the forthcoming federal election.

Former residents in the 5th concession of Sidney township, Mr. and Mrs. Bamber have lived in Frankford for the past nine years. Since that time until three years ago Mr. Bamber followed his early life trade of a blacksmith in the shop at the Sata Shoe factory. Before retiring up farming 40 years ago he had worked as a blacksmith in Frankford, and Miss Myrtle Rose, of Toronto, sister of Mrs. Bamber.

Tells Jehovah's Witnesses They Should be Tactful

The movement, the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society, which is leading its 165,000-member assembly at Yankee Stadium, has often been beset by legal difficulties.

Some 125,000 Witnesses in and around the stadium and at a meeting ground in Roy Mace, N.J., heard the society's general counsel, Hayden C. Covington, in person or by special leased wire.

"Jehovah is our God, a lawgiver and a law-giver," Covington said. "His servants should honor that fact and know their rights . . . and also how to use them, and not hinder them and fail to be found fighting."

Like Abraham, he said, witnesses may be strangers and aliens, and in lands not of their kind; they are looked upon in such places, he warned, they do not mean the same rights as citizens and should leave any fighting to local "brothers" who are.

"I don't think you should extend into a lobe and do fighting," he said. "But be kind. What you can do . . . insist on your rights. We'll be on course as servants if we insist on honest dealings."

The next battle to a hostile world, Covington said, is a belief in the literal truth of the Bible.

Butler Says Britain Still Hopes for Big 4 Conference

LONDON (CP) — British still hers conference in Washington showed that both Britain and the U.S. consider the maintenance of an effective base in the Suez canal area is essential "in the interests of world peace."

2. Britain is "willing to resume negotiations" on the future of the Suez canal "whenever the Egyptian government is ready to do so."

3. Britain is "vigorously" carrying out the United Nations' resolution of May, 1951, barring export of strategic goods to China. But it remained the government's policy to develop trade in non-strategic goods that such trade was of advantage to the free world.

4. There had been some disappointment expressed in Britain that the Washington conference resulted only in a proposal for a Big Four foreign ministers' conference with Russia instead of a meeting of the top leaders. Prime Minister Churchill himself was among the factors that prevented a move at this time for talks at the highest level.

Germany Big Problem

"The key problem in Europe and for international relations until the Soviet Union is the problem of Germany," Butler said.

He added that before the German problem can be settled there must be a free German government able to negotiate a peace treaty and decide its own international relations.

Cost of Election Will Set Record At 7 Millions

OTTAWA (CP) — It's going to cost a record amount to run the next federal election — probably in the neighborhood of $7,000,000.

Of this, some $5,300,000 will come out of the public treasury. The political parties and their supporters will spend $1,500,000 or more.

By far the biggest amount will be the official cost of the election and the preliminary work, which will be up from the $4,250,000 figure of the 1949 voting. This is because there are additional constituences and unit charges for almost every kind of electoral work are up.

Party Costs

On the political side, party spending is hard to pin down, but indications are that both big parties will be putting out more than $500,000 apiece with the CCF and Social Credit spending considerably less.

Rough and unauthoritative guesses are that the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives will spend around $600,000 apiece or more — the Liberals' quite a bit more — and the CCF between $200,000 and $250,000. The Canadian Congress of Labor probably will throw about $2,000 into the CCF pot, and the Social Credit group will spend a relatively modest sum, amount unknown.

Spokesmen for all groups say it is impossible to determine now how much each will spend. Apart from national budgets—in some cases the smallest part of the spending—there are expenditures by provincial and local organizations and by the individual candidates.

Costs Higher

Aside from the political spending, costs are up in the normal government job of running an election. The printing and enumerating each elector is up, and the number of electors also is higher in an ex tra federal record of some 2,500,000.

An additional expenditure not provided in the 1953 election cost is that of the office of the chief electoral officer—Nelson Castonguay—which will run about $350,000. He works between elections but the election time expands his staff to about 60, where it stands now.

Ottawa Board Opposes Canadian 'Pentagon' Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ottawa board of control Tuesday opposed a Canadian plan to build a national defence headquarters on a federal site, instead proving ground on the Montreal road six miles east of the centre of the city.

Controller Charlotte Whitton said the headquarters building would be a "Canadian Pentagon" that would be beyond contemplated limits for expansion of municipal services.

The board's letter said provision of a new headquarters building for the defence department is becoming "more and more urgent." Officers of the department now are located in 26 different buildings in Ottawa.

WORKER DROWNS

FIND BONE, HAIR, MILLION

Many Bear Tracks

The whole area was covered with fresh bear tracks, and informants said the hairs reported found after the sight of the rifle being examined by Dr. Roussel, might have stuck to it if he pushed or dragged a body and the rifle along the ground.

Sgt. Henri Dupuy, who heads the 15-man team of searchers, said the bone unearthed Tuesday was apparently part of a leg bone between the knee and ankle. It appeared to belong to the remains found earlier.

Earlier Trapper

Earlier Tuesday police came across yellow and red chocolate wrappers in what is thought to have been the campers' first camp.

Aided by Trapper

The search party was aided Tuesday by Wilbert Coffin, the 30-year-old trapper, who is said to have been the last to see the three Americans.

Coffin told police he originally met the hunters about four miles from the spot where the bones have been found. The Americans' boat had stalled and he drove the Lindsey youth to Gaspe to buy a new fuel pump. On their return three days later he told him they were going on to hunt bear.

Coffin said he saw no trace of the Americans when he returned two days later.

Tuesday night, officials said bones discovered by Game Warden Fred Dubois in the ashes of a camp fire Monday now were thought to be ordinary beef bones, and not human.

Semyonov's note was his second to the United States in five days. He charged Saturday that U. S. planes had dropped "enemy" leaflets on two Russian military airbases in East Germany. There has been no formal reply but U. S. officials described that story as nonsense.

Angered by Market

Semyonov's wrath today centred on the relief market set up last week in West Berlin's Kreuzberg borough by Mayor Willy Kressmann. It dispensed milk, potatoes, and fruits to 25,000 Soviet sector residents at one-fifth the normal cost. It was replaced this week by larger similar projects operating in seven West Berlin boroughs.

Semyonov contended the Kreuzberg low-cost market was staffed by "Fascist agents in the disguise of food vendors and was shut down because of the mass protests of West Berlin unemployed and the populace of East Berlin."

The note charged that the food centres were set up to woo East Germans while millions of West German "go hungry." Semyonov said West Germany had more than 1,500,000 unemployed "while in the German Democratic Republic and East Berlin unemployment does not exist."

Fire Damages North Star

OTTAWA (CP)—A $200,000 RCAF North Star used for carrying freight was almost destroyed by fire Tuesday at Rockcliffe air station.

The flames broke out as the aircraft was being loaded with provisions for a flight to Goose Bay, Labrador.

Chinese Attack South Koreans At Five Points

SEOUL (AP)—Some 1,000 Chinese Communists, attacking along a five-mile front, today hit five South Korean positions in the Kumsong sector of east central Korea, the scene of last week's big Red assaults.

In the air, U.S. Sabre jets shot down three Russian MIG jets in sky battles just before the U.S. 5th air force announced.

Today's attacks followed seven days of the greatest attack were against the South Korean front at two other points the Chinese drove back early off last positions, then turned back in the face of fierce South Korean counter-attacks.

Weddings

BAYNE—WATSON

A wedding of wide interest took place on Friday, July 3, at the Canadian Embassy, in Tokyo, Japan, when the Reverend R. J. Heasmer united in marriage Evelyn Catherine Watson, of Tokyo, formerly of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. K. F. Watson, of Belleville, to Flight Lieutenant Thomas Nigel Malcolm Bayne, of the R.A.F. Volunteer Reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Bayne, South Park St., Belleville. The ceremony, at the Embassy was preceded with blue and white hydrangeas, white gladioli and ferns forming a lovely background for the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by the Honorable H. W. Mayhew, Canadian ambassador, of Victoria, B.C., wore an entrancing gown of white shantung, featuring a shawl collar and three-quarter sleeves, full flared skirt over crinoline. She carried a bouquet of white lilies and gardenias.

Miss Elizabeth M. Burpee, of Penticton, B.C., attended the bride, attired in sea blue shantung made on similar lines to that of the bride, with three-quarter sleeves. She wore a white picture hat, and carried a bouquet of yellow flowers.

Lieutenant Gerald C. Stokes, U.S.A.F., of Houston, Texas, attended the bridegroom.

The reception was held at the Canadian Embassy, Tokyo, where Mrs. R. W. Mayhew, wife of the Canadian ambassador, received, wearing blue and pink taffeta.

For the wedding trip to Karuizawa, Japan, the bride chose a navy blue Swiss piqué suit with white accessories. Flight Lieutenant and Mrs. Bayne will reside on the continent.

GRAVES—CALBURY

A lovely double-ring wedding ceremony was solemnized on Saturday, July 4, at 2:00 p.m., at 223 West Moira Street, when Miss Sylvia Helen Calbury, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Calbury, of Belleville, was united in marriage to Edward Lorne Graves, of Belleville, son of Mrs. D. Graves. The Rev. Keith Daniel, minister of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, officiated beneath an archway, beautifully decorated for the occasion with streamers in curtain effect, while wedding bells, white tall standards of summer flowers adorned the simulated altar with the archway and flanked the sides.

Mrs. M. Grey, of Plainfield, provided the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in white nylon net over satin, fashioned with an all-over Chantilly lace redingote with long, close-fitting sleeves ending in wrapping over the back of the hands. The full skirt fell in graceful, floor length folds. A coronet encrusted with rhinestones held her fingertip veil, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses. A rhinestone necklace and white satin slippers completed her ensemble.

Miss Greta Calbury, of Belleville, sister of the bride, was her only attendant, gowned in blue nylon net over satin, with pink pearl headdress and carrying a nosegay of pink roses.

Mr. Robert Graves, of Peterborough, attended his brother, and Messrs. Leonard Graves, Lee Graves, and Douglas Graves, all brothers of the bridegroom, acted as ushers.

The reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's mother, where the bride's mother, attired in mauve taffeta, with corsage of yellow roses, received the many guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in pale blue sheer over taffeta, with white accessories, and corsage of yellow roses.

The bride's table was delightfully appointed with white carnations, centred by a three-tiered, mirrored cake, topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom, and flanked by tall pink candles in silver holders. A buffet luncheon was served.

Those who served, Mrs. J. Milner, Miss Marion Yager, Mrs. C. Peacock, Mrs. C. Cooke, Mrs. G. Bennett.

For travelling, the bride chose a navy blue suit with corsage of yellow roses. Mr. and Mrs. Graves will reside in Trenton.

WELLMAN—SINE

Blue and white delphiniums, pink roses, white hydrangeas and potted plants formed a pretty background at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Sine, Halloway, on Saturday, July 11, at 2:30 p.m., when their daughter, Irene, became the bride of Fred Robert Wellman, of Corbyville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Wellman. The Rev. H. W. Giffin officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her bridal gown of ivory satin fashioned with molded bodice of net and lace embroidered with pearls, and long sheath-like sleeves, pointed over the hands. The satin skirt was accented by nylon net overskirts. She carried a white, leather bound Bible, the gift of the minister, and his wife, at St. Ola, crested with white carnations and satin streamers.

Mrs. Ronald Kelly, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor, wearing blue sheer with matching headdress, and carrying a sheaf of crimson, Sweetheart roses.

Little Miss Doreen Sine, niece of the bride, was flower girl, demure in her pale green silk frock with apron of green net. She wore a matching headdress, and carried a nosegay of summer flowers.

Mr. Ronald Kelly, of Foxboro, attended the bridegroom.

Following the wedding luncheon, at which the bride's mother received, wearing a colored nylon and corsage of bronze carnations, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in blue flowered sheer with organdie corsage, the young couple left for Jersey City, New Jersey and other points, the bride wearing a red, shot silk ensemble with white accessories.

Successful D.V.B.S. Held at Foxboro

Friday night terminated an animated and successful Daily Vacation Bible School with a program relative to the work and study of the preceding week. The three rooms of the public school and the auditorium of the United Church were used for a daily attendance of over 100 of Foxboro and the surrounding areas. The main divisions of the school consisted of worship, Bible and missionary study, recreation, music and handicrafts.

The beginners were under the direction of Miss Lois Benedict, assisted by Mrs. Kee Denyes, Mrs. W. Chapell and Miss Dorothy Benedict, and the primary group under the direction of Mrs. Stan Hayton assisted by the Misses Joan McCurdy and Jean Hamilton.

The intermediates were directed by Mrs. E. W. Giffin assisted by Mrs. R. B. Finkle and Miss Ruth Brimstead and the senior group was directed by the Rev. H. W. Giffin, assisted by Corporal Warren Bakenhus, Airborne Division of the American Air Force.

Music and recreation leaders were, Misses Ruth Brimstead and Joan McCurdy. Mrs. George Priest assumed the roll of registrar, secretary and treasurer.

At the close of the concert, the handicraft work was displayed in each of the rooms and each student was allowed to take home the best of their various accomplishments.

Mr. Giffin acted as chairman and in his remarks he pointed out that the value of such a school was comparable to over six months of regular church school. He warmly thanked the leaders, assistants and those responsible for the success of the school, especially those who had furnished time and transportation to such a busy season of the year.

Many Friends Honor Young Couple With Useful Gifts

A most pleasant evening was spent, recently, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Rose, Consecon, when about 70 friends and neighbors gathered there to honor their daughter, Betty, and her husband, Wayne Demille.

A social evening was much enjoyed and Mr. Earl Dafoe was chairman for a program which started with a sing-song led by Mr. Carman Dafoe with Mrs. Willard Sills at the piano. John Reynolds favored with a solo on his electric guitar, followed by a piano solo by Ruth Linton; a vocal solo, "A Wedding Prayer", by Jean Lorion and a piano solo by Beverly Gow, of Plainfield.

An address, signed on behalf of the community by Mrs. Merle Robinson, Kathleen Homan, Mrs. Earl Dafoe and Marguerite Hicks was read by Kathleen Homan, expressing regret at losing Betty from the neighborhood and giving her and Wayne the congratulations and wishes of all as they set up their new home in Belleville.

The happy couple were the recipients of many lovely shower presents of linen, silver and glassware and kitchen utensils for which both Betty and Wayne suitably acknowledged the many gifts. Mrs. Sills led in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows".

Refreshments of sandwiches, cakes and coffee were served. Ice cream furnished by the charivari party of friends, arrived and brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

Beets Are Nice Fresh or Frozen

Everyone is interested in vegetables these days. The farmer is busy delivering vegetables to the market and the retailer displays the farmer's produce in a most attractive manner so that homemakers will buy.

Early summer beets are a sort of two-in-one vegetable for if the beets are small enough, the tops best tops may be cooked separately and served as a green. Be sure to buy a bunch or two of beets the next time you shop.

Choose beets that are smooth and free from blemishes. Watch to see that they are not rough or cut lengthwise in strips. They must be blanched before freezing just like any other vegetable. The blanching time for beets is three minutes. After they are blanched they must be cooled quickly in ice water, drained and packed dry in freezer cartons or bags.

North America, beans were grown and eaten by the Indians. When the white man arrived, he ate these green pods and loved them. Of course the beans he ate were tough and stringy compared to our many beans. During the last few years, agriculturists have developed the broder, stringless snap beans we enjoy so much today. Green beans are one of our favorite frozen vegetables and now is the time for the lucky people who have facilities to freeze some to enjoy next winter. Be sure to choose beans which are fresh, crisp, tender and stringless and that snap readily when broken. It is best to use pods that have immature seeds because if the seeds are large and almost completely grown the beans will be tough and woody.

Green or wax beans may be frozen whole, sliced crosswise or cut lengthwise in strips. They must be blanched before freezing just like any other vegetable. The blanching time for beans is three minutes. After they are blanched they must be cooled quickly in ice water, drained and packed dry in freezer cartons or bags.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He Talked Too Much and Too Fast

A tremendous amount of trouble could be neatly side-stepped in this world if young men would only not be in such a hurry to say all I love you." If they had the will power to control their tongues—no matter how softly the moon shines and no matter how utterly irresistible the girl looks—until they were absolutely sure of themselves there would be far fewer broken hearts and a great many more happy marriages.

A typical example of a young man who, talked too much, too soon, appears in the letter I am about to quote. Twenty-five years old, an executive, well educated, from the start, and is now facing the extremely uncomfortable fact that during his period in service he said "I love you - Will you marry me?" at least once too often, probably twice. And the worst of it is, that he thinks now that he is engaged in both cases.

Here's the story it all happened. Just after I entered the army, I met a very nice girl who lived in the town where the base where I was stationed. We only knew each other a few weeks because I was then transferred to another base, but in that time we fell very much in love and decided we would marry after my discharge. That wasn't going to be for at least two years, but we were sure that it was real love and would last. Although I haven't seen her since then, she still writes to me every day, and up until about six months ago, I still planned to marry her.

"But after I got back home, I met another girl, and she's the sweetest kids in the world. At once I seemed to see that I couldn't go on with the first girl, so I stopped writing. In a very short time, I knew I loved this second girl, and wanted to marry her, and I told her so. She said she loved me, too. Talked Too Much Too Soon

"Now comes the crazy part. It's that even though I really do love this second girl, I can't seem to forget the first one. So I started writing to her again, and made up some excuse for having stopped as she wouldn't get wise, because I was beginning to think maybe she was the one I really wanted after all. I told the second girl, and she was very understanding. She decided it would be all right to keep seeing each other just on a friendly basis, because the other girl lives clear across the country from where I am now.

"But that didn't work either, because I found that every time I saw her, I liked her more and more. It could be the real thing with us, all right, but it doesn't seem fair to the girl who has waited so long. Besides, maybe she really is the right one for me, in so many ways. I don't know what I ought to do or even what I want to do, and I thought maybe you could help me."

Like thousands of others in the same circumstances, this particular young man didn't know when to keep his mouth shut. Instead, he talked too much and too fast.

Having done this, what he must needs to do now is to keep still awhile. But, first, he should speak not just once more, and that time to the first girl. He should write and tell her that he's very unsure of himself, and that he knows it would be very unfair to her to marry her while he is so confused. Of course she'll be hurt. But somebody is always hurt when another person fails to keep his mouth shut at the right moment. Besides, the hurt she'll feel at this point won't be nearly as hard to bear as if he delays, lets her keep on thinking all is well, and later lets her down without warning.

After that he should make up his mind very firmly that he will not tell any girl he loves her for at least a year. He should give himself time for his uncertainty and confusion to subside before committing himself anywhere. He can well afford to do this, since he's plenty young enough to wait a little longer for marriage. And he'll certainly be in far better position to make a wise decision later on than he is at this bewildered moment.

Unfortunate as the whole situation is, he should not add to his own distress by blaming himself too much. Young men in service

A Man's Meal

Danish Goulash
Max's Mashed Potatoes
Salad Greens with French Dressing
Fresh Cherry Pie
Coffee (and plenty of it)

Directions:

As I type this the temperature is at 70 deg. Fahr. It is early morning and I'm thinking about you, we will have for dinner in the Moore household tonight. I hope it is just such a clear cool day when you read this, for it is a hot meal for hungry folk—especially big hg-man just home from a hard day's work.

To make this meal a success —and different as it is supposed to be—you have to add some little extras, so read the recipe and see that you have all of the ingredients on your pantry shelf. Bay leaves and garlic and celery seed and paprika will have to be added, so don't hesitate to provide yourself with them. It is a great effort to know they are on hand when you want to give your cooking some exotic flavor.

Your men will not only enjoy eating this dinner, but there are some masculine readers in this audience who would enjoy making it.

Danish Goulash

Two lbs. top round steak cut 1-inch thick, 3 tbsps. butter (4 tablespoons), 1-6 teaspoon pepper, 2 1-2 teaspoons salt, 4 medium onions, 2 cups cold water, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, 4 bay leaves, 4 tablespoons flour, 2 tablespoons cold water. Cut the thin steak into very small 1-4-inch cubes. Melt the butter in your large frying pan, add the meat and season with the pepper and 2 teaspoons of the salt. Cover and sear quickly, to seal the juices into the meat cubes. Meanwhile peel and slice the onions wafer thin. (The onions should be evident when this dish is finished so they must be sliced very thin. They are only present for flavor.) Add them to the seared meat and continue browning until onions are limp and golden. Then add the 3 cups cold water, the sugar, the remaining 1-3 teaspoon salt and the bay leaves. Cover and simmer for 1 hour. Stir the flour into the 4 tablespoons cold water, and stir this paste into the meat until thick. Remove the bay leaves. When done this is poured over a mound of mashed potatoes in centre of hot platter. Make a depression in the potatoes so that most of the meat is held in this well. Garnish with parsley generously.

Max's Mashed Potatoes

Nine medium-sized potatoes, 1-3 small bud garlic grated, 1 teaspoon olive oil (or salad oil or butter), 2 tablespoons butter, 1-8 teaspoon paprika, 1-4 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 1-4 teaspoon celery seed, 1-2 cup light cream or top milk. Pare and cook whole potatoes in salted boiling water until tender. Drain, then shake over low heat to dry them. Mash until all lumps are gone. Sauté the grated garlic in the olive oil and butter in a deep saucepan until golden brown. Add the paprika, salt pepper, celery seed and mashed potatoes. Beat over very low heat with a spoon gradually adding the cream until the potatoes are light and fluffy. Pile lightly on a hot platter and pour goulash over as described above.

Fresh Cherry Pie

Line deep pie plate with rich pastry. Wash, stem and pit enough sour cherries to make 4 cups, drain thoroughly. Together mix 2 tablespoons either flour or cornstarch, 1 cup sugar, 1-8 teaspoon salt and if desired 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg or cinnamon. When this is well mixed, fill halfthe cherries and pour into lined pie plate. Dot with 1 tablespoon butter. Cover with well-gashed top crust and seal edges carefully. Brush top with mixture of 1 tablespoon each sugar and milk, and bake for 1 hr. 15 min. about 40 minutes. Do not cut this pie while it is hot, if you must use some after it is baked because flow; to 3 1-2 tablespoons.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMESON

The Cosmetic Value Of A Smile

A plain woman is considered beautiful by her loved ones.

Probably the best insurance against wrinkles, better even than the most expensive cosmetics, is a sweet disposition. If you have that, you not only have inner peace but you've gone a long way toward oiling the wheels of your life.

When women analyze what they say, how they behave and what they think have much to do with a pleasing appearance, they'll get down to brass tacks and ask themselves questions. Reflections in the mind may be more revealing than those in the looking glass. Mental characteristics stamp themselves upon the feminine face, may even affect the lines of the body. The brave woman stands erect, ready to face whatever comes along in the way of disappointments and disillusionment. The cowardly one slinks, throws her shoulders forward, loses the graceful lines of her younger days.

If a woman indulges in nagging and she will develop the nagger's face. She gets a refrigerated gleam her bee eye and develops a hard, determined jaw line. Nagging never wins; better an armistice and peace in the house.

Observe the social graces of the woman who knows how to avoid conflict and arguments. She sidesteps every budding controversy with tactful words or just slips out of the way until the atmosphere has cleared. She knows that anger and other unpleasant emotions take a toll of health as well as good looks because they tie the nervous system into knots and knotted nerves have a deplorable effect upon some of the organs of the body, especially the digestive motors.

If no one were to offer a prayer to the goddess of pulchritude it should be for strength and wisdom to help one to be tolerant, to avoid snobbishness, to behave in a natural, gracious manner, to keep one's private worries and troubles to oneself, so one will not bore other people with them.

Also to have sympathy and understanding for one's fellow creatures, to live courageously and splendidly each day no matter whether fine weather or foul, to help the kids fight or the dog runs away.

You may fancy that all that talk about inner loveliness is old hat, but don't be too sure. Many a plain woman is considered beautiful by those who love her and in their eyes she is beautiful.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

Her Servicewoman To Return, Their Apartment Is Completely Furnished

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Thank Heaven my husband is due home within the next two months, after service overseas! We were married before he left, and since the wedding plans had to be made hurriedly, I had no showers given for me, no pre-wedding festivities. Most of our wedding presents were gifts of money from our relatives and most intimate friends, and I have saved that money to add to my husband's savings to begin our new home. At long last!

1. I have read several times in your column about Housewarmings and I wonder if this would be a proper case, as we plan to rent an apartment for the time being—or does this mean that only bride-to-boys or rents a house?

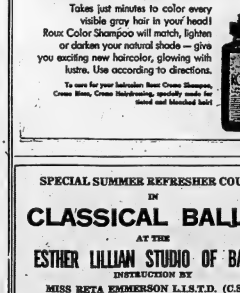
2. If this would be proper, how soon after his return should this be given? Must our apartment be completely furnished?

Kate R.

1. Indeed it would be a nice and a wonderful idea too, for you and your husband to give a Housewarming in honor of your "Home Sweet Home" just as soon as you can possibly plan it. The "house" in "Housewarming" does not apply only to a house-home . . . a "Housewarming" is given to welcome friends to a new "home," whether it be a house or an apartment, even a one-room apartment.

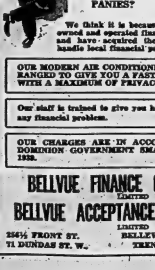
2. I'd love to have you and your husband give that "Happy Housewarming just as soon as you possibly can. As a matter of fact, I'd like to have you think of it as a delightful Two-Purpose Party . . . "Welcome Home," and Welcome-to-Our-Home." Before Your Man returns you'll probably be able to find out about rental-possibilities, then be able to decide soon after his return . . . then start your furnishings, and give the Housewarming. Usually it is expected that the home be completely furnished before the Housewarming is given . . . but under your circumstances this wouldn't be expected . . . and I hope you'll receive many useful Housewarming presents!

Her Cousin To Be The Officiating Clergyman



Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My fiance and I are planning to be married in a small town in a nearby state by my cousin, who is a minister. I am going to wear a street-length dress. Under these circumstances would it be proper for me to send invitations to relatives and friends, or would marriage announcements be best form? If you advise that we send announcements, would it be proper to include on them "The ceremony was performed by the Reverend W.A. Smith, cousin of the bride"? Otherwise I would be afraid that our relatives and friends would not know who the minister is.



N.

In these circumstances it would appear far-fetched, inappropriate, to send invitations. The perfect plan would be to send formal announcements of your marriage, giving the date, of course, and the name of the town and state where the marriage took place. And while it would not be good form to include the statement you suggest, it is excellent form to include the name of the church in which the marriage was performed:

said Rhee made "actually no" to his talks with assistant Secretary of State Walter Bedell Smith. They were aimed at the South Korean President's release.

He said the major problem facing "real peace" was the withdrawal of Chinese communists and Soviet forces from Korea after a political conference is to open "and thus establish a basis for another 90 days for the Russians and Reds to agree to leave Korea. If they don't meet the deadline, he said, South Korea will follow its "own course of action."

I must say that we have confidence in United States either to joining with us military operations or accompanying our withdrawal or to promise to give us all said material support in our effort to carry on our fight unilaterally," Rhee said.

Will U.S. Approve?

The South Korean president said he was awaiting approval from Washington of agreements made by Robertson in the secret talks here this month.

"South Korea is trying to co-operate all we can," Rhee said, but the United States holds the bridle over destiny for survival, and cannot regard the understanding blindly."

Rhee said he promised neither to agree to unification by obstructing peace or to withdraw his acceptance of Washington approves his understanding with Robertson.

In the agreements, Rhee said he had abide by the terms of the notice for an unstated period of time.

If President

In return, the United States agreed to negotiate a mutual defence pact with South Korea. It was pointed that the United States also would work out of the political conference and to confer further with South Korea after 90 days if progress had been made toward giving Korea aid to the Reds by refusal to be using the conference for their own ends.

Rhee said in his statement, "I am informed that some (U. S.) leaders have declared the United States could not agree" to a mutual security pact. He said it also appeared possible the Senate will adopt its present session before it will act on the treaty.

State Secretary John Foster Dulles said in Washington Tuesday that Congressional action on a security pact would not be sent to the Senate at this session. This would delay it at least until January Senate confirmation of an agreement.

Rhee Confused

"The more we try to co-operate," Rhee declared bitterly, "the more confused we are getting to be. However, we are still trying to co-operate all we can."

Rhee said, in written answers to reporters' questions, that the reason behind the recent heavy Red attacks on ROK forces were "two fold."

"First, they want to push ahead as far as they can into territory that is more advantageous to them. They will be in a good position to answer their aggression at any time they choose . . . .

"Second of the attacks have been launched for psychological effect. They want the world to know it is not they who are tired of this war and want to end it . . . The appearance of victory can be as important as victory itself . . . ."

Rhee asked:

Two Further Attacks

"If the communists can make such attacks upon us without in any way disturbing the arrangement for a truce, how much aggression will we have to endure after the truce is signed? . . . .

"We have done our part to show the willingness to co-operate with the United States and postponed our determination to get the Chinese Red troops out of Korea before the signing of an armistice. But this was a conditional agreement. If the United Nations does not consider our desire for survival, we cannot regard the understanding as binding on us."

Predicted by Reds

Before Rhee made his statement, the Communist Peiping radio said the South Korean president was contemplating a step which would nullify Allied assurances there would be no time limit on the truce.

Meanwhile, at Panmunjom, Allied and communist staff officers continued their meetings aimed at clearing away remaining truce details.

Communist labor troops worked to complete the stranded building in which the historic document will be signed.

Peiping radio said an armistice liaison officers meeting—concluded Tuesday—"only managed to work out the last administrative details." They Must Patrol

North Korea's Pyongyang radio hinted what it said were the last four minor matters to be settled:

1. Final translations of the truce documents into Korean, Chinese and English.

2. Revision of the truce line.

3. Minute details about the truce itself.

4. Assurances from the UN about the security of Indian troops who will guard Red prisoners who refuse repatriation to their Communist homelands.

The Communists have said that the question of Indian troops entering Korea to guard prisoners must be settled before a truce is signed.

Under terms of the truce draft, Indian troops would take over guarding 34,500 Chinese and 8,000 North Korean PoWs who refuse repatriation.

Bloodshed Threatened

South Korean government leaders have threatened bloodshed if Pyongyang land in South Korea. Rhee maintains India is pro-communist.

A compromise proposal, reported to be already satisfactory to the communists, would provide for the transfer of the unwilling captives from prison camps in South Korea to a buffer zone. The Indian guards would land in North Korea near Kaesong and proceed to the buffer zone without setting foot on South Korean soil.

DREW SAYS

Later, at Shawinigan Falls, Mr. St. Laurent said the Progressive Conservatives are in "in full rout" as a national party.

Urges Health Plan

At Windsor, Ont., Mr. Coldwell said countries with fewer resources than Canada already have national health plans.

"The number of maternal deaths at childbirth is a reflection on this country," he said. "Small countries like Norway, Sweden, Denmark and New Zealand all stand ahead of us in that index of health and care." The CCF is advocating a national health-insurance scheme.

Cost of such a plan should be borne by those who could afford it.

"On the man with high unearned income I would inflict the biggest tax he could pay until he did something useful," Mr. Coldwell said. "It is time that those who live on the backs of those who work should be made to pay a yearly fair share of the shot in the financing of this country."

Mounting Spooks

Mr. Manning, in a five-minute radio broadcast from Edmonton, said Albertans would no more think of going back to a Liberal or Conservative government "under any name than they would of going back to camels or buggies.

Albertans had shown the same "spirit of independence" in the federal field by returning Social Credit members. Each year a strong group of Social Credit members were not "tied to the cart wheels of political orthodoxy," was sent to Ottawa. About the only arguments Liberals and Progressive Conservatives would advance for electors not sending Social Credit members to Parliament was that the party's 20 candidates "elected could not form a government.

"This does not mean that Social Credit would sacrifice its principles to be party to any form of coalition government. But if neither old-line party has an over-all majority, a small group of Social Crediters may well have the controlling voice in the next federal parliament."

Ministers Campaign

Five cabinet ministers were campaigning in Ontario Tuesday night.

At Erin, Immigration Minister Harris said increased immigration and investment in Canada "are due directly to the reaction of the outside world to Canadian confidence.

At Galt, Health Minister Martin said Canada needs the experience of Mr. St. Laurent and R. B. Peason, external affairs minister, in her international relations.

At Peterborough, Mr. Pearson said a Korean truce will not solve the problem of the free world's relations with Communist Asia. The next four years would be "years of destiny" which the most important problem would be peace in the Far East.

At Burlington, Trade Minister Howe contended that the Liberals have proved their ability to govern by dealing successfully with every major crisis of the last 18 years.

At Bradford, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said there is no point in Canadian farmers trying to increase sales to Britain if they would receive less for their produce than on the domestic market. The American and Canadian markets now were the best agricultural markets in the world for Canadian farmers.

Hits Fairwage

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative Member of the last Commons for Peel, said at Strathroy, Ont.: "Government appointments across the country, outside the civil service, are being given only to Liberals. Non-government supporters have become second-class Canadians. The present government is out of joint and lop-sided. It has become careless and indifferent and throws its weight around. It is fat with power. It doesn't feel that it is accountable to anyone."

Today, Mr. St. Laurent campaigns in Quebec's Saguenay valley and Mr. Howe in that province's Eastern Townships. Mr. Coldwell will be at Toronto.

GILMORE

"They've carried the body over," he said. "We were amazed. It wasn't any huge and shiny Zil, or any super-plus hearse. Just an ordinary looking closed body truck. It was blue."

"Are you sure?"

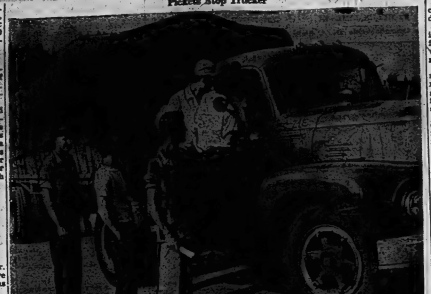
"Of course," he said. "It came slowly up past the stables. Past the embassy, backed up to the Hall of Columns and they took out the coffin."

"Who's they?"

"How would I know?" Mr. said. "Seven or eight guys."

Seven or eight guys. An ordinary truck. What was happening?

Coffin Opened



The yellow cdrpse in the fawn-colored semi-military jacket, the hands stretched out stiffly, parallel with the lines of his body. The rouged cheeks. The enlarged nostrils of the dictator as you looked at him from the position of his feet. Those surprisingly delicate hands and tapered fingertips.

The almost scornful look of this very tough man. A look taken into death.

And hundreds upon hundreds of curious stares from the Russian people who couldn't get near this man when he was alive. Now they could. The great leveller had come by. And they saw for themselves that Joseph Stalin died just as other mortals do. A man's life had ended, and an era had ended.

RAWDON

About 400 Attend Parsonage Board Lawn Social

RAWDON. — On Friday evening, the parsonage Board of the Rawdon United Church circuit, held its third annual lawn social on the school grounds at Wellman's.

The evening was ideal and almost 400 people were in attendance. This included folks from the circuit and visitors from Toronto, Sandringbrook, English Line, Trenton, Havelock, Burnhare, Carmel, Stirling and other points.

There were about 270 paid admissions and complimentary tickets were given the band members who entertained, the two ball teams and tug-of-war teams. All public school children were admitted free.

The fifteen members of Havelock renowned pipe band, dressed in kilts, delighted the audience with Scottish music, and the skirl of the pipes, as the group marched about the spacious lawn, made delightful entertainment.

Ball Games

There were two ball games, Wellman's Senior boys competed and won over Mount Pleasant senior boys.

Mount Pleasant Juniors played and won over a mixed team of Juniors from Wellman's and Bethel.

In the tug of war contests, Rawdon circuit won 2 out 3 with Carmel; while Mount Pleasant won 2 out of 3 in competition with a mixed group from Wellman's and Bethel.

The various booths were nicely decorated with flowers and Mount Pleasant ladies provided and conversed the home made sale of articles.

Bethel ladies provided and conversed the homemade candy booth and they sold the confectionery in bags and boxes.

Wellman's ladies provided and conversed the "fish pond" to the delight of the children.

There was also a booth selling ice cream, soft drinks and confectionery. Benches and chairs were provided for the social patronage.

The parsonage board lady members and their assistants, arranged the plates and all enjoyed a lunch of sandwiches, cake, tea and with a pickle and a piece of cheese.

Something over $110 was cleared from this venture and the money will go to the parsonage fund.

This lawn social is an annual affair. It promotes friendliness on the circuit and provides extra funds for parsonage repairs and it was a success.

Rev. and Mrs. R. R. Bonsteel are away on holidays but the board and church officials carried on nevertheless.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's District—On Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sandercock and Mrs. James Sandercock entertained a number of relatives of the bride and groom Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sandercock, who had just returned from a honeymoon in the Muskoka district.

The bridal couple were the recipient of many lovely wedding presents and a very happy time enjoyed by all. The couple will make their home on the farm on the second concession of Sidney.

Prior to her wedding the bride was entertained by the girl friends in the Wellington district and was presented with a linen shower. The community also presented her with a miscellaneous shower.

On Friday evening, Ashtown and White's districts were represented at a charivari. About 75 had lots of fun and made plenty of noise. Then a few hurried away and returned with a treat of ice cream and pop for all.

Wood of the Week

Chicory Robber Of Fertility

TORONTO — Chicory, known also as Wild Succorys, is a very persistent perennial from which no part of Ontario is entirely free.

Grain, hay and pasture fields are suffering a great deal of damage from Chicory which has a long tap root that draws on the moisture and fertility of the soil, thus competing with field crops for food, and also making the plant hard to eradicate.

Chicory is easily identified. The leaves, which are for the most part spread out on the ground, resemble to some extent the crown leaves of the dandelion plant, but are longer and more irregular in shape. The almost leafless stems have many branches covered with showy, bright flowers. These flowers, open only during the morning hours, produce approximately 3,000 seeds per plant.

Repeated deep cultivation and the use of row crops help in the control of the weed. Cutting hay early, before the Chicory seeds have set, also assists in. In control but new flowers appear where the hay has been cut.

2-4-D used in amounts up to 8 ounces per acre will lessen the danger of seed setting and will stunt the growth of the plant. In hay and pasture fields where clovers are not a problem, the use of 16 ounces per acre will control the weed, but it may take several applications to completely eradicate it. Chicory must be actively growing at the time 2-4-D is applied.

Since Chicory seed is found in grass and clover seed, care should be taken to purchase only clean seed that is free from this menace.

LAKES UP

WINDSOR (CP)—Levels of Lakes Erie and St. Clair reached a record height for this year during June but are between five and seven inches lower than last year's flood level which caused thousands of dollars property damage. The United States Lakes Survey Bureau said Monday the level of Lake Erie rose four inches during June to 574.05 feet above mean tide at New York. Lake St. Clair climbed three inches during June.

Kremlin Crowd Now Appears To be Showing Some Concern For Average Russian Citizen

Editor's Note: For 11 years Eddy Gilmore was AP correspondent in Moscow. He returned to American duties in 1942, at a time of wartime amity, and found out late in the day that the Soviet government would not allow her to leave Russia with him for two others. Only recently was this rule relaxed, and Gilmore was able to bring his family out. While they are en route to the United States Gilmore is writing a series of stories about Russia and his experiences there. This is the first of four articles to appear this week.

By EDDY GILMORE

PARIS (AP)—For the first time in years the Kremlin seems to be showing some concern for Ivan Ivanovich, the average Russian.

It's too early to say for this is because the party and the government sincerely want to do something for the people or because they are afraid of the people, or for both reasons.

But things are happening. And if Georgi Malenkov and the others can hold the galloping Russian Troika in the road, and resist going for one another's throats, things are going to continue to happen . . . I mean things that will make life far easier for the Russian people.

Malenkov is pledged to raise the standard of living. The Russian people have heard that one before, but this time the party and the government are behaving as if it matters somewhat how the people feel about things.

Panic in Moscow

Take the recent city wide panic in Moscow. I do not believe this story has been spread to the west side world, for the censor was very active with his big Red pencil when I left Moscow.

Here it is:

Toward the last days of June the rumor got out of Moscow that the money was going to be changed again.

We heard it everywhere we went. Moscow had had one devaluation since the war. Czechoslovakia had just had one. It was at the half year, a logical time.

I'd seen devaluation, or reform as they called it, happen here in Moscow. The symptoms were the same. The people knew about it several days in advance.

Wanted Metal Money

The subways and the buses and the street cars had no metal money. During the last devaluation metal money was not changed. The people were clinging to it.

Heated arguments took place on the subways. The conductors demanded metal money, or refused to give change. The people offered paper rubles, or three and five ruble pieces. They'd get a ride and some metal money back in change. But the conductors weren't having any.

The commission stores (state pawn shops) were packed and buying was brisk. Everywhere the people were saying: "Have you heard about it? Do you think it's going to happen?"

The last devaluation hurt Ivan Ivanovich plenty. Never a banker at heart, he kept his precious rubles at home. When the government devalued, Ivan got one ruble for 10, a poor batting average in any league.

Flocked to Banks

I looked at two banks. Long lines of depositors before the savings account windows. At the last devaluation, the folks who had their rubles in the bank got the new money at one new ruble for one old ruble.

It was a panic, all right, and finally the ministry of finance had to come out with a communique to all payers decrying all idea of devaluation, or a change in the money.

That was a rare step. Under Joseph Stalin it would not have happened. The people would have been left to panic. But the Malenkov government assured them. Did it have to? Was it having to answer to a public opinion for the first time since Stalin got his steely grip on the nation? Or was it behaving as any normal government would under the circumstances of a citywide panic?

You guess. I don't know.

Propose Tribunal To Hear Claims Of Water Damage

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Proposed establishment of an unprecedented international tribunal to rule on millions of dollars in high-water damage claims against Canada was disclosed here Monday.

Tentative plans for the tribunal were agreed upon at an Ottawa meeting June 16, and have been sent to the Canadian cabinet for approval.

The tribunal, proposed by the Lake Ontario Land Development and Beach Protection Association, would be made up of one Canadian judge from a province bordering Lake Ontario and one U.S. federal judge.

The two would hear claims that the Canadian-built Cut Dam, in the St. Lawrence river, caused record high lake water, which reached an all-time peak last year and resulted in millions of dollars of damage to shore-front properties.

Action Promised

Although Herman Atterby of Rochester, Association president, said he was assured at the Ottawa meeting that the Canadians would act on the plan within 10 days, no move has been made on it.

Under the Association proposal:

Should the judges decide the dam caused the high water the Canadian government would put a sum into escrow which would meet U.S. claims.

Should they decide the dam did not cause the high water, the Association would agree to drop all further claims filed under a 1902 U.S.-Canadian treaty which—according to the Association—permits American property owners to sue Canada in U.S. courts for damage resulting from the dam.

The proposal counters one offered by Canada, which calls for a body composed of a Canadian, an American and a representative of a foreign power.

Rules Miners May Continue Their Picketing

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Rene Dansi ruled Monday that striking miners may continue picketing Brodian Reef Gold mines by having four pickets at each of the three roads leading to the property.

At a hearing in Osgoode Hall, he extended an injunction he granted to the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) regarding the wage walkout at Brodian. The company is one of three mines closed down in the rich gold-producing Porcupine camp.

Last Friday an injunction prohibiting picketing at Brodian was amended by Mr. Justice Dansi permitting the union to use four pickets at each of the gates. The injunction forbidding picketing was issued July 15 by Mr. Justice R. W. Trelearne after he ruled the walkout was illegal.

At that time Brodian officials said the miners had not worked seven days after Labor Minister Daley of Ontario received a conciliation board's report on the disputes before they walked out.

Claim Strike Legal

Mr. Justice Danis amended the injunction after the union claimed the board's report was handed to the labor minister July 3. That became everything was legal when the strike was called July 11, union officials said.

Mr. Justice Danis said Monday that the injunction was for an indefinite period until the court decides if a permanent injunction should be granted.

The Ontario department of labor said today that neither Brodian nor the union has asked for a decision on the legality of the strike.

The 3,000 Brodian workers quit for higher wages and started a chain reaction in two other companies, Hallnor and Preston East Dome mines. All told, there are more than 750 hardrock workers on strike at the three companies.

FIVE DIE OF THIRST

CAIRO. (Reuters) —A man, his wife and their three small children died of thirst in the desert near Asuan, southern Egypt, the hottest place in the country during the current heat wave.

Near the bodies were 13 empty water bottles, three dead goats and a load of mangoes.

The temperature reached 114 degrees at Aswan during the week-end. It was 106 in Cairo Sunday.

Cattle Disease Can be Beaten Doctors Say

TORONTO (CP)—A group of doctors said Monday that brucellosis, a costly cattle disease, can be beaten if there is close supervision of herds and an extensive educational campaign to make dairymen more aware of the dangers to their animals.

The doctors, a special research committee for the American Veterinary Medical Association, told of their plan to eradicate the disease at the Association's annual meeting.

Calves should be vaccinated and all reactors eliminated to protect other cattle in the herd.

Research workers from the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph reported that prenatal deaths and abnormal offspring can result if pregnant animals aren't fed enough growth-producing vitamins. Tests showed rats, fed a riboflavin deficient diet, had reproductive troubles and smaller litters.

Dr. W. C. Reid of Fort Erie, Ont., said that although antibiotics are one of the greatest aids in combatting disease, they are not the final answer to animal-disease control, it should not be forgotten, he said, that supportive treatment is necessary in assisting the new drugs.

RCAF IN AIRLIFT

OTTAWA (CP)—Three RCAF transport planes airlifted more than 1,000,000 pounds of freight in five days for the Iron Ore Company of Canada at Knob Lake, Que., Defence Minister Claxton said Monday. He said use of the RCAF planes "was necessitated by reason of the fact that, civilian transports could not be obtained to do this work of national importance during the short summer season."

Ousting of Beria Having no Effect On Russia's New Foreign Policy

By THOMAS P. WHITNEY

MOSCOW (AP) — Experienced Western observers in the Soviet capital view the resumption of diplomatic relations by Israel and the Soviet Union as additional evidence that the ouster of Lavrenty P. Beria has not changed the Kremlin's recent foreign policy.

These observers see the re-establishment of relations with Israel as another step by Premier Georgi Malenkov's government to reduce strains in the Soviet Union's relations with the non-Communist world.

The government announced Monday night that relations with Israel would be resumed and that the Soviets have accepted Israel's apology for the February bombing by unknown terrorists of the Soviet legation in Tel Aviv. Russia severed relations three days after the bombing.

Observers here noted that negotiations between the Soviet and Israel were completed July 15, five days after the announcement that Beria had been dismissed from his posts as deputy premier and minister of internal affairs.

The firing of Beria had aroused considerable speculation in the West that a change in Soviet foreign policy might take place.

Westerners here viewed the action toward Israel as evidence of a new Kremlin policy of trying to maintain full diplomatic relations with all countries. In this connection, they cited the recent agreement to again exchange ambassadors with Yugoslavia.

These observers also anticipated that the Soviet government would take a similar attitude toward overtures for re-establishment of diplomatic relations with Brazil and Chile, if such overtures are forthcoming.

NO MENTION OF BERIA

MOSCOW (AP)—The name of the ousted internal affairs minister Lavrenty P. Beria, has virtually disappeared from the Soviet press. Reports of mass meetings denouncing him and praising his arrest have stopped appearing.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

UNBELIEVER!

While the rest of the baseball experts south of the border one and a few on this side of the crick are still going in raves about Mickey Mantle's so-called 565-foot home run, there's one who comes out flatfooted that the mighty swat is like the bleacher who saw his first giraffe. Said Pal as he gazed at the longneck, "there 'tis a dom lie, it is. They's no such thing."

He is Frank Lewis, of the Cleveland Press, who says for 30 years he has been watching the greatest sluggers in the history of baseball try to send the ball into the centre-field bleachers in Cleveland Stadium. No one ever came close. It is 468 feet (actual) from home plate to the base of the ten-foot wall, resting like a bleacher, but in dead centre. The distances are slightly less to right and left centre.

Lewis says he doubts the honesty of the Washington measurements. If they were correct, the same ball travelling the same distance in the Cleveland Stadium would have wound up in the last row of seats in the bleachers.

"When you realize that no one has ever hit a ball into the Stadium bleachers, you get a faint idea why I'm refusing to buy Mantle merchandise," says Lewis.

He goes on to say that he saw Lake Easter hit a ball in the upper deck in right field in the Stadium and that was in the days before Ted Williams smite a mighty blow that rocketed the pill upstairs that got over the row of box seats. And he saw Dale Alexander hit what he believes to be one of the longest balls in the Stadium's history, a blast that Earl Averill caught with his back against the 470-foot sign in dead centre.

Easter, he says, hit one that would have fallen at the base of the bleacher wall in right centre had not Dick Weik stood up between the trailer in the bullpen and moved out four feet to make the catch.

• • •

Lewis recalls the mighty balls hit in the negro leagues in days when loops used the rocket ball. It was only a few years that Easter hit that 565-foot blow in Comiskey Park. Then Eddie Adcock, of the Milwaukee Braves, parked a 475-footer this spring, the first big league home run into that area.

"As I say," Lewis writes, "Mantle's wallop was a prodigious one, all right. It had to be to get out of the park over those bleachers. I never in all my born days seen them before. Still, conversant with whom I have talked mention that the ball probably dropped sharply after clearing the last row and probably fell at a spot less than 500 feet from the plate. How it got the other 65 to 100 feet is anyone's guess.

"Until Mantle hits one into the bleachers at Cleveland, I'll continue to be an 'agnostee' in any discussion of the 560-foot home run. I don't believe there is such a thing. I say this in the supposition that the ball now in use is a normal sphere, not stuffed with little men in green tights and purple shoes."

ROUGH STUFF!

Strength and skill vs. strength and mayhem. That looks like the right tah for the wrestling feature coming up at the Memorial Arena on Friday night when the team of Timothy Geohagen and Don Jonathan will oppose the team of Fred Atkins and Nanjo Singh in the four-man tag team headliner.

Both sides include some of the strongest men in sport. The Geohagen-Jonathan side are a pair of modern Samsons. The Atkins-Singh pair have Herculean qualities also. But their manner of applying their power is different. Geohagen and Jonathan are scientific experts — Atkins and Singh punctuate their actions with rough-house methods. Blend well back when these twosomes start the heavy flailing.

FIGHT FARE!

There is plenty of fight fare on the sports menu for lovers of the beak-beating game this week. Tonight in Chicago Dan Bisconeri tangles with Tommy Harrison and on Thursday night Gil Turner clashes with Johnny Lombardi at Hershey.

Friday night at Miami, King Solomon meets Joe Tomasello and Al (Kid) McCoy fights Emerson Butcher.

Saturday night appears to be the tidbit of the week when Billy Graham and Carmen Basilio meet at Syracuse.

Sportdom of the city and district lost one of its greatest supporters with the sudden passing of Fred Mott. Fred took a keen interest in sports of all kinds with a particular liking for hockey. Seldom did he miss a game played in Memorial Arena and he was a strong advocate of fair play and sportsmanship. He will be missed. Curt 'Aint Same' Since Injury; Roberts Chalks Up 16th Win; Bob Lemon Squeezes Yanks

By BEN PHLEGAR
Associated Press Sports Writer

The team that wins the National League pennant this year should give its members little lawn mowers to remind them of why Philadelphia Phillies didn't win.

The Phillies might still pull the big surprise, but it gets more unlikely by the day, particularly in days when Curt Simmons pitches and loses.

This looked like a great year for Simmons. During the first month of the season he and Robin Roberts formed the most-feared left-right pitching combination in the majors.

One In Four

Simmons was sidelined a full month. He's been back in action 2½ weeks now, but not with anything like his early promise. He has won one in four.

Last night the Phillies threw Roberts and Simmons at the Milwaukee Braves. Roberts came into the game with ease 10-0 but Simmons didn't make it, giving up five runs and eight hits in six innings. The final score was 10-4.

So, instead of gaining ground, the Phils still are seven games out of first place and four behind the Braves.

Both Phils and Braves lost half-a-game to pace-setting Brooklyn Dodgers who trampled Chicago 15-4. St. Louis trounced New York 10-4 and climbed back into first division at the expense of the Giants. Cincinnati defeated Pittsburgh 7-2.

Cleveland Indians finally defeated New York Yankees in Cleveland 5-3 with Bob Lemon winning his 11th game. Detroit shaded Washington 8-7 in 10 innings. Rain washed out night games in Chicago between the White Sox and Boston and in Philadelphia between the Browns and Philadelphia.

Cleveland's victory, a 13-hit assault on three New York pitchers, cut the Yankees' lead over Chicago to 9½ games and moved the Indians back into third place, 10 games back.

Al Rosen, who makes a specialty of first-inning home runs, put the Indians in front with a two-run blast off Johnny Sain. Bob Kuzava came in with Cleveland ahead across three runs in the fifth and Ray Scarborough finished up. The success ends Cleveland's first at home against the world champions this season.

Use Six Pitchers

Washington appeared to have its game won against Detroit at least twice only to have the Tigers come back, first to tie, and then to win on Don Lund's two-run double in the 10th. Mickey Vernon put the Senators ahead with a three-run homer in the ninth but Matt Batts evened things for Detroit with a ninth-inning homer. Then Washington scored one run in the 10th.

The Cubs used six pitchers in a futile attempt to silence the Dodger bats but only ancient Dutch Leonard met with any success. He pitched three scoreless innings. Against the other five, the Dodgers rolled up 15 runs. The loss was the 14th for Warren Hacker, tops in both leagues.

The Cardinals scored four runs off Sal Maglie in the first inning at New York, biggest opening frame they've had in a month. Two of the tallies came on a home run by Stan Musial. Rip Repulski contributed a three-run homer in the fourth. Gerry Staley got credit for his 13th victory.

Crafty Ken Raffensberger gave the Pirates 10 hits but only one of them — Frank Thomas' two - run homer—was damaging. The Cincinnati lefthander more than balanced Thomas' blow with a three-run home run of his own.

Toronto Boxer Wins Decision

TORONTO (CP)—Harold King of Toronto punched out a decision over Pat Campbell of Guelph last night in the five-round main event of an amateur boxing card at suburban East York Arena. Both fighters weighed 142 pounds.

In a semi-final, Al Moss of Toronto scored a technical knockout over Omar Sicord of Brampton at 1:45 of the second round of their scheduled five-rounder and Eddie Mitchell of Guelph outpointed Sonny Forbes of Toronto.

Ronnie Lynn of Toronto outpointed Billy Stewart of Brantford in a lively three-round preliminary which left both fighters and referee limp in the 85-degree heat.

Leaders Take Walloping in Intercounty Loop

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two top contenders in the Intercounty Baseball League reflected sadly today that there's a world of difference between a night off and night after.

Front-running Kitchener Panthers and third-place Waterloo Tigers, locked in a tight four-team race for league leadership, figured to have an easy time last night against second-division opposition.

But Panthers were on the short end of a 7-5 count against seventh-place Guelph Maple Leafs and the Tigers were edged 9-8 at last-place St. Thomas Elgins pushed over three runs in the ninth inning.

Panthers stranded 14 base-runners as southpaw Walt Jeffries won his second straight start on the mound. Guelph had a 6-0 lead at the end of two innings before the league-leaders knew what hit them. Kenny Yount drove in three of the tallies with a double and a single.

Jeffries needed help from right-hander Clancy Cline in the seventh inning and Clark ran into trouble in the ninth, but got the side out with the bases loaded and one run in.

At St. Thomas, Elgins, victors in only 10 of their 38 starts, spotted Waterloo a 5-1 lead in the end of three innings, took a 6-5 lead in the fifth, blew it in the sixth and finally staged their photo-finish.

An error on Jimmy Frew set the stage for the winning rally. Ray Richmond doubled and Don Butler's triple tied the score and Butler eventually came home on a long fly by Jimmy Caffrey.

The results narrowed Kitchener's lead over the second-place Brantford Red Sox to five percentage points while Waterloo sank into a virtual third-place tie with London Majors, a game behind the leaders.

Detroit Yacht Race Winner

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (AP)

The Detroit yacht Escapade was awarded the Mackinac Cup Tuesday for the best corrected time in the class A cruising division of the Port Huron-to-Mackinac race. The Escapade also was the first boat to finish the race. All but one of the fleet of 66 now are across the finish line. A few dropped out along the way.

The Canadian Yacht Rangoon, owned by J. Hunt, finished far behind the pace set by the Escapade with a corrected time of 55:25.26.

The Escapade, which finished Monday, had a corrected time of 45 hours, 42 minutes and 39 seconds, easily the best for the class of a cruising division. She is owned by Detroit industrialist Wendell Anderson.

Record Entry List Features Henley Regatta

By CRAIG SWAYZE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—Sweat-soiled oarsmen ran off extra heats, semi-finals and finals Tuesday as last-minute checks of their shells today as they awaited the start of the first race in the 86th Canadian Henley Regatta down the Old Welland Canal course at 8 p.m. EST.

The sun-dry regatta, boasting the largest list of entries in its 72-year history, will see a total of 64 races between today and Saturday night, 30 of them elimination heats for the 34 scheduled finals. All of the races have more than one crew entered, meaning that for the first time in more than 25 years, there will be no row-overs for Canadian championships.

The host, St. Catharines Rowing Club, has 37 entries in this year's Henley, with Canada's Hillcrest, West Sides, 1952 regatta champions, and the Toronto R.C. in making a strong bid to return the Governor General's trophy, emblematic of the Henley championship, to Canada.

Detroit Boat Club will contest 18 events, Hamilton Leanders has entered 16 crews and neighbors, Detroit Rowing Club will make 18 appearances and Toronto Argonauts, nine.

Buffalo, which finished third to Philadelphia Vespers and the Detroit Boat Club in last week-end's United States National Regatta at Philadelphia, arrived here Tuesday. They were followed by 31 men from the New York Athletic Club.

West Sides will concentrate on the heavy eight events and try to retain the Ned Hanlan Memorial Trophy, for senior eights for the seventh year in succession. Four New Yorkers will be headed by 37-year-old Joe Angel who will sail the championship singles, the open dash, the 145-pound dash and stroke the NYAC fours and doubles.

Vespers were scheduled to arrive today with coach Jack Kelly, all ready to repeat his iron man role of last week-end when he won the championship singles, the open dash, stroked Vespers' winning senior eight and the winning junior senior eight. The former Diamond Sculls winner will scull in the championship singles here as well as the doubles and eight.

All dash fifty year are required to carry a rubber ball over their prow to guard against injuries in case of collision. There have been several instances in the past of oarsmen and oarless rowers being lopped on the steel-tipped bow of a moving boat.

FRANKFORD

Frankford Wins Quarter-Finals; Edge Diesels 2-1

FRANKFORD (Special) — The CNR (Diesels bowed out of the Belleville District Softball League city championship playoffs here last night when the village team edged Diesels in one of the best games of the season.

The victory gave the Frankford team the quarter finals series in two straight games, and they now meet the Glen Roy Jrs. team in a best-of-three series in the semi-finals. The latter take on the Point Anne team for the city title.

Last night's battle was a spirited affair between Dan Diesels and Ed Adams and Frankford's B. Rankin. Rankin held the city champion to six hits while the best his mates could do was eight scattered clouts off Adams. Both hurlers were air-tight nine-innings distance.

The two teams drew first blood in the opening innings when they scored off a walk, a wild pitch, a fielder's choice and a single.

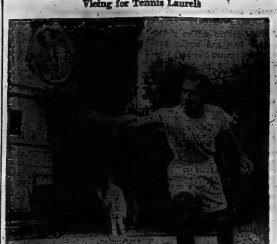
From then to the sixth innings both squads went scoreless and in the top half of the frame Vern Coyne tied the game with a mighty home run.

Frankford got that one back in their half of the innings when Cosgrove, who had tripled, galloped home on Wheeler's infield out. Both hurlers settled down and unassisted by some miserable fielding held the opposition scoreless until game's end.

Vern Coyne led the Diesel offensive with a homer and single with Hunter, Rondell, Cortesis and Al. Adams hitting singles.

Murphy paced the Frankford attack with a double and single. Cosgrove and Curtis hit triples, Wheeler a single, double and Gilmour and Cook singles.

The score:



Diesels	000 001 000—2	6	1
Frankford	100 001 00x—2	9	0

Bisons Cling To Loop Lead; Leafs Split

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons held on to their 1½-game lead over Montreal in the International Baseball League Tuesday night, splitting a twin-bill with Ottawa Athletics, while the Royals did the same with Toronto Maple Leafs.

But the most important game of the night turned out to be the Baltimore-Rochester affair. The Orioles defeated the Red Wings 3-1 to jump back into third place, within two games of the league leaders and a half-game behind Montreal.

Veteran Lefty Ken Heintzelman got the Baltimore victory. He needed help in the ninth, after blanking the Wings for eight innings.

At Montreal, the fifth-place Leafs took the abbreviated contest 8-3, getting an early jump on the fifth.

Royals. In the second game, Tom Lasorda's strong left arm and the homers of Ken Wood, Dick Williams and Charlie Thompson gave Montreal a 7-1 victory and broke the club's longest losing streak since 1938—seven games.

Sandy Amoros, the Royals' No. 3 man with the bat, walloped his 15th circuit clout of the season in the opener.

In the Canadian capital, the seventh-place Athletics won the nightcap 7-4, after Buffalo took the abbreviated opener 4-3.

The Bisons took advantage of Bill Harrington's wildness in the opener, scoring three runs in the first inning and the clinching run in the third. The As scored one run in the sixth on Taft Wright's homer and two more in a seventh-inning rally.

The big blow of the second game came in the bottom of the sixth, when Joe Taylor hammered a two-out, bases-loaded double to break a 4-4 tie.

In another game, Syracuse Chiefs defeated Springfield Cubs for a 10-7 victory. The game was halted in the seventh inning, the Chiefs winning with five unearned runs in the fifth.

Regents Knot 4-1 Bow in Silver Ribbons

Byrnon Reid's Regent Juniors downed the Bloomfield-Wellington Silver Ribbons 4-1 at Wellington last night.

The Ribbons took the lead in their half of the first inning, by getting a run on two singles and a stolen base. From there on in the Regents really went. They got one in the second on a walk, a single, and an error. They added the game's more in the fifth on two singles, and two errors, they put two on base in the sixth and parlayed it into the insurance run.

Bill Stratham started for the Regents. He got three on strikes and passed not one in three innings. Carr relieved him in the fourth. He got two via the strikeout route and gave way to the great right to first base. Tate sweated the whole distance for the win, fanning two and pitching the fourth ball to four men.

Carey was right at the plate for the Regents, slamming out a triple. Half and Stratham each got a hit and Goyer each connected for singles. Landry got the only extra base hit for the Ribbons, a double. Reid, Purtell, Hamilton and Cork claimed the other hits for the losers.

The Regents pulled off two double plays. The first came when Dave Jones fanned to start it, ball and threw to Carr to catch the base runner who was off with the second. twin-killing came when Jones again started the play, picking up a line drive and tossing to Goyer at second, who relayed it to Stratham at first. Carey at the plate made one double play, when John Mowat caught a fly to centrefield, and Goyer batted the ball to first off the run.

It was my time the spectators became bored a pair of mutts were staging a battle in front of the screen door, so they left early in the game.

Bert Hull made a beautiful running catch of a foul fly, by running off into the woods along the left field line.

At one stage of the game the Regents drove Jones down the man on first. Strachan and Goyer played out a mouse with the runner, until it seemed that they had him. However, Strachan missed him on the throw and Goyer all looked lost. But there was also a man on second when he did so. Strachan fired the ball, he headed for third, but to no avail because Strachan threw a perfect strike to Batchelor and they got one man after all.

Lineups:

Oshawa, Windsor Not Welcome in Senior Hockey

STRATFORD (CP)—Representatives of the eight clubs in the Ontario Hockey Association's Senior A division recommended to the OHA Tuesday night that it refuse applications from Windsor and Oshawa to join the group.

The senior clubs voted down the applications by a 6-2 margin because of travelling expenses and difficulty of players obtaining sufficient time off for the longer trips.

Bill Betcher of Windsor said the meeting the Windsor arena will be converted into a storage building if the city's entry is refused. Last year's Windsor Junior A franchise has been transferred to Hamilton.

Canadian Boxer Miami Winner

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Brian Kelly, 136, Niagara Falls, Ont., scored an upset split decision over Ralph Dupas, 137½, New Orleans, in an eight-round feature bout at the Miami Beach auditorium Tuesday night.

Kelly's roughing and slugging tactics offset the 18-year-old Dupas' boxing ability until the late rounds when Dupas used lefts and rights to the head effectively. A right hook sent Dupas down in the ninth but he claimed he was not shoved. Kelly had a cut under the left eye at the end.

Referee Jimmy Peerless scored it for Kelly, 4-3-1 and Judge Fred Wilbanks had it for the Canadian, 4-3-1. Judge Gus Jacobson voted for Dupas, 4-3-2.

Sport in Brief

STRATFORD (CP) — C. H. (Dutch) Meier, managing director of Stratford Indians Hockey Club said Tuesday that new coach Howie Meeker has been added to the directorate. Two graduate right wingers from junior ranks and two defencemen from the Toronto Maple Leaf chain have been signed by Meeker but he refused to divulge their identity.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, JULY 23, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — May be tendencies to exaggerate, overdo, or "cut off more than." Avoid such breaks. Carefully expressed opinions save much bickering, misunderstanding.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Born before May 6: Personal and general business should satisfy. Born after May 5: Do not stretch chance unwisely; realize the reasonable.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Highly encouraging for the quick, smart thinker who exercises his (or her) wits. Be willing to work hard for gains. Some new openings now.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Financial and professional matters rest on the favored list. But getting details attended to rightly will count heavily. Don't take doubtful chances.

July 23 to August 22 (Leo) — Be slow-but-sure. However, this doesn't mean to be indecisive. Study details of important matters before making your moves.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Note this: Work minus strain, forethought minus anxiety, and activity without overdoing are the dos stressed today.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Many excellent influences prevail for merchants, seamen, labor, or whole. Travel, exploration are also highly favored.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Protect your interests, let others go about theirs. Don't take on more than wise or you will strain yourself seriously. Watch your health.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—There is no alternative for honesty, forthrightness. And there is a maginous touch-er in experience. Follow your careful plans and succeed.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Let your strong intuition guide, but also pay attention to others who have facts and a healthy formula. Don't permit inner tension.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Learn early what is expected, and give your best, heading the important items; accuracy and promptness. Work so that you may enjoy some healthful diversion.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Many fine opportunities. To work brisker, think harder. Then really relax when you should.

YOU BORN TODAY have a wealth of God-given assets with which to achieve and be happy. You have strong characteristics from Cancer, which Sign the Sun is just leaving, but very powerful ones from oncoming Leo, too. Pray when troubled and happy; enjoy the outdoors you appreciate.

Birthday of: James Cardinal Gibbons, prelate, author; Coventry Patmore, poet, critic; Charlotte Cushman, actress.

RAISE MAYOR'S PAY

LONDON (CP)—City aldermen, by narrow majority, Monday night turned thumbs down on a $300 salary increase for themselves; but gave Mayor Rush a wage boost of the same amount. Aldermen refused to entertain a motion by Mayor Rush, following rejection of their own raise, that council reverse its action and take away his $300 increase.

Cause of Train Wreck Mystifies Rail Officials

Railway officials are mystified as to the cause of this train wreck at Milnet, near Sudbury, Ont. Two trainmen, Samuel E. Kelly and Floyd W. Haystead, were killed in the wreck which happened on a slow curve from causes unknown. The train toppled over, plowing deep into the sandy soil. — Central Press Canadian.

To Fly Canadian Prisoners Home After Korea Armistice

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP) — Canadian prisoners of war exchanged by the communists after an armistice will be flown home, the Canadian Press has learned.

United States authorities, preparing to handle an estimated 5,000 "returnees" but hoping for 8,000 (their total listed as "missing"), already have announced their intention to repatriate them by ship from Inchon.

Similarly, British authorities, whose estimated total number of prisoners is 1,200, have announced theirs will sail back to Britain from Japan.

But the number of Canadians is so small, expected to be about 30, that a Canadian airlift for them is a possibility.

Canada, therefore should be the first among the United Nation countries represented in the fighting here to have her returned prisoners repatriated.

May Fly Together

The only point still undecided concerning the Canadian prisoners is whether they will be sent home in batches of two or three, or bulked to go home as a group.

Brig. J. V. Allard, senior Canadian commander in the Far East, says he will be guided by circumstances.

If the exchange of Canadians appears to be a matter of days the men will be held in Korea for return as a group.

But if the exchange looks to be a protracted affair they will be repatriated after an [illegible] Canadian medical unit.

The Canadian "stream" will begin at Britannia camp, the enlarged Canadian field dressing station at Tokchong, 25 miles north of Seoul, where all Commonwealth prisoners will get merely a preliminary medical check there—to determine their ability to travel to Kure, Japan, where their main medical formalities will be completed. The Canadians will get the full treatment at Tokchong. All x-ray and clinical tests will be done there.

Doctor Explains

Col. J. S. McCannell of Victoria and Toronto, while director of medical services within the Commonwealth division, also is senior Canadian medical officer in the theatre.

He says: "Canada maintains this expensive establishment here and we might as well get the use out of it for our own chaps, especially if it will help speed them on their way home."

Using the FDS enables the healthy Canadians to by-pass Kure. Weaker cases may be kept at the FDS and build up, but the really ill soldiers would go to the Commonwealth general hospital at Kure for treatment.

From the FDS healthy Canadians will go to the 28th Canadian field ambulance in the brigade area. It will become a sort of holding and adjustment centre for them.

Fly From Tokyo

After three or four days in the Canadian brigade area, perhaps longer if it is decided to send them back as a group, the men will motor to Seoul, whence they will fly to Tokyo in board a Canadian Pacific Air Lines DC-4 for Canada.

Under ideal conditions the men would be flown home from Tokyo as a group in a CPAL "prisoners' special." This would be a regular airlift-chartered flight diverted for the purpose. An RCAF North Star would meet the "special" at Vancouver and drop the prisoners off across the country at air bases as near to their homes as possible.

Experts Agree on Prevention Ideas For Hog Cholera

TORONTO (CP)—Experts from Canada and the United States compared notes Tuesday on methods of fighting hog cholera and agreed that quarantining affected areas and slaughter of infected hogs is more effective than immunization.

Dr. Orlan Hall, assistant veterinary-general of Canada, outlined Canada's foup-point program, costing $30,000 a year, at the convention of the American Veterinary Medical Association.

Apart from quarantine and slaughter and indemnification of owners of cholera-stricken hogs, the program calls for the cooking of all garbage fed to hogs and a thorough periodic cleaning and disinfecting program of infected stock yards.

The American program, described by Dr. M. S. Sugg of the school of veterinary medicine at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, is based on vaccination but bans the use of live virus for immunization.

RAWDON

History of Hubble Clan Prepared for Reunion Sunday

REUNION'S 103RD YEAR

RAWDON — Last winter, the Rawdon correspondent was requested to compile a brief history of the "Hubble Clan." The years go by so swiftly and it is almost time for the fourth annual Hubble reunion which is being held in Frankford tourist park on Sunday, July 26. Last year, over 600 members of the clan enjoyed the day together at Stirling agricultural park, and a larger number is anticipated this year.

Mr. Franklin Hubble, Huntsville has enjoyed his family genealogy which was a good account of the "Hubble Clan."

Mrs. Percy MacMullen, who married formerly Florence May Montgomery, of "Hubble Hill," Rawdon township, and a great granddaughter of Haldan Hubble, the late James Westcott, early pioneers who were laid to rest in "Hubble Hill" cemetery, has lovingly compiled this brief sketch. It is not complete in every detail and there are several missing links. It would add quite a bit of research if we have a complete history. It has been suggested that each family might have a written account of their history (dating back to the early pioneers) to be compiled by Percy Siple by 1954 a much better article could be prepared.

Mrs. MacMullen has prepared this article from records written a few years ago by Dr. E. W. Mack, Detroit, Michigan, and from an article written by her father, Edward Montgomery, of Foxboro.

"Rawdon Hubbles"

Mr. Montgomery came to Rawdon, township of Hastings county, as a young man in 1866, and he called the area "The Rawdon Hubbles As I Know Them in 1896". From this data the following is taken from "Who's Who" of today's generation of Hubbles:

The United Empire Loyalist Association only recognize "Hubbell" as the spelling used in the clan crest may be procured for those who use that spelling. The Hubble's of Hubble Hill never used that form and at Carmel the name was spelled Hubble.

The first settler of the Hubble clan in the person of Nehemiah Hubble came to "Hubble Hill" in Rawdon township in 1797. They came from the United States with the United Empire Loyalist pilgrimage." The township was mostly wilderness and it was hard to be bowed out of the forest by the first settlers.

Nehemiah served as a soldier in the Prince of Wales Regiment and when wars were granted lot 30, concession 2, in Rawdon township. He had a wife and nine children.

His eldest son, Elijah Allen Hubble, married Fanny Chard, a sister of Dr. Mack's great grandmother. Reuben Hubble was their son; and in 1845 he married Melissa Munroe, with the Baptist minister, Grant Gayer performing the ceremony.

Planned Cemetery Land

This Reuben Hubble donated the land (free to all) New Hubble Hill" cemetery, with the provision that one full plot from north to south be reserved for the Hubble clan. His son, Ami Hubble, and grandson, Byron Hubble, are laid to rest in this pioneer cemetery. His great grandsons, Clifford Hubble, Glen Ross, is now in charge of cemetery plans and burial plots. This Reuben Hubble was also a trustee of the Regular Baptist Church of Rawdon, erected at Hubble Hill in 1870.

In 1896 Charles Hubble lived in Murray township, where his son's wife, Mrs. Lorne Hubble, now resides.

Another son, Ernest Hubble, lives in Foxboro.

Another sister, Sarah Ann Thead, lived at Frankford. She is now buried in "Hubble Hill" cemetery. A daughter, Mrs. H. McMurter, of Carrying Place, recently attended the memorial service.

Won Distance Prize

Archie Wallace, Mrs. Jackman and Mrs. Thead were children of Melissa Hubble, (Big Myer) Hubble.

Ira Hubble, his wife, the former Mary Harlow, and their son, Frank, lived on Stump Street, Mount Pleasant, where Allan Simpson, a nephew resides. Ira and his wife and son are buried in Campbellford cemetery. His daughter, Julia, married Stanley Wescott, and both are buried at "Hubble Hill". A granddaughter of Ira, Mrs. Burton Bateman, resides at Springbrook.

U.E.L. Pioneer's Son

Nehemiah Hubble the second, known as (Myer) was a son of the U.E.L. pioneer. He married Mary (Polly) Ketcham in 1806 with Elder Turner, a Baptist minister, performing the ceremony. He died in war of 1812 and Nehemiah 3rd. was born three months after his father's death.

Nehemiah Hubble (the third) was born, lived and died at Hubble Hill. He, (3rd) was a Baptist church and a trustee of the Baptist church, and notwithstanding the donation of land for Hubble Hill Methodist church, which was erected in 1871 and also the land for an adjoining cemetery. This is now known as Mount Pleasant United Church and cemetery.

James Hubble lived near Carmel and was a son of Reuben and his grandson, Grant Hubble, now resides.

Mrs. Arthur Pryer, Glen Ross, and Mrs. Don Terry, Murray, are members of this family of Hubbles.

At last year's reunion, Mrs. Terry, Frankford, was appointed convener of a group of folk who were asked to do a bit of research and present a brief history at this year's gathering.

"Hubble Hill" was rightly named after the first settlers of the Hubble family.

There are several other Hubble families scattered through out Hastings County but the writer does not know their connection. Some additional information was sent in by Clarence Hay, Redmerville, that will be of interest.

The Hubble family left Plymouth (Devonshire) England, with the Pilgrim Fathers and settled near Boston, Massachusetts, U.S.A. After the War of Independence in 1791, the Hubble family moved to Rawdon township and settled around Hubble Hill.

First Apple Orchard

One family of Hubbles settled on a farm which is part of where Frank Spencer, Jr., now lives, near the Allan School. They bought this property from an Englishman who had planted a large number of apple trees. Many people came from Prince Edward County to buy apples and they either crossed the Bay of Quinte by boat or went around by Trenton on land. This was claimed to be the first orchard in Rawdon and many of the trees lived to be over 100 years old.

This particular house is now just a bare skeleton and has long been in disuse. The window sash and doors have been removed. The late Mrs. Mary Adeline Chard was born in this home in 1831 and it had been built by her father. Mr. Clarence Chard, of River Valley, is a grandson of Mrs. M. A. Chard.

The county was chiefly bush, so this apple orchard was like an oasis in the desert.

This Hubble family had the first coal oil lamp known in Rawdon township and they used it only on special occasions — as it might "blow up", and the first matches were called "Lucifer Matches."

Tomatoes were grown for ornament and were called "love apples." They were supposed to

WELLINGTON

Neighbors, Friends Present Gifts To Bride, Bridegroom

WELLINGTON — Friends and neighbors of Mr. Don Schoenmaker who is on the staff of the Bank of Commerce here, gathered at Grahamsner on Friday night to welcome his bride to Wellington.

The evening was spent with games and contests with a number of musical selections on the piano by Mrs. Evans which everyone enjoyed. The bride and groom were then called to sit in their appointed places, which were appropriately decorated with colored streamers, a large wedding bell. Gay balloons hanging over them were broken and surprised the young couple with a shower of confetti.

Decorated bags loaded with lovely gifts for the kitchen were then presented to them. After these were unwrapped and cards read, Mr. Evans, manager of the Bank of Commerce, on behalf of the bank staff, presented them with a lovely

New Riots Occur In Uranium Mines Of East Germany

New Red Reign of Terror Staged to Prevent Revolt

BY DON DOANE

BERLIN (AP)—New riots in the Soviet-run uranium mines of East Germany were reported today as a fresh wave of arrests by Communist police spread over the rebellious Russian zone.

The U. S. high commission newspaper, News Letter, said troops of the East German "Peoples Army" have been rushed into the Erz Gebirge mountains building area along the Czech border to put down the miners' new uprisings.

The paper said 200 miners have been arrested this week for "open defiance." They were demanding release of 1,200 comrades arrested in the big anti-Communist revolt of June 17.

Schwarzenberg and Johanngeorgenstadt, two mining towns between Aue and the Czech border, were manned by some 30 to 40 truck loads of police, the paper said. Other uranium ore used by Russia is found in storn towns.

New Terror Drive

A new campaign of terror swept through the Communist zone as police and functionaries of the concerted drive to suppress the spirit of a new revolt.

Refugees fleeing to West Berlin told of night raids by police into hundreds of homes and mass roundups of suspected trouble makers in factories. They said the newest of arrests began Tuesday.

"Red Hilde" Benjamin, the new Soviet justice minister, was busily carrying out her announced program of "striking down on strikers through the court system she heads. hundreds of people 'acquitted and released' after the June 17 revolt were reported rearrested. Others who got off with light sentences have had their cases reopened for an increase of penalties.

Further, justice-happy workers were reported fired—and some arrested—for "standing too gently with riot participants.

Police Flee Too

Police joined civilians in fleeing before the wave of Communist vengeance. Hundreds of members of the Communist "Peoples' Police" fled 262 miles to refugee, including a former German construction minister, Lothar Bolz, who fled to West Berlin police Wednesday and asked for asylum.

The Northwest German radio said Wednesday night that the Soviet Army has reimposed martial law in Eisenach, two days after Zittau and Russian tanks have blocked the towns' border-crossing bridges in fear of increased activity by Polish partisans.

Communist authorities pushed ahead with their plan to provide millions of relief food packages for hungry East Germans. Berlin continued rumors that the Soviets may block the flow of increased supplies.

The test may come Monday when the new program is scheduled to get under way.

Plan Final Hunt In Gaspe Wilds Where 3 Vanished

GASPE, Que. (CP)—Quebec provincial police and experienced Southsea hunters gathered today for search of the area where three American hunters vanished in the Gaspe wilds June 19.

The searchers, without a skull, had tattered clothing found near a camp site, have been identified as that of Eugene Lindsey, 45, of Middleburg, Pa. No trace of Lindsey's 11-year-old son Richard or his 20-year-old Fred Clarr has been found.

Although the intensive comb-out of the area can be called off if today's search produces no new clues, provincial police said the investigations will continue and they will make further spot checks of the area.

Think Man Clubbed

Meanwhile officials connected with the search Wednesday night pompressed the belief that Eugene Lindsey was clubbed with the rifle found near the skeleton. They said there were minute pieces of skin attached to the rifle butt, evidently clinging to the sight of the rifle.

Both the rifle and the skeleton were sent to Montreal two days ago for laboratory examination by Dr. Jean-Marie Desjardins, provincial medico-legal expert. He identified the bones as being those of the older member of the party through x-ray examinations.

Shortly after announcing results of the x-ray examinations Wednesday, Dr. Roussel left Montreal for an unannounced destination, leaving off speculation that he had been called to Gaspe temporarily in connection with the Gaspe case.

Comb Trail

Wednesday a 15-man team of birch woodcutters, home workers began an intensive search of a fourmile stretch of logging road leading to the camp site where the elder Lindsey's body was found. The men carried the bush for fifty feet on either side of the road.

What was left of Eugene Lindsey, a few bones gnawed clean of flesh by bears and a few pieces of tattered clothing, was found at the end of a bear trail some 60 miles from Gaspe. In the campsite clearing searchers also found a rifle.

The camp was located in comparatively open country, the bush varying from two to three feet high.

The three men arrived in Gaspe six weeks ago to hunt bear, and went off alone by logging road in their truck. Police have since found the truck, abandoned on the road, but no trace has been found of the two younger Americans.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Showers and occasional thunderstorms occurred across Ontario Wednesday in advance of cooler air moving down from the northwest. This cooler weather now covers the northern half of the province and will gradually spread over Southern Ontario today. There will be a few showers and cool, mainly sunny day throughout most regions.

POLICE ARREST ELEVEN PICKETS IN TRUCK STRIKE

Five Men Are Charged After Halting Convoy

HAMILTON (CP)—Striking truck drivers tried in vain last night to halt transport convoys bound from Toronto to Montreal. Eleven police took 11 of the pickets into custody for the first time since the wage strike started Monday.

Eleven members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL-TLC) were hurled off to the Dundas detachment headquarters for questioning and possible charges.

Provincial police said five of the men were captured after they tried to stop a 18-transport convoy moving at-slow speed across the Burlington Beach strip near Hamilton on the way from the Canadian capital to Toronto. They cut off the lead truck by forming a car across its path, then uncoupled the trailer load of 15 tons of steel pipes, police said. A police escort escorted the strikers and chased the five on foot for 600 yards.

The five truckers were held in jail overnight. They appeared in court Wednesday on charges of intimidation and were remanded on bail to July 31.

Six Released

The six other men were picked up by police after they had forced truckers in the Hamilton area moved on to the road as a second convoy. Police said they refused to jail, questioned and released.

Ontario Labor Minister Leslie Frost's decree that truck traffic on the highways must not be restricted, told the police to let no one onto the roadway. A police cruiser down a street where its license plates were discovered.

Police ordered the pickets not to disrupt highway traffic, then escorted the truck back to the highway. It continued on its way to London.

Private Company Will Develop Labrador Wealth

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Joseph Smallwood announced Wednesday that his government-controlled Newfoundland Labrador Corporation will soon be turned over to a private company.

A United States-Canadian syndicate has already been approached to purchase majority control of the stock of Nalco, which has vast holdings in Labrador's North Star foundland.

The syndicate is led by John C. Doyle, president of Canadian Javelin Foundries, Montreal, and John Hollingsworth, president of Hollingsworth and Sons.

The Montreal company has already been granted a 2,300-square-mile mineral concession in Labrador.

It will spend $1,000,000 within the next two years and another $1,000,000 the southern end of the Labrador iron trough which is known to contain hundreds of millions of tons of high-grade ore.

Egyptians Chant Hate of Britain As They Mark Revolt's Anniversary

CAIRO (Reuters) — Frenzied Egyptians chanted anti-British slogans today as the nation celebrated the first anniversary of the bloodless coup which ousted King Farouk.

Crowds jammed, Cairo's Liberation Square for a special address by President Mohammed Naguib, interrupting his speech frequently with the shout "Marugu min bilsadina" ("Quit our country"). Wild cheering followed Naguib's proclamation of Britain as an "imperialist" and "occupying force."

The great square was the scene of mass religious exercises only a few hours earlier, as fifteen prayers opened the four-day thanksgiving festival.

Meanwhile, token army forces staged quasi symbolically at the stations from military units struck silently and efficiently a year ago to seize control of the capital.

Posters everywhere splashed the "Quit our country" slogan. The motto was adopted by the regime today as official theme of the campaign to force the British out of Egypt's Suez Canal zone.

Naguib told the vast crowd in Liberation Square in a speech of first forces in Egyptian history "we have regained our honor and shame on 32,000,000 Egyptians."

The president asserted that the army "is unified objective" and the sympathy of other Arab nations, who feel that "a unified objective is a crucial blow to the imperialist who lives on our territory."

Naguib declared that the main achievement of his regime was agrarian reform. This has restored the people's rights and cleansed national life of bribery and selfishness, he declared.

But Britain, he said, is "the big enemy."

Housing, Health, Defence Themes of Party Leaders

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

The three Hs of the election campaign—housing, health and haphazard defence expenditures—loomed on the rooftops of three political leaders Wednesday.

CCF leader M. J. Coldwell talked at Toronto about housing; Prime Minister St. Laurent spoke on health at Roberval, and Conservative leader, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, again went after government defence and extravagance."

Mr. Drew got campaign help from five women who took to the radio in a team broadcast recorded for a CBC network.

C.C.F. Housing Plan

Mr. Coldwell, speaking in Toronto's Greenwood Park to an audience of 550, contended the government is failing let private lenders make what they can out of Canada's housing shortage.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, a Crown company, was operating on behalf of the lending institutions and not, as was intended, to help people build their own homes.

Mr. Coldwell said a CCF government would set up a system of rental from which individual home-builders could draw money at low interest and pay back over 30 years instead of 20. The initial deposit would be reduced to 10 per cent.

Such a plan would make it possible for a Canadian to acquire a $10,000 home by monthly payments of $33.25, including 3 per cent interest. For those who could not afford that much, the CCF would introduce rental subsidy funds to be made available to public housing authorities. This would require a sharp drop in current high rents, Mr. Coldwell said.

Health Plan Coming

Mr. St. Laurent, said in a Roberval theatre that Canada would "within a few months" have a health insurance plan when defence expenditures could be cut. The provinces better this all-out effort.

"Health insurance would be a good thing, but it will be impossible until some cut in defence expenditures can be made. There is no other way around it. After all, I think the people feel taxes are high enough as they are."

The prime minister spent another hand-shaking day in his native Quebec riding, St. Laurent-Saguenay valley town.

He had a second deal about Canadian unity and the country's two cultures: "It is necessary that we remain faithful to our French language and religion. That is better. And if we tried to be a second-hand imitation of another culture. The same applies to English-language citizens. It is better for them to remain attached to their traditions than to try to be second-hand imitators of the other Canadian culture.

"There are many many things for which I admire George Drew, but I must say I have the strongest admiration for him for the tremendous effort he has made to talk to a whole segment of the population in its own tongue. There are others who are doing the same and when such a precedent has been set it becomes tradition."

Example of Waste

Mr. Drew, addressing a street audience of some 200 persons from a Granby, Que., hotel balcony, referred to a newspaper report by Ross Munro of the Southam Newspapers concerning the bedraggled condition of the RCAF airfield at Cruz Tropuin, France.

This, said Mr. Drew, is "another example" of the waste and inefficiency which is the result of the Curtis report on the army works services.

"That is the kind of thing that has been adding to the taxes you have to pay," the Progressive Conservative leader said.

Mr. Drew spoke mainly in French at his six stops in Quebec's eastern townships during the day. He denied that the electors are "fed up" with politics. "There is a lot of talking, they're doing a great deal of it."

At Sherbrooke, a textile centre, Mr. Drew called for enforcement of the Canada-United States trade protocol textile mill against "cut-throat competition from the United States."

A Progressive Conservative government would strictly enforce anti-dumping laws and ensure employment for Canada's textile workers.

P. C. Women Speak

The five Progressive Conservative women candidates in Vancouver South, and Sybil Bennett, candidate in Halton, Ont., and Agnes Macphail, Conservative Women's Association.

Miss Aitken said the Liberals should be turned out of office because their ministers have come to believe they own by divine appointment.

Mrs. Fairclough said: "The time has come for an accounting and, in its supreme arrogance, this government will not give it. It treats us like a small boy caught stealing jam from the pantry. It tells its acts, with a beguiling smile on its face, I hope to charm you out of your indignation. Well, I am sure you will agree with me that it will get it no further at all to stand in the corner with its face to the wall for a while."

Assume Duke of Edinburgh Will be Appointed Regent

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The British press took for granted today that under proposed new legislation the Duke of Edinburgh would replace Princess Margaret as regent if Prince Charles should succeed to the throne while a minor.

It was also widely assumed that Commonwealth Relations Minister Salisbury would be elected by members of the council of state. This is the body that principles of royal authority when the sovereign is outside the United Kingdom.

In announcing the impending legislation, Acting Prime Minister R. A. Butler said the royal title bill to amend the Regency Act would be introduced to enable the Queen leaves on her Commonwealth tour in November. Parliamentary sources said the legislation the bill will be presented early in the autumn session of Parliament, which the Queen will open.

No Details Given

Butler did not go into details on the proposed changes in the Regency Act, but nearly every British newspaper carried stories to the effect that the principle provision would be to name the Duke of Edinburgh as regent. As the law stands now, Princess Margaret would become regent if the throne's sovereign were prevented from ruling, through death or incapacity, while Prince Charles, who is heir apparent Charles, was under 18. Margaret is the first person of full age in the line of succession.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — The government has banned direct broadcasts in the broadcast of any duel fought in the future. Duels are legal here.

The latest one, staged some months ago between Aldo Brum, president of the Senate, and Ulises Pereyra Reverbell, a newspaper man opposed to him politically, was described in round-by-round fashion by a Montevideo radio station.

Attendance Record At Witnesses' Meet

NEW YORK (AP)—An all-time attendance record of 192,811 was set Wednesday at the world assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses, the fourth day of the religious sect's four-day convention.

Officials said the count included 76,186 persons inside Yankee Stadium and 56,625 reached by loudspeaker telephone wire to a public address system at Trailer City, New Market, N.J.

The previous attendance record of 123,707 was set in August, 1950, when the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society last held its convention in New York.

PRAVDA SPURNS WEST'S REQUEST BIG FOUR MEET

Calls Parley Plan Behind-Back 'Deal'

MOSCOW (AP) — In a major statement of communist policy, Pravda today spurned the West's call for a conference of the Big Four foreign ministers on Germany and Austria. The organ of the Soviet Communist party said the invitation is a behind-the-back "deal" attempting to force the Soviet communist party said the

The newspaper gave the first Russian reaction to the U. S. invitation from the British, U.S., and French ministers for foreign minister V. M. Molotov to meet them in talks.

(Observers in London concluded that the Pravda editorial indicated the Kremlin would reject the Western bid to a conference dealing only with Germany and Austria).

The invitation to meet late in September was given following the recent Washington meeting of the three Western foreign ministers.

Pravda did not slam the door on the possibility of some kind of summer-parley. Such a conference, it said, "under specific circumstances would have an important and positive significance."

Hits at "Deals"

The newspaper lashed out at "deals" it said the western foreign ministers made in advance of the conference, and in a preliminary conference of deputies of all four countries. The last proposal the U. S. and Britain had reached this stage died in 1951 after 2 years and 2 months (17 months of negotiations in Paris, were unable to agree.)

Assails Deals

Pravda accused U.S. State Secretary John Foster Dulles of leading the British and French representatives around by the nose in Washington.

"If a four-power meeting should take place," Pravda declared, "it will not be going to meet for example, that the hands of the representatives of England and France will be tied as well by the deal."

Pravda charged also that the Western powers were attempting to "strengthen the weakened position of (Chancellor Konrad) Adenauer in the forthcoming elections."

(The West German Socialists, Adenauer's opposition party at home, already have charged that in Big Three want to postpone any international talks until after the September elections.)

Pravda charged also that the Western powers were attempting to "strengthen the weakened position of (Chancellor Konrad) Adenauer in the forthcoming elections."

TO EMPIRE GAMES

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—Australia plans to send at least 36 athletes to the British Empire Games in Canada next year, a preliminary budget has been passed for 10 track men, seven swimmers, five cyclists, three boxers, three wrestlers and one each of three weight lifters and four rowers.

Belief Growing Armistice Likely Despite RoK Stand

Swiss and Swedes Arrive In Korea to Supervise Truce

By ROBERT R. TUCKMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Allied and Communist officers worked on final details of a Korean truce today and then recessed indefinitely as an advance party of Swiss and Swedish members of a commission which will supervise an armistice arrived in Korea.

Allied officials sounded speculation that the long-awaited armistice pending more than three years of bloodshed on this battered peninsula would come soon despite reports South Korea opposes truce.

Four Swiss and four Swedish members of the neutral nations armistice commission flew to Seoul from Tokyo and were hustled to the United Nations advance camp at Munsan by helicopter. Their names and positions on the commission were not revealed.

The armistice commission members will be backed by an Allied and Red Asian officers huddled secretly here, then recessed without rescheduling another session.

Earlier in the day staff officers reported "slight progress" that the next meeting would be set by Saturday.

They are reported to have drawn the cease-fire line across Korea and completed arrangements for exchanging prisoners of war who want to be repatriated today. Prisoner exchange plans were believed to be finished at a meeting later in the day.

Violent Red Reaction

Communist radio stations reacted violently to President Syngman Rhee's statement Wednesday that South Koreans will follow its own course of action unless the Reds agree within six months after a truce is signed to evacuate North Korea.

The Reds said an armistice was endangered, but indicated a truce was still possible. And communist workmen continued work on a new building for the armistice signing ceremonies.

On a visit to the battle front Thursday, Rhee told Associated Press correspondent John Hightower that he opposed the armistice "under certain conditions."

"If we can see our way to survive, we can reach agreement," Rhee said. "If we can't see our way to survive that is a different thing."

The old statesman has said many times his nation cannot survive without a United Nations communist troops in the north.

Rhee Opposes Truce

Before Rhee left Seoul for the front, he talked for 35 minutes with U. S. Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs.

Briggs delivered a message reportedly from Secretary of State Dulles. The statement said the United States is willing to sign a mutual defense pact with South Korea after the armistice that he would not impede an armistice.

A high South Korean source said late today that a U. S. reply to parliament note delivered to Rhee Wednesday was "quite unsatisfactory."

The source, who asked not to be identified, said the reply failed to give satisfactory answers to questions raised by South Korea during talks last month between Rhee and Assistant State Secretary Walter Robertson. President Eisenhower's truce envoy.

Went Hunting for the Mounties But Pittsburgh Lad Disappointed

DETROIT (AP)—Young Jimmy Butler always wanted to be a Mountie as a member of the RCMP.

But today, the 12-year-old Pittsburgh lad, is waiting for "the man" to come and get him. In his case "the man" is his father and Jimmy said he is "kinda scared."

Wednesday, he is being held in the juvenile detention home here, has been the object of a Pittsburgh search and has been reunited with when he left his part-time job at a filling station and failed to go home.

"I decided all of a sudden that I would go to Canada and talk with some of the Mounties," Jimmy explained.

He said that he bought a bus ticket for Detroit with his pay and arrived here Monday.

After spending two days sightseeing about town Jimmy said Tuesday he walked across the Ambassador bridge to Windsor, Ont., and "asked some man" where nearby Aunbersburg, which he said he knew was the home of the Mounties and which appeared to be a good place to find Mounties because it was near Lake Erie.

While hunting for the RCMP, the young man discovered that he had lost his wallet and reported this to Ontario provincial police.

They reported that young Jimmy had reached the end of his quest. He was picked up by Detroit immigration authorities and Detroit police but, next before he said he had learned that live in the RCMP was planned. "I sure am sorry I ran out for him.

"They don't even wear their red and blue uniforms except for parades and stuff," Jimmy exclaimed. "I only hope I can make it again."

Rapid Progress Being Made on Repaving Contract

Rapid progress is being made by the H. J. McFarland Construction Company of Picton in the repaving of the dual lane section of No. 2 highway east of the city. The contract calls for re-paving of the double land road to the Point Anne turn as well as two and a half miles of the single lane extending further east.

An official of the company stated today that the job was expected to be completed in another ten days' time. The paving job was started on July 14th.

The completed highway section will be five inches of asphalt laid in two layers. Mixing operations are being carried out at the company's mixing plant on Foxboro Road from where asphalt is trucked to the job. Between 75 and 90 men are employed on the paving job, it was stated.

Made no Ruling On Banning of Hoopnet Fishing

James Moon, president of the Trenton Rod and Gun Club, was quoted in a recent story in district newspapers as saying that Fred MacDonald Conservation officer of Point Anne would recommend the banning of gill and hoop net fishing in the Bay of Quinte west of the Belleville bridge.

Correcting this statement, Mr. Moon states that Mr. MacDonald has not made any ruling regarding the banning of this type of fishing in the Bay of Quinte.

Conservation Officer MacDonald in addition to Moon's retraction states, "I wish to say that I have made no declarations or recommendation in regard to the abolishment of commercial fishing in the Bay of Quinte."

Increased Sales of Pianos Reported by Local Merchants

The present boom on piano sales now being enjoyed by piano merchants in the United States has reached out to cause the border to Canada and right into this city.

An Associated Press story from New York appearing in the Ontario Intelligencer on Wednesday quoted a top manufacturer of the instruments as saying sales had not been as good in 20 years.

A Front Street merchant, Enos David, proprietor of David's Electric, said he became aware of the increased interest in pianos last September and began stocking them. "Since then," Mr. David said, "sales have been extremely good, there is a lot of interest shown by the public."

To Enlarge Department

He feels enough interest is about that he plans to enlarge his piano department and start a promotion campaign.

Another merchant, R. E. Kuntze, of R. E. Kuntze and Sons, Electrical Service, has also found an upsurge in piano sales. He attributes the rise to two factors. More owners are noted, the increased interest in pianos when the credit restrictions were removed a little more than a year ago. The other point which influenced the new interest, according to the manager, was the gradual adaption of persons to television. He said the public television and radio held the limelight, but within the past year or so, many people have been gradually returning to the piano.

"During the past season," Mr. Kuntze stated, "we have sold more pianos here than in previous years. The sales are not only restricted to pianos, but reach out to the house-model organ."

Attachments

Organs, according to Mr. Kuntze, are selling on about the same level as pianos. He made reference to a particular attachment which may be connected to the piano so that piano and organ music may be played simultaneously or separately as desired.

However, the retailer feels there is still room for improvement. He noted that pianos remain a seasonal item, with sales being poor during the summer, heavy spring and autumn months.

Both merchants are of the opinion that there still was had a lot to do with keeping families home during the evening, thus making the home the centre of entertainment once again.

Trucker Fined For Overloading Given Warning

Pleading guilty to two charges of overloading trucks, Conrad A. Landriault, of Toronto, was assessed $100 fine and $15.50 costs on each charge when he appeared in magistrate's court before Magistrate T. R. Wills today.

Ontario Highways Department Inspector Norman A. Brown told the court that he had checked trucks owned by Carnignan with overloads of 11,250 pounds and 11,500 pounds carrying cement from Point Anne to Toronto. The overload was about 40 per cent on the truck's rated capacity, it was noted.

As it turned out the accused was a previous offender in overloading trucks. Court records showed that he had paid four fines this year in Cobourg court for this offence. Two fines of $20 and two of $50 had been paid.

"I am just wondering what sort of a penalty will stop this man overloading his trucks," noted Magistrate Wills as he set a fine of $100 for each of the charges. In doing so he warned Carnignan that if he appeared again in court on the same charge the fine on conviction would be the maximum of $200.

Youths' Plans For Trip to Coast Prove Expensive

The story of a $2,000 mile hitchhiking expedition which ended through when the two youths involved ran out of money and ended up in jail when they stole a car to get back to Montreal was told in county magistrate's court here today.

Gellas LaLonde, 18, and Raymond Parker, 19, both of Montreal, were arrested by Napanee provincial police on Sunday and later charged with car theft in connection with the disappearance of D. Vivian's car in Napanee.

The youths pleaded guilty in court today and were remanded one week for sentence by Magistrate T. V. Wills.

The court was told that Mr. Vivian's 1949 model car had been taken from its garage, the motor being started by crossing wires. The car was chased by Napanee police who forced it to turned off the highway onto a county road and was later found almost completely wrecked after it had been rolled on a curve.

Admit Taking Car

The youths admitted taking the car and after defence counsel Barrett suggested the youth's story may have a ring of truth to it Magistrate Parker told how he and LaLonde had left Montreal en route to Calgary to find work.

They had planned to meet his brother at Kingston but the connection was missed and out of money the two started back to Montreal.

"We had been four days without food and were hitch-hiking desperate," he said. "We took the car as a quick means of getting back to Montreal."

"I don't think the story has improved their position any," commented Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan as he asked how the youths had intended to finance gasoline for the trip to Montreal.

"The story is quite possibly true, however," commented the magistrate as he remanded the boys for sentence.

TRENTON

Canada Creosoting Co. Increases Plant Facilities

TRENTON, (Special)—One of Trenton's oldest and steadiest industries has decided to expand its operations and commence output on new lines. Senator W. A. Fraser and Mayor R. E. Whitley were invited to the Canada Paint and Chemical premises on Tuesday as guests of the management. Both expressed highest praise for the company's plans to expand and improve production at the local plant.

The confidence that the industry holds in the future of this area was indicated by the extensive expansion that is underway at the Canada Creosoting Company's plant here. New installations and modernization of existing equipment indicate management's belief that Trenton is an ideal location for industry.

The plant modernization will cost in the vicinity of $250,000. Included in this figure is provision for an installation to permit the local plant to engage in new type of wood preservation. Along with new equipment will come modernization of handling facilities, expansion of storage grounds and the addition of several units which will make the plant the most up to date of its kind in Canada. An example of this is equipment which will permit the preservative treatment of green wood. The finished product will have all new qualities of wood which has been dried naturally.

Wood treated by the company finds use in a wide variety of installations. Among these are, railway ties, power and telephone poles, bridges and trestles, piling for wharves and foundation timbers for general construction.

The superior qualities of treated wood have been proved over many years. It resists all forms of decay thereby providing five times the life of untreated wood. In addition, it requires no maintenance.

The Trenton plant was completed in 1911 and is one of 15 across the nation.

Chimney Smoke Mistaken for Fire

TRENTON. — Firemen are convinced that the present heat wave has affected some Trenton people.

Last night while it was still raining a local resident turned in a fire alarm from 214 Isabella Street. Smoke eaters swarmed all over the place looking for signs of fire. After a half hour searching without results Chief Harry Perry took the conclusion that the alert citizen saw smoke coming out of the chimney of the Chinese laundry which is a daily occurrence for that business.

Earlier in the heat of the day the department answered a call to a grass fire behind the Continental Can property on south Dufferin Avenue.

Lightning Splits Marmora Barn, Rain Douses Fire

MARMORA (Special)—The west end of Earl O'Connor's barn was struck by lightning during a violent electrical storm in this district Wednesday night.

Mr. O'Connor's farm is located two miles east of Marmora on No. 7 highway.

The barn was split from top to bottom by the bolt. A hole was blown in the roof and thirty-six loads of hay in the barn burst into flames. However, the heavy downpour accompanying the electrical disturbances put the fire out. The the rafters were damaged in the lightning bolt knocked a hole in the side of the barn and split an elm tree standing near it.

Mr. O'Connor's son Jack had just closed the barn door and was preparing to take his father when the lightning bolt struck a spot almost where he had been standing. The bolt knocked a team of horses to their knees and badly scared some pigs.

Other damage in the Marmora township included several felled trees and stands of grain flattened.

The storm hit this district at about 8.30 p.m.

Uraniums and New Brunswick base metals turned weaker in almost all issues trading.

Industrials held within a half-point range and a number of issues traded unchanged as the group eased gently. Steels led the decline.

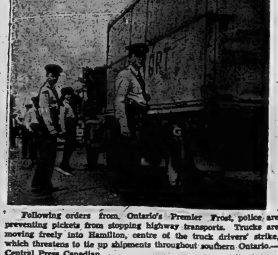
Peterborough Man Fined $50 on Speeding Charge

It was an expensive golf game for D. R. Lawrie of Peterborough, who the other day was checked by police for speeding on No. 14 highway and later paid a speeding fine of $50 and $3.50 costs.

Police reported they had clocked Lawrie at 70 miles per hour through the village of Foxboro and had to pace the police cruiser considerably faster to stop him on the open highway.

The reason for all the speed Lawrie told police was that he was trying to keep a golf date.

The fine and costs of $53.50 which was paid out of court, was one of the largest for speeding that has been assessed locally.



The same court docket indicated that provincial police are stepping up their campaign against traffic offenders with no less than 15 speeding charges being listed. All were settled out of court with fines and costs ranging up from $8.50.

Other traffic offences included illegal passing, failing to stop for "stop" signs and operating vehicles without the necessary equipment required by the traffic act.

Caboose, Two Loaded Coal Cars Smash Through Stop-Block

Two loaded coal cars, part of a "train" of twelve and a caboose, plunging deeply into soft earth, prevented what might have been more serious damage to property and probably the Canadian National Railway station early today.

The two cars, the first behind the caboose, smashed through a stop-block on a siding leading directly to the station on the east side after they were "bumped." The caboose and the ground just behind the block, but the coal-laden cars gouged some five feet into the earth effectively halting the rest of the train. They stopped some three car-lengths behind the block.

Railings edging the eastern side of the lawn next the station were smashed. Two light standards bordering the siding were torn away. The caboose was on top of the ground but the first car wound up canted at a near-forty-five degree angle while the front part of the second car plowed deeply into the soil. Both cars were badly damaged.

It was stated that the twelve-car train was stabling on the siding when it was "bumped" by another train. The siding it is said, was slightly "down grade" and the coal-laden cars gathered momentum as they got under way.

A mound of earth some five feet above the ground just in front of the first wrecked car, is evidence of the force with which the cars struck the soft earth.

No one was injured.

The standing cars were removed from the siding later in the morning while CNR workmen unloaded the wrecked siding stock. Little damage was done to the pavement where the caboose rolled over it, although definite wheel impressions were apparent.

South Koreans Fail in Effort To Capture Hill

BY FORREST EDWARDS

SEOUL (AP)—South Korean infantry fought with bayonets, knives and rifle butts to the top of strategic Sniper Ridge hill in central Korea today, but were beaten off in a savage 5½-hour fight with the battle-wise regiment.

North of Sam Hyon, Allied air and ground observers reported sighting Chinese troops. Allied big guns shelled two separate Red battalions massing north of the battle line, plus a concentration of about 40 Red trucks and six tanks.

Rugged Sam Hyon hill overlooks important highway through the Kumsong bulge line, which the South Koreans established after being forced back last week by the mightiest Red offensive in two years.

On the eastern flank of the Kumsong bulge, U.S. infantry hurled back another 150 Reds who lobbed hand grenades into their trenches during a three-hour fight.

Break Expected Soon in Baffling Gaspe Murder

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GASPE, Que. (CP) — Important developments in the case of three missing Pennsylvania bear hunters are expected within 24 hours, an official close to the investigation said today.

The official in Quebec told The Canadian Press:

"Very important developments are expected within the next 24 hours. I cannot say more at the moment."

Meanwhile, Quebec provincial police sent one of their top crime investigators into the bush to seek a solution to the baffling case.

Investigator Arrives

Capt. J. Alphonse Matte, ranked among the best of the provincial crime investigators, arrived from Quebec today and immediately prepared to enter the bush where the remains of one of the hunters were found.

Capt. Matte was accompanied by Capt. Raoul Simard of the provincial police highway patrol, who also planned to enter the bush.

The remains found in the bush — a skeleton, without a skull, have been identified as those of Eugene Lindsey, 45. No trace has been found of Lindsey's 19-year-old son Richard or of 20-year-old Fred Clair. The three, all from Hollidaysburg, Pa., were last seen in the bush June 12.

Officials connected with the search Wednesday night expressed belief that Eugene Lindsey was clubbed and then shot to death by the skeleton. They said there was a minute piece of skull attached to strands of hair found clinging to the sight of the rifle.

Searchers have been baffled by their failure to find anything that would explain the disappearance of young Lindsey and Clair. They have come on no sign, near the truck or the campsite of any of the party's camp equipment.

Most of those who have been combing the death scene area for days planned to return here today. Only one man would be left in the woods to continue spot checks.

Among the things turned up so far have been the remains of one body, the rifle, tattered bits of clothing stained underwear, torn pieces of clothing and a damaged rifle strap.

FISHERIES DEVELOPMENT

NEW DELHI (CP) — A fisheries training school and cold-storage plant are being established at Cochin as part of a fisheries development program on India's west coast. The school will train fishermen in modern methods and handling of vessels.

MOUNTAINS OF WOOL

MELBOURNE (CP)—This season's wool clip, beginning in August, has been officially estimated at 3,800,000 bales of 300 pounds average weight.

'Public First,' Merchants Lose 'Left Turn' Fight

TORONTO (CP)—Fifteen Chatham merchants lost a fight Wednesday to get rid of a left-turn ban they say is costing them business.

Mr. Justice R. A. Danis of the Ontario Supreme Court refused to continue a temporary injunction that would cancel a city of Chatham by-law prohibiting left turns at a main intersection. He said in his ruling that "the welfare of the public comes first."

The group of merchants sought to have the injunction continued until trial. Through their counsel, George Walsh, Jr., they contended that the by-law discriminates in favor of merchants west of Fifth Street.

Mr. Walsh said his clients are suffering because motorists are forced to detour to reach their stores and, in doing so, pass through their competitors' area.

Douglas Kerr, counsel for the city of Chatham, said the by-law passed June 1 has been approved by the Ontario department of highways.

"Only motor vehicles are interfered with," he said. "The pedestrian traffic does most of the shopping."

Marmora, Madoc Winners Over Tweed, Ivanhoe

Tweed (Special)—In the first games of best three of five series, the first place Marmora team edged third place Madoc 4-3 and second place Madoc beat Tweed 7-5.

In the game at Marmora the home-towners took a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Madoc got another in the second. Both teams played scoreless ball until the sixth when Ivanhoe scored twice. Ivanhoe tied it up in the top of the last on an infield hit, a single and two infield outs. Marmora won the game with a homer in the last of the seventh.

Ray pitched the complete game for Ivanhoe. Meiney hurled for Marmora in a real pitcher's duel. Meiney claimed 12 strikeouts to Ray's ten, while he walked one to Ray's three.

In the game at Madoc, Tweed grabbed a 4-0 lead in the first few innings. However, they could not hold their lead as Madoc caught fire and swept ahead at the last.

Lessard pitched the route for Madoc, while Manion hurled for Tweed.

BLIND PEOPLE ENJOY LIFE

The annual report of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind has reached us.

As usual, it is inspiring, in the true meaning of that much-used word.

Any person blessed with insight, as well as normal eyesight, can fail to marvel at the manner in which persons doomed to the shadows still manage to live lives so nearly normal, lives filled with work and play, with love and laughter, chores and games.

The Institute, of course, deserves a large share of the credit for the manner in which many of these blind persons are able to earn their living. The report includes pictures of a blind farmer and the concrete incinerator he built, of a blind X-ray technician at work, of a man assembling the coils for water heaters and of another man producing mops in his own factory.

But the photographs which whisper our eye and fancy are those depicting dealing with the recreations of the blind. It is not surprising that some blind persons knit. Knitting is a recreational occupation which is carried almost automatically by those with eyesight. That the blind can play checkers is understandable, for eyesight is merely a convenience in this game, with the actual play being conducted by the brain.

But who would have imagined that the blind would be gardeners? Yet it is. "Gardening, with stakes and strings and a little lighted assistance," says the report, "is enjoyed by sightless lovers of nature from coast to coast. They dig, plant, and cultivate, and the seeds grow just as copiously as they do in the gardens of the sighted."

What strange impulse leads sightless persons to devote hours to gardening? They cannot see the results of their labors and we begin to believe that they do it merely for the few beets, carrots and peas which will reward their toil.

That weeds should flourish in the garden of a man who cannot distinguish them from flowers or vegetables is very first instant they first poke their heads through the soil seems grossly unjust. And yet we suspect the blind would not have it otherwise. Some sheltered, dreamworld, but the struggles and joys of every-day life, are what they crave. Thanks to the gifts of the public, the work of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind and those with great courage, many blind persons achieve their desires. Strange though it may seem to us, they find life good.

THE KOREAN SITUATION

Once upon a time there were two men who shared a terrible house. They were enemies.

One dark night one of the men pushed his way into his neighbor's home and started to beat him.

A passer-by saw the struggle and assisted the victim of the assault. They chased the assailant into his own premises, but he called for help from the neighbors, who were his relatives.

The struggle went on for a long time. Then the passer-by and the man who had started the attack talked things over and decided to end the fight. But the victim of the assault would not consent until his assailant's relatives left his home.

The passer-by did not know what to do. He did not want to go on fighting, but he did not wish to see the attacked man invite disaster by continuing to fight alone. The passer-by could not call the police — because he was the police.

He could not threaten the attackers with the penalties of the law — because they laughed at the law and, anyway, there were no courts in the land.

That is the Korean situation today.

CHEAP AT ANY PRICE

The cost of Canada's 1953 election will set a new record. It will be over $7,000,000.

But we do not think, however, will come out of the public treasury, will be paid for by taxes. Political parties and their supporters will spend a million and a half, or more.

We are not prepared to state that all of the cost of this election is unavoidable. For instance, is it absolutely necessary that each voter should receive a copy of the voters' list with the polling sub-division? Should not a conscientious citizen make certain his name is on the list, without this assistance?

But one thing we all ought to remember. That is that the election would be cheap at many times its price.

LET US HAVE LEGIBLE SIGNATURES

This being the age of machines it is hardly likely that we shall revert to the art of penmanship. Letters will continue to be tapped out by secretaries on their silent mechanical writers. There is one aspect of writing which, however, we would urge: that signatories to letters sign them in legible writing. The spider web scrawls that some men attach to their correspondence is an admission of inattention and an affront to the recipient.—(London Free Press.)

Caboose Goes Modern

(Business Week)

The little red caboose with its characteristic cupola is disappearing from end-of-train rail lines. The familiar wooden model is giving way to an all-steel job with no bay windows.

Most railroaders are enthusiastic about the change. They feel it's about time something was done to modernize the front and rear end-second home. For nearly 100 years, the caboose has remained unchanged except that one every other piece of rolling stock has had its face lifted.

From the 1870's, when the western roads built the model, the caboose has come with windows cut in the sides and doors in the ends—the caboose has been headquarters for the train crew (conductor, flagman, brakeman). It's the place where the conductor fills out his "wheel reports", covering the origin, destination and contents of every car on the train.

On the caboose, it's another home. Veteran crews are assigned the same caboose over long periods as take care of it as their own property. There's a stove for preparing meals during the winter months. Bunks, storage compartments for flags, lanterns, tools and personal belongings.

The caboose is also the place where the train crew keeps an eye out for trouble along the train and the tracks. It's the duty of the watching was done from the cupola, but this was sometimes dangerous. There was always the possibility of slipping or being thrown down by a sudden start of the train. There was also a fire hazard from oil from the lamps stored in the wooden car.

The new cabooses, with their bay windows, are a lot safer and far more comfortable. The first-of-the-new type was introduced in 1930 by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. But timing was wrong for the new model to catch on at that time. Depression closely followed by war caused roads to concentrate on revenue producing equipment.

Since the end of World War II, though, new caboose lines are adopting them. Typical of the new models are those used by the New York Central. There are five big features that make them popular: Removing the cupola has made it possible for designers to knock out some of the partitions that were necessary to support the lookout box. This makes the caboose roomier, easier for the crew to move around in.

All-steel construction with an I beam and crash plate, offer greater protection when cars couple together in case of a rear-end collision.

Furnishings have a modern touch, with foam rubber pads that places the hard to clean metal one, seats are cushioned with sponge rubber, and there are folding bunk seats in passenger cars, a refrigerator provides cool drinks and food storage, stoves are larger, and tables fold into the walls.

Bay windows are instead of three on a side give more light and a better view. The bay windows are especially on curves. The side view eliminates the problem you have with the end view of a hooded view from the cupola.

Eye Can See Million Colors

Science Digest

The average person can see about 500,000 different colors, color experts say. But the General Electric Co.'s general engineering laboratory in Schenectady, N.Y., estimate. People trained in color perception can see about twice as many.

And if you've ever wondered how color experts can tell them apart, the experts say there's no specific answer to the question.

According to Dorothy F. Barnes, a color authority at the GE laboratory, the answer depends on what you mean by color differences. As he says, if you can't distinguish a difference, you can't actually allow a difference! He believes the question is similar to the ancient argument regarding noise: "If a tree falls in a forest, and nobody is around, does it there really a noise?"

Because of the many various shades now on the marrket, GE color engineers are engaged in work designed to standardize colors.

For example, Barnes pointed to an American flag. "It was not until after the days of the Second World War that anybody knew specifically what colors made up the flag," he said.

With thousands of various shades of red, white and blue available, hardly any two flag-makers produced the same colored flag. Then the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, the National Bureau of Standards at Washington.

Barnes explained there is only one perfect color which has been selected as the standard upon which other colors are based. This "pure white" is the white smoke produced by magnesium flash powder used by newspaper photographers.

One of the instruments used in color research is known as a spectrophotometer, by which color is mathematically capable of "seeing" the number 10 followed by 10 zeroes.

Of course, Barnes explained, there are many other colors, but if there were, the spectrophotometer could theoretically differentiate them.

The manner in which the human eye sees a color depends largely upon moods, position of seeing, and psychological reactions to certain colors, he explained. On the other hand, consistently "sees" the same color, regardless of circumstances.

According to Barnes you should never do down on a color campaign job. Seems there's a difference between red-white from a standing to a recumbent position.

Electric Eye May be Ump!

(Fort Arthur News-Chronicle)

The baseball league's split is scientific and constructive mind "dreamured it out while sitting in a rocking chair on the front porch of the Port Arthur Stadium; some day, a battery of electric eye will register on an indicator when the pitched ball passes through the strike zone. There would then be no disputing the umpire's judgment on balls and strikes.

It was more or less fanciful suggestion when mentioned in the hearing of this newspaper; but why shouldn't it be made practical?

Such a contrivance or arrangement would not differ much from that by which a door will open under electrical impulse when a person walks in front. The register could be made to work by the same principle of electric eye all under a piece of heavy glass, set at the corner of the batter's box. Engineering should find little difficulty on that point. The only difficulty would be in determining the height of the strike zone in conformity with the height of the batsmen players. Adjustment might be determined which would apply to all in the same way as at present distances between bases or from pitcher to batter. The umpire's part is only that of seeing to the height and speed of the different pitched balls.

It might take some ingenuity but it is worth thinking about.

Also, why should it not be another Port Arthur contribution to the world of sport? It couldn't be far from here.

It was in Port Arthur, at the shipyards, after years of study and experimentation by a former Port Arthur man, that the first time-clock for the hockey rinks was developed and considerable money was made from it, ecess and is now standard equipment in all up to date hockey rinks. It became a great success and is now standard equipment in all up to date hockey rinks throughout the country and doesn't let the first from here.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

LET'S GO BAREFOOT THIS SUMMER

Dr. Brady

In the piece about chilblain and sunburn, I stated, I hope, I said anyone subject to chilblains of the feet should go barefoot as much as possible; also that anyone easily affected by excessive sweating of the feet should go barefoot as much as possible.

Then finally I threw caution to the wind and said anyone with feet should go barefoot as much as possible.

Going barefoot as much as possible is not only fun but the practice is good for the general health. Good for the health of the young infant who has not yet learned to creep or walk. Good for the health of the growing child or youth. Good for the health of the adult.

This is the middle of the 20th century, high time to dismiss from your mental mind the notion that stockings and/or shoes are necessary for the feet. Fervent or mold the feet of baby, child or adult. High time, too, to dismiss the morbid notion that one who plays or works barefoot and enjoys it is more liable to get pneumonia, poliomyelitis or rheumatism than one who doesn't go barefoot. Scores of doctors and specialists still warn the public of alleged dangers from going bareheaded or just bare. But I hope at least a fair share of readers will have learned by now not to take the 19th century hokum seriously, especially if you have children to raise.

At least one rational explanation for the benefit derived from going barefoot is that such exposure of feet and legs to sky-shine or sunshine increases the body's production of vitamin D. Most American children and adults get insufficient vitamin D through most of the year to maintain normal calcium and phosphorus metabolism.

Going barefoot whenever possible—say when working in the garden, mowing the lawn, weeding and polishing the car—is good for corns, bunions, ingrown nail, weak ankles (prostated feet) and potential flat feet.

The growing child with weak ankles, weak feet, prostated feet, as the weakness is variously called, and the teenage youngster with noticeably pronounced inner arch and a tendency to toe out when walking should go barefoot as much as possible.

Come on, now, let's all give our feet a treat this summer and we'll be healthier and happier next fall.

LOVE AND THE WILL

Never try to manufacture emotion.

We read in the Bible that we must love God and our fellow men, and many people conclude that this means we must have a fervent attachment and liking for God and our fellows. Ultimately, it does mean this, but it will mean that we have just that; but it need not necessarily mean that in the beginning. The Bible commands us to love, and what even we feel cannot alter the fact that it and us to have a certain kind of emotion at least not with any expectation of success.

Love begins in the will, not in emotions. Begin by willing that you love God, and you will soon find the emotion of love toward God begin to develop and flower as you would behave toward them if your heart were really overflowing with an affectionate emotion toward them. The emotion will not be delayed, however, it follows inevitably upon action. Hate your fellow and you will feel resentful and you will soon begin perpetrating hateful acts against them. Make yourself act decently, kindly, generously, toward them, and while at first you may not have any liking for them whatsoever—they may be utterly reprehensible—soon the time will come when you will have a cordial reaction of liking toward these people.

But even if you do not, would that ease any difference? Love begins not in feeling but in acting.

He Uncorked Ocean Bottles

(Brantford Expositor)

When Elizabeth I was queen, one of the court officials, believe it or not, was the Uncorker of Ocean Bottles. His function, it appears, was to examine all bottles "cast up by the sea," presumably on the shore of this shipwrecked mariners had put messages in them, hoping for a rescue.

Immediately, through what the Uncorker of Ocean Bottles did in ideas, no doubt, there comes to mind a haunting melody, the poetic words of which run thus:

Just an old Bass bottle,
Some fisherman threw it in;
Just an old Bass bottle
That floated up to me;
Inside there was a message,
With these words written on:
"Whoever finds this bottle Finds the beer all gone."

And that, of course, leads inevitably to the suggestion that a variant of the high office of Uncorker of Ocean Bottles might be applied in the Ontario Legislature era. As reported repeatedly, a large number of bills are discarded in roadside ditches, presumably by motorists having no use for them. Some of the enterprises, is astonishingly large. Frequently, it is the work of farm workmen, whose lawful occasions take them along the highways, collecting bottles in sufficient quantity to yield them a quite handsome annual revenue. Also, a smart township authorities might find it economically useful to employ a Uncorker of Roadside Bottles, thus at one and the same time removing unsightly and we removing what could become dangerous broken glass.

Salmon Smell

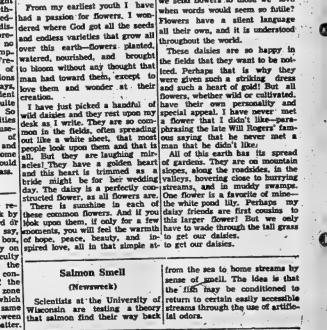
THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In the last war, thousands, perhaps hundreds of thousands of young men were trained in some of the most expert skills. Especially in the air force and navy, there were technical marvels such as radar and other detection devices which required the most acute understanding and attention from the Tens, Dicks and Harrys who had to operate them. And the young fellows who maintained, serviced and repaired them were fantastic ans in the highest sense of the word.

Aircraft engines, tanks and modern gun mechanisms were matters of everyday knowledge and practise to thousands of youths. For five months I served on the airfield of 39 Reconnaissance Wing in British and Normandy, and over 2,000 personnel were members of this wing. Apart from the aircraft they had to keep in the perfection of condition, they had cameras to worry about. For the aircraft, swift Spitfires and Mustangs, carried cameras of them in one s s fabulous detection, some of them in their bellies, some in their wings, with which enemy positions and terri- were photographed every day. These were fast, automatic cameras that had to be operated from aircraft going at furious speeds. They had to take, each thirty seconds and the jolts and jars of flying, taking off and landing, not to mention enemy flak and other assaults. To keep these remarkable cameras in perfect condition was a tremendous job for one section of 39 Wing's 2000 men.



Now and again, I run into some of the boys. Years have passed since they were our precious technicians. Always they speak of how they are doing now, always in the supposition that they must be leading in some adventure and wonderful region of our industrial and technological world.

But they are brokers, schoolteachers, salesmen or farmers. One of the last I met was perhaps the most skilled of those camera technicians who worked in the perched apple orchards and dust of Normandy. He is now a parson.

It would be interesting to know just what percentage of the tens of thousands of young trained technicians of war years continued in the technical field. It might be very small.

Asks Eisenhower To Disregard Canadian Protest

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. Senator Milton Young (rep.-N.D.) today asked President Eisenhower not to be swayed by Canadian protests against reduced quotas on agricultural imports.

In a letter to the president, Young said it was reported the Canadian government has delivered to the U.S. state department a "note of warning."

This note, Young said, threatened possible trade reprisals against U.S. products unless the government relaxes existing and contemplated restrictions on Canadian oats, dairy products and other foods.

"This protest, it seems to me, is out of line with the past friendly and understanding attitude of Canada and its good people," Young wrote the president.

"It seems to ignore the great assistance the U.S. government has given to the people all through the years, particularly with respect to their farm problems. . . .

Cites Past Aid

"For example, in 1948 our government made available $345,000,000 to England to purchase it's needs in Canada. This wheat, at that particular time, could have been purchased at a better price in the United States. . . ."

Young, a member of the U.S. Senate agriculture committee, said a proposed 23,000,000-bushel quota for Canadian oats "would second liberal and in line with average Canadian oats imports over the last 10 years.

"American oats prices have been driven far below parity and even well under the government price support level during the last two years as a direct result of record quantities of oats coming into our markets from Canada," Young said.

Young said U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson and others have stated it is impossible to maintain a workable farm price support system so long as unrestricted imports of competitive farm products are allowed.

ASSUME DUKE

There was little tendency today, either in official quarters or in newspaper comment, to link the proposed changes in the Regency Act with recent reports of a romance between Princess Margaret and Group Capt. Peter Townsend, British war hero now stationed in Brussels as air attache.

The Yorkshire Post said: "Inevitably, the decision to supersede Princess Margaret as the first in line for the regency is being linked with recent rumors about her matrimonial intentions.

"It would appear that if by any chance the regency were considered a bar to Princess Margaret's matrimonial plans, the changes now envisaged could not materially smooth her path. She will remain third in line to the throne and, presumably, she will also remain second in line to the regency."

Takes Different View

The Daily Sketch, on the other hand, said that a change in the Regency Act relieving Princess Margaret of any probability of becoming regent "would leave the Princess free to marry whom she wished."

The Daily Mirror said: "Whatever other factors are involved in the decision to change the act, an effect would be to stay the constitutional problems raised should Princess Margaret desire, as has been reported, to marry Group Capt. Townsend.

"There has been much speculation recently as to whether the present situation in which Princess Margaret would be automatically regent would be fully acceptable in the event of such a marriage."

The regency change will require approval of the other Commonwealth countries.

Canada Would Agree

Sources in Ottawa said they believed Canada would assent to the changes and could do this by order-in-council. Confirming legislation would be submitted to Parliament at the next session.

Another point of discussion in London today was what might happen in the event of some catastrophe affecting both the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh.

"In that case Princess Margaret would still remain regent," noted The Daily Mirror. ". . . It is thought probable that the government may be planning to include the Queen Mother as possible regent after the Duke. But that might give the impression that the government's main object in amending the act is to exclude Princess Margaret.

"For that reason the government may decide merely to name the Duke and leave open the question of who would take his place."

Spadina Riding List of Voters Is Said Padded

TORONTO (CP)—John A. Rinaldis, returning officer for Toronto Spadina, said Wednesday he has asked the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties in the riding to investigate whether names on the riding's voting lists for the election should be there.

His order following a complaint Tuesday night by Alfred Skinner, chairman of the riding's Progressive Conservative association, that list had been padded and that of the 739 listed electors in three subdivisions, 238 were ineligible to vote.

Voters' lists are made up by two enumerators, one appointed by the winning party in the last election, and the other by the second party. The two visit all homes in the riding and both must be satisfied conditions for voting eligibility are met.

Mr. Skinner said most of the ineligibles on the lists are new Canadians who are not citizens. One person listed was dead and 39 others lived outside the subdivision.

He said seven persons, including Tim Buck, national director of the Labor-Progressive party, were listed as living at the party's national headquarters on midtown Bloor street.

Mr. Rinaldis said he will take no action until the two parties have examined the lists.

GIVEN SIX MONTHS

GUELPH (CP) — Sentence of two youths who escaped from Ontario reformatory here last Thursday were lengthened Wednesday by six months.

Police said Thomas Cunningham, 16, and Ross Zicari, 19, walked away from a working gang. They were recaptured 12 hours later.

Mounties Probe Casings Theft, Says Newspaper

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Tribune said Wednesday in an Ottawa dispatch that the RCMP have been called in by Army officials to investigate the disappearance of 500,000 worth of brass shell casings from the Army camp at Shilo, Man.

"The investigation is attempting to determine whether the disappearance is an administrative problem or a case of theft," the paper said. No arrests have been made and no charges laid.

The Tribune estimated that the shell casings, believed for 25-scrap value of about $20,000.

Army and RCMP officials in Winnipeg declined to comment on the report.

Public Power Plea To Made by Dewey

WASHINGTON (AP) — Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York appears today before the U.S. Senate public works committee to tell why his state, not private enterprise, should be permitted to join Ontario in building new power plants at Niagara Falls.

The House has already approved, overwhelmingly, legislation to give five big private New York utilities authority to apply to the power commission for a license to build the $400,000,000 project.

Also to be heard is John E. Burton, chairman of the power authority of the state of New York.

Should New York emerge as victor in the "Battle of the Falls," the authority Burton heads would construct and administer the project.

Robertson left Seoul with some questions still to be clarified or given further consideration in Washington. These included the precise wording of a mutual security pact, the size of a promised aid program, and what the final U. S. attitude would be if political efforts to unify Korea failed and the war was started up again by Reds.

Last Sunday the chief truce negotiator for the United Nations command, Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison Jr., was disclosed to have told the Reds on July 11 that the UN command would not support any "aggressive action" of South Korean units "in violation of the armistice" and that, if such action occurred, the Reds could retaliate as they saw fit.

This, according to information here, caused Rhee to hit the ceiling because it struck so directly at his central desire to keep the way open for later military operation toward Soviet unity.

Rhee said he Seoul Wednesday South Korea would give a postwar political conference 90 days to persuade the Chinese Reds to get out of North Korea and if this failed his government would act as it saw fit.

Dulles said in his statement that the question of an armistice is up to the Communists. But Washington sees here were deeply concerned, for in the past, the Reds have been quick to attack the point of Allied weakness created by differences between Rhee and the United States.

In the light of Rhee's latest stand, they could demand fresh assurances concerning Rhee's co-operation with the truce.

Churchill Said 'Disappointed' At Parley Results

LONDON (AP)—A government source close to Sir Winston Churchill said Wednesday night the prime minister is "disappointed" at the results of the Washington conference of the Big Three Western foreign ministers.

Britain was represented by the Marquess of Salisbury, acting foreign minister. The talks, which ended last week, were called after a Bermuda conference among Churchill, President Eisenhower and French premier Joseph Laniel was postponed.

The government informant said Churchill's disappointment flowed from the fact he felt the Washington parley produced almost the exact opposite of what he had been urging in the way of big four talks.

Churchill, the informant said, had hoped that a big-power meeting at the highest level would touch off an "unfreezing" process in the cold war.

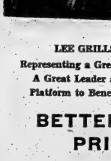
USSR Production Facilities Moved To 'Safe Regions'



MOSCOW (AP)—More than half the steel, oil and coal production facilities of Soviet Union had been transferred to strategically safe regions far from the western border, the magazine Planned Economy said Wednesday.

The moves were made because "strengthening the defence capabilities of the Soviet Union means creation in deep areas of the country, and first of all in the eastern regions (Siberia, of a powerful industry equipped with advance technology," the magazine said.

"The powerful bases of heavy industry created in the eastern areas assure the Soviet army of all types of weapons, ammunition and equipment."

The magazine said the Soviet Union plans a vast hydro-electric development on the Angara River which begins in Lake Baikal, Siberia. It said the industrial complex planned there includes aluminum, chemical and ore-consuming industries. It said the development would be on the scale of the plants planned by Canada and New York State for the St. Lawrence river.

Weddings

JEFFRIES—GREEGNE

A lovely all-white wedding was solemnized on Saturday, July 11, at 10:30 a.m., by Canon S. Greegnen, assisted by the Reverend Charles Staples, in Christ Church, Belleville, when Jean Evelyn Greene, of Belleville, daughter of Mrs. E. J. Greene, was united in marriage to the Reverend John Jeffries, Gogama, Ontario, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jeffries. White calla lilies, baby's breath and carnations adorned the altar, while standards of white gladioli lined the chancel rail.

The wedding music was provided by the church organist, Mr. Norman Croydon Withers, who accompanied the choir of six boys, who sang before the service, "The Lord's Prayer", and during the service, Psalm 67, "Love Divine", and "Brother James' Air".

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Norman E. Greene, the bride was radiant in her strapless bridal gown of white satin, featuring a molded bodice having a bolero of Chantilly lace with stand-up, rolled collar and raglan, elbow-length sleeves. The bolero tapered smartly from the neckline to the underarm, where the back continued on, ending in a twin. The dress belt caught the back of the bolero permitting the train to fall gracefully from the waist. Chantilly lace mitts, and matching Juliet-cap, pointed over the brow, bordered with satin, and trimmed with pearls, held her fingertip veil of tulle illusion. She carried a semi-cascade bouquet of Madonna lilies. White satin slippers completed her ensemble.

Mrs. Edward Rickards, of Belleville, was matron of honor, and Miss Joan Bronskill, of Belleville, and Mrs. Fred Traer, of Chatham, Ontario, were bridesmaids. All were attired in white taffeta in waltz length, made on similar lines to that of the bride, and wore headdresses of Sheata daisies in bandeau style, and carried hand bouquets in lover's knots of Sheata daisies.

Mr. Jack Lennigan, of Gogama, was groomsman, and Messrs. Kenwood and Ronald Greene, brothers of the bride, were ushers.

The reception was held at Christ Church parish hall, where the tables were prettily decorated with Shasta daisies and baby's breath. The bride's mother, gowned in navy sheer and lace, with white and navy accessories, and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses, received.

For the wedding trip to the United States and the Grand Canyon, the bride chose a navy and navy linen tailored dress with pink accessories and corsage of pink carnations and cornflowers. The Rev. and Mrs. Jeffries will reside on the Metagami Reserve, Gogama, Ontario, upon their return.

Guests were present from Chatham, Hamilton, Deseronto, Jamestown; Gogama, Toronto, Oshawa, Ottawa, Napanee, Brockville, Canaoque, Plevna, Stirling, Kingston, Ajax, Braeside, and Edmonton, Alberta.

HURST—FISHER

A pretty mid-summer wedding took place on Saturday, July 11, at 11:30 a.m., in Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, Belleville, when the Rev. Keith Daniel, pastor of the church, united in marriage Marilyn Ann Fisher, Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Fisher, to Edward Donald Hurst, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Hurst. Mixed summer flowers of blue bells and red amaryllis lilies formed a lovely background for the ceremony.

Mr. William Connor, church organist, provided the wedding music, and the soloist, Mr. Bob Lacy, rendered, among other selections, "Ave Maria", in Latin.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in white nylon net over satin, fashioned in full length with molded, strapless bodice having a white Chantilly lace redingote with long, sheath-like sleeves ending in lily-points over the hands. The gracefully full skirt was accentuated by a hoop. A pearl and rhinestone studded tiara held her double, fingertip veil of tulle illusion and she carried a bouquet of orchid gladioli and pink and bronze baby roses.

Misses Marlene Briscoe and Sheila Fisher, both of Belleville, the latter the sister of the bride, were bridesmaids. Both were petals and fashioned similar to that of the maid of honor in yellow and pale mauve, respectively. They wore floral headdresses of white Shasta daisies and mauve and pale blue bachelor buttons, and carried bouquets of similar flowers.

Mr. Stanley Creegan, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. William and Robert Hurst, brothers of the bridegroom, both of Belleville, acted as ushers.

The reception was held at the Belleville Shrine Club, where the bride's mother, in navy nylon sheer with white accessories and corsage of red roses, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore navy crepe with lace inserts and white accessories with corsage of red roses centred by an orchid. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. M. Doolittle, wore a corsage of gladioli petals.

The bride's table was daintily appointed with white damask and centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped by a tiny vase of pastel-tinted sweetpeas, the lower tier surrounded by ribbon bow hand tulle and flanked by tall white tapers in silver holders.

Those who served the buffet luncheon were, Mrs. Fred Woodhouse, assisted by Mrs. Bob Green, Miss Marjorie Whitworth, Miss Gwen Woods and Miss Heather McGregory of Barrie. Toasts were proposed to the bride, by Mr. Creegan; to Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth, by Rev. K. Daniel, and to the bridesmaids by the bridegroom.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Ottawa, Burlington, Cayuga, and Trenton.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were earrings, and to those who served, cups and saucers. The bridegroom's gift to his bride, a single strands of pearls; to his attendant, tie pin and cuff links, and to the ushers, cuff links.

Prior to her marriage the bride was the honored guest at a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Marlene Briscoe, of Belleville.

Showers, Gifts Honor Recent Bride

Mrs. John Jeffries, nee Jean Evelyn Greene, recent bride, prior to her marriage to the Reverend John Jeffries, was the honored guest at several functions.

The Cubs' and Mothers' Auxiliary of 2nd Belleville Cub Pack presented her with a carving set, cake knife and silver bread tray.

Christ Church Anglican Young People's Association held a miscellaneous shower, and Mrs. E. Harcourt, Mrs. C. E. Rickards and Miss Joan Bronskill, co-hostesses, also held a miscellaneous shower in Christ Church parish hall when a social hour in the bride's honor were present. The gifts were presented by little Miss Anne Rickards, dressed as Cupid.

Miss Gwyn Bennett entertained the bride-to-be with a cup and saucer shower at her home in Point Anne, and prior to her leaving the Laboratory of Entomology, where she was employed, the staff members entertained and presented her with a Wedgwood dinner set.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

At The End Of Her Rope, After Ten Years of Fights

Ten years of marriage have been "nothing but fights" the life of a woman who says she is now "at the end of her rope."

The causes of the fights have been many. The husband in the case is a heavy drinker. He is domineering, and expects her to do his bidding on all occasions. He doesn't want friends to come to the house and he apparently takes pleasure in keeping his wife from going out.

"My husband is fine when not drinking," she writes, "but when he doesn't get home from work on time, and doesn't call me, I dread the thought of his coming home at all, as I know he will be drunk and nasty. When he does get home, he expects me to fix him something to eat, no matter what time it is, and he will be quarrelsome and use very bad language. If I antagonize him, he tells me I cannot go bowling with our league from church, though he knows how very much I look forward to this one night every week. He says if I can't have fun with me he will not let me go out even this one evening, so most of the time I don't have any fun at all.

"I have taken him to court many a time for beating me, and he was put on probation for three years and told not to do any more drinking, but he just laughs about being on probation and always gets away with anything he wants to do in spite of it. Last week he was locked up for being drunk and giving a policeman a hard time. He was fined twenty dollars and I had to pay it.

"We used to have a lot of friends, but now he has even stopped them from coming around. One time he said he had a television set he would stay home evenings, but we got one and things didn't change a bit. I have suggested going to a doctor about his drinking but he absolutely refuses. He says he tells me I am crazy even to think of such a thing.

"I've stuck to him, but why I don't leave him, but with six children, ranging from three months to nine years, my hands are tied and he knows it.

Distracted Wife

"Can you help me find a solution to my problem, as I am so distracted I can't even think any more?"

I wonder if this woman has ever been advised by one of the organizations set up for the very purpose of helping people who have intolerable problems with which to deal.

To have six children to bring up, and an irresponsible and heavy drinking husband into the bargain, surely constitutes an intolerable problem if ever there was one, and some better solution should be available than merely taking the man into court every so often.

The fact that this woman has six children, of course, complicates the situation greatly, but even so it need not necessarily mean that she should be helplessly tied forever to a man who beats her and keeps her in a state of constant misery and apprehension.

It seems to me that even if the husband is to be temporarily broken up, and the children boarded out or with friends, so that their mother could go to work, it would be preferable to letting things go on as they are now. Life under the present condition is not only intolerable for the mother herself, but it also is extremely bad for the children to grow up in such an atmosphere.

Instead of continuing to try to solve the problem by hauling her husband to court periodically which has accomplished nothing whatever to date, I suggest that this wife go to the social welfare organization in her town or area and see what arrangements they could help her make to get away from this most unwholesome influence in her life and the lives of her children. If she does not know how to get in touch with this organization, I will be glad to tell her if she will write me again, and give me her name and address so that I can send her a personal letter.

A Salad a Day

By Mary Moore

Salads are synonymous with summer.

On languid and devitalizing days when even the thought of hot meals makes you feel faint, a crisp salad rouses your interest both from a nutritional and psychological viewpoint.

But salads should be daily fare. The ingredients for them rarely reach out to claim your attention on the markets in summer. Now is the time to develop the daily salad habit and keep on cultivating it every day all through the fall and winter.

The mouth-written about and vaunted Tossed Chef's Salad should be mastered by every cook worthy of her (or his) reputation.

To make salads a routine habit you must have a crisper or hydrator full of washed and drained salad ingredients all at all times. These include lettuce, cabbage, radishes, cucumbers, tomatoes, parsley and green peppers. With these on a start the salad tosser may make quite a few variations on it if you want to make a solid salad unpublished and spectacular.

Begin with a large head iceberg lettuce cut into bite-size pieces with silver knife, 2 medium tomatoes cut into eighths or one about 1 inch wide), about 1-3 to 3-4 cup very finely cut celery, 1-4 cup water thin slices of radish, about 1-3 cup wafer thin slices of unpeeled cucumber, 1-4 cup finely chopped parsley, 2 tablespoons finely chopped chives or green onion tops, about 1-4 cup fine shreds of green pepper (a few shreds of canned or fresh pimento or red cabbage are optional). Have these ingredients cold and crisp. Toss them in a wooden bowl which has been rubbed with a cut clove of garlic. Drizzle over them oneseparating French Dressing. To make this attractive carelessly place over top 2 or 4 slices of tomato, and green pepper and water thin slices of Bermuda onion, tucking them into the bulk of the salad cockwise.

Non-separating French Dressing

Mix together in a cold bowl 1 whole egg, 1 tablespoon paprika, 1, 1-2 teaspoons salt, slice of garlic (or 1-4 teaspoon garlic salt) 3 tablespoons sugar, dash of cayenne, beating with rotary beater until these are thick. Now slowly begin to add 1 cup ice cold salad oil, adding only a teaspoon or so at a time and beating until this is well mixed. Add another and add a little more beating between additions until all oil is added. The egg and oil emulsify and will not separate. Store in covered jar in refrigerator.

Cabbage-Pineapple Salad

Soak in ice water for 30 minutes 2 cups cabbage shredded as finely as possible with your sharpest knife. Drain well and dry. Add 1 cup well-drained canned pineapple cubes, cut up a little and, if desired, 1 cup cut up unpeeled red apple. Toss lightly with cooked Salad Dressing.

Cooked Salad Dressing

In top of double boiler mix together, 1-2 cup each sifted flour and white sugar, 2 teaspoons each salt and dry mustard, 1-8 teaspoon paprika. Stir in 1 cup water and 3-4 cup milk, vinegar or slightly diluted lemon juice. Stir over boiling water until thick, then cook covered for five minutes, stirring once. Remove from heat and beat in 2 beaten eggs (or 4 yolks) and 1 tablespoon butter. Best until smooth. It needs no more cooking. Store covered in refrigerator.

To vary the French Dressing add 2 tablespoons Roquefort or Dutch Blue cheese or grated old cheddar. To vary the Cooked Dressing add 1 tablespoon each well-drained green relish or finely chopped gherkins and canned pimento, or dilute it with some heavy cream.

GOOD MANNERS

Attention, Visitors . . About Overstaying

"Won't you stay longer?" Visitors, beware of these alluring words. For they may lure you into an anti-climax of your visit. You're "having a wonderful time" . . . your hostess seems to be so enthusiastic about wanting you to stay when she "extends" her invitation . . it's convenient for you to stay . . you want to stay and you don't see why you shouldn't stay. But be wise, be wise, . . no matter how strong the temptation to accept, the chances are (experience generally shows) that you'd better leave when you had planned to leave. There's a sound basis for the idea that the best time to leave the house where you are visiting is when your hosts still want you to stay! And a very important P.S.: There's a better chance that you will be invited to "please come again"!

They Went To Follow Charming Cinderella Custom . . .

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Both my fiance and I were born and brought up in Canada, but now my family and I live in the States, not very far from the border. Our wedding is to be the Saturday before Labor Day; and my mother and I would like to follow the nice Canadian custom, we all were carrying a Trousseau Tea a few days before the wedding.

(1) Mother thinks we should make a special point of inviting my fiance's mother to arrive a day or two earlier than she is now planning to arrive for the wedding, so that she can receive with us at the Trousseau Tea. Is this proper?

(2) Should we all wear corsages? If so, who supplies these?

Mrs. . . .

(1) If at all possible . . . and I hope it is possible . . . that your should follow the charming and gracious custom of inviting your prospective bridegroom's mother to come, to receive with you and your mother at your Trousseau Tea. As a matter of fact, if or when she knows there is to be a Trousseau Tea, I imagine she will be expecting this invitation. Your mother, as hostess of the Tea, should write the invitations, and you, as her son's bride-to-be, should also write your note to her of "I do . so hope that you can come!"

(2) Corsages are not necessary, but if some customarily because of the delightfully festive touch they give to this kind of party. Sometimes the father of the bride-to-be, in courtly gesture, gives the corsages. Sometimes the fiance send them . . . in courtly gesture. (A subtle hint from you, perhaps?) Sometimes the hostess supplies them.

Christening Present

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Two of our dearest friends are to have babies quite soon, and my husband and I want to give a christening present to each baby. Please give us some suggestions as to appropriate gifts. — Marie X.

These are appropriate christening presents: Silver cup, bowl, porringer, spoon, small plate, or silver set of spoon, knife, fork, and pusher . . any of these may be engraved with the baby's name, and perhaps the date of the christening. Also, baby brush and comb; carriage robe, perhaps monogrammed; blanket, dress, jacque, knitted jacket, bib, bonnet, booties. Sometimes a sum of money is given, to start or augment a savings bank account in the baby's name; sometimes a savings bond.

Women's Activities

WHITE'S W.A.

Mrs. Jermyn Palmer was hostess to the ladies of White's Women's Association on Thursday afternoon.

It was decided to have the president, Mrs. Ernest Curtis, presided and opened the meeting.

Bazaar on Wednesday, October 7, at White's Church. One member made a birthday donation and a "Happy Birthday" was sung.

Mrs. Benson Rowlsdell was in charge of the devotional service, choosing as her subject "The House on the Rock." Mrs. Palmer read the Scripture, Matthew 7.21-29 and Mrs. Rowlsdell gave the story of the lesson.

Mrs. Rose Stickle was in charge of the program. Readings "Peace and Pre" and "Useless", were given by Mrs. Casey Ketchem and Mrs. Stickle.

A contest answered with names of girls and boys was won by Mrs. W. A. Jeffery, who received a prize.

Mrs. Curtis moved a vote of thanks to the hostess who served refreshments.

Cold War Began After Minor Incident Occurred in Moscow

Eddy Gilmore, for 11 years an AP correspondent in Moscow, is back as "the right side of the Iron Curtain," as he expressed it. In this story, third of a series, Gilmore gives a glimpse into Moscow life as Americans live it.

By EDDY GILMORE

PARIS (AP) — The cold war started, and a frigid wind began to blow from Joseph Stalin's Kremlin.

It would be incorrect to say that Americans in Moscow were during the greatest moments of wartime co-operation, were ever howlingly popular with the communist government. But compared to what happened later, we led a charmed life.

I left an official party at 2:30 one morning, arm in arm with a man who now is a marshal in the Soviet army. With other Russians and foreigners from some of the embassies, we journeyed to my apartment.

Friendly Party

This high military man, once inside my modest place, sat down at the piano and played until dawn. It all seemed not very unusual then.

Another time I found myself at a big Russian dinner. More than 40 persons at one long table. I seemed to be the only foreigner present.

"Eddy Eddyovich," said my host, "I've found something for you."

He proudly whipped out a bottle of Scotch.

A little dark man near me, who looked like a party type, shuddered. He looked around him with what I thought was considerable suspicion, and turned to a major-general in the Soviet army.

"Comrade general," said the party type, "Scotch whisky (Shetlandsky viskey was the way he said it in Russian) may be all right for some people, but I prefer our Russian vodka, don't you?"

The general, who had a stout hooker of Shetlandsky viskey in his right hand, gave him a cold eye.

"No," he said, "I'm not that chauvinistic."

You invited Russians to your apartment and some of them came. Some of them invited you to their places. You found yourself at real Russian parties.

You liked the people and they seemed to like you.

Another Type

I'm not referring to the small group of Russians who had been approved for contact with foreigners. They were always about, polite, often charming, good conversationalists, but nevertheless, people we felt were unduly interested in what we were saying and commenting on. I'm referring to just plain Russians.

And there were the gypsies. The best Russian parties, I believe, must have gypsies.

Then one morning, after a very fine party, there was an incident.

A junior member of the American embassy was taking a party girl home in a taxi, I believe. She reported, and to the public record that she resented his advances. The paper blamed American boorishness and a lack of respect for women.

The cold wind blew colder. No gypsies at parties. Very few Russians at parties. Then no Russians at all at parties. Then no Russian friends.

Some couldn't stand it. A Norwegian shot himself one night. A young man from the British embassy ran amok in the Metropole hotel's dining room. He broke four chairs over various Russians.

Two embassies found microphones on their premises. We talked in even softer whispers to one another. And people complained bitterly about life in Moscow.

Trial and Error Radar Guided Lost Freighter

TORONTO (CP)—A Great Lakes skipper said yesterday he picked up his knowledge of his ship's radar from repair men who checked the set, used the radar by "trial and error" methods, and was not sure to which lifeboat he was assigned at the time his freighter went down after colliding with another ship.

Capt. George Morriss, 58, of Fort William, also said at an inquiry into the sinking that fire drills were not held aboard his vessel, the Scotiadoc, which sank in Lake Superior June 20 with the loss of one life after being rammed by the freighter Burlington.

Drills Infrequent

He said boat drills were infrequent because they were "not always convenient."

Peter Wright, commission counsel submitted regulations to show that fire and boat drills on cargo ships are supposed to be held once a month. Capt. Morriss said he held boat drills on the Scotiadoc March 31 and May 18.

The captain said he was assigned to the port lifeboat. However, commission members said a list showed he should have gone to the starboard boat.

"If you didn't know where to go, what reason had you have to think the other crew members knew where to go?" Mr. Wright asked.

"At that time of the sinking, I didn't think which boat to go to," the captain replied.

Lifeboat Sank

One of the lifeboats quickly filled with water when it was lowered into the lake and five crew members had to be transferred to the other lifeboat. Wallace McDermid, 37-year-old porter from Sault Ste. Marie, disappeared in the icy waters.

The ships collided in fog near Thunder Cape while they were seeking shelter from a heavy storm.

Capt. Morriss said the Scotiadoc was running at full speed of 10½ knots, depending on radar to spot obstacles. He said the radar screen picked up the Burlington when the ships were about six miles apart but he did not reduce speed "because I figured we'd be all clear."

The hearing is continuing with Mr. Justice Dalton C. Wells of the Ontario Supreme Court presiding.

Strikers Damage Truck

HAMILTON (CP)—A group of striking truck drivers on Wednesday pulled a truck driver from his cab, smashed his windshield and broke the trailer pin. The incident occurred on No. 6 highway, just north of Caledonia.

Jack Kramer, a driver for the Laidlaw Transport Company of Hagersville, apparently tried to drive through after the pickets waved him to stop.

When he slowed down, some of the men jumped on the running board, and ripped open the cab door. Kramer was forced to pull his transport to the side of the highway.

Provincial police from Cayuga reported that Kramer was not injured but considerable damage was done to the trailer.

Flees to W. Berlin

BERLIN (Reuters)—Hans Wermund, former state secretary of the East German reconstruction ministry, has fled to West Berlin, city officials said here today.

Wermund, 43, a member of the Liberal Democratic party, arrived here last Wednesday. He applied for political asylum Tuesday the officials said.

They quoted Wermund as stating he was dismissed from his post last month in connection with investigations into the activities of Dr. Karl Hamann, co-chairman of the Liberal Democratic party and supply minister.

Hamann, arrested last December on charges of sabotaging East Germany's food supplies, is still awaiting trial in prison.

U.K. Cuts in Canadian Purchases Reduce Trade Deficit One-Quarter

OTTAWA (CP) — Britain has slashed purchases of Canadian goods narrowing her deficit in Canadian trade to about one-quarter the 1952 size, bureau of statistics figures showed today.

At the same time Canada's purchases in the United States have climbed with Canada's unfavorable balance in American trade rising to the highest level in six years.

The bureau estimated that in the first four months of 1953, Canada's exports to Britain dropped to $170,000,000 from $230,600,000 in the similar 1952 period, while imports from Britain rose to $133,200,000 from $96,000,000.

Thus the Anglo-Canadian trade balance, traditionally in Canada's favor, dropped to $36,700,000 from $133,700,000 last year.

Canada's exports to the U.S. in the four months rose to a high of $767,300,000 from $733,700,000, but imports far outstripped exports, rising to a high of $1,060,200,000 from $939,600,000.

This trade trend boosted Canada's deficit in American trade to $293,000,000 from $203,900,000 last year, the highest deficit since the $294,300,000 unfavorable balance of 1947.

Canada's total exports to all countries in the four months dropped to $1,218,700,000 from the peak of $1,354,100,000 last year, while imports climbed to a high of $1,399,700,000 from $1,260,100,000 last year.

The four-month deficit, $171,100,000, compared to a surplus of $114,000,000 last year.

Unlovely Temper Marks Loser's Return Home

ROME (Reuters)—Rita Stazzi, 19, Italy's lovely candidate in the "Miss Universe" contest at Long Beach, Calif., returned home today in an unlovely temper.

Her "soreness" description of the winner, France's Christiane Martel, verged on the censorable. Miss Martel, she said, had not one little bit of "pure beauty," her legs were "shapeless," her ankles "invisible."

"I thought so little of her charms when I saw her that I advised her to walk more erectly so her bosom would appear firmer and more ample," Rita said.

Getting Data on Canada's Caribou Headache for Wildlife Experts

OTTAWA (CP)—Fooldoose caribou herds of Canada's north which migrate in a seemingly haphazard fashion across the tundra pose a headache for wildlife experts here.

After an intensive survey in the Mackenzie river and Hudson Bay areas during the last six years together with correlating data dating back 100 years, the experts still don't know if herds congregate one with the other to form large groups or remain single-herd units the year 'round.

This knowledge is necessary to conserve caribou, vital to the economy of more than 20,000 Indians, Eskimos and whites of the vast area. Without knowing their behavior, adequate management steps cannot be taken. This would involve limiting caribou kill in districts where herds were small and possible extension in areas where caribou were plentiful.

Only Habitat

Compared with moose, they are not large animals. Males average 250 pounds in weight while cows are about 150 pounds. Antlers on the bulls are many-pronged, impressive and large. Cows have antlers, though much smaller.

Caribou migrate from the timber line to the tundra in April and May and start back in mid-August when they start the return trip. An excellent vantage point to observe this migration is at Churchill Man., where twice yearly caribou —sometimes as many as 75,000—cross the railway tracks, single file.

With recent increased development of Canada's north, fears have been voiced about the animals' future. It's generally agreed that in the area recently studied, caribou are in sufficient numbers—estimated at 670,000 spread over a 600,000 square mile area—to support the native population if useless slaughter can be stopped.

Kill Increasing

Unfortunately, according to wildlife men, the mentality of the northern Eskimo and Indian has changed little from the bow-and-arrow stage. Then it was all he could do to kill sufficient caribou to provide his needs. Today, with a new clip of shells in his rifle, he still kills with the old abandon, but at a much greater rate.

About 1900 the caribou population was estimated at 1,750,000; since then it has taken a 62 per cent drop while the population of native groups and whites engaged in mineral, forest and other occupations has increased.

Present annual kill is about 100,000 of which Indians take about 20,000, Eskimos 20,000, and other trappers and hunters 20,000. Estimated average yearly kill for a native hunter to satisfy all his family needs is 125 caribou.

Practically Reckless

But, the wildlife service reports, it is a frustrating business getting actual statistics. Natives are not in the habit of counting animals killed. Understandably, they just can't recall. Also, some natives do not report kills because of fear of retaliation for excessive slaughter.

Wolves also take a comparatively high toll, estimated at about 30,000 animals each year. But the greatest predator is man.

"Turn The Corner For Real Savings"

Pinder Brothers Take Over Dodge, Desoto Sales Agency

After visiting many of Ontario's cities, Kenneth Nelson Pinder and his brother, Allan Edwin Pinder, finally decided upon Belleville as the site for their new business location. As Ken Pinder says, "We selected this city to locate our auto sales firm because of its population, financial status, but mostly, due to the friendliness of Belleville residents. We have only been here a little more than a month and a half, but we have been so well received, we have decided to spend the rest of our lives in Belleville."

The Pinder brothers recently purchased what was previously Boom Motor Sales at 163 Dundas Street East, and now is known as Pinder Motors. The new firm will handle Dodge and Desoto cars and Dodge trucks.

In Partnership

The brothers entered into partnership in the garage business in 1936. Kenneth Pinder had already been in the business for two years before his brother joined him in Rouyn, Quebec. When in Rouyn they were distributors of Austin and Willys cars and dealers for Hudson cars and Reo trucks. They had the B. F. Goodrich warehouse and also operated a tire shop where complete vulcanizing and recapping was done.

They left Rouyn on invitation from one of the big three of automobile companies to locate anywhere in the Province of Ontario. The result being, they finally situated in this city. Allan Pinder has been here frequently, assisting his brother to establish the business. He will move here around the first of the month.

Both brothers are married. Kenneth, who has purchased a house at 310 Victoria Avenue, has been married for 11 years, and has a son eight years old. He graduated from high school at New Liskeard and took his business course in Toronto. He returned to Rouyn, where he operated a garage for 19 years. Born in Peace River, Alberta, Ken is a member of the United Church and a Mason.

Attended Albert College

Allan was born in Timmins, Ontario, moved to Edmonton, then to New Liskeard and finally to Rouyn. He also is a high school graduate and at one time attended Albert College. He played on the 1928-29 Albert College rugby team which won the championship that season. He also attended Lakefield College. He was on the engineering staff of the railroad when it was built into James Bay and for a time worked with Noranda Mines in an engineering capacity. He served five years overseas during World War II with the Royal Canadian Engineers with the rank of captain. He and his wife, Isobel, have a two-year-old daughter, Susan. A charter member of the Rouyn Noranda Lions Club, he has been married for five years.

Kenneth Pinder, in an interview, made it clear they had completely disposed of their business interests in Rouyn effective the first of August. They now plan to devote themselves to car-minded persons of Belleville with friendly, courteous service.

RAWDON

A large number of Rawdon relatives and friends attended the burial service at St. Thomas' Church of England Cemetery, on the 8th Concession, Rawdon, for Mrs. M. Faulkner, (nee Rosemary Preston, who was a polio victim.

Despite the intense heat last week, the berry crop has been fair and the much needed rain which came over the week-end gave berries and gardens a brighter look.

Lindsay Shot, Then Clubbed, Police Suggest

Footprints found near the camp where three U.S. hunters disappeared in the Gaspe bush have spurred the police hunt for these searchers for a homicidal maniac. Police say reports that the one skeleton found was that of Eugene Lindsay, 46, who set out from Holidaysburg, Pa. with his son Richard and friend Frederick Claar, to hunt bears in Gaspe. Evidence revealed by examination of the skeleton suggests he had been wounded by a rifle bullet, then hit over the head, probably by a rifle butt.

Use Automobiles To Clear Fog From Diamonds

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Automobiles played the outfield and the pitchers literally couldn't find the plate last night as heavy fog curtailed Intercounty Baseball League games at London and St. Thomas.

The cars roamed around the field in an effort to clear the fog sufficiently to make play possible. It worked once at St. Thomas, where play was resumed after a 45-minute delay and the Elgins dropped a 7-6 decision to Guelph Maple Leafs before the mist closed in for keeps after seven innings.

At London they gave up after six innings with the Majors gaining a 9-5 verdict over Kitchener Panthers.

In the only game that went the distance, Bill Hanrahan pitched three-hit ball to give Oshawa Merchants a 5-4 victory over Brantford Red Sox.

The results left four teams within a half-game of first place. Kitchener held a margin of five percentage points over Brantford and London with the idle Waterloo Tigers trailing by half a length.

The Red Sox dropped their fourth straight game when Oshawa wiped out a two-run deficit with three runs in the sixth inning.

The Majors ranged by Bricker and Bill Allen on 12 hits to extend their winning streak to four straight. Bricker was credited with the loss while reliefer Jack Brumm got the win.

The last-place Elgins trailed 7-1 after 4½ innings and nibbled away at the Guelph lead until the game was called. Pete Smolenski drove in four of the seven runs with a homer and a single.

Pilot in Battle of Britain, Townsend Met Princess As Result of His Bravery

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)— Group Capt. Peter Townsend, a central figure in Britain's Royal romance, is front-page news today simply because he happens to be an exceptionally brave young man.

It was his courage as a Battle of Britain fighter pilot which brought him to Buckingham Palace and placed him in close association with members of the Royal Family including pretty young Princess Margaret.

The late King George VI decided his equerries should be drawn from men who had proved themselves in battle. Thus the choice as equerry to succeed Sqn Ldr Peter Wooldridge Townsend, DSO, DFC and Bar, one of the first RAF pilots to bring down an enemy bomber in the dark days of 1940.

Born in Rangoon

Townsend was born in Rangoon in 1914, second son of an official in the Indian Civil Service. He was educated at Haileybury and the RAF college at Cranwell. When war came, he was slightly apprehensive, wondering how he would react.

He need not have worried. He shot down a Heinkel bomber over Whitby, Yorkshire, early in 1940. He rose to command RAF stations at Digby, in Scotland and at West Malling in Kent. His score of "Bffs", bereaved to at least 11.

It was in the tense atmosphere of wartime that Townsend, whiling away off-duty hours in the shiny Hertfordshire village of Wideford a girl not striking good looks named Rosemary Pawle, a brigadier's daughter. They were married a few months later in the Anglican church at Much Hadham, near Widford. Their first son was born in 1942. The second, born in 1944, had the late King as his godfather.

First Court Appearance

The Townsends lived at RAF stations and with relatives in Wideford. The young equerry made his first official appearance at Court April 6, 1944. He was then 29, and Princess Margaret was just 13. The Townsends later went to live at Adelaide Cottage near Windsor, a "grace and favor" residence granted rent-free by the Royal Family. There they have cocktail parties, attended on occasion by the Princess and the Duke of Edinburgh and Princess Margaret.

Townsend, as equerry, went to shows and theatres with members of the Royal Family. He rode horseback in Hyde Park. Margaret went on the South African tour in 1947, escorted the Princess to a ball at Amsterdam in 1948, piloted her planes in the King's Cup Air Races in 1949 and 1950. The King was said to have regarded him as a son.

Divorced in 1952

In 1952, Townsend was granted a divorce because of his wife's adultery with Group Capt. Hugh Lazzio, company director and export merchant. Dr. Lazzio married the former Mrs. Townsend last February.

Townsend was granted custody of the two children.

CONTRACT TO BE LET

TORONTO (CP)—A contract is expected to be let today on the bypass around the Washago bottleneck on No. 11 highway. Cost of the short cut, the first such stretch Anglican church at Much Hadham, is estimated at more than $500,000.

Government Will Give Away 'Oiled' Butter

OTTAWA (CP)—Some charitable institution may get some free butter—mixed slightly and illegally with vegetable oils.

A health department official said Wednesday the government has no intention of destroying the big stockpile of adulterated butter seized in the Montreal area.

"The butter is healthy, except that it contains vegetable oils instead of the full allotment of butterfat," the official said.

About 400,000 pounds of the butter was seized, but not all of it is adulterated. Butter passing the acid test is being shipped back to the owners. The adulterated is being held.

So far indications are that about 19 Quebec creameries and dairies will face court charges arising out of the seizure, the official said.

There is some concern in government quarters that there may be other adulterated butter in Canada somewhere, possibly in the government's own stockpile. As a price-support measure, the government buys butter at 38 cents a pound and stores it for sale next fall and winter. The butter comes from all parts of Canada. Technicians likely will handle the government's stocks next to determine if any of the vegetable mixture got into the larder.

EARNINGS HIGH

TORONTO (CP)—Douglas Fisher, executive secretary of the Ontario Retail Gasoline Association, said Wednesday gasoline prices have been "reasonable at a time when "oil companies' net earnings are higher than they have ever been."

Imperial Oil raised its gasoline price 1 2-5 cents a gallon Tuesday and other companies are following suit.

Britain May Call for Meeting Of U.N. Assembly if Truce Blocked

LONDON (Reuters) — British may propose an urgent meeting of the United Nations general assembly if South Korea carries out its new threat to obstruct an armistice, Acting Prime Minister R. A. Butler said Wednesday.

Butler told the House of Commons that, as he neared the chamber, he had read a news report "to the effect that the South Korean Foreign minister has stated his government will not observe any implementation of the armistice."

Labor leader Clement Attlee asked whether this "regrettable news" did not prove the urgent need for an immediate UN session.

Grave Situation

Butler replied: "Yes, I do not in any way underestimate the gravity of the information I have given the House. I felt obliged to give it because I read it as I came into the chamber and I thought it would be wrong not to impart it immediately to the House.

"It would be too early for me to make any comment, but I think every possible consequence which might follow from it, including that suggested (by Attlee), should be followed up by the government and the earliest information given to the House."

Labor member Woodrow Wyatt asked Butler: "Is it not time we made it clear to South Koreas that little Syngman and UN troops cannot further remain in Korea to assist South Koreas if they won't abide by the armistice?"

The consequences which may follow from the information I have given to the House are obviously very serious," Butler said.

He said he could say no more at present but planned to consult "immediately" with the acting foreign secretary, the Marquess of Salisbury.

Guard Against Sabotage

But Labor members kept pressing him. Former war minister John Strachey said both the United States and Communist China have made it clear that they, like the British government, are determined to have a truce. He said it is "absolutely" necessary to take all steps to prevent South Koreas from sabotaging a truce.

Butler replied slowly: "I am aware not only that the parties referred to but that this House has the same feeling. You may feel assured the whole of our influence will be brought to bear towards that end."

New Power in Soviet Council

Peter Pospelov (above), secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party, apparently has become powerful person in the new Soviet line-up. Radio Moscow attested to his importance by announcing his presence when action was taken against Mir-Djafar A. Bagirov, prime minister of Azerbaijan, who was expelled from the party and from high post. — Central Press Canadian.

Truck Drivers' Strike Ends, Declared Illegal

OSHAWA (CP)—A strike of 125 truck drivers at the General Motors plant under construction here ended when a national official of the union representing the strikers declared the walkout illegal.

However, the strikers did not go back to work. Previously they had kept their own trucks when working with the Pigott Construction Company building the plant. With the walkout over, company officials notified the union they intended to use their own trucks in future and would hire their own drivers.

The strikers, members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL-TLC), struck a week ago to enforce demands for an increase in their ten-mile rate from six to 10 cents.

A. F. MacArthur, national organizer for the union, arrived here Tuesday and called the strike off early today.

Hasty, Ill-advised

"The strike was hasty and ill-advised," he said. "It was illegal and a wildcat." He said negotiations for the strike did not go through the proper channels.

Tuesday afternoon most construction ceased for a few hours after pickets formed a human wall on a bridge into the property. Police said many workers, fearing violence, refused to break through.

Thomas Wood of Niagara-on-the-Lake, one of the strikers, today was fined $10 and costs for punching a Welland River men post a truck into company property Monday. Pickets had formed two bags and eggs at company officials who drove gravel trucks through the lines.

FATAL ACCIDENT

OTTAWA (CP) — James Oliver Cameron, 30, one-time factor at the Hudson's Bay Company post at Michipicoten on Lake Superior, was killed at nearby Cumberland Wednesday night when struck by a taxi.

Dismiss Charge Against Parents Of Fire Victims

OTTAWA (CP)—A charge of criminal negligence against the parents of two children who died in a fire June 30 were dismissed Wednesday by Magistrate Glenn Strike.

He said there was insufficient evidence to justify so serious a charge against Jean Baptiste Lamoureux, 41, and his wife, Florence.

He said the parents left their children in the care of their 13-year-old daughter, Francoise, who, he said, was a capable and intelligent child. The girl rescued her sister, Diane, 18 months, and her brother, Marcel, 4.

The two children who died in the fire were Pauline, 7, and Leo, 8.

Get Enough Power For Four Torontos From 3 Projects

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost and Hydro chairman Robert Saunders announced Wednesday that Ontario has planned three projects —a reservoir, tunnel and powerhouse extension—at Niagara Falls.

The projects are planned to prevent future power shortages.

Mr. Saunders said they will produce enough power to "supply four Torontos." The cost: $60 million.

Mr. Saunders said the reservoir will produce enough power to "supply four Torontos." The cost: $60 million.

The tunnel will also boost the original cost of $290,000,000 to $343,000,000.

To Build Lake

The Hydro chairman said the reservoir will be a 600-acre lake at the present gas station below the city of Niagara Falls. The lake, with a capacity of 650,000,000 gallons, will increase power from the new Niagara power development by 300,000 horsepower.

Premier Frost announced that the Ontario cabinet had given its approval for Hydro to build a 600-acre artificial lake down river from Niagara Falls reservoir, with a capacity of 650,000,000 gallons, will increase the capacity of the new Niagara power development by more than 33 per cent.

It will be pumped full during off-peak hours and the extra water will be available during the high-demand hours. The power pump will fill or empty the reservoir. To accommodate the extra water, four additional generating units are to be constructed at the new power plant.

CLARIFIES POSITION

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—An official of the International Brotherhood Union (AFL) said Wednesday the union does not seek to bar foreign ships from the Great Lakes.

Edward Morin, SIU port agent in Fort William, said the union plans to make representations to the Canadian government to prevent foreign shipping from carrying cargo between two lake ports in competition with Canadian shipping. It did not seek to prevent these ships from using the Great Lakes with cargo arriving from or destined to foreign ports.

British Government Heads Not Convinced Malenkov Wields Total USSR Power

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—British government leaders remain reported not convinced today that Premier Georgi M. Malenkov wields total power in the Soviet Union.

Qualified informants said Prime Minister Churchill and his colleagues, on the basis of their own information, think Moscow may not be surprised if changes even more dramatic than the purging of Lavrenty P. Beria take place in the Russian hierarchy, and within the foreseeable future.

Government spokesmen did not express these views officially. But the private opinions were given considerable support by Acting Prime Minister R. A. Butler's statements to Parliament Wednesday.

Await Further Events

Opening a foreign-affairs debate in the House of Commons, Butler explained that the Western Allies had proposed a Big Four foreign ministers meeting on Germany and Austria even though they "might await further and perhaps even more sensational events behind the iron curtain, and above all to see who are likely to remain the real repositories of power in Moscow with whom we will have to negotiate."

Speculation about the Soviets, said Butler, led the British to believe the time was right for Churchill's proposal for a top-level parley between the Russians and the West.

Pending Backdrop

In the context of this thinking, British officials today pondered the meaning of:

1. The apparent failure of three high leaders of the Red Army to attend an important meeting of Russian military men in Moscow last week.

2. The sudden eight-day postponement of the meeting of the Soviet Union's supreme body, the Supreme Soviet, which had been set last week for July 28 and now has been put off to Aug. 8.

The Moscow meeting of the Red Army leaders was said to have denunciations of Beria, the deposed police chief formerly considered No. 2 man to Malenkov.

British officials noted that the nonattendance of some of the two deputy ministers of defence, Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky, the other deputy, Marshal Georgi Zhukov, spoke at the meeting); Marshal Ivan S. Konev, before Stalin's death commander of Soviet ground forces and an honor guard at Stalin's bier, and veteran Gen. Sergei Shtemenko, a former army chief of staff.

May Be in Disgrace

Many observers believe their absence from the Moscow meeting may mean they are not prepared to support the measures now in force.

Perhaps, British officials speculated, the Soviet high command is not sure yet just what purges must be approved.

Child Sees Dad Shoot Mother And then Self

SEGUIN FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A truck driver shot his wife to death Wednesday night and then committed suicide as his 13-year-old daughter looked on.

Ontario provincial police said the trucker, John Edward Davies, threat a hunting rifle through the window of a car driven by his wife and shot her. Then he stepped a few feet from the car and put a bullet through his own head.

Both were from Seguin Falls, 23 miles east of Parry Sound.

Police said eyewitnesses were the married daughter, Janie, and Mrs. Pearl Nelson of nearby Bear Lake.

Police quoted Mrs. Nelson as saying she was accompanying Mrs. Davies and Janie in the Davies' car when Davies blocked the road with his three-ton truck.

Mrs. Nelson said she and Janie scrambled from the car as Davies shot his wife. They saw him shoot himself a moment later.

Violence Marks Ontario's Truckers' Strike

Some violence has flared in the strike of truckers which has brought three out of every four privately transported to a stop in Western and Southern Ontario. Story Dating Back to First Century Being Unfolded by Archeologists

By SIDNEY TAYLOR

LONDON Reuters)—In a quiet corner of Fleet street, archaeologists working in the ruins of St. Bride's church are unfolding a story that had its beginnings in the first century of the Christian era.

Long and patient excavating has revealed more than 1,000 years of history among thousands of human bones discovered beneath the church on the site of one of the forty outposts of Roman civilization in Britain.

Six hundred coffins have been found and more than 1,000 skulls have been sent to Cambridge University for research into the changing characteristics of the Briton. Research will be directed by one of the greatest authorities on anatomic anatomy and pathology, Prof. Frederic Wood Jones of the Royal College of Surgeons.

Bones Lie Everywhere

In the catacombs, bones lie everywhere, knee - deep, waist-deep, nonchalant in loose mounds, sometimes in tidy squares of skulls and thigh bones, arranged alternately in chess-board pattern.

The excavations would never have started but for the war. On the night of Dec. 29, 1940, the German air force destroyed the church of St. Bride's, built by Sir Christopher Wren (1632-1757), the architect of St. Paul's cathedral, to replace the 15th-century church lost in the great fire of London in 1666.

All that survived the raid were four walls and the superb tiered spire which is part of the classical silhouette, West's silhouette, of London.

Sixteen months ago the Roman and Mediaeval London Excavation Council began work under the direction of W. F. Grimes, head of the London museum.

Several Charnel Houses

Helped by a plan left by an 18th-century curate, Rev. John Pridden, they discovered several charnel houses and an arched mediaeval crypt also filled with bones.

The centuries came off in layers as they dug—17th, 16th, 15th, 14th, through Stuart times to Tudor and Plantagenet, back to the Dark Ages between the Roman occupation and the return of civilization with St. Augustine.

By the time the diggers had reached the Roman material undisturbed earth they had uncovered the remains of three earlier churches.

The earliest of these is a Saxon apse, the arched semi - circular recess where the altar stood.

The fact that the original St. Bride's stood outside the city walls of those days indicates it was built on the site of a Roman cemetery and thus had been used continuously as a burial place since the first century.

The archeologists are convinced that they have found London's oldest known church.

Angry Words Recalled

The disordered state in which many of the bones have been found recalls the angry words of Samuel Pepys (1633-1703) in his diary. Three years before the great fire, Pepys wanted to bury his brother there. He was disgusted when the verger, explaining that they were already overcrowded, offered for sixpence to "jostle" the other bones together to make room.

There will be no more burials at St. Bride's once all the bones removed to Cambridge have been sent back. St. Bride's will be rebuilt as a new church for printers and journalists.

Godfrey Allen, surveyor of St. Paul's cathedral, and an authority on Wren, is the architect. His task is to restore St. Bride's in such a way that the remains of all four churches are preserved.

The Stuart vault will become a chamberlain, the mediaeval crypt a sacristy, the Wren vault, the charnel houses and the 15th-century crypt will be turned into one of the most interesting museums in London.

'Under-the-Hood' Space Crowded Say Engineers

DETROIT (AP) — Everything that goes under the hood of today's autos is getting close scrutiny from the industry's engineers.

They say the place is getting too crowded. With the "plumbing" for air conditioning units, power steering and other devices drawing power from the engine, the situation is becoming serious, these experts say.

Any motorist who has attempted to make his own repairs to a distributor, oil and water pump or manifold will agree the power plant area of the car is overcrowded.

Because they can't eliminate anything or move it to a different part of the car the engineers are concentrating on a search for smaller units.

Different engineers have different views as to how under-the-hood congestion will be relieved but few talk about moving the power plant to the rear.

Most of them appear to believe present-day engines can be reduced in size without affecting their efficiency. So smaller but more powerful engines may be a not-too-distant development.

GLEN ROTE — FRANKFORD TONIGHT

The Glen Rey juniors start their best-of-three district semi-finals tonight at the CNE field when they tangle with the Frankford team, conquerors of the CNE Diesels. The Frankford team surprised everyone by defeating the fine hurling duo of Billy Rankin in their 2-1 defeat of the railroaders Tuesday night and they might come up with a surprise pair on in order to defeat the Glen Rey boys. However, Bill Spafford has his charges in fine fettle and they're confident they will be the team to meet Point Anne for the city title. The kids need defeat twice in their scheduled games, and are the only squad in the loop to defeat the powerful Ox Feiners. The villagers, too, are confident and with the playoff ships down, tonight's game should be one of the better ones.

BASEBALL!

Fresh from their defeat of the Bloomfield-Wellington Combines, Bryson Reid's Regents junior baseballers face a busy week-end with diamond battles with the Trenton Flyers — a postponed till—and their final scheduled game against the Prince Edward Combines, a team with a Picton registry. It is understood the youngsters will play the Flyers away on Friday night and entertain the Picton squad at the CNE field here Saturday evening... More about that, later.

SOFTBALL PLAYDOWNS!!

Belleville representatives in the Ontario Amateur Softball Association playdowns in the intermediate "A" and "AA" divisions will likely clash with Kingston teams in the second round, according to the draw announced by Secretary Frank Feaver:

Five zones will face the barrier in the Intermediate "A" series. These include Belleville, Kingston, Ottawa, Peterborough and Whitby. While it is more guesswork, it is likely Kingston will meet Belleville, while the winner of the big city battle will tangle with Peterborough tangling with Whitby. The victors in these tilts will vie for the Eastern Ontario title. Twenty-seven teams in southern Ontario will take part in the "A" playdowns.

Belleville, Kingston and Peterborough are the lone eastern Ontario representatives in the intermediate "AA" division. The winners of this group will meet Toronto and the winners take on those of the western Ontario set-up. Ten teams make up the classification.

Picton and Wooler are the district representatives in the intermediate division. Ten teams comprise the group in this zone with 35 squads all told from southern Ontario quenting the honors. In the district group are Alex, Arnprior, Clarendon-Cobourg, Lindsay, Markham, Parham, Picton, Whitby and Wooler. The latter team will likely meet Picton in the first round.

Don MacNevin's Glen Rey All-Ontario Junior "A" champions will participate in the same playdown schedule as last year with the exception of the inclusion of an entry from Owen Sound.

In western Ontario, Windsor (remember the "Local" here?), Sarnia, Stratford and Chatham will battle it out in one zone with Galt, Hamilton, Niagara Falls and St. Catharines tangling in another. The Glen Reys will probably meet their ancient foes, Oshawa, in the first round. And here Feaver has handed a Gordian entry. Probably a misprint, in the Queen City group, Toronto and North York will give to the mat.

Minor softball in this district will be represented by two teams, Frankford in Juvenile "C" and Belleville in the peewee division. The city tigs meet either Oshawa or Whitby or the winners in the first round. Other teams are Barrie, Alliston and Western Ontario champs, Sarnia, Stratford and Kitchener, North York and Toronto.

The Frankford youngsters are grouped with Murvale, Pickering, South Carleton and Cataraqui. Five other teams are included in the quest for the title.

Dodgers Dunk Chicago Twice As Braves Bow to Athletics; Indians Slash Yankees' Lead

By Ren Pelligar
Associated Press Sports Writer

When the "break up" boys take a look at today's major-league standings they may want to consider switching tactics.

Instead of crying "break up the Yankees" as they have for years, they might find it more appropriate to start chanting "break up the Dodgers."

Today, for the first time since May 17, the American League has a clear, pennant rake than the National.

Brooklyn's steadily-moving Dodgers lead Milwaukee by 5½ games. New York Yankees own only a 4½ game bulge over Chicago White Sox.

"Orakles" Wins

The Dodgers took a big stride forward Wednesday night by defeating Chicago Cubs in a double-header 9-1 and 6-5, while Milwaukee bowed to Philadelphia 6-3.

The Yankees frittered away a full game of their lead by losing to Cleveland 6-4 for the second straight night after the White Sox dropped them 3-0.

Brooklyn combined excellent pitching, mainly of Russ Meyer, Ed Field, with its normally heavy hitting to drive Cubs' starters Bob Cobb, Johnny Podres, a rookie lefthander, struck out 10 and gave up six hits in the most complete major league game. Veteran Carl Erskine allowed only four hits and also struck out 10 in the nightcap.

The Dodgers combined Chicago pitching for 16 hits, including two home runs by Gil Hodges, who drove in five runs, and single-circuit blasts by Carl Furillo and Duke Snider.

At Philadelphia the Phillies jumped on Warren Spahn for four runs in the first inning and the Braves couldn't catch up. The opening attack featured a two-out two-run homer by Granny Hamner. It was Spahn's fourth loss against 12 victories.

The Yankees tried to win it early in the fourth, but their pitchers didn't have staying power. The Indians trailed by three runs after three innings. Then they got to Bob Whitey Ford for a pair in the fourth on a double by Jim Hegan and took the lead in the fifth on a homer by Dale Mitchell and doubles by Al Rosen and Larry Doby. After a bad first inning Mike Garcia settled down to check the invaders for his 12th triumph.

Trucks Wins 12th

At Chicago Virgil Trucks scattered four hits and let only one runner get as far as second. Mel Parnell, ace of the Boston staff, hurled one of his best games too, but one hit, a triple by Chico Carrasquel to open the fifth inning, ruined him. Chico hung on third while Trucks grounded out, but he scampered home when Nellie Fox lofted a long fly to centre field.

Parnell gave up three hits in seven innings before bowing out for a futile pinch hitter. The White Sox got one more safety off Eli Kinder, who finished up. Trucks has won 12, seven in succession since joining Chicago in mid-June.

The only other American League action was in St. Louis where Bob Shantz, last year's most valuable player in the loop, won his first game since May 3, a five-hitter over the Browns 11-1.

In the National League the New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals swapped positions again as the Giants rallied for two runs in the ninth to edge the Cards 6-5. The victory moved New York back into fourth place. Dark's single with the bases loaded was the payoff punch.

Pittsburgh defeated Cincinnati 3-2, Cal Abrams hitting two home runs for the Pirates. Paul Lapalme went all the way for his fifth victim for the Reds, his second in a row to the Redlegs this season.

New York Club Steals Thunder At Henley

By Craig Swayze
Canadian Press Staff Writer

PORT DALHOUSIE — The day is "eights day" at the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta here, the first time the long John hit the water in this first running of the four-day affair.

After Wednesday's nine fours and doubles heats and two singles finals, the annual fraternity will get the chance to watch the sleek eights gobble up the five mile and 550-yard course six times. However only eight of the eight races is a final, the rest being heats for Friday's events.

That lone eights final on the 2nd race card is a big one though. That's when the Ski Club of Canada for the Calder Cleland Memorial Trophy, rowing's richest prize, the gold and silver cup is expected to be worth more than $10,000.

St. Catharines Collegiate will defend the trophy against Buffalo Lafayette High School and Detroit Buffalo boys are favored.

It was the New York Athletic Club who defeated the Ski Club with three victories on the opening day's three-race program.

The most important was 18-year-old Bobby Houston's win in the intermediate singles, a new event on the Henley books. The New Rochelle, N.Y., high school student left nine lengths between himself and veteran Decastor of Buffalo West Sides to bring the New York club 10 points in the regatta aggregate for the Maple Leaf Trophy, emblematic of regatta supremacy.

Decastro picked up five points for West Sides when he won and while Hal Sing and Bill Wanda of Hamilton Leanders gained 4½ points for finishing third and fourth.

New York's other wins came when its junior four took the first heat of that event and Duke Stock and Bruce Mackenzie combined for a victory in the second heat of the junior 145-pound doubles. Another doubles combination Cross Point High School won the high-school singles, the only other final on Wednesday's card.

Petes Trounce Hamilton 16-6

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Peterborough beat Hamilton 16-6 Wednesday night in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior match. The shorthanded Peterborough squad borrowed a few players from the OLA's junior loop to turn the trick.

Junkers Bob Curtis and Bob Allen played their first game in senior company, were outstanding for Peterborough.

Don Ashby was top Peterborough scorer with three goals. Willie Logan, Roger Smith and Ross Powless got two each and singles went to Bob Batley, Russ Slater, Jerry Fitzgerald, Bob Allen, Bob Curtis, Mitch Magee and Bob Thorpe.

Chuck Simpson scored twice for Hamilton and singles went to Bill Rankin, Tom Gilbert, Jack Sibbald and Doug Davidson.

Bisons, Royals Stage Nip-Tuck Battle for Lead

By the Canadian Press

It's a nip-and-tuck battle between Buffalo Bisons and Little Rock Royals for the International Baseball League leadership.

And except for a run in the 10th inning, resulting from three walks and a long fly, the Bisons were almost edged last night. The long fly paid off, however, and sent the winning run scurrying across the plate as the Herd dropped Ottawa Athletics 2-1 in Canada's capital.

The Montrealers—no great believers in doing it the hard way—smashed Toronto Leafs 8-4 at Montreal.

Johnny Lary gave up only two hits in registering his ninth victory for Buffalo against seven defeats. Dick Rand was the loser, his second defeat in as many decisions.

Rojek cut Lary's five hits and was rolling along smoothly until the sixth when Harvey Kuenn smashed a bases-empty homer to put the Bisons ahead 1-0.

The Athletics evened it up in the seventh and continued that way until the 10th. Then Gene Woodling singled and Vic Power's grounder to short, Lary tried to pick Kell off first but the first baseman let the pitch get away. Kell scampered to third and came home on Fred Hertzel's single.

At Montreal, Bob Ludwick allowed the Leafs only five hits in the five frames he hurled but left in the sixth when he gave up 8 straight and walked three. Hamp Coleman finished.

The Royals got the game away in the sixth after Toronto tallied four in their half. Chico Fernandez singled, stole second and was driven home by a triple by Sandy Amoros. Amoros came in on Rocky Nelson's sizzling single.

At Syracuse, Springfield Cubs defeated the Chiefs 5-2 to take a 2-1 edge in their four-game series.

Walt Moryn, getting three for four, led the Cubs' 11-hit attack off three Chief hurlers. Art Hartley, Syracuse starter, was loser. Relief hurling by Sladden, Jones and Burbrink protected the Springfield victory.

Tigers Sign Pitcher

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Tigers announced Wednesday they have signed pitcher Jim Bunning, 21-year-old Fort Knox, Ky., baseball player.

Bunning, a 6-foot-3 right-hander, was signed by Scout Wid Matthews.

Canada's Davis Cup Stars Eliminated Pastry-Maker Keeps Chances Alive

By Jack Sullivan
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's hopes admittedly slim, of keeping at least one of its national tennis titles at home rested today upon Mrs. Toronto matron who is a pastry maker.

Mrs. Hilde Dolecheil, the former Austrian champion who started a bakery on her apartment here two years ago, kept Canada's chances alive in the women's singles of the Canadian championships when she whipped Joan Merchadis of Modesto, Calif., 9-11, 7-5, 6-3 Wednesday night. The bitterly-fought four-hour match sent her into the semi-finals and came at the end of a day that saw the country's leading netmen, including three Davis Cup players, bow out of the week-long competition at the half-way mark. Included in the list of home-brew victims were Lorne Main of Vancouver and Toronto, the country's ranking player, and Mrs. Hannah Sladek of Montreal, No. 1 among the Canadians in the women's division.

Main Defeated

Main's loss to Mario Llamas, Mexican Davis Cup player, in the third round of the men's singles, was the stunner of the tournament.

Fans expected the 23-year-old Main to wipe out Llamas just as he did in the Canada-Mexico Davis Cup round at Montreal last week. But at the end of the hour-long match it was Llamas by scores of 1-3, 1-6, 6-3. The loss extinguished any flicker of hope Canada had in the men's singles.

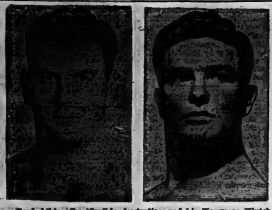
Earlier in the day, the country's ranking stars were eliminated in quick succession in the tournament that has attracted more than 200 entries from Canada, United States, Australia, Mexico and Japan. The quarter-finals of the men's singles will be played today without a Canadian entry.

Davis Cup players Paul Willey of Vancouver and Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que., were eliminated in the third round. Willey went under 8-4, 6-2 to Koni Kano of Japan and Bedard was eliminated 10-8, 6-3 by Tony Vincent of New York.

Jim Bentley of Toronto, seeded No. 3 on the domestic list, lost 6-3, 6-2 to Ed Moylan of Trenton, N.J. Jon Saxe Quinney, of Buffalo, New York, ranking Mervyn Rose of Australia, fave losing 6-4, 9-7. Platt, not conceded a chance to extend 23-year-old Rose, the world's sixth-ranking player, battled the Australian all the way before being shown to the sidelines.

Things were black for Canada when Miss Sladek lost a tough 9-7, 6-3 thriller to 20-year-old Mrs. Lairs Lou Kuman of St. Petersburg, Fla., in the fourth round of the women's singles. And Dorothy Hurst of Toronto, ranked No. 5, lost two love sets to Thelma Long, Australian champion.

Then Mrs. Doleschell took over. She lost the first set 11-9, and rallied to take the next two. Both women called for a 10-minute recess after the second set and their tremendous volleying left them almost without strength to embrace at the conclusion match.



Mrs. Doleschell won after beating the American southpaw's service in the eighth game of the third set.

Because of her tremendous victory and the fact that she is a former Austrian champion, Mrs. Doleschell is Canada's best bet in the women's singles. The other Canadian' chances are slim indeed.

The winner of today's all-Toronto match between June Merrill and Mrs. Louise Brown has the job of getting past Thelma Long, Australian champion and ranked second behind defending champion Melita Ramirez of Mexico.

Bantam Baseball

Scoring four runs in the 7th, when Jackie Elliott weakened, the Wellington bantam baseballers eked out a 4-3 victory over Schwabs in the lakeside village last night.

Elliott had a no-hit-no-run game in the bag when he "blew" in the final frame. Schwab's were leading 3-1 at the time when Purtelle slashed out a home run. Carmen double and an error and singles by O'Hallorsan and McConnell sent three runs over and that was that.

The "Little Dukes" scored their other run in the first off two walks, an error and a fielder's choice. Elliott whiffed seven and Platt, who went the distance for the Dukes, 11.

It was a neat pitching duel between two smart young hurlers with Elliott allowing those four seventh-inning clouts, and Platt five.

Chick got a double for Schwabs with Elliott, St. Louis, O'Neill and Keller hitting singles.

The defeat was the second in ten starts for Schwabs. They have tied one.

The score:

Schwabs	011	010	0—3	5 2
Wellington..	100	000	3—4	4 2

Lawn Bowlers Play Mixed Doubles

Two games of mixed doubles were played in the Lawn Bowling Club last evening, the third being called off due to unfavorable weather.

There were six two-game winners, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Price were first, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Graham, second; Mr. and Mrs. Miller, third, a Brighton team fourth and Mr. and Mrs. Gord Edwards, fifth. All the teams mentioned except the one from Brighton were from Belleville.

Percy Locke had the one high.

GIVEN RELEASE

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Tigers gave lefthander Hal Newhouser his unconditional release Wednesday.

The 33-year-old southpaw—once called the prince of pitchers—said: "This is the end. I'm finished as an active player. My arm just can't stand the strain anymore."

The slim hurler earned approximately $500,000 in his 15-year career with the Tigers.

Pitching: Virgil Trucks, Chicago White Sox, gave up only four singles and allowed only one runner as far as second in winning his seventh-straight game for Chicago 3-0 over Boston.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Advance in Quest for Dominion Titles

Strongly favored to give the top-seeded Australian Davis Cupper, Mervyn Rose, some tough opposition in the battle for Canadian Men's singles tennis crown is George Worthington, another powerful netter from Down Under. The lanky six-footer, although not a member of the Davis Cup team, has beaten Rose seven times in eight tries. Worthington, who once suffered from polio, breezed through the first two rounds of the tournament at Toronto, downing Stan Horwitz of Toronto, 6-0, 6-0, and then disposed of Mexico's Rafael Ortega, 6-3, 6-0, in second round.

Twelve-Year-Old Canadian Golfer Wins American Minor Links Title

WASHINGTON (AP) — Phil Brownlee, of Toronto, steady 13-year-old Canadian golfer, beat a taller and older youth and a rain storm Wednesday to win the title for 15-year-olds and under in the Middle-Atlantic Golf Association Junior Championship.

Young Brownlee, whose fellow Canadians bowed out in semi-final matches or sooner, never wavered in winning his champion ship match with Don Bissell, of Fairfax, Va., 2 and 2.

Brownlee, who tips the scales at only 89 pounds and stands four feet nine, conceded nine inches and 80 pounds to the Virginian.

They were all even after 11 holes when a 25-minute storm halted play.

The rain left puddles of water on the fairways and greens, and observers figured Beach's weight and height would pay off on the final holes of the soggy course.

But when play was resumed, Brownlee proceeded to win the next three holes. He missed a victory on the 15th hole when a shot putt rimmed the cup. But he closed out the match on the 18th with a one-over par four.

The Canadian, youngest member of the Simpson Cup team due to play Washington golfers later this week, beat Basil Parks of Cherry Chase, 3-ud., 7 and 6, in the morning semi-finals.

In 13 matches in Middle Atlantic competition the Canadians have won eight and lost five which indicates the Simpson Cup play schools is close.

Jack Lowery of St. Catharines lost to Jerry McFerren of Silver Spring, Md., one up in the championship semi-finals. The match was about all the way with no more than one hole separating the youngsters at any time. McFerren was about four over par to win the match ended. His winning margin came on the 18th hole with a par three.

In the 14 and 15 flight, Frank Boyle of Fairfax, Va., defeated Garry Cowan, Kitchener, 2 and 1. Cowan was the third Canadian player to lose to Bogle.

The Canadian boys will take a day off from golf today. They will meet President Eisenhower and attend luncheons and dinners in their honor before the international matches Friday.

Sports Roundup

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — A Philadelphia fight promoter who is going to cover his outdoor ring to make sure the show will go on rain or shine, started the boys talking about covered ball parks. It's an old idea, revived every now and then, but never considered practical.

They talked of it Wednesday at the garden where they unveiled the gaudy new $50,000 aluminum ring to be used for outdoor shows. Lloyd Levy, the designer, did most of the gabbing.

"It's not commonly known," he said, "But we were all set to put a roof over the entire Polo Grounds years ago. Back in the days of Tex Richard.

"We were going to use suspension cables in the criss-cross over the field, sort of a bridge construction. The idea was to use some light fabric for the covering.

"But something happened to the money, and we never went through with it.

"As far as roofing a ball park goes, I don't think it would be worth while. The ball clubs don't lose too much money to rain. They don't even bother to carry rain insurance. They just plead alibi some other day. And, with only one outdoor fight in a year, it certainly wouldn't pay for boxing.

Levy is proud of the expensive new ring but I replaced the one he designed for Mike Jacobs 17 years ago, that night, first used the night Max Schmeling knocked out Joe Louis, cost only $1,000. Twelve men were needed to put it up and take it down. It cost a fortune transporting it to Philadelphia last year when the International Boxing Club was promoting the big important shows in Philadelphia.

"Right men can put this up in six hours flat," he said. But the present rate that means about $100. It can be loaded on two five-ton trucks and carried anywhere in country without too much trouble.

The ring is a real labor-saved production with a new gimmick for cameramen. Both photographers has a collapsible table for his camera. At his feet is a trap door that permits him to drop down two feet below the floor of the first row of spectators.

A fellow in the back of the hall will stand in the $15,000 prize ring, turned to the fellow next to him.

"I hope they have some $25,000 fights in it. You know how much it cost to build the ring for Dempsey and Tunney in Philadelphia? $1,200."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

Tricks are easier to take at a supported trump contract than at no-trump, because some tricks can be taken with small trumps by ruffing. And no-trump tricks depend mostly on big cards.

But the bidding of no-trump is smoother and considerably less effort. Even if in most cases the pair begins showing their suits first and slides into no-trump later.

There came the tournament deal shown here:

NORTH
♠K Q 10 9
♥9 4 3
♦7 5 2
♣A 8

WEST	EAST
♠A 5 4	♠8 6 3
♥7	♥10 8 6 2
♦A K J 9	♦9 8
♣K 7 3 2	♣6 5 4

SOUTH
♠7 2
♥A K Q J
♦K Q 10 4
♣Q J 10

The bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
1 H	Dbl	1 S	Pass
1 NT	Pass	2 S	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT	All Pass

Among other things, an opener shows four (high cards) no-trump tricks when he starts in a suit. If forced to bid again his no-trump reply does not show any more no-trump tricks.

Any later bids in no-trump when not forced will promise a high card (no-trump trick) in addition to those previously shown. It is based on each voluntary no-trump bid showing an additional high card.

So, the first no-trump bid by south (forced by new suit takeout) did not show any more high cards. His second no-trump bid (not forced) was voluntary and showed an additional (a fifth) high card.

A responder promises, among other things, two high cards in his first reply to an opening bid of one, but until he makes a voluntary bid in no-trump does he show a third high card.

North promised only two highs by both his suit bids. But he made a promise of a third high card when he voluntarily raised in no-trump.

Four spades, four hearts, two clubs are more than enough for making the contract. But it was defeated. See how.

CAMPBELLFORD
'Lumbering in Canada' Talk Given at Rotary

CAMPBELLFORD — "Lumbering in Canada" was the topic of an informal talk heard by Rotarians at their regular meeting this week. Ken Godden, who gave the talk, also showed slides to illustrate the industry.

The lumbering industry was largely responsible for the settlement of this country, he said. It led the fur trade and the coastal fisheries in the matter of time, but far outran these other industries both in importance and stability.

Father of Exploration

The fur trade was the father of exploration, based on water routes to the interior of the new continent. Lumbering was the first real industry to attract settlement. The Maritime provinces received great stimulus from a three-cornered trade with the Gold Coast, the British West Indies and Great Britain, about the time of the Napoleonic wars. Slaves from the Gold Coast were brought to the West Indies, and then cargo vessels, loaded with sugar, molasses and rum, proceeded to Canada's east coast to exchange their goods for the products of the Maritime forests. These products were mostly square timber. As the market grew, lumbering followed the St. Lawrence River inward. The present Trent waterway system provided a great deal of export timber.

No Forest Grade Pine

Today, the picture has changed. There is practically no forest grade pine in Eastern Canada, and freight rates make the prices of what little there is, prohibitive. The grades have been changed, so that the first grade pine is not as good as it was at one time, even though it has risen remarkably in price.

The present problem is to reforest vast areas of Canada. Areas that are suitable for the growth of timber are explored and planted.

AT THE CAPITOL — The irresistible Bing Crosby and Dorothy Lamour of Mind Crosby and Bing Rose win the dark fairness in this joyful scene from Paramount's technicolor "road" comedy, "Road to Bali," which opens tonight at the Capitol Theatre. Co-starring in the two fabulous lovers is Bob Hope, with Peter Lorre lending glamour. On the same screen with Bing is Jane Russell and Bob Milhaud, Arlene Dahl and Wendell Corey, co-star in "Jamaica Run" color by Technicolor.

present. Plastics and chemical substitutes are in some cases taking the place of wood in the present day industry.

Mr. Godden pointed out the need for reforestation as a means of preserving the soil and water supply, which provided all with a livelihood.

An interesting film on lumbering on the West Coast was shown, after which Mr. Godden was thanked by Rotarian Bill Dawson.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY, JULY 24, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Venus and Jupiter greatly favor artistic matters and finances. Mars and other planets indicate hidden, big tendencies, so be amenable and cautious.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Your personal interests are under the Venus rays for sound advancement, fresh benefits. But do be careful lest you cause unnecessary irritation entailing losses.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — No time to promise promiscuously; make careless remarks. Day can be profitable, wholesomely pleasant if you avoid harmful waste and wastery.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Your Moon's aspect now stresses need for patience, careful management, and first attention to first duties. Try to finish tasks to better your week-end.

July 23 to August 22 (Leo) — Temper enthusiasm with common sense. Go about usual duties with your natural cheerfulness and you will get more done quicker.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Read advice to Gemini now. Do not grow glum. This day can be fruitful of some good if you do your work well.

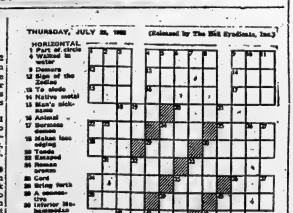
September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Evening Venus rays. You should be able to get on with usual duties, perhaps make added gains, but weigh well before signing any legal documents.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Conservatism is still in good order. Excellent vibrations for artistic, and scientific professions, but extra care stressed in finances, agreements.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Favorable rays from your Jupiter and Venus encourage personal achievement, business or work gains. Reconcile, a gracious manner attracts while grouchiness repels.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Similar indications to Scorpio sign. Be alert and be receptive to new (if sound) ideas, methods, materials. Day has good, and some, irritating periods.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Things won't happen for your benefit unless you seek and earn them. And you can do that by heeding to day's needs in order of their importance. Don't neglect family.



February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Much depends now upon what is expected of you and the time limit given. If you have system, and don't worry before hand, you can achieve many good results. Try!

YOU BORN TODAY: Active, brave, perhaps venturesome; aggressive and at times tend to boastfulness. Learn to recognize your faults in order to correct them. You will be well liked. Study quicker. You have great capacity for achievement. New advantages ahead. Birthdate: Alexandre Dumas the Elder, great Fr. novelist, playwright.

BUSY TUNNEL

SARNIA (CP) — Freight traffic through the St. Clair tunnel between Sarnia and Port Huron, Mich., totalled 37,982 cars during June, an increase of 3,000 cars over the previous June. Officials indicated that a large volume of automobiles from Michigan destined for delivery in New England was responsible for much of the increase.

4,000 Persons Take Part in Mass Baptismal

NEW YORK (AP)—An estimated 4,000 by actual count were immersed in a Broadway swimming pool yesterday in a mass baptismal service of the world-shaking Jehovah's Witnesses.

Among the members of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society attended services in various cities before the baptismal rites.

Charles A. Steele, a Brooklyn minister of the society, asked the candidates whether they recognized themselves "as sinners and in need of salvation through Jehovah God."

The candidates shouted "Yes," and gave the same answer when Steele asked "are you prepared to dedicate yourself to do the will of God?"

Assembly officials said 885 men and 265 women were baptized in the first hour.

Timmins Strikers Rush into Mine To Beat Workers

Policemen Are Held at Bay As Half-Hour Fight Rages

TIMMINS (CP) — Fifty angry hardrock miners rushed into the strike-bound Broulan Reef gold mines this morning, attacked 30 workers who had crossed picket lines and forced several of them outside the gates.

Three shots were fired by a Broulan security officer as seven strikers sped back to picket lines in a car. At least 20 men were bruised and cut in the fighting. None was seriously hurt.

More than 300 strikers, members of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), had jacks ready at the company's three gates near here while the miners went in to get the 30 men who entered the mine Thursday.

Half-Hour Battle

The half-hour pitched battle broke out shortly after dawn near the Broulan mine shaft at the Ten of the 30 workers in the mine were intercepted and driven outside the gates, where they were dumped on the roadway. The other 20 workers apparently got into the mine shaft.

The violence came only 10 hours after union representatives agreed to meet with Premier Leslie Frost of Ontario in Toronto next week in an effort to settle the wage dispute. The 34-day old strike started 13 days ago and spread to Preston East Dome and Hollinger-Preston East Dome. A total of about 750 men are out.

Union Comment

Union and company officials declined to comment on today's incident.

There was no violence at the mine gates about 10 miles east of Timmins in the rich gold producing area.

The strikers crowded around the entrances and defied 30 policemen to crash the lines. Some of the fleeing strikers could be seen battling the non-striking miners a few hundred feet inside the property.

Univerisy Women Want More of Sex Named to Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — Timing their efforts for the late stages of the federal election campaign, the Canadian Federation of University Women Thursday urged political leaders to make known their views on the "far from adequate" number of women in the Senate and the absence of women on the Civil Service Commission.

The federation issued copies of briefs given Prime Minister St. Laurent and leaders of other political parties with a request for second thoughts. In his letter to Mr. St. Laurent said "it is not accidental that we are submitting our resolutions before the election for we do call your statement to the effect that the women of Canada could influence policy if they were so inclined."

Federation Brief

The federation said:

1. The four women in the 102-seat Senate when there should be 13 vacancies is "far from adequate."

2. No woman has yet been appointed deputy minister of a federal department, commission or any government agency. This omission is particularly glaring in the (three-member) Civil Service Commission whose basic function is concerned with the selection and appointment of a large number of women.

Expects US Veto To Block China's Entrance to UN

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. Senator H. Alexander Smith (Rep.-N.J.) said today that "as things stand now, I am sure we would use the veto" to block the entrance of Communist China into the United Nations.

Smith said in an interview he is greatly pleased at assurances given the Senate foreign relations committee by a former member, Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., that the U.S. can and should use its veto to keep Communist China out of the UN.

Lodge, former Massachusetts senator who is now U.S. representative to the UN, testified before the committee yesterday in freely expressed off the record opinion. It was his first report to Congress on his stewardship as UN ambassador.

Says "Lots of Heat"

Smith, who heads the far east subcommittee of the senate foreign affairs group, said he expects "a lot of heat" from Communist friends and enemies to get Red China into the UN after a truce in Korea.

"That's when we're going to have to have a stiff backbone," he said. Both parties have pledged support on record as being against admitting the Chinese Communists to the UN. President Eisenhower has said he is against it "under present world conditions." The United States has never recognized the Communist government at Peking and Red China's rule has not occupied by the Chinese Nationalists.

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — A pilot who flew 90 missions over Europe across the Atlantic and back; has reached Decatur enroute to his home in Malden, Mass. Pilot Bill Gluckmann, the flying watchmaker, landed his light plane at the local airport after an "uneventful" flight from Cleveland.

CANNOT ALLOW PLEDGES TO REDS TO BE KEPT - RHEE

Says Korean People Will Resist Indians

By SAM SUMMERLIN

PANMUNJOM (AP)—South Korean President Syngman Rhee today angrily denounced an armistice agreement which appeared all but signed and warned that some Allied promises to the Reds "cannot be allowed to happen."

Rhee's new threats brought no immediate reaction here as liaison officers put finishing touches on a truce which could come this week. The United Nations Command acknowledged that a truce was imminent and said he is anxious "not to foster a false optimism. If it can be avoided."

Rhee has threatened several times in the past to pull his troops out of the United Nations command and fight on alone.

In a strongly-worded statement, Rhee accused the Allies of letting the Communists pledges which "render impossible a fulfillment" of the South Korean basic understandings with the United States.

India Treaty Cousted

He said his agreement with U.S. Secretary of State Walter S. Robertson and Gen. (Hoyte S.) Hanson, Canadian Chief of Staff, "was the treaty which India or any other foreign nation will be landed in South Korea to repatriate prisoners of war."

Yet, said Rhee, "the Communist chief Gen. (Hyeong K.) Hanson has agreed that such troops will land in South Korea and that they will be under the jurisdiction by the United Nations forces. I can only say that the Korean people will not permit this to happen."

Defence Building Seen as Threat To Capital Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton and D. B. Wight, city planning commissioner, declared Thursday that construction of a new national defence headquarters on the Montreal Road site miles from the centre of town would wreck the National Capital plan.

The city wants the defence department to build its new headquarters in the west end of the city, beyond the river of Rideau Lake. The city has no plans to extend water and sewage services to the Montreal Road site.

Mr. Wight said should the national defence headquarters be established on the site proposed, it might very well be the first step in the creation of a new city centre of the community, for which no zoning plan has been being directed both by the Federal District Commission and the City.

Mayor Whitton charged that the federal government is "pulling the wool over the eyes" of the housing and the National Film Board and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation had already been moved to locations outside the capital, she said.

Potato Famine Fans East Germans' Anger Against Communist Misrule

By DON DOANE

BERLIN (CP)—A potato famine fanned the fires of anger which caused riots against Communist misrule today.

Failure of promised shipments from Russia and her satellites has caused a potato famine in the district potato rationing, the West Berlin newspaper, Nacht - Depesche reported.

This was an embarrassing new setback to the Communist regime's attempt to overcome the food shortage which continues to spread among its sullen workers.

Communist bosses fought this resistance with a frenzied mixture of new arrests, threats, promises, wage boosts, and propaganda claims of increasing food plenty. But strikes and slowdowns continued. The hungry populace clamored for more food.

All East German newspapers today published appeals by the Communists calling on townspeople to help farmers with the harvest.

The Communist Free German Youth Movement with 3,000,000 members, today promised "badges of honor" to members who helped farmers.

The East German farm weekly, Bauern Echo, said the Soviet Union was threatened with serious losses because of the drought in the east zone and "red tape in the administration."

A U.S.-backed food relief program and Moscow's efforts to block it dominated the news during the unrest behind the Iron Curtain. Communist propagandists struck back furiously at U.S. Radio Commissioner James B. Conant's new appeal for the Russians "not to place any obstacles in the way" of distributing free U.S. food.

Conant branded as "spies and agents" Easi Germans who accepted Western relief. Deploring confessed shortages of several basic foods, Conant charged "We don't need American alms."

Gen. Clark Gets Authority To Sign Korean War Truce

WASHINGTON (AP)—Gen. Mark W. Clark has received final authority as United Nations commander in Korea to sign a truce agreement with the Communists ending the Korean war.

The authorization was reported to have been given by President Eisenhower in recent days in order to put Clark in position to act quickly once technical details were cleared away.

Officials expressed confidence today that, barring some last-minute shift by the Reds or some unexpected disruptive move by President Syngman Rhee of South Korea, the truce will be signed sometime this week-end, possibly Sunday night EDT which would be Monday in Korea.

At Seoul, a source close to the armistice talks said the signing probably will come Sunday. Korean time.

It was understood here the day and hour of the signing would be set 24 hours in advance and then would be immediately announced so that the world would have 24 hours notice of the formal conclusion of the agreement that has been two years in negotiations.

The principal threat to the signing arrangements as foreseen here appeared to be possible last-minute bitter opposition of President Rhee.

Hopes were expressed, however, that 11th-hour attacks of Rhee's government on the United States and its policies toward the South Koreans would not essentially affect the armistice conclusion.

Keeps Faith of His Mother Drew Tells Quebec Crowd

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

Faith of his mother religious is introduced into the federal election campaign at Trois-Rivieres, Que., Thursday night when Leader John Progressive Conservative leader.

Before his mother religious faith of his campaign tour to date—3,000 inside the armories, 2,000 outside.

Mr. Drew said:

"You have been told that you should vote for me because I am a Protestant. My friends, I am a Protestant for the same reason I am a Canadian. It is the faith which I learned the prayers in which I first expressed my religious faith at my mother's knee. So did you and you would not respect me much if I did not honor the faith which I learned as a child.

"If it were known to the time that elections are decided by the way in which we express our faith in God, then freedom of worship, which is one of the great fundamental rights of our citizens, would become a meaningless expression."

Taxation Question

At Halifax, where he opened a two-day Nova Scotia tour, Prime Minister St. Laurent said the Progressive Conservatives have "misled the hour" in promising tax cuts.

He contended that some of the reductions pledged by Mr. Drew were made by the Liberal government in the last budget.

"If Mr. Drew is going in for more cutting of taxes, he will have to cut some existing expenditures, too, and there must be a good many who are on the receiving end of government expenditures and they are wondering which expenditures would be cut."

The prime minister recorded his speech for a CBC free-time political broadcast and then delivered substantially the same address to a crowd of about 2,000 persons in a high school auditorium.

Much Promised

"When you think of all the extravagant promises to spend more money that all the other parties have made, it is up to the younger generation to say that the only party which can hope to continue to redeem its pledges to the Canadian people is the Liberal party, because we have to promise new expenditures without counting the cost."

Mr. St. Laurent said the Liberals would be defence spending quickly when it could be done with safety. He said party cutting defence expenditures by 10 per cent would be backing down on Canada's undertaking in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The prime minister said he was "shocked" to see that Maj.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, Progressive Conservative military critic, was claiming defence costs could be cut by $1,000 a person.

Fabul Deterrent Fairness

At Nicolet, Que., Mr. Drew said the Liberals have used deceptive pictures of him in Quebec and in the rest of Canada.

"In the newspapers in Quebec, he said, claimed he was opposed to Quebec and the Province of Quebec, Elsewhere in Canada, the Liberals said he was too friendly with Quebec.

"Sometimes I find it difficult to recognize myself," he added.

Later at Trois-Rivieres, he promised that the government of Canada would co-operate with the Quebec government to put a bridge across the St. Lawrence river there.

Report Red Korean Chief Purging Pro-Russian Aides

By OLEN CLEMENTS

TOKYO (AP)—Marshal Kim Il Sung, Red chief of staff in North Korea, was reported by Korean sources today to be turning out Korean Communists leaning toward Russia and building up party members who put Communist China first.

At least three members of Kim's cabinet were reported purged:

Foreign Minister Park Hun Yung; Justice Minister Lee Sung Yop and Premier Pak Hon Yen. All are Koreans.

Park Hun Yung was reported in a Communist jail after being purged three months ago. He was formerly head of the Communist party in South Korea until his defection to the north in 1946.

In Seoul, South Korean Home Minister Choi Chang Sik said the intelligence reports received there indicated Kim, whose real name is Kim Song Ju, is throwing out Red Koreans favoring Russia and backing Chinese Communists favoring Red China.

Conflicting Report

There was confusing because other Korean sources said Park Hun Yung favored Red China and this stand cost him his job. There was no way to reconcile the conflicting reports.

There were other reports that Marshal Kim, whom the South Koreans call an imposter, was dead. Moscow Radio said he died of a heart attack.

London Times Says Princess Victim of Scandal

LONDON (Reuters)—The Times says today that gossip about Princess Margaret, based on the flimsiest kind of evidence, "has now been given the shape of scandal."

"Not only princesses are the scandalmongers' quarry and the victim then the indignation must be, and is, the greater," the independent newspaper says.

The Times does not refer directly to world newspaper reports linking the Princess romantically with Group Capt. Peter Townsend, divorced air ace recently appointed British air attache in Brussels although it says Buckinghamshire gossip.

Commenting for the first time on the rumored romance, the Times declares it's a pity that the Queen's activities since the Coronation "have been personally saddened . . . by the banging about of her sister's name in public gossip."

The personal affairs of the Royal Family are private no less than public affairs, the paper says, have lately been canvassed as "daily are matters for them to decide."

UXBRIDGE YOUTH HELD FOR MURDER OF HIS BROTHER

Charge Robt. Corbett After Fatal Shooting

UXBRIDGE (CP)—Roger Corbett, 18, has been charged with murder in the shooting last night of his 36-year-old brother, Ted.

The elder brother died in a bedroom of the little bungalow he and his brother built. A few hours later, Roger, also known as Buck, was taken 10 miles south to Whitby jail and formally charged with the slaying.

Mrs. Dorothy Corbett, the brothers' 32-year-old widowed mother, said an argument over an accident in which Roger drove his recently-purchased car into a fence preceded the shooting.

Told to Leave House

Mrs. Corbett said the younger brother, who was "always having fun," had been in a mentally depressed state for several weeks. She said he had lost $1,000 on the stock market, his car had been damaged in the accident and he had been drinking for a day and a half from General Motors in Oshawa where both had worked.

The mother said her two boys always got along well.

Immunizations May Increase Danger of Polio

WINNIPEG (CP)—A suspicion that persons recently immunized against polio may be more susceptible to the disease than those who have had all inoculations and other immunizing injections Thursday.

Dr. H. E. Sellers, deputy minister of health, said the theory is based on polio injections are being hailed as a precaution.

There were 16 more polio cases reported Thursday but four cases from Wednesday's total were subtracted due to incorrect diagnosis. The provincial total now is 230, with 156 cases occurred and 156 cases of paralysis.

Dr. Elliott said a study will be undertaken to find out whether gamma globulin, the preventive serum, is one of its use can be purchased in the province. He said more serum is needed to increase the number of injections.

Nervous Thief Fears Strikers, Gives Self Up

HAMILTON (CP)—Striking truck drivers hardly frightened Harry Lecture a Kingston man wanted for theft.

Police said Lawrence J. Lawrence, 43, eased a car through a picket line of striking drivers on the western limits of the city Wednesday, then climbed out and told the officers:

"I'm a very nervous driver. I don't think it's safe for me to go through these men. Anyway, this isn't mine. I stole it."

Kingston police escorted him back Thursday to face the charge.

Eighty Light Planes Will Make Mass Air Tour of Six Provinces

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — Eighty light aircraft from the United States are expected to converge Saturday on this southern Alberta city, jump-off point for a grass-hopper air tour of six Canadian provinces.

Billed as the largest single mass flight ever staged in Canada, the Canada Air Tour is designed to provide an aerial holiday and emphasize the usefulness of light aircraft.

In other years, the air-minded business executives have gone to Alaska, Cuba and South America. This year the trip is expected to be made by about 300 persons, including a number of prominent Canadian light aircraft. The flight will take Ottawa Tuesday where a civic reception will be held.

Police Plan Arrest Of Cunning Killer In Gaspe Murders

Ghastly Remains of Youths Show US Hunters Murdered

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GASPE, Que. (CP)—Grim-faced police early today followed carefully-laid plans for an arrest in a deliberate triple slaying—cunning and cold-blooded killings made even more gruesome by ravenous bears.

The shocking end to a bush-country mystery of three weeks ago was disclosed when the ghastly remains of two young American hunters were found scattered along the bank of a winding little stream.

Their fate was the same as that of the eldest of the three, who came to the bear-hunting country from Philadelphia, Pa. Human hands brought about their death; the animals they hunted devoured their flesh and scattered and chewed their bones. Only one skull of the three victims has been found.

Last week the bones of Eugene H. Lindsey, 45, were found at the end of a trail near a remote logging camp. Yesterday, searchers came upon the grisly scene of another camp, four miles away.

Find Youths' Bones

There they found all that remained of Lindsey's 17-year-old son, Richard, and Fred Clasz, 20, Paris art student, in a bear pit.

Two hip bones were on the far side. Torn and chewed clothing, small personal belongings and a few rifle bullets were mingled with arm bones, leg bones, pieces of spines, ribs and one skull.

Only one piece of clothing appeared practically intact. It was a white sweatshirt, bloodstained and with a neat round hole, as if from a bullet, drilled cleanly through it.

Robbery Motive

Since the discovery of the elder Lindsey's remains, robbery has been advanced as a motive. He had known to have had considerable money with him when he and the younger men went into the bush six weeks ago. Lindsey had a wallet found near his remains.

With the odds and ends of personal belongings, searchers yesterday found only 36 cents. But their day-long search was not entirely in vain. Police had a valuable piece of evidence for police. They carefully took under the roots of a tree was a .22 calibre rifle.

Planned Murder

Just how the killings were carried out had not been made known officially here when, late Thursday night in Quebec City, a spokesman for the Provincial Security Department said bluntly: "It is murder, cold-blooded and planned."

The discoveries were made at Camp 28, four miles west of Camp 29, where the elder Lindsey's remains were found, and about 65 miles from Gaspe.

Personal belongings found in the all-day search included a watch, identified as formerly belonging to one hunter, laced boots, blue overalls and an underwear shirt and upper bridge-work was also found.

Supervision of the work was carried out by Capt. J. Alphonse Matte, provincial police criminal investigation officer, who arrived yesterday from Quebec.

To Resume Search

He said last night he did not plan to go into the bush again today but would send in a crew of searchers to carry on with the work of finding everything possible.

Soldier Flown To Face Court In Theft Case

WINNIPEG (CP)—Captain Martin Franklyn Smith arrived here by plane late Thursday under RCMP escort to face charges of theft in connection with disposal of $30,000 worth of brass shell cases.

The cases were allegedly stolen from Dalhi, Man., military camp in 1952 while Smith was ordnance officer. The 34-year-old officer appears in provincial police court today. He is being held in a detention home.

Smith was arrested Wednesday night in his Regina home by RCMP officers. He was born in Westboro, Ont., and has a wife and four children. He once served at Kingston, Ont.

Mrs. Smith said the charges are "absurd."

"I think he was framed," she added.

Shell Explodes Near British Ship Sailing to China

TOKYO (AP)—The U.S. Navy said today a "single shell, bomb or mine" exploded near the British 3,000-ton British freighter in the Taiwan Sea but the ship was undamaged.

U.S. warships were maneuvering in the area, the navy said.

The navy said the freighter, the Kowloon Bar, was heading from Japan to the Red hinese port of Tsingtao, China.

Earlier, the Japanese Coast Guard had reported U.S. shells fired on the freighter and it might have sunk.

The coast guard said the freighter San Eduardo reported by radio that it was "under shell fire" and that though the latter had sent boats to contact the ship after the messages was interrupted they got no reply. They said it was feared the ship had been sunk.

The radio Tokyo broadcast a report from Korea that the San Eduardo was on fire.

Quebec Co-Op Manager Slain, Robbers Blamed

GASPE, Que. (CP)—Provincial police today sought the murderer and murder at New Richmond, Que., about 160 miles from this centre of Gaspe peninsula, in the case of three murdered American hunters.

A police spokesman said apparently there was no connection between the killing of the hunters in the Gaspe woods and the slaying of New Richmond Thursday night of 40-year-old Edgar Audet, manager of a consumers' co-operative.

The manager's body was found at the headquarters of the co-operative shortly after midnight.

Police said $20 was missing from the cash register. Robbery, murder and killing apparently were the work of two men thought to be armed.

QUADRING, England (CP)—A deadly tarantula spider with a body the size of a man's thumb was discovered at this Lincolnshire town in a banana shipment from Brazil.

PROCEEDINGS HALTED IN COURT CASE

Proceedings against two youths charged with theft of a motor car on Thursday last, were quite unusual and were abruptly interrupted by magistrate's court today when it was learned that one of the youths was still a juvenile. When arrested by provincial police and later questioned by city police he had told them he was 16 years old.

The mother of the juvenile appeared in court and testified as to her son's age, whereupon it was decided to transfer the case to the juvenile court.

HON. W. A. GOODFELLOW GUEST SPEAKER AT GRILLS' PICNIC

The Honorable W. A. Goodfellow, minister of public welfare, for the Province of Ontario, will be the guest and will speak at the Lee Grills picnic to be held at Sharies Beach, Oak Lake, on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Grills has invited all in the city, who are interested, to come and bring the children. An excellent program of entertainment is planned with prizes for winners of the contests. Buses and cars will leave the Wharf St. Debating Club and the Conservative committee rooms at 1 p.m.

Guests are also requested to pack a lunch.

ST. HON. C. D. HOWE WILL SPEAK AT MARMORA, SATURDAY

The Right Honorable C. D. Howe, minister of trade and commerce, will speak in Marmora Saturday afternoon at a political rally on behalf of F. R. Fulwell, Foster Liberal candidate for the next general riding of Hastings-Prontenac. The meeting at which Mr. Howe, the candidate, and others are scheduled to speak will start at three o'clock.

Speakers Cover Lots of Ground

Election campaigns mean busy days for government officials, especially cabinet members speaking in support of the various candidates across the country.

This was indicated yesterday with the appearance of Hon. Paul Martin, minister of health and welfare, who spoke at Belleville in support of F. R. Fulwell, Liberal candidate for Hastings-South.

Thursday noon Mr. Martin was in Windsor. He boarded a plane for the east and at 8.30 was in Belleville. This morning he was scheduled to make a brief visit to Batawa and Trenton and expected to be in Toronto by 11 o'clock in time to board a plane at Malton for a flight back to Windsor.

Speaking at a Liberal rally at the collegiate last night in support of Frank S. Follwell, Liberal candidate for Hastings-South, Mr. Martin said the health of a nation's people was its most important asset. The Liberal party, through its national health program, was doing everything in its power to improve the health of Canada's people.

"We have built Canada's national health services were already "second to none", the speaker outlined how the government was providing financial assistance for the control of tuberculosis, cancer, to assist crippled children, for a mental health program and to provide hospital beds.

Program Takes Time

"We are going to provide a national health plan, however," he said, "but that there is not enough time left this year to get such a plan working like."

He told of how a program to assist cerebral palsy patients had been inaugurated following a talk with a Montreal man five years ago. Now there were cerebral palsy clinics in every province, "thanks largely, to the national health program."

It had also existed in the setting up of a unit in Toronto to fight dreaded polio. The cost that had been paid by Ottawa and the same offer stood for establishments of units anywhere in Canada.

"Let no man say that the Liberal government has forgotten the health interests of the people of Canada," he said.

Mr. Martin referred to the health department in Belleville as the best thing that happened and also X-ray equipment at the Belleville Hospital. This equipment had been paid for by the national health program, he said.

$60,000 for Heart Research

Mr. Martin said that federal grants totalling $60,000 had been made available to assist research in the problem of heart disease in Ontario. Contributions from the Province of Ontario to the Foundation's research program would make it possible for federal grants to be raised to $100,000.

The funds being made available would be used to retain the services of experienced research personnel and to provide equipment and supplies necessary for the intricate technical work involved.

The speaker paid tribute to Frank Follwell as Liberal candidate for the riding describing him as a "devoted public servant" and who as member during the past four years had shown a great interest in health matters.

"He has come to me repeatedly seeking information on health units and other matters and has shown a keen interest in the health of the people of his constituency."

He urged the voters' support of Mr. Follwell, who, he said, would not be elected for himself alone, but a vote for Follwell was the only way riding members could support the St. Laurent government.

Declaring that Canada had never had as wise or courageous a leader as they had in St. Laurent, Mr. Martin said the Liberal leader had preserved the unity of Canada and the spirit of oneness with the peoples of all 10 provinces.

Harmonious Relations

"Never has there been a period when relations between the federal government and the provinces has been as harmonious and as understanding as it is today," he said.

Mr. Martin said these good relations were the 'greatest achievement in 50 years.'

Without those good relations there could have been no old age security program and no unemployment insurance. Without cooperation there could be no good government in Canada. Mr. St. Laurent had established a reign of understanding rather than a reign of terror.

The fact that Canada was prepared to proceed alone with the St. Lawrence seaway was an indication of the fine co-operation between the federal government and the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission.

In his position as the country's leader Mr. St. Laurent also had an understanding of the necessity of world peace. He understood that the people of Canada did not want war but they were realistic enough to know that the problems of other countries were also our concern.

In a country so large and containing so many different peoples as did Canada, it was necessary for a leader to have courage to say in one section what he said in another. Mr. St. Laurent had said did that he had this courage when in a recent speech in Quebec he had told so-called isolationists that they could not hope to avoid being involved should there be another war.

Taxes Reduced

Referring to the Conservatives' talk of tax reductions Mr. Martin pointed out that Canada was the only free country which has reduced taxes — over 500 million in the past two years.

"Mr. St. Laurent has done what Eisenhower could not do, and what Great Britain could not do and has done it without jeopardizing our way of life."

Forty-eight cents of every tax dollar was earmarked for defence expenditure and no responsible person objected to that.

Mr. Martin said he took great satisfaction in the prosperity which was illustrated by exemployment all across the country. Canada was the third trading nation in the world and the greatest trading nation per capita. Her income had increased four times since 1939 — from $5½ billions to 34 billions.

"Would we change this government for the 1930's?" Mr. Martin asked, "for the lines of unemployed, and Conservative? Of course not."

Canada was on the march and was the most envied nation in the world. The reason was the productivity of her workers and the enterprise of her forebears.

Proud of Record

As health minister Mr. Martin said he was anxious to see the provision of health services, pointed out this could only be if finances were available and every possible effort would assure the necessary money. He was proud of the government record in providing health and welfare services. The Liberals had brought in old age pensions, unemployment insurance and family allowances.

Through family allowances four and one-half million children in Canada were receiving assistance in their education and nutrition. Seventeen thousand children in Hastings South received $1,191,000 last year.

He disagreed with Progressive Conservative claims that pensions and family allowances should be paid only after a means test.

"I think that George Drew is an honorable man and I believe him when he says he will not interfere with social services, but Tory forces behind Mr. Drew are demanding that pensions be on a means test basis."

He said that the Globe and Mail in a recent editorial asked why pensions should be paid to all. Yet the Globe and Mail was one of the first papers to urge abolition of the means test.

"I am proud that every bit of social legislation in Canada has been placed on the books by the Liberal party," he concluded.

Says People Are Behind Him

Frank Follwell said the record of the Liberal government was well known. If elected he said he would send it back into power on August 10. He said he had served four years with the St. Laurent team and its record was outstanding.

Mr. Follwell pointed to his own public service record and assured the same service for another four years should he be elected. Small turnouts in political meetings proved that the people were well satisfied. The legislation given by the Liberal government had made the people prosperous, secure and united," he said.

Proof of progress in the riding of Hastings South was the construction of a new one-million-dollar building at the parental laboratory; harbor improvements at Belleville; selection or a site for a new high school in Tweed and the site chosen in Belleville for a new building to hold the post office and other federal offices. Only property additions remained to be completed before tenders were called, he said.

All this was proof of progress and proof that he as member had been active, Mr. Follwell declared.

The Conservatives are saying that it is time for a change," stated Mr. Follwell. "A change for what? A change in Employment High

Employment in Canada was above the Canadian dollar was above par and exports were the highest in history.

Is it time for a change when all our people are prosperous, when opposition parties have records or depressions and despair for the people?" he asked.

The issue was whether Canadians placed their confidence in St. Laurent or whether they took ad leadership of the country to the opposition and to George Drew.

"A vote for the opposition is a vote for Drew. A vote for your Liberal candidate is a vote of confidence for St. Laurent," Mr. Follwell said.

Irvin McGaughey of Trenton, chairman of the Hastings South Liberal Association, acted as chairman for the meeting. He urged the considerable interest in Mr. Follwell's favor had been found throughout the riding. This interest had been created through policies of the Liberal government. Party members were showing a willingness to work and there was a spirit of appreciation for what the Liberal government had done for them.

Seated on the platform were: George Brown, president of the Trenton Liberal Association; Herb McCabe, president of the Belleville Association; Mrs. George Wilson, president of the Belleville Liberal Women's Association, and Mrs. Follwell, vice-president of the Belleville Liberal women. Organ selections prior to the meeting were rendered by Mrs. Mary Deacon.

6-Month Term Given for Theft

Pleading guilty to a charge of theft of money from the home of Charles Roy Cronon, 80, of Campbellton, Belleville letter carrier, Ernest Ellis was sentenced to jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills today. The sentence was the minimum which can be given on conviction of such an offence.

Cronon was arrested by city police earlier in the week following investigation of the matter by postal inspectors.

Mr. C. R. MacNabb, superintendent of postal services, giving evidence, introduced a quantity of opened mail which he said had been found at the Cronon residence. He said three marked bills and a marked quarter placed in a letter had been found in possession of Cronon. Opened mail found at the Cronon residence dated back to 1950, he said.

"Does this was not an isolated instance?" asked Crown Attorney Ben Brenan. There was the reply.

Mr. MacNabb said Cronon was a temporary letter carrier and would have been due shortly for a permanent classification.

Harvesting of oats is getting underway in the Bay of Quinte district, according to the weekly crop report published by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

In Hastings considerable acreage of wheat has been cut with farmers reporting yields are good as high as were expected earlier in the season.

The factory pea harvest is nearly completed with reasonably good yields being reported. A bumper crop of hay is being harvested with hundreds of acres of hay sitting in bale or in windrows in the fields.

LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP)—Receipts were somewhat lower at the Ontario stockyards this week. Prices were steady on early sales but were 50 cents or so lower after Monday with the market at a standstill after Tuesday. Early trading of cattle was slow on most grades with a good many finding no market after Tuesday. Hogs were steady and lambs were steady to $1 lower. Slaughter at the close was 1,200 head.

Cattle receipts totalled 6,387 head added to 5,000 carried from last movement of beef with almost no demand after Tuesday and resulted in a heavy carryover this week. Choice light and weighty steers $30-$31.50; good, light $29-$30; medium downward to $18; good heifers carried at $28-$30; with cows over $19 after Monday; plain light steers and heifers $13-14; good cows closed $13-15; medium downward to $12; canners $8-10; good heavy bulls $18-14; plain light bulls downward to $11; choice fed yearlings $30.50-31.50; a few $32; small lots of common to medium stockers $14-17.50; tops $32; a few good stock calves $32.50.

Calves totalled 2,227 head. Early trade was steady at $23-24 for choice vealers with good to choice medium to good $17-21; plain vealers and grassers $12-16.

Hogs were 3,004 head. The market was unchanged at $33.50 for grade A Dressed basis 90 per cent. Sheep and lamb receipts were 1,064 head. A few good ewes and wethers delivered by rail $30; with the bulk of good lambs $29; bucks were $1 discount; culls $18-25; good light sheep $8-19; culls downward to $6.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Following a firm open, prices slipped back into their familiar mixed pattern in light forenoon stock market trading today.

Industrials held onto early gains but price changes were almost all fractional. Golds and base metals slipped back with western oils while western oils faded slowly.

Uranians picked up slightly as interest focussed on such favorites as Gunnary Contact and Parbec, which added pennies. New record wick base metals traded lower.

In industrials manufacturing companies, foods and liquors advanced but banks and utilities eased.

Golds drew little interest as senior and holding companies mixed while juniors edged forward.

Base metals failed to follow up their advance of Thursday as both higher- and lower-priced stocks turned in mixed performances.

Captains' Stories Of Lake Collision Are Contradictory

TORONTO — (CP) — Capt. George Ward of the Canada Steamship Lines freighter Burlington testified yesterday that the Paterson Steamship Lines grain carrier Scotiadoc sheared into his vessel June 20 in dense Lake Superior fog.

His statement before a commission of inquiry was in direct contradiction to testimony given the previous day by Capt. George Morrice of Fort William, master of the Scotiadoc. Capt. Morrice said the Burlington rammed the Scotiadoc amidships and sent her to the bottom.

The eastbound Scotiadoc, carrying 250,000 bushels of grain, sank near Trowbridge Island, Lake Superior's famous Sleeping Giant off Port Arthur. One of her crew members, 19-year-old Valdas Tremold of Sault Ste. Marie, was drowned.

Capt. Ward testified:

Mr. Justice Dalton C. Wells of the Exchequer Court is presiding. He is assisted by Capt. W. Beaty and Capt. F. C. Smith of Vancouver. Peter Wright is commission counsel.

Were Seeking Shelter

Both freighters had headed into the fog to seek shelter from rough seas running in the open lake. Capt. Ward, whose ship was the light laden one, latched, said he "had no idea the Scotiadoc was in the lake" until he switched from the short range on the radar and spotted a moving object about 1½ miles away.

Capt. Ward said he listened for fog signals but heard nothing. He returned to the radar screen and saw the object getting nearer.

"I told the wheelsman to turn to starboard 10 degrees and a half minute later I told him to turn to starboard another 10 degrees. Again I jumped to the front window of the bridge. Then I heard her whistles about 45 degrees on the port side and real close."

Crossing Course

The Burlington's captain told his first mate to sound the danger alarm. At that moment the Scotiadoc appeared out of the fog "at right angles to our course and crossing our bow."

Capt. Ward said the Burlington was going about 9½ miles an hour at the moment of impact. He rang "full speed astern" just before the collision.

"The Scotiadoc was moving at full speed across our course and appeared to be going in an arc. She sheared into our bow and her stern swung into us."

Earlier in the day's proceedings Mr. Justice Wells said he would be stuffed the Scotiadoc's log into the top of his brunette old hat" lost it.

"Did you draw the log purposely?" R. C. Holden, counsel for Canada Steamship Lines, asked.

"No, sir, I did not," he replied.

TRENTON

Quarter Million Payroll Boost Is Seen at Plant

TRENTON (Special) — Dave Terry, manager of the Canadian erecting plant here said Thursday that the planned enlargement and modernization that will get under way immediately will mean an annual payroll increase of $250,000. Some 20 men will be added to operate the new equipment, bringing to 190 the number employed by the company here in Trenton.

More than 75 officials of Bell Telephone, Hydro and those connected with the wood preserving business witnessed the opening of a new preserving process by the Trenton division of Dominion Tar and Chemical. They walked through the pole yard to the north yards, where railroad cars are stacked in several impressive piles.

Afterwards the group gathered at the Quinte Hotel for lunch. Mayor R. E. Whitley and town clerk O. W. Larry represented the town.

Climaxing the eventful visit, two buses were made available to those interested in making a scenic trip north along the Trent River system to Stirling and return.

Hon. Paul Martin Opens Bata Drive For Million Cents

TRENTON (Special) — Dropping a handful of pennies into a large bottle, Hon. Paul Martin, minister of national health and welfare, this morning officially opened the Bata Shoe Company's drive to raise a million pennies for the Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Martin visited the Bata plant in the company of Frank Podevell of Belleville, Liberal candidate for South Hastings, and Dr. C. E. Herr, vice-president of the Bata Shoe Co. of Canada.

The minister addressed the Bata employees and urged them to support the drive to raise funds for the Trenton hospital. He outlined the progress made in meeting the health needs of the nation.

Late in the morning, Mr. Martin boarded a plane at the Trenton air station and left for Toronto. He had addressed a public meeting in Belleville on Thursday evening.

Plan New Map Showing Details Of Sub-Divisions

TRENTON (Special) — Trenton may soon have a detailed map showing new and proposed lots including the Middleton Park area. The Fur Cartage Company toying with the idea, presented a proposition to the executive of the Chamber of Commerce Thursday night. It was decided to proceed with the plan under a stipulation that local printers be given an opportunity to bid on the job.

The Chamber voted to sponsor a get-out-the-vote campaign for the Dominion election August 10. The secretary manager, Herb Smith, was advised to write to the Cobourg Chamber of Commerce offering assistance for the growing match days, October 6 to 9 inclusive.

The Chamber may have reached a solution to the free parking problem in the area behind the downtown C.N.R. station. It was decided to erect a large illuminated sign instructing drivers seeking parking to turn to the middle aisle clear.

It was moved to purchase up to $175 worth of A. Whitley's office furnishings. Up until now the Chamber has been using Mr. Whitley's office equipment free. Mr. Whitley has decided to move from the office he shares with the Chamber and the Chamber hopes to take over the entire space. Mr. Whitley was thanked for his co-operation.

Four-Lane Road Route Indicated By River Tests

TRENTON (Special) — The four-lane highway to be constructed between Trenton and Belleville will apparently follow the "Telephone Road", a short distance to the north of the CNR right-of-way.

This was indicated Friday when Department of Highway engineers commenced the task of taking soundings in the Trent River, four-tenths of a mile north of the CNR tracks.

The engineers were working from boats. They said that their records of the river's depths would be absolutely accurate in "order that the bridge which must be erected over the river can be properly designed.

The Telephone Road runs north of the CNR tracks from the Newcastle area, where the present four-lane highway from Toronto joins Highway No. 2.

Eventually, it is presumed, that four-land road will be hicked up with the stretch between Trenton and Belleville, but for the present only this section is contemplated. The Trenton-Belleville road will join Highway No. 14 (the Foxboro road) a short distance north of the Belleville city limits.

Sea Cadet Corps Wins High Honors at Camp

Proud of their achievements in taking the traditional "Navy cake" twice, seventeen members of the Quinte Sea Cadet Corps arrived home from two weeks summer training at Chobra, Ont.

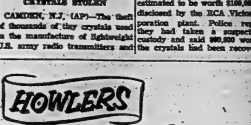
They "took the first cake" after being judged the smartest division on parade over eleven other divisions from all parts of Eastern Canada. They won the second "cake" because their dormitory was judged the cleanest and most orderly.

The cadets were in charge of chief petty-officer Leading Seaman L. McIntyre. Under his supervision they brought back seven International Red Cross life-saving certificates.

The Belleville cadets also won high honors in the sailing races, finishing second to the Kingston cadets in the two race divisions. The Quinte entry was skippered by Leading Seaman (Gopher) Bradshaw who took the craft through the preliminaries to the finals.

Leading Seaman McIntyre brought back a daily log of the training and recreation also an attendance roll. Not a single Quinte cadet missed a parade. The log was presented to the corps commanding officer Lieut. H. D. Mackenzie.

Able Seaman Jack Donovan whose physical handicap does not permit him to march, won personal honors when he qualified as a leading seaman gunlayer.



That the Quinte Corps did not lack intestinal fortitude was evidenced in a boxing show when the Maritime lightweight boxing champion offered to take on any one. No one appeared anxious. Then Able Seaman Clements of the Quinte Corps offered to act. He was knocked out in 30 seconds. He is leading seaman gunlayer, was body had to do it and it was up to Clements.

Lieut. MacKenzie paid special tribute to his corps today especially Leading Seaman McIntyre for his efficiency and leadership.

CRYSTALS STOLEN

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP)—The theft of thousands of tiny crystals used in the manufacture of lightweight U.S. army radio transmitters and estimated to be worth $100,000 was disclosed by the RCA Victor Company plant. Police reported they had taken a suspect into custody and said $60,000 worth of the crystals had been recovered.

WANT A GREAT BIG WORRY?

Man's lot is an unhappy one. Woes abound. It behooves all of us, therefore, to spread what cheer we can.

These are the vacation days when troubles generally multiply. If the bass are not biting but the skeeters are, if the beer is warm but the cards cold, if the bread is old and the cheese new, take comfort. We come with solace.

Oh, an optimist you say! Perish the thought. There is only one way to make a man happy. That is not to try to convince him that this is the best of all possible worlds but to show him that it is a very, very sad world indeed and that he has been blissfully unaware of the depths of the many miseries that lurk in its cities, deserts, forests and fields.

One of the best ways to learn disdain for the mosquitoes of a Prince Edward County marsh is to spend a few days with black flies in the northern bush.

A whirl at the stock market will often cure a man of singing the blues over his poker hands.

And any cheese, even new cheese, is better than no cheese at all.

But these are specific remedies for minor irritants. What we need to do is to discover a universal solvent for the domestic type of worry. Obviously this must be a big worry indeed.

The atomic bomb and its bigger and brawnier cousin, the hydrogen bomb, looked like the answer to mankind's need a time but the optimists quickly diluted its potency with predictions that somebody, somewhere, was sure to survive.

The space platform, with the world turning under its atomic-powered rocket every twenty-four hours, with every spot on the earth a bulls-eye once a day for 365 days in the year and only Leap Year looming as a change and that for the worst—that was an answer for years.

But the shrewd man knows it will not be that bad. Chances are, space platforms will be too busy shooting at other space platforms to spend over-much time sniping at the earthly common herd.

Prospects in the worry-hunting department were poor until Dr. Harry Wexler, chief of the Scientific Services Division of the United States Weather Bureau, got into the act.

Like a real genius, Dr. Wexler does not threaten us with speedy annihilation. He proposes, on the other hand, to remove our major source of complaint, namely, the weather. Dr. Wexler proposes to control it. All he needs to do is to get a few instruments close enough to the sun to measure the variations in solar energy. Once he does that, he just alters the content of the atmosphere. Do not ask us how. He does—or will do—or somebody will do—some day—once man perfects a space platform.

There will that space platform again, back to bother us. Bad enough when they were going to shoot from it, but when they plan to start treating us with care and courtesy in case it ever comes in handy, worry. There will be no hope of getting out of mowing the lawn on your day off because, rather obviously, no weather bureau is going to risk enraging all the wives in the country.

The world is going to be a most unhappy lot. They will not be able to tell their bank managers that crops were poor because of lack of rain, or too much rain, or frost in late early frost or all the other stock excuses for lack of cash. When Mary Jane comes in from school with wet feet it will not be because she got caught in the rain, for rain will never be the cause of home-threatening colds and puddle-paddlers will be patsies unfailingly without hope of reprieves from credulous parents. When the carpenter takes twice the allotted time to finish the job the client will know he has been loafing on the job. Lovers will never have to take refuge from a shower — except by design. Ball games will never be rained out in the middle, thereby robbing team managers of their last hope when the star pitcher throws a pre-game tantrum.

In case some smug government official is still moaning about the weather under the mistaken impression that these future troubles only concern the common man, may we mildly hint that he is going to have some problems, too.

When the tourists are parched in the picnic season, what order is he going to transmit to the weather-maker on the space platform?

DISTORTED VIEW OF OUR CIRCUMSTANCES

So far and yet so near!

That title makes life so interesting in the United States and Canada.

Most of us know that a comparatively small increase in our income tax deductions can make such a great difference in the satisfactions which we would obtain from life.

That is the conclusion reached after reading an analysis of "the American political-economic system of 'People's Capitalism'" by Robert Buron, minister of economic affairs in France. The Christian Science Monitor says that "probably no one has more neatly summed up" the system, and the comment suggests that the editor of the Monitor is as out of touch with the conditions of life of the average American (and Canadian) citizen and his aspirations as is France's minister of economic affairs.

Briefly, Monsieur Buron's argument is that if you disregard three per cent of the population who are rich and twelve per cent who are poor because they are "disqualified either physically, socially or mentally" there remain 85 per cent of all Americans "whose salary scale shows the least difference between the two extremes."

"The ratio between the two extremes varies from 1 to 3 or 3½," he says. Then he adds, "Life is practically little more or less the same for every one."

We do not presume to quarrel with the French expert's figures. But we do question his conclusion that life on $3,000 a year is "practically little short of being the same" as life on $10,500 a year.

Those extra 750,000 cents make a whale of a difference!

Yet basically Monsieur Buron's argument is correct. The great majority of healthy, educated, efficient workers in the United States and Canada can see the end of the rainbow almost within their grasp.

GUILT—REAL AND IMAGINARY

The problem of guilt is one of the most acute and powerful in human experience. Millions of people bear about in their hearts at all time a profound sense of guilt. Some of this is wholesome, some is morbid.

But the Christian Gospel has much to say about guilt, whether it be imaginary, in the wholesomeness of the gospel urges us to cast our burdens upon the Lord and let Him carry them. Only under the power of the gospel can we know whether our sense of guilt is self-torture or a wholesome turning to the Lord.

If the sense of guilt is real, then the Christian Gospel demands two things and promises one thing. It demands that, to the extent we are able, we right all wrongs and repay all debts to our fellows. It further demands that whether we understand the significance of the doctrine of the atonement or not, we recognize the fact that Christ Jesus took upon Himself the guilt of the world and bore it in his body on the cross.

Then comes the promise. If we repent, repay, and then repose our trust in the efficacy of a great divine event which we cannot understand, liberation is accorded us: "Now the Lord is that spirit, and where the spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty."

FRIENDSHIP'S SOURCE

Fate moves in a mysterious way
To ply its trade.
Of strangers we may meet today
Are, friendships made.

A handclasp and a pleasant word,
A smile, and then
(And on it's oft has this occurred)
To meet again.

'Tis true that many come and go
With just a glance,
But strangers we may some day know
Bring friendship's chance.

Wire Wheels Are Revived

(Ottawa Journal)

Peering from under our sharp grey eyebrows we observe these some automobile manufacturers have gone back to wire wheels on sporty 1953 models. The glittering spokes, we are certain, will be associated with the days ago and counted the emblem of modernity.

Well, we like wire wheels. At one time we had nothing else and for years, when the spring mud was deep on the North Trail. We had dire warnings to give about the hubs and the wheels. The fact was that when the wire wheels were dry the hubs and spokes, then as they were, gave some sort of a grip, enough to hold the old car on to hard ground.

There used to be good arguments around the potbellied stove on whether the wire wheels were any better, and, if so, how, than the metal or wooden spokes which also were popular; but there never was any real agreement that smooth surfaced wheels were good for getting out in the mud, sinking deeper and deeper until the horrid moment when someone walked off to find a team of horses.

Now that we were surfaced we thought no more of wire wheels or spokes nor, indeed, of going along with the best of them. But now we are reminded of past relations and their usefulness in getting over difficulties. There's nothing, we say proudly, like meeting an old friend.

Capitalism Pays Off

(By Carter Henderson In Wall Street Journal)

At the end of a remarkably dusty road in Amana, a country town in Iowa, workmen are striving together on the erection of a $2.5 million addition to Amana Refrigeration Corp.'s home food freezer factory. The new addition, of concrete and glass brick, provides a starkly modern contrast to Amana's century-old brown-shingled houses.

As soon as this addition is finished, Amana officials will begin stepping up production from 400 to 1,000 freezers a day.

Until 1950, when a group of nearby Cedar Rapids businessmen bought out fast-growing Amana Refrigeration Inc. for $5,000,000, the company was a division of the Amana ("Believe Faithfully") Society, a religious community that owns and operates a dozen profitable businesses.

For over 75 years, the Amana Society wanted no part of business. Rapidly it has allowed investment bought out fast-growing Amana Refrigeration Inc. for $5,000,000, the company was a division of the Amana ("Believe Faithfully") Society, a religious community that owns and operates a dozen profitable businesses.

Until 1950, when a group of nearby Cedar Rapids businessmen bought out fast-growing Amana Refrigeration Inc. for $5,000,000, the company was a division of the Amana ("Believe Faithfully") Society, a religious community that owns and operates a dozen profitable businesses.

Today, thanks to the switch from communism to capitalism, Amana Society has issued every one of stock in Amana Society. This Society's 1952 net worth totalled $5,000,000 included handmade furniture of native walnut, cherry and maple; locally smoked Westphalian-style hams, beams and sausages; bright woolens, and fine old-style bread baked to a turn in ancient stone hearths.

The Amana Society was born in 1854, when some 800 followers of a mystic Rapids leader, Christian Gerhard, established seven communes and settled seven dreary hamlets on 26,000 acres of fertile prairie soil bordering the Iowa River.

They practised pure communism. Everyone worked for the Society without wages, and in return, the Society provided everyone with whatever food, clothing and shelter they needed to stay alive.

Amana families lived in a few roome assigned to them in communal dwellings. Other meals were made from cloth woven in community mills; and were fed in communal kitchens. Almost everyone ate in pious silence. It was only natural that family life—with everybody on the dole.

The "Great Change" as Amana calls it, still did not begin until 1932, when the Society decided to toss communism out the window and embrace capitalism a whole. They added up the value of their assets and liabilities and incorporated them into a profit-seeking stock company that paid wages. Each member got a share of common stock, plus medical, dental and burial benefits at Society expense.

The switch to private enterprise has been extremely successful. Productivity increased so much that the Society's directors were obviously needed to help run the Society's businesses were fired and told to get jobs.

The lure of profits caused the Amana Society to take a flyer in the refrigeration business in 1934. Amana's Director Emeritus Foerstner started up production with a handful of employees and a few unused corners in the furniture shop. They started selling to mail-order houses, but soon switched to home freezers.

Amana engineers have been trying to develop models of food freezers and decided that home freezers, unlike commercial ones, should stand upright, rather than squat lengthwise on the floor. The upright design makes freezer caught on and was soon copied by other freezer makers.

Business was bubbling, and prosperous Amana farmers and ana elders felt the Society did not have enough money to put into the business. Some of the backing it needed to hold its own in the booming home freezer industry. Two years ago they sold out to a syndicate that is headed by the Amana trademark and Amana member Geo. Foerstner as company president.

THE GRAY SICKNESS

Dr. Brady

The nails of the woman with hypochromic anemia (don't let that big word throw you, we'll explain it presently) are brittle, cracked, often flattened or scooped (concave) or else (convex) to various degree of ridging or pitting. Hypochromic anemia is less, below, normal color; hypochromic anemia is weak watery blood characterized by low level of hemoglobin (red bearing coloring matter in the red corpuscles.

When Topsy was a colt and Micky and I were eagerly awaiting the arrival of Lulu Belle, in Penn Yan, 216 yards from the great Birdseye Mills, there was a famous Prize Buckwheat Flour — Wow! — hypochromic anemia occurred chiefly among girls in their early 'teens and doctors called it chlorosis, the green sickness, because there was a greenish yellow appearance of the complexion.

Today chlorosis seems to have gone out of fashion. Instead of the green sickness, doctors now call the low manifests itself as the gray sickness, which occurs, not in young girls but in young women at the time they should be at full bloom, the late thirties and early forties.

This hypochromic anemia is called the gray sickness for the same reason that chloris was called the green sickness. The woman with iron deficiency anemia complains that her hair is rapidly turning gray, and the pallor of her wrinkled skin intensifies the impression of grayness.

I believe the green sickness of the 'teens' and the gray sickness of the 20th century are just different manifestations of nutritional deficiency anemia. Formerly at least some undernourished (refined, purified) food was consumed by everybody; today nearly all the food you poor poor soles get to subsist on has been processed, manipulated, refined, purified, pasteurized, sterilized, vacuum packed, pressurized, carbonated or homogenized and it is not fit food for human consumption.

Besides the low hemoglobin of the gray sickness, other characteristics are sore tongue, difficulty in swallowing, sore mouth, cracks in the corners of the mouth, fissures about the anus, loss of appetite, loss of weight, dry, brittle, cracked ridged, pitted, flattened or spooned nails.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Canadians who move down to the United States to work and live are reasonably inclined to suppose that they are playing it smart. Mike Fearson puts it, in "a bigger league." Which is why many come to Canada for a holiday, they doubtless experience that same urge to be the boy who returns to his home village from the big city. A certain amount of condescension enters into the sentiment, but also a fair amount of genuine affection, at least could be described as the desire to be noticed.

Thus, when you see an American car driving in a Canadian town there is very little surprise. It is not even disapproval, it is not wise to assume that an American is a Red until proved innocent. It often is, a Canadian back home for a holiday from his new and wonderful rank and station in the larger nation to the south. Most of these have a healthy experience of driving in various parts of the U.S. will agree that the driving manners and practices are far ahead of the Canadian. Perhaps this is because it is usually much tougher than ours, their penalties more severe. And their traffic being dense, the drivers are better drilled and trained.

Another odd and arrogant driving by cars bearing American license plates is due to a little quirk in the mind of the homeand home for a holiday might be worth some statistical study by the psychs.

In my favorite village, one of these migrants a little abashed and odd. Now he was old and with a lovely temperament, endowed the prodigal son out in front of the general store.

"Hello!" he cried, shaking hands heartily. "I haven't seen you around lately. Been away?"

They say Bill drove a lot slower for the balance of the week.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE CHARACTER OF A TREE

What a strange and dreary world this would be without its trees! Shade for man and beast, but, more than this, trees create beauty. Who would not rather live in a cottage than a mansion? Will one of our forests gone, the life and living of a community be somewhat like living upon the desert. The Creator knew what He was doing in the case of our forests, but man has been greedy and thoughtless in the way he has cut down trees for mere gain.

I was never so inspired and humbled as I was at first looked upon the great trees of California, the proud and majestic redwoods. I felt very humble at their base and I thought of the centuries that some of them had been growing. They have served man well. But it takes a long time to grow such a tree.

I write this Talk in my Nova Scotia island retreat, surrounded by beautiful pines, hemlocks, birch and white spruce. Each tree is a silent friend. Each has character. Through the light spaces the morning sun edges its brilliant beauty, and at night-fall shadows creep in. Here is my soft velvet blanket had been drawn across ferial fields. Then I sit. I meditate and with that every tree had a voice.

There are no more beautiful trees than those graceful elms in the Bay of Quinte region. Standing alone or grouped out their arms offer like a welcome. It's as though they were inviting arms to help every visitor and every home owner in the place. In my summer home located tree is a blessing.

Trees breathe. They have a circulation system like that of man. In man, and the sap of the tree people live. It is the blood of leaf life. In the autumn a most beautiful picture is shown in a dead leaf, with its fine leaf formation. Few things in nature are more beautiful. Every human being should plant at least one tree in his lifetime.

CBS Has Accepted Rival RCA Plans For Color TV

NEW YORK (AP) — The long fight over color television was formally ended Thursday as Columbia Broadcasting System said it would go along with the proposed new compatible system.

CBS said it would start sending out some color programs to affiliated stations on an experimental basis Sept. 15 under standards proposed to the Federal Communications Commission by an industry-wide group known as the National Television System Committee. Regular color telecasts for the public must await FCC action on the new system.

In effect CBS joined hands with its arch rival in color TV, Radio Corporation of America, which petitioned the FCC a month ago to approve the compatible standards developed by the NTSC. With this system, color telecasts can be received in black and white on present-type sets, as well as in color on color sets.

With the old CBS system, color telecasts could not be received in any form on present-type sets without major modification.

Most set manufacturers have either piled models or complete production plans for color sets, but the first such sets are not expected to appear on even a limited basis until the fall of 1954 and then at prices several times those of present sets.

REPORT RED

South Korean intelligence sources said they did not know whether Kim had any close connection with Beria. There were still other reports that Kim Il Sung had been driven the U.S. North Korea and would not be at Panmunjom to sign a truce armistice, if one is arranged.

The first report, however, seemed doubtful because Gen. Mark W. Clark's headquarters in Tokyo has had signed truce communications bearing the name of Kim Il Sung in recent weeks.

If Kim does not go to Panmunjom to sign the truce document that would mean that the Chinese counterpart, Gen. Peng Teh-Huai, would not be expected to be there.

The truce must be signed by the opposing commanders—Kim and Peng for the Reds and Clark for the Allies.

Kim a Mystery

Kim's whole history is something of a mystery. Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said at the start of the Korean war that Kim's real name is Kim Song Ju and that he is a nephew of Kim Il Sung, a Korean guerrilla leader who made life miserable for the Japanese when they controlled Korea. MacArthur's headquarters gave Kim's age as 42.

South Korean reports say he is the son of a North Korean tenant farmer and is now 38. They say he went to Russia as a child and was decorated by Joseph Stalin during the siege of Leningrad.

After the Second World War, the South Koreans say, Kim returned to Manchuria and led Communist guerrilla bands. The Koreans say he showed up in 1950 at Pyongyang, the North Korean capital.

The man whose name he now bears would be 80 years old if he is still alive. His fate is not known to the South Koreans.

U.S. Food for Hungry Refugees

The first cargo of food for East Germany to be shipped by the Mutual Security agency is loaded aboard the freighter American Inventor. The American Inventor, voyaging to Hamburg, Germany, is carrying dried milk, flour, beans and part of the $15,000,000 worth of food offered by the U.S. government for relief of hunger in the East Zone of Germany. — Central Press Canadian.

CANNOT ALLOW

2. ". . . That the United States will join with the Republic of Korea in setting a time limit to the political conference."

Yet Rhee said, "the so-far uncontradicted report from Panmunjom directly states that this will not be done . . . This cannot be allowed to happen."

Last month Rhee threatened to wreck an armistice when he ordered the release of some 27,000 anti-Communist North Korean war prisoners.

Shortly before issuing his bitter statement, Rhee met for the third time in three days with U. S. Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs. ROK Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai said the session was "very brief and not important. We only confirmed the cables which were exchanged, some of which have been reported."

Allied and Red liaison officers met in a quickly-called conference. These officers have the job, among other things, of setting the meeting time for the full truce teams.

This conference opened an hour after a two-hour special staff officers meeting. This group is understood to be mapping plans for exchanging almost 100,000 war prisoners.

The chief Swedish representative to the truce supervisory commission said he hoped his group would be able to start work within a week.

Maj. Gen. Sven Grafstrom said advance parties of Swiss and Swedish commission members flying to Korea from Japan Thursday to discuss matters of supply and communications. He said they planned to return to Japan before an armistice is signed.

The commission has the responsibility of policing a truce. It will include representatives of Poland and Czechoslovakia in addition to Sweden and Switzerland.

FRANKFORD

Three Accidents In Frankford

FRANKFORD—Mr. Bert Carney received a bad cut on his head last Saturday while engaged in transferring thousand pound tubes of steel from a freight car at the C.N.R. station to the Bata Shoe Co. steel stock. During the process of unloading the tubes some material in the stock room was dislodged and struck Mr. Carter on the head. He was rushed to Dr. Beach's office by Wilbur Blair of the steel stock staff and required six stitches to close the wound.

Mr. Jonah Conley, truck driver employed by the Bata Shoe Company, received a severe gash to his right hand and chest abrasions when he slipped between his truck and the loading platform at the Frankford plant of the Bata Shoe Company. He was rushed to the doctor and received seventeen stitches in a cut extending from the base of his right hand to the tip of the little finger. A cast was applied and Jonah is still on the sick list.

Kenneth Lawrence, popular citizen of Frankford, ended his holidays on Saturday by getting into a fight with his power saw. Needless to say Ken came out best; the report has it that Ken has become quite adept at woodworking as a hobby, and Saturday he attached the dado head to his table saw. During the operation the dado blades caught in a knot, the board jumped and Ken's left hand was the victim with three fingers being badly gashed, one of which received a severed tendon.

Bacteria Peril--Cream Fillings, Sandwiches Need Special Care

Editor's note:—The food editor of the New York Times Jane Owen, has written some common sense suggestions on proper food storage, particularly in warm sultry weather such as we are experiencing at present.

By JUNE OWEN

Food poisoning such as that which struck more than 100 children at the Queen Parkway Junior Centre Day Camp last Friday is a threat, especially in summer, to families as well as institutions. For advice on how to avoid unfortunate occurrences of this nature, we consulted the Department of Health and other authorities on proper food storage.

Cream filling in pastry, cakes and pies is one of the worst offenders in food poisoning. Another source of trouble is what the Health Department labels as comminuted protein foods—chopped meats, deviled ham, corned beef hash and salads and sandwich spreads of fish, meat, poultry or eggs. Other dishes that may prove troublesome include sliced meats, ham, soft custard, chicken broth and potato salad.

One of the unfortunate aspects of food poisoning is that it is not possible to detect the presence of spoilage organisms either by the taste, smell feel or appearance of a dish.

The general rule that hot foods should be kept hot and cold foods cold is not exact enough to answer all the questions that confront the home cook in connection with proper food storage. Nor does the Department's regulation that all perishable foods must be refrigerated at refrigerated exact enough, since optimum temperatures for storage vary from food to food.

Early Refrigeration Urged

Perhaps the most important rule to remember is that foods should be refrigerated either immediately after cooking or after cooling from cooker heat for not half an hour at room temperature. The longer perishable foods that hot foods soured if they were not cooled before refrigeration is prevented entirely. Authorities now say that the sooner cooked dishes go into the refrigerator the better. Bacterial multiplication and chances of food poisoning are increased when food, particularly cooked food, is allowed to remain for any length of time at room temperature.

Mrs. Ruth P. Cass-Kmellos, The New York Times food economist, must, suggested that if cooked foods do not go directly into the refrigerator the cooling can be hastened by placing the cooking pot in a bowl of ice water. Mixtures like salads of protein foods will cool more quickly if they are transferred from heavy crockery bowl to aluminum pans, stirred often while cooling and stored in the same utensil.

When foods are prepared in large quantities, as for parties or institutional use, it is important to divide the mixture into several portions so that the cold air may penetrate more rapidly.

Sandwich fillings and salads of meat, fish, poultry, or eggs are particularly troublesome because the mixture in them allows spoilage organisms to develop quickly than in dry goods. It is essential that perishables be placed in the refrigerator immediately and remain there until serving time. Also, should the ingredients that are to go into sandwiches or salads be allowed to remain at room temperature for any considerable length of time before the dish is prepared. Danger is increased.

That picnic standby, the sandwich, can be a source of danger. After preparation, the sandwiches should not be allowed to remain at temperatures higher than 50 degrees F. for more than four hours. The filling can be a breeding ground for bacteria and so, too, can the bread, especially if it is moistened.

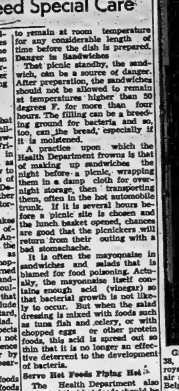
A practice upon which the Health Department frowns is that of making up sandwiches the night before a picnic, wrapping them in a damp cloth for overnight storage, then transporting them, often in the hot automobile trunk. If it is several hours before a picnic site is chosen and the lunch basket opened, chances are good that the picnickers will return from their outing with a case of poisoning.

It is often the mayonnaise in sandwiches and salads that is blamed for food poisoning. Actually, the mayonnaise itself contains enough acid (vinegar) so that bacterial growth is not likely to occur. But when the salad dressing is mixed with foods such as tuna fish and celery, or with eggs or other protein foods, this acid is spread out so much that it is no longer an effective deterrent to the development of bacteria.

Serve Hot Foods Piping Hot

The Health Department also suggested that hot foods should be served piping hot, not lukewarm. It is not wise practice to allow cooked foods to sit around at room temperature for an hour or more.

Mothers are advised to use proper precautions in storing the formulas and milk of their bottle babies. Aware that infants should not drink cold milk, many mothers make the mistake of not refrigerating the food at all. If they are going visiting or to the park, they may wrap the lukewarm bottle of milk in a towel or allow it to remain in the baby carriage for several hours and often feed it to the baby. Under such conditions spoilage organisms feel likely develop. The milk should be kept in the refrigerator; it should be removed only to allow the stand at room temperature only long enough to take off the cap.



Stuffing or dressing for poultry is another food potentially dangerous if it is improperly kept. The stuffing should not be held at temperatures above 50 degrees F. for longer than four hours. Stuffed birds never should be held out of refrigeration for any appreciable length of time. Poultry stuffing are excellent bacterial culture medium. They should be kept at temperatures below 50 degrees F. at all times. And left-over soups and soup stocks also belong in the refrigerator.

SEIZE SWEEP TICKETS

MONTREAL (CP) — Provincial police raided a small printing plant in suburban Ville Emard on Quebec Thursday and seized 70,000 alleged bogus sweepstake tickets. No arrests were made.

Sgt. Wilfrid Besette, in charge of the raiding party, said: "We have reason to believe this was a phony sweepstake, which affected hundreds of persons in the province since last November."

The goodie first appeared as a separate breed of dog in the 17th century.

ARMS ALL-CANADA ROUTE

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government has urged that construction of the all-Canada route from Alberta to Eastern Canada be started without delay.

The government's department of mines, in a brief made public here Thursday, said it told the Alberta government Tuesday that Ontario's market for fuels has increased so much that it is necessary to avoid a sure and economic source for natural gas.

The province appealed for an all-Canada route by which service could be given to centres at the Lakehead and other Northern Ontario points. It would not benefit should the line be constructed south of the Great Lakes.

Mrs. Homan closed with a few remarks on the life of a farmer.

After the meeting closed, refreshments were served by the hostess and assistants.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By HEATHER FARFAX.

Perhaps Her Marriage Has Been Asocia Than She Realizes

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Ten years ago, my parents pick ed out a husband for me and I married him because I was afraid to go against their wishes. Although we have been married well over nine years, and have a nice child, 8-years old, I have never been in love, never had any pleasure, never had any real life. All I do is stay home and slave for my husband and child.

I would like to be happy, but how can I be, living like this?

Mrs. R.S.

Dear Mrs. R.S.:

Of course you can't be happy if you are in a loveless marriage, and in addition, living such a narrow, monotonous life. But are you quite sure it is really necessary? May not your bitter resentment against having been forced to marry this man be blocking any feeling you might otherwise perhaps develop for him? Does he treat you so badly that you couldn't possibly love him and be happy with him under any circumstances? If it entirely his fault that you have no social life? Naturally, I have no way of knowing the answer to these questions may be, since you give me no details. I merely ask them for the sake of getting you to give them some real honest thought.

It might help you to see your marriage as it really is if you took a piece of paper and made two lists, one of the good things about your marriage and the other of the things that are not so good. Then study the two lists carefully and see which of the two is longer and which seems to be the most important things on it. By the time you have done this, you may find yourself looking at your marriage from a new point of view, and admitting that it really does have some assets. Then, perhaps, you'll be able to go at the problem in such a way that by concentrating on the good things, and paying as little attention as possible to the others, you'll gradually become happier, realizing that just because your marriage started out as a handicap, it needn't be a failure.

Her Boy Friend Is of Different Faith - Mother Objects

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 16, and recently met a fellow I like very much and whom I would like to have for a friend.

The trouble is, that he is not of my family's faith, and so my mother decided to put a boring dates with him, even though she admits he is a very nice boy.

Do you think I should give him up because of my mother?

Carol T.

Dear Carol:

This is a question that is asked me by a great many teenagers, and one that I find very hard to answer. Naturally, I would not wish to advise young people to disregard their parents' wishes. At the same time, I feel it a great mistake for anyone to rule out opportunities for making friends who just happen to hold beliefs other than their own.

It makes for a very narrow life indeed for one to confine his friendships solely to those who think just as he does. Moreover, how are we ever to have peace in the world if we aren't understanding and tolerant enough to believe that everyone has a right to think as they please? After all, wasn't America founded on that very principle.

I am always deeply sorry to hear of parents who try to deprive their sons and daughters of the privilege of wide and varied friendships. I hope your mother will change her attitude and realize how important it is that young people in this unhappy modern world to grow up with an appreciation of every person of fine character, whatever his creed may be.

Readers' Friday Column

By Mary Moore

Question:

. . . by the way I wrote to you that my first letter was cut off a column, because of lack of space . . . It seemed inconsiderate of me to expect you to answer me unless I paid you to receive it. But see what I can do . . . since we have been watching our weight I have purchased any type of fat—oil, margarine, butter lard . . . I also skim all fat off soups and gravy drippings. Here is a dish I sometimes make. . . . I prefer roasts; they I can put more meat because I find it is more tender and moist, (my husband dislikes crispy crusts on meats and poultry) to put some water in the roast pan to cook it.

Redneer's Beef and Gravy

(Contributed by Rose)

Three or four lbs. top sirloin, 2-cup water, 2 medium onions, 2 cloves garlic, salt and pepper. Wash beef thoroughly and place in roasting pan, without wiping. Add water, onions and garlic. Cover. Place in cold oven. Turn on bottom burner only at 300 deg. Fahr. This usually takes 3 to 4 hours, but should be tested for desired tenderness. One-half hour before it is done season with salt and pepper. When done, remove from oven, cool, save drippings and place meat and drippings with onions in refrigerator over night. Next day skim off all the fat from the drippings. This has jelled. Place this jelly with the onions from the roast in a saucepan on top of double boiler. Heat slowly. Meanwhile dissolve potato flour (2 teaspoons) in 1/4-cup cold water; Slowly add this to the hot liquid in saucepan stirring until thick. Potato flour cooks quicker than cornstarch or wheat flour (1 teaspoon potato flour equals 2 tablespoons wheat flour.) Cut cold beef in thin slices across the grain, trimming off all fat. These can be cubed or cut in strips and added to the gravy which should simmer. Serve hot on mashed potatoes. I do my potatoes in a pressure cooker whole with skins on and mash them on the plate without removing skins or adding any kind of grease. Other vegetables I serve separately on the plate. Fresh vegetables of tasting and fresh fruit for dessert. We do not eat bread with potatoes—Rose.

Answer:

I am answering your letter ahead of some that arrived before it did. The information you asked for in a letter received from Mr. Adlev was passed on to the readers who wrote for recipes for bread for their children who have allergies. I mailed it to them at once. It was perfect; I am very grateful to Mr. Adler for his generosity in sending me a recipe in order to get an answer. You surely are feeling—although I think your loss for reducer's beef and gravy is excellent and am glad you did send it along. Please let me know if I can help you at any time and thank you for your part in finding the wheatless loaf. Recipe for it appeared in this column July 3rd.

Question:

Thank you very much for the Almond Bar recipe. The one I lost had no topping but I will try this one. I wonder if you have recipes for Cornflake pudding and Cocoanut drop cookies.—Mrs. Blanche St.

Answer:

Since you wrote the above letter I have mailed you a recipe from a reader that fits your description perfectly for Almond Bars,—with no topping this time.

Cornflake Pudding

Four cups cornflakes, 4 cups milk, 2 eggs, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 light corn syrup, 1-4 cup sugar, 1-4 teaspoon sugar, 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 2 tablespoon butter. Stir all together. Turn into buttered baking dish. Dot with butter. Place the dish in a shallow pan containing one inch of water and put in oven of 350 deg. Fahr. and bake 3-4 to 1 hour or until set.

Cocoanut Drop Cookies

Two egg whites, 1 cup sugar, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, 2 1-2 cups moist shredded cocoanut (or 1 cup shredded cocoanut and corn flakes), 1-3 cup chopped nuts (best egg whites stiff and gradually add sugar while beating. Fold in remaining ingredients with a spoon. Drop by teaspoon onto greased or oiled cookies sheet. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. until delicately browned.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMESON

Red Lips And Snow White Teeth

She goes to the dentist only when the pain becomes unbearable

Powder pads and lipsticks have a high rating in a girl's beautifying equipment. If she would stop to think what life would be without them she would shiver and shake. But the bombe toothbrush is vastly more important. If her teeth are not in perfect form, the dull finish to her complexion and the red-tally timing on her lips will have little meaning.

Mouth hygiene is essential from the standpoint of health. Decayed or sensitive teeth that should have attention interfere with the mastication of food which, in turn, may upset the digestive system. Infection of the teeth and gums can be carried to other parts of the body and have been known to cause serious troubles.

Your reporter seeks the attention of the young lady who flings away her folding money on becoming lily goods, who adds considerably to the cash register of her favorite beauty shop, but who fails to have that semi-yearly check-up by her dentist because she can't bear to think of the bill he will send in. No dental services for her unless she has pain that she cannot endure.

By having an examination every six months small cavities are discovered early and she will suffer less pain and expense on having them treated immediately than if she waits until cavities are larger. There is always a possibility that tartar is present. This is a hard substance that forms under the gums at the roots of the teeth, often causing inflamation and bleeding and, in the course of time, receding gums. These dental bacteries are removed by the brush; only the dentist's instruments can scrape them away.

The use of the brush may not prevent decay but it is the only means we have against it. Certainly clean teeth are more likely to keep in good condition that those that are neglected. Food particles remaining in the mouth can change its character in a few hours, forming chemicals that may have a deplorable effect upon the enamel.

Have a thorough grooming "when you use the brush and don't hurry. Treat the under and inner surfaces, and give the biting surfaces a good going over. If food clings between the teeth, use dental floss, being careful not to saw into the flesh.

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

IVANHOE—The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. John Wallace on Thursday afternoon.

The meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Barton Haggerty, who read a poem on Africa.

The Scripture and meditation were read by Mrs. W. H. V. Walker. "Education in Africa" was given by Mrs. Jerry Thompson.

An interesting talk on the boy word "Price" was given by Rev. W. H. V. Walker, who said: "Peace must have its foundations in right thinking, right living and right doing. We must have Jesus, the Prince of Peace in us. . . . Christ's mission on earth was to bring peace and good will, between man and God, and between nations. Strangely enough, in both World Wars, the guns, tanks and bombers were stilled on the birthday of the Prince of Peace.

"What our world needs is peace makers blessed—not the peace makers for they shall be called the Sons of God."

A Harvard professor made this statement, "In the last 2,000 years, the world had been engaged in war eight-tenths of that period of time.

"The root of war cannot be overcome by force—Christ is the only Prince of Peace—peace is the reward of those who diligently seek after it."

Two readings, "Learn to Smile," and "A Little Old Woman" were given by Mrs. John Wallace.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

MARSH HILL W.M.S.

Marsh Hill W.M.S. met for their July meeting at the home of Mrs. B. R. Searles, Oak Lake, with 13 members and one visitor present.

Miss Mae Currie, president, opened the meeting with a meditation, "In the Imitation of Christ," followed by silent prayer for the missionary for prayer. Miss Della Cooke.

Miss Currie gave some suggestions from the workshop which was held recently at Foxboro.

Mrs. Fred Campbell, Christian Citizenship secretary, gave a reading on "Temperance, "Wolf in Sheep's Clothing."

Mrs. Searles, Stewardship secretary, assisted by Mrs. Barton Slade, gave a reading on "Money Raising for the Church".

Mrs. Howard Detlor read the Scripture reading from Ephesians 2:19-22.

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker, Mrs. Clifford Lansing, or Stirling, was introduced and gave a most interesting topic on the subject, "Building". "We are all builders and God the architect has made the plans, but are our hands too full to work God's plan? How are you building?"

Several members expressed their appreciation to Mrs. Lansing for her fine topic.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. BECKMAN

Welcome . . . And Farewell

Going visiting this summer? Here's a perfect formula for a successful visit:

"Welcome ever smiles,
And Farewell goes out sighing."
(Shakespeare: "Tolius and Cressida")

Straightforwardness At out Sharing Expenses

Dear Mrs. Beckman:

A very dear and life-long friend of mine, a widow, invited me last March to spend two weeks (dates specified) with her this summer at her home in the country. I accepted, most happily. Now, she has just written me to ask me to extend my visit, into the middle of September, which is a particularly lovely time in the place where her summer home is. I would dearly love to accept this invitation, but since I've never spent more than two weeks as her guest, I do feel that it might be somewhat of a financial strain on her budget. I'd love to be with her, I can afford the fare to her by my way, and I'm tempted to ask her directly, and as graciously as possible, if she would let me. Do you think I might yield to the temptation, or what do you advise?

Dorothy S.

Today, and very fortunately I think, a "new straight-forwardness" is developing to meet just this kind of situation that may arise between friends, particularly two friends who, like you and your friend, are so devoted have such a long-time friendship. This makes sense, is practical, smoothes the way. Your friend wants you with her for a longer visit, you would be delighted to stay for the longer visit. The only obstacle to all this enjoyment is that 'ol' debil budget" . . . so why not talk it over, high-heartedly, no solemnity about it. "I'd love to come, Betty dear, and I'd love to stay as long as you say . . . but please let's have 'im sharing the household costs and the housekeeping budget. You say 'Yes, ma 'am' to my suggestion, and I'll say 'Yes, ma'am' to your invitation. How's about it?"

How About Shaking Hands At This Casual Meeting!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We were married the last of June, and have just recently returned from our wedding trip. Last evening, at a bus stop, we met two acquaintances of mine, a married couple much older than myself. My husband graciously acknowledged the introduction, but I was quite surprised that he didn't shake hands with either the husband or the wife. He insists that it was proper for him to wait for them to offer to shake hands with him, as they were the older. So now that we will know what is proper when this kind of situation arises in future, please set us straight as to what to do.

B.B.

Your husband was absolutely correct not to offer to shake hands with the wife, because it is the woman's privilege to offer to shake hands first, and the man being introduced waits for this gesture. Since customarily two men being introduced shake hands, your husband needn't have hesitated about offering to shake hands with the other man, but it wasn't improper for him to wait, or perhaps to decide it was not convenient in this busy public place.

Eight Thousand Attend Queen's Garden Party

LONDON (CP)—The lawns of Buckingham Palace were crowded with more than 8,000 guests Thursday—some 200 Canadians among them—as the Queen held the third and last Royal garden party of the Coronation summer.

Unlike the last one when it poured, the sky was cloudy but there was no rain.

The Queen wore an orchid pink duster coat over a dress of the same shade with matching hat. Princess Margaret was there too, charming in a red print dress with a white straw hat, along with the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester and other royalty.

None of the Canadians was presented to the Queen. Among those attending were prominent Canadian lawyer L. W. Brockington, Canadian-born industrialist Garfield Weston and his wife, and Mr. Justice A. J. Lebel of the Ontario Supreme Court and his wife.

Truce is Coming But Danger Stays Pearson Asserts

LISTOWEL (CP) — A Korean truce can be expected within a few days, External Affairs Minister Pearson said Thursday.

Many difficulties lie ahead on the international scene, Mr. Pearson said before leaving for New York and a United Nations meeting.

"Negotiations for a peace settlement are likely to be no easier than the truce discussions."

Regarding the apparent change for the better recently in Russian policy toward the West, Mr. Pearson said "these cold - blooded factual people realize they had better review their tactics." He said he believes the policy change is aimed at making the free world believe danger has been removed.

"We must be careful that we don't fall victims to accepting what looks like an olive branch and then turns out to be something else."

Two Sawmills Burned in B.C.

VICTORIA (CP)—Two sawmills were destroyed by roaring flames in British Columbia Thursday and total damage was estimated at more than $800,000.

At Leechtown, 30 miles west of here, preliminary estimates placed damage at more than $500,000. Besides the mill, which produced 25,000 board feet of lumber each eight-hour shift, 13 railway cars and nearly 1,000,000 feet of cut timber were burned.

Meanwhile, flames clearly visible in South Vancouver destroyed a sawmill and lumber piles at Mitchell Island in the Fraser river. Loss was estimated at $125,000.

Say Churchill Disappointed With Conference

LONDON (AP)—The Marquess of Salisbury, acting foreign secretary, gave Prime Minister Churchill Thursday night a first-hand account of the Washington foreign ministers' conference.

The ailing, 78-year-old British leader has been reported "disappointed" at the outcome of the talks.

Salisbury dined with Churchill. It was the first time the two men had met since the acting foreign secretary returned from Washington.

Salisbury came under fire from labor and some government legislators during a two-day foreign affairs debate in the House of Commons which ended Wednesday. They criticized him because they claimed he did not press Churchill's arguments for an early top-level parley of the Big Four powers with sufficient vigor.

URGE IMPORT LIMIT

The letters said a large number of employees in the textile industry now are working part-time.

WOMEN BETTER DRIVERS

TORONTO (CP)—Reginald Scotland, president of the Association of Toronto Driving Schools, says there would be fewer traffic accidents if men drove as smoothly as women. He said four times as many women as men are taking driving lessons from the more than 200 Toronto-area driving schools.

Reds in Malaya Having Hard Time Feeding Selves

By WARREN WHITE

SINGAPORE (Reuters) —Malaya's Communist jungle terrorists have received orders temporarily to concentrate on growing food in order to defeat what they call the British "starve to death" policy.

This was revealed by an instruction, to communist terrorists in Johore state, but appears the water from Singapore island.

The document disclosed that in the last 12 months the Communist secretariat had admitted that plans for terrorism against British rubber planters, Malay and Chinese rubber tappers and others had been shelved because of hunger and starvation.

The starvation plan has been achieved mainly by cutting terrorist liaison with isolated Chinese villages occupied by "squatters" on the jungle fringes. Until the authorities started protecting the squatters, the terrorists had taken all their food requirements from the unhappy villagers at gun-point.

Under the Falls

There soon may be almost as much water flowing under the city of Niagara Falls, Ont., as over the famous precipice itself. This is one of the tunnels through which the water will flow. Concrete rings will be poured in each of the twin tunnels, associated with Ontario Hydro's Sir Adam Beck-Niagara generating station No. 2. The operation, one of the biggest in the hydro company's post-war expansion, is expected to produce 400,000 H. P. power in 1954. — (CP Photo.)

$304,000,000 Project

Almost as Much Water Will Flow Under City of Niagara Falls as Over Cataract

By HARRY KINGDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NIAGARA FALLS (CP)—There may soon be almost as much water flowing under this city as over Niagara Falls.

The unrelenting demand for electric power will send 40,000 cubic feet of water a second rushing along beneath the city's main business section—without flooding a single cellar.

The water will flow in two monster tunnels as deep as 330 feet below the ground. It will burst to the surface and foam through the whirling blades of a new power plant now being rushed to completion at Queenston.

Mighty Project

The operation, one of the biggest in Ontario Hydro's post-war expansion, is expected to produce 400,000 horsepower of electricity in 1954. By 1958, a total of 1,200,000 horsepower will be produced after an estimated expenditure of $304,000,000.

This capacity will be increased by a pumped-storage scheme and the addition of four more generators.

Canada and the United States have agreed by treaty on the use of Niagara water. At times when tourists are viewing the cataract 100,000 cubic feet of water a second will be allowed to flow over the falls. At other times only 30,000 cubic feet a second will be "wasted," the remainder being used to generate power. The tunnels can carry 40,000 cubic feet a second.

More than 300 feet below Niagara Falls streets today, men and machines are working. Five shafts sunk along the route of the twin tunnels carry men and materials to a cross-cut which supplies both tunnels.

16-Month Job

Riding down shaft No. 1 in a construction elevator big enough to hold a truck, it is easy to believe that it took 10 months just to sink the shaft. Sunlight from the surface gradually fades to a pale gleam on the concrete-lined walls until it is suddenly replaced by the electric glare of the construction area.

Activity underground looks like any other construction project until you notice the vast arch of rock overhead and the constant roar of air rushing in through great steel pipes. A smell of rock dust, hot oil and sometimes acrid-sweet blasting smoke fills the nostrils.

Fifteen-ton trucks snort back and forth dumping rock from the work face, power shovels scoop and grind, helmeted workmen drill, shovel, saw and hammer, and now and then, the roar of blasting thuds against the eardrums.

At the work face, a dozen drillers, lined up on a big semi-circular scaffold, bore powder holes into the rock. Then the scaffold is moved back, blasters move in and set charges. It is a tricky and skilled business to control the charges to produce a hole the required 41 feet wide.

Carried to Shaft

Power scoops and trucks carry the blasted rock back to the shaft to be hauled to the surface and off to the disposal area. With the debris cleared, the drilling scaffold is moved forward again and the process repeated.

A total of 10,000,000 tons of rock will have been removed when the tunnels are completed. Some 43,330 tons of structural steel will have been used to support the roof.

The upper half of each tunnel is cleared first. Then the lower half is scooped out and the way is open for concrete workers to pour the three-foot-thick walls. This reduces the 51-foot rough diameter to 45 feet—higher than a three-storey building.

Holes are drilled from the surface through the tunnel roofs and concrete pumped down through six-inch pipes to hoppers which distribute it to the jobs. First poured is the lower section of the tunnel—wider than many roads.

Huge circular forms sometimes 80 feet long are used to pour the upper walls. Three pipes send concrete shooting around the form, filling the space between it and the rock walls and enclosing the steel supporting beams.

Tunnel and Canal

When the tunnels are completed, the water will race 2½ miles under the city and surge to the surface with 2¾ miles still to go to the powerhouse. Workmen now are drilling and blasting an open-cut canal in the solid rock with an average depth of 70 feet and a width of 200 feet.

At the same time, others are busy on the new Sir Adam Beck-Niagara generating station No. 2, beside the present No. 1 near Queenston. Twelve units are planned and an additional four may be added later.

Steel tubes, 19 feet in diameter, now are being run to the cliff from the gorge like fat brown worms clinging to the reddish rock.

The tubes—known as penstocks—will carry the water down the 292-foot drop to drive the 12 generators which will be installed by 1956. More than 2,250,000 tons of rock were blasted from the face of the cliff at this site.

Below the cliff, the steel and concrete power house is nearly completed at one end. At the other, foundation workers are busy 40 feet above the water of the rushing river, protected by a coffer-dam of earth, rock and timber.

Money-Saving Models

Hydro commission engineers estimate they saved more than $5,000,000 through the use of models to iron out problems before they tackled the job.

The largest model—85 feet long and 25 feet wide—duplicated five miles of the river from the tip of Grand Island to the Rainbow Bridge below the falls. Using this and others, engineers designed the intake structure to draw in a 15,000,000 gallons of water a minute with as little turbulence as possible.

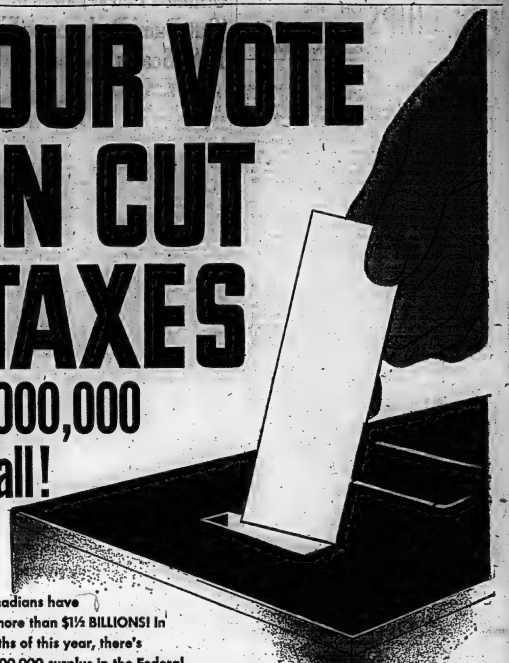
They also worked out a system of remedial works that will send an even flow of water over all parts of the Horseshoe Falls crest even in low water. Now, more than half the water drops from a cut-away section near the middle of the falls without much display.

The projected new storage basin will hold 4,000,000,000 gallons of water. Pumps will fill the basin when demand for power is light; when power is needed at peak periods, the water will flow out, running the pumps in reverse as generators.

PILGRIMS CHEER POPE

Rome (Reuters)—Five thousand pilgrims cheered Pope Pius XII in Saint Peter's basilica at a general audience in the Vatican before the 77-year-old pontiff goes to his summer residence, Castel Gandolfo, about 18 miles southeast of Rome.

VERDI FESTIVAL



STRATFORD (CP)—The Shakespearian Festival, which has brought great names in the theatrical world to this city within the last week, brought the governor-general of Canada in his first official visit to the city of Stratford Tuesday.

DRIVERS NO BETTER

MONTREAL (CP) — Highways are better and cars are faster, police officials say, but drivers are no better than they were a decade or more ago and have not become adjusted to changed driving conditions. Police have arrested hundreds of speeders in their biggest crack-down in the history of the automobile.

ONE FOR THE BOOK!

You had to see it to believe it. It was one of those things you rarely read about and seldom see. In fact we doubt if "The Lip" himself would have pulled such daring strategy. It was a terrific gamble even with one out—but it paid off in victory.

Those of you who saw the muscle-tight battle between Frankford and the Glen Ray juniors at the CNR park last night know whereof we speak. Even minus the dramatic-plus climax it was one of the best jamis we have seen in softball circles this season — and the gods of softball know they haven't been too numerous.

But this one with Bill Spafford's breath-taking strategy and the fleet feet of one Johnny Batchelor is one for the book. In fact half the crowd had not realized what had happened—if from an sudden and unlooked for—before the Glens trotted off the field the victors and a gallant Frankford squad was forced to admit defeat.

It happened thisaway.

Previous to the Merriwellian finish the game had been one of those slip-and-inch affairs with outstanding batting and defensive gems climaxed with the Glens resting back in the bottom of the ninth to overcome a two-run deficit and tie the score. That, itself, was enough to send the Glen supporters into the seventh heaven and the Frankford fans out of reason. The crowd enough during the game to send war prices up another nickel, back into their shells.

Came the overtime and Master Dougie Radnar sent the village crew down in arithmetical order. Batchelor drew a walk and Gerry Geyer's smart single sent him scooting third. Peter Greene who had been the thorn in the side of the Frankford team all evening, came to bat, and the village master-minds figured that the best thing to do was to hand the dunky catcher a base pass. Incidentally two men were out.

Bill Rankin, Frankford hurler, lobbed a wide one at this catcher and the receiver lobbed it back. The crowd waited for the roasting lobsters, then suddenly, out of a blue sky, Batchelor streaked for the plate. The crowd was dumb-founded. So was the Frankford team. They were caught with their slips showing and everything down, including the window blinds. Batchelor made a horrid throw to the plate but Umpire Timmy Williams made the hands-down sign, Batchelor was safe and the ball game was over.

The Glens trek back to Frankford tonight and if the third game is necessary the teams will play here on Monday evening. The winners meet Point Anne for the city title.

READY FOR ACTION!

Bryson Reid and Coach "Red" Carson of the Regent Junior baseball squad are not letting the alfalfa sprout between their toes. The pair are definitely going into the Ontario Baseball Association playdowns, the first Belleville squad to represent the city in baseball, that is, since the balmy days of the Edwards Juniors.

Reid and Carson have been rounding up players of junior calibre and while they may not prove major leaguers in their cruise down the playdown trail, they should make some of the teams sit up and take notice.

"Red" informed this department last night that he will have a hurling staff of five, one a southpaw, ready for mound duty in the playdowns. The tossers are: Bill Strahan, Bill Drummond, an RCAF chucker named Mead, a righthander; Billy Greer, Wellington southpaw, and Johnny "Hamster" Mowatt, former Kelman and now a restaurateur in Wellington. And in case you're interested all certificates have been filed with the OBA and returned okay.

Ted Stephens at present out with a fractured finger, will do the first base chores. Don Hall is the receiver. Gerry Geyer will cavort around second with Davy Jones at short. Johnny Batchelor will hold down the hot corner with Claude Carr patrolling left field. In centre will be Pat Gilmour while Doug Hall and Johnny Casey will be available for the right field spot.

Eddie Wollins, formerly of Oakville, and a catcher in his own right, will assist "Red" with the coaching chores, and Eddie is one of the best with plenty of experience in this field.

The kids have piled up an enviable record in the District Baseball League and in their first time out have done a fine job upholding the baseball banner for the city. They will likely meet Peterborough in the first round playdowns and that should prove a thrilling series. The Peter' kids are said to be a powerful squad with two or three years' team experience under their belts. But they'll know they have been in a ball game before the curtain rises on the last batter.

FLYERS HERE TONIGHT!

Trenton Flyers will be here as guests of the Regent Juniors at the CNR Park when they meet in a postponed game. The kids are riding high near the top of the league and are commanding the respect of all other squads concerned. They meet the Bloomfield team tomorrow night on the same field in their last scheduled game of the season. Picton was scheduled to play but postponed the tilt on account of the appearance of Turk Broda and his gang over there.

MODERN VERSION!

Don't take me out to the ball game,
I'd rather watch it at home.
As for those peanuts and Crackerjack,
The ice box is handy with beer in the back.
I can root—root—root for the home team
With my feet up on a settee.
And it's one—two—three strikes you're OUT
On my old Tee Vee.

DON'T take me out to the ball game,
My Tel Vee brings it in fine.
No straining my eyes like a bleacher chump,
You should see what the batter just said to the ump!
If things look bad for the home team
And they're losing, eighteen' to three.
It's just one—two—get Howdy Doo
On my old Tee Vee.

Grimm's Fairy-Talers Must 'Out-Bum' Dodgers-or Else; Tribe Scalps Yanks 3 in Row

By BEN PELEGAR
Associated Press Sport Writer

It takes a brave team to invade Ebbets Field these days so Milwaukee opens a four-game series in the home of Brooklyn Dodgers tonight.

This is another of those "do or die", clashes that keep popping up all season. The Dodgers feel they've got the Braves on the ropes by now with a 5½-game lead and the season moving rapidly toward the two-thirds mark.

A four-game Brooklyn sweep would write an unhappy ending to the first edition of Charlie Grimm's Milwaukee fairy tale.

Both Brooklyn and the Braves were rained out Thursday so they'll go into tonight's game with a weigo into tonight's game with a weigo day of rest. The Dodgers were supposed to play Chicago and Milwaukee was scheduled at Philadelphia. The rain also cut down St. Louis Cardinals' series with New York Giants. Cincinnati beat Pittsburgh in the only National League game played.

Yanks Swamped 10-2

The big noise in the American League was the collapse of New York Yankees in Cleveland for the third-straight game. This time the world champions looked like real country bumpkins as they were swamped 10-2.

Chicago White Sox muffed their chance to close in on the Yanks when they bowed to Boston 4-3. The White Sox trail by 6½ games.

Detroit's slumbering Tigers popped up with a four-game winning streak, taking a pair from Washington, 9-8 in 10 innings and 5-4. The victories moved the Tigers within half-a-game of the seventh-place St. Louis Browns who lost to Philadelphia 7-4 in 14 innings.

The Yankees tried a couple of their young pitchers against Cleveland and the Indians battered them for 14 hits and 10 runs in the first six innings. Tom Gorman made his first start and lasted into the fifth inning. Art Schallock toiled two and gave up five runs, four of them unearned because of an error by first baseman Dorr Bollweg.

Home runs figured strongly in the Cleveland victory. George Strickland hit one with two on and Al Rosen another with the bases empty in the fifth. Luke Easter drove in two runs with a homer and a single.

At Chicago Hector (Skinny) Brown came back to haunt his old White Sox team mates with a four-hitter for his seventh straight victory. He drove in two runs without a hit in the second inning when he walked three runs. Brown pitched hitless ball from the fourth until Jim Rivera hit a home run in the ninth.

Ray Boone hit a three-run homer in the 10th inning for the Tigers' first-game victory over Washington. Home runs by Jim Delsing and Bob Nieman, and a timely two-run single by Gerry Priddy helped Ted Gray win his fifth game in the nightcap.

The Athletics cashed in on Satch Paige's wild efforts to drive his and three runs in the 14th to win their marathon at St. Louis. Eddie Robinson brought home two or the tallies with a triple.

Harry Perkowski, who has been improving steadily after a bad start, won his eighth game for Cincinnati as he scattered eight hits for the victory. The loss was the 12th for little Murry Dickson.

Waterloo Tigers Muzzle Oshawa In 9th Inning

By the Canadian Press

Hank Biasatti couldn't have planned it better if he'd written the script himself.

Waterloo's playing manager looked wonderful last night as he manipulated pinch-hitters and contributed a key single himself in a two-run ninth inning that gave the Tigers a 5-4 victory over Oshawa Merchants in their Intercounty Baseball League gaspe.

The one-time Toronto Maple first-baseman from Windsor made all his gambles pay off in the rousing battle which lifted Waterloo into a first-place tie with idle Kitchener Panthers.

Trailing 4-3 in the ninth, left-fielder Billy Frick worked Oshawa pitcher Johnny Walter for a walk. The Merchants promptly lifted the tiring southpaw for righthander Tooy DeLaurentis, who turned Bobby Fisher's attempted sacrifice into a force-out. But a poor throw on the double-play attempt sent Fisher to second.

The next man due at the plate was right-fielder Augie Herchenratter, who had driven in two runs with a triple in his previous turn. Biasatti lifted him for pinch-hitter Irish Miskimmons.

The veteran slugger drove in the tying run with a clean single and Biasatti moved him to third with another safety.

A second pinch-hitter, Bobby Scimurr, dribbled an easy grounder to second, but the Merchants again failed to complete the twin killing, permitting the winning run to score.

The entire league will see action tonight with Kitchener entertaining Galt Terriers, Waterloo visiting St. Thomas Elgins, Brantford Red Sox playing at Oshawa and London Majors tackling the Maple Leafs at Guelph.

St. Catharine's Rowing Club Takes Top Spot from Americans in Henley

By CRAIG SWAYZE
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—They broke separately the men from the boys today as 19 crews entered the starter's gun on the third day of the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta.

Nine of the races are finals while eight are heats for Saturday's big senior events. Two are eliminations left over from yesterday's program, not completed because of wind and rough water at the head of the one-mile, 220-yard course.

Largest field on today's card will be the high-school fours when six powerful crews shoot over the mile, collegiate distance. Ronce Hall High is favored to repeat its 1952 victory, but faces strong opposition from Cobalt, Timmins, St. Anthony's, Brockville, Wyndotte, Roosevelt and Merriton.

The St. Catharine Rowing Club will throw crews into almost "all of today's action in an effort to maintain the point lead which they lifted from the New York Athletic Club.

The senior and blue oarsmen piled up the most points yesterday to amass 88 points for first place in the aggregate for the Maple Leaf Trophy, emblematic of regatta supremacy. However, the New Yorkers trail by only 4½ points.

The Hamilton Leander Rost Club placed third after two days of rowing with 30½ points and Toronto Argonaut crews were fourth with 30. Buffalo West Side, last year's regatta champions, lag in fifth place with 15 points, two up on Detroit Rost Club.

St. Catharines' win in the finals of the junior 155-pound eights and the junior 155-pound coxed fours increase their point margin. They also caught a second in the 155-pound single shell to add to their tally.

Hamilton Leanders also clicked twice in finals, but since they were a fours and doubles event, did not gain as much on the leaders.

Freddy Lane stroked his Leander quartet to victory with Ken Williams and Bob West came through in the junior 155-pound doubles.

Williams and West had little trouble against Detroit Rost and Bruce Mickleyan of the NYAC and Ralph Jacque and Jerry Barrett of Argos. The Hamilton crew finished a good length up on the New Yorkers.

Don Guest of Toronto Dons disappointed his followers in the final of the junior singles by trailing a field of four.

Jim MacIntosh of the Detroit Rost Club paddled to a one-length victory in this event with Eddie Lynch of the New York A.C. second and George Gillies of Philadelphia Vesper a length in front of Guest. MacIntosh's win puts him into today's semi-final singles against Eugene Loveless of the NYAC and the Detroit Rost Club's Walter Hoover, winner of Wednesday's high-school singles.

The tricky breeze which forced postponement until today of the junior 155-pound fours, is playing havoc with starting times. For the first time in many years, events were running as much as 45 minutes off schedule as crews had difficulty in lining up starts.

Sport in Brief

NEW YORK (AP) — Arrangements for a Randy Turpin-Bobo Olson middleweight title fight in October are virtually complete, with the exception of the site, Harry Markson, managing director of the International Boxing Club, reported Thursday.

If the fight is held in New York, it will go into Madison Square Garden during the third week in October. If it is held in the San Francisco Civic Palace, the date will be about the same.

Turpin, former middleweight champ, won a European recognition by defeating Charles Humez in London. Olson eliminated Paddy Young to win the American title.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City Blues of the American Association gained some left-handed batting strength Thursday by obtaining in an option deal Harold Keller, catcher, and Cliff Mapes, outfielder, from Beaumont of the International League.

The deal sends Kal Segrist, second baseman, and Bruce McKellar, catcher, to Toronto.

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vedder Canal, 30 miles east of here near the Fraser Valley city of Chilliwack, has been selected as the site for the rowing events at the 1954 British Empire Games here. The games executive committee Wednesday night made the decision to ask the provincial parks and forests minister, R. E. Sommers for permission to use the canal for the events.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Browns Thursday night announced the sale of pitcher Alva (Bobo) Holloman to Toronto of the International League.

Holloman has a record of three victories and seven defeats with the Browns this year, his first in the majors. A 31-year-old right-hander, he came to the Browns from Syracuse in the International league.

Behind the one-hit pitching of Joe Ryan, Houston's Lumber defeated Point Anne 3-1 at the fair grounds last night.

Schriebey was best at the plate with a single and a double. Ryan helped the cause by getting two singles as did Houston's Ray Gee and Yull collected the other hits for the winners.

Point Anne made two double plays to keep the score from being greater.

The batteries for the two teams were: Houston: Ryan and Schriebey; Point Anne: Jeffrey and Horwood.

Glen Roys Edge Frankford in Dramatic Finish

Glen Roy Juniors literally stole the game from the Frankford Juniors in the last inning Saturday. Batchelor stole home in the bottom of the ninth to win it 3-2.

It was one of those picture book finishes that you see once in a lifetime. With Batchelor on first, Goyer singled and moved John to third. Both runners raised the and the intentional pass was on. However, when the catcher was returning the first pitch, Batchelor broke for the plate and came across standing up before Rankin could return the ball to the catcher.

Glen Roy went into the lead in the second frame by one run. Frankford came up with two in the fourth to move into the lead and then "Widge" Adams clouted a home run to push the Merchants out in front by two runs. The Glens, not to be bested in this manner, tallied twice in the eighth to even the score at three apiece. Then came that tremendous run of Jig Batchelor.

Jones and Carr led the Glens at the plate with two singles each. Radnor helped his own cause by slamming out a triple. Goyer, Peter and Batchelor each had two hits. Other hits for the Glens.

Adams and Carrie led the losers at the plate with Adams slamming out two home run and a single while Carrie banged out two singles. Murphy got the other hit, a single for Frankford.

Radnor went all the way on the hill for the Glens getting four on strikes and walking three batters. Rankin pawsted the route for the Merchants allowing four hits and giving away three free passes to first.

The only double play of the game resulted when Carr picked up a ground ball threw it to Batchelor who relayed to Goyer to complete the twin killing.

The game was nip and tuck all the way until coach Bill Spafford's strategy paid off in the tenth.

Jones was one of the best, if not the best, player on any local diamond this year.

Hodges' Batting Comeback Feature Of Brooklyn Dodgers Rise to Glory

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Gil Hodges wore the goat's horns gracefully, but mournfully, last World Series time. Blanked 0-for-21, the Brooklyn first baseman went into the books with the worst batting record in all series history.

"That was only the World Series," they said. "Watch him swap back next spring."

But Gil didn't snap back. In fact, he was hitting a sad .221. The man of muscle with the Dodgers' mighty attack didn't hit a home run in the first 17 games and drove in only one run. This from the fellow who, in 1951, inspired daily tables comparing his pace with Babe Ruth's all-time record of 60 home runs.

At late as Memorial Day eve, Hodges, normally an extra base powerhouse, had only one hit longer than a single, one home run.

Clock Dreesen went along with him, longer than any other manager would have gone, but finally he had to bench Hodges. Brooklyn fans took Gil to their bosoms as a fallen brother.

One look at the daily averages tells the story of Hodges' comeback. Harnessing his power with a new stance, Hodges slowly moved up among the leaders. When he had five runs batted in, Roy Campanella had 46. Now he has 63 and Roy has 64. National League lead. 85 to 84. His home runs threw him into the thick of the race. At .301 his batting average is among the first ten. Hodges talked his way back to health and cure, Thursday.

"I can't express my feeling," Hodges said. "The fans were so good to me. They really treated me wonderfully. I don't think I'll ever enough to even things.

"Another key point? It was right after I was benched. We were on the road and Manager Dreesen and Charley told me to sit out a few games, I didn't blame him. He had been very patient. I still was on the bench when we came back to New York to play the giants in the Polo Grounds.

"We were losing when Charley called me to bat. A pinch hitter came through with a single. That was it. . . . That one hit relaxed me."

Toronto Baking Gal Our Lone Hope In Canadian Tennis Championships

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian tennis championships went into high fifth day of play Thursday with Dorothy's hopes in singles competition reached with Mrs. Hilde Doleschell, Toronto housewife and former Austrian champion, and Mrs. Jean Quigley, homebrew survivor in the men's and women's division. Expert opinion is that she hasn't a hope of gaining a final spot.

The 24-year-old former Austrian champion is matched against Mrs. Thelma Long, Australian champion seeded No. 2 behind Mexico's Mlle. Rita Ramirez in the foreign division. The last of the men's Canadian entries were blasted out on Wednesday and quarter-finals of the women's singles Thursday brought elimination for June Merrill and Louise Brown, both of Toronto, and Pat Macken of Montreal.

Sad Story

In the other semi-final are Miss Mimi Arnold, Canadian champion of St. Petersburg, Fla., the 20-year-old darling of the home crowd. Betting is that the Mexican school teacher will continue into the finals to meet Miss Arnold.

But the topic today centered on Dorothy's quarter-final victory in women's singles between Eddie Moylan, an old pro from Trenton, N.J., and fifty-laured Arkuhl Miyagi, Davis Cup player from Japan. Their feud-spawned match, which saw Moylan spot the 21-year-old Japanese the first and then take the next three, was labelled as the greatest in the Canadian championships in years.

The drama was packed into the 58-game first set which Moylan took, 14-12 after deuce had been used and third 6-4, 6-3. Miyagi, full of bounce and bewildering change in his older opponent off the court, was flat in the seventh.

Joining Moylan in the semi-finals were the Australian big three—Mrs. Thelma Long, Mrs. Hilde Sperling and George Worthington, seeded in that order among the foreign entries. They will play Saturday, Mrs. Long meeting Moylan and Hartwig going against Worthington.

In quarter-finals Rose disposed of Tony Vincent of New York 6-3, 6-3 7-5 and Hartwig eliminated Mexico's Mario Llamas 6-1, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4. It was a clinch for the invaders' star in the women's singles Thursday when Mrs. Sperling defeated Miss Merrill 9-7, 6-1 in the third round, she tangled with the chubby Mrs. Long and went out 6-3, 6-1.

Miss Macken was overwhelmed 6-0, 6-3 by Miss Ramirez. Matches were played also in the men's and women's doubles, mixed doubles and veterans singles. Competition continues today in all these divisions with the feature matches in the quarter-finals of the men's doubles.

Rose and Hartwig, second-ranking doubles team the world, will meet Jacques Guigerre and Val Harris of Montreal and a fourth round will bring together Worthington and Vincent against Mazzanobe Kimura of Japan and Don Kelser of Louisville, Ky.

Bisons, Royals Are Defeated In International

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo and Montreal, the two top contenders for first place in the International League, both lost their games last night.

Buffalo dropped a 5-4 count to Ottawa Athletics. The Athletics scored the winning run in the 10th inning when lightfielder Emil Rosalino misjudged a fly ball and allowed the winning run to score.

Ottawa won the six-game series 4-2.

Fred Gerken led off the bottom half of the 10th by taking first on shortstop Buddy Hicks' error. He went to second as Gerry Scala walked and came home on Rosalino's boot.

Buffalo scored singles in the first, fourth, sixth and seventh innings, two of them homers by Frank Carswell in the sixth and Bob Farrin in the seventh.

Ottawa pushed one run across in the first on Jim Mackinnon's single. Jack Spruill and Hal Bevan doubled and singled respectively. In the ninth pinch-hitter Don Thompson hammered out a three-run homer to tie the score.

Toronto Maple Leafs shocked a Montreal audience, chalking up six runs in the eighth inning to defeat the Royals 13-10.

The current three-game series now is tied at two each.

Trailing 4-0 the Leafs scored five times in the fourth inning to move ahead. The Royals retaliated with three in the fifth, two in the sixth and one in the seventh.

Red Fahr, one of five Toronto pitchers to appear in the game was credited with the win. It is Fahr's sixth win against five losts.

At Rochester, Baltimore Orioles and the Red Wings exchange three-run rallies in the ninth inning before Rochester copped decision 6-5 and bounced back in third place.

Vern Rapp's pinch double drove the tying runs for Rochester in the ninth and with the bases loaded Charley Lucas dropped a bunt single to the left side to score Rapp with the winning run after two were out.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

Kill the dummy. Kill the dummy. Such is the brain tapping of an experienced player when he sees a long suit exposed in a no-trump contract. Kill the dummy, is card sense sans him.

Our specific opponent was in three no-trump with this deal:

	NORTH
	♠ K Q J 10 9
	♥ 6 5
	♦ 7 5 3
	♣ 8 4

My partner in west started with an opening lead of his diamond king. As you can see now, declarer can take all he needs with four spades and four hearts and what he takes in clubs.

However, my partner made a rather heap out of most of the dummy spades. How? By employing the Deschapelles coup, a sacrificing club king by leading it right into the jaws of dummy ace.

The best dummy could do was take it and lead a spade, hoping the ace would take it at once. But west laid off the first spade. When dummy then led a second spade it was taken by west ace.

Thereafter, dummy never got in to make the other spades. All declarer got was eight tricks, spade, four hearts, two more clubs for a total of eight tricks. His contract went down one.

Soon as west took the second spade he returned a club that went to south. A diamond was lost to queen. A club went to south. Another diamond went to west who cashed a club for a fifth trick.

A sequel to this story is very interesting. The west refused the first spade, dummy can switch to a third diamond return lead and play the ten. West is forced to use the jack to win this trick.

A return club goes to south who then leads back his smallest diamond. This forces west to use up his ace if he does not want the dummy seven to win. A return club goes to south again.

Declarer now has taken four tricks. With diamond queen now good and four solid hearts he has enough for the nine tricks he requires. By the time south found this out twas too late.

British Cricket

LEEDS, England (Reuters)—Australia's gamble of sending England in to bat after winning the toss paid off Thursday when England lost seven wickets for 142 runs on the opening day of the fourth cricket test.

Top batsmen Len Hutton and Denis Compton were out for ducks.

On a pitch which was damp and slow, England's batsmen fought an uphill struggle against some excellent quick bowling by Ray Lindwall and Keith Miller, ably supported by keen fielding.

After three drawn matches in the best-of-five series, Australia needs only to avoid defeat in the last two games to retain the mythical cricket Ashes which they have held since 1934.

A stubborn fourth-wicket stand of 62 by Tom Graveney and Willie Watson saved England from complete collapse. Graveney batted three hours' 40 minutes for 35, and Watson's 24 was an admirable defensive knock.

Australia can be well satisfied with Thursday's play. But the match cannot yet be written off as they will probably have to bat on a bowlers' pitch today and in any case are faced with batting last on a pitch which may wear.

US Tennis Stars Whip West Indies

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)—The United States whipped to a 3-0 lead over the British West Indies Thursday on straight-set victories by Bernard Bartzen and Capt. Gardnar Mulloy in the second round of the North American Zone Davis Cup tennis competition.

The 38-year-old Mulloy turned back Ian McDonald, No. 1 player in the Indies, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4, while the youthful Bartzen coasted to a 6-1, 6-2, 6-2 triumph over Ron Cooper.

The Americans now need to win only one more match to get past the round. The doubles are slated for today and the final two singles will be played Saturday.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, JULY 25, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Suggest you re-examine your problems on their merits; there may be those that can be set aside. Time is most vital today; don't waste it on trifles.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Just mildly favorable. But be prepared to meet competition, face obstacles. With extra efficient management, you can succeed.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — The accurate, alert, ever-willing person will have best job opportunities today. Don't stretch budget or good reputation by careless acts, statements.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Some irritating circumstances early in day. Mark time till noon, then things will be more suited to particular endeavor you prefer.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — May run into unusual conditions both in business and financial activities. Take suggestions from those of real experience. Harmony is greatest need now.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Don't be too sure you have right angles in business, investments. Act with associates—those allied in your work, life.

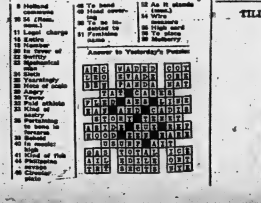
September 24 to October 22 (Libra)—Not really "mean" day, but it should keep you moving, on the "ball". Keep ears tuned for quick change in outlook, particularly investments.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Configurations indicate no easy time but some progress can be made under adverse conditions. You have what is needed, use it well.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Some sensible restraint needed in money matters, investments that might be doubtful in value. Take extra care in heart affairs.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Harder for other than routine, or matters that come under duties, essentials. Keep tabs on news, world affairs.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Headway in shipping, handling monetary goods; construction of armaments, etc. Plan for long pull; focus on general outlook.



February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Today has benefits in store for the worthy. So don't be lazy if there are duties, tedious tasks to perform.

YOU BORN TODAY are innately gay, engaging in personality. Sometimes too demanding but will respond to gentle persuasion. Unusual talents for entertaining, story-telling, mind-reading, perhaps law, debating, acting, as a traveller. Pray daily and thank God for blessings. Birthdate of: Arthur James Balfour, Brit. statesman-philosopher; David Belasco, Amer. playwright, manager.

SEEK BODY

TORONTO (CP)—Lt.-Cry. Harbor police early today started a search for the body of Tristans Fwede, 27, of Sudbury, Latvian immigrant believed drowned in a Toronto Island Lagoon. Fwede left a party at a late hour and said he was going for a swim, police said. Soon afterward, a water taxi operator said he heard shouts for help.

Father Kills Wife, Then Suicides

Figures in a murder-suicide on a highway near Sequin Falls, Ont., are Mr. and Mrs. John A. Davies. Mrs. Davies, driving her car, was stopped by her husband in a truck. Rifle in hand, he walked over to her car and told her he was about to kill her. Their daughter, Mary Jane, and a friend in the back seat, jumped out of the car and soon after they heard a shot which killed Mrs. Davies. John Davies then told his daughter to watch him and, putting the rifle to his mouth, pulled the trigger. — Central Press Canadian Photos.

Orphaned by the murder-suicide of their parents are Mary Jane Davies, 12, and Edward, 15. The only reason for the tragedy that police have been able to find is the overwhelming resentment of John Davies over temporary work undertaken by his wife. — Central Press Canadian.

Malenkov Real Red Ruler Says Former Correspondent

How does Georgi Malenkov look? Eddy Gilmore, AP correspondent in Moscow for 11 years, is one of the few Americans who have seen the Soviet premier in action. Gilmore gives his appraisal of Malenkov—and of his chances of staying premier—in this article, last of a series written on this side of the Iron Curtain.

By EDDY GILMORE

PARIS (AP)—Who is running Soviet Russia today?

Is it really George M. Malenkov? Could it be V. M. Molotov? Is Nikolai Bulganin the real man in charge? Is it possible that Nikita Khrushchev is manipulating things from the dark corners of the Kremlin? Or is it government by committee as the Communist party would have us believe—a committee composed of the party, the government and the Supreme Soviet?

Or, is it the army?

Frankly, I don't know and I doubt if anyone outside the Kremlin knows.

The dismissal of L. P. Beria—listed officially as Malenkov's No. 1 lieutenant—has narrowed the field. But it has also confused it. The wise Western diplomat with many years' experience in Soviet affairs is not completely convinced of the Beria story. He explains: More Make-Believe "This could be another grand piece of Russian make-believe and deception. They may be trying to confuse the West at this extremely important moment of our times. The Beria disgrace would be a huge hoax."

I do not hold with this diplomat.

I believe Malenkov is in charge and has been in charge since Stalin was stricken. I believe he set up a cabinet slightly behind him and, out of the corner of his quick, Slavic eyes, caught a glimmer of the knife in Beria's hand. That he felt strong enough, or desperate enough, to eliminate the high chieftain of the political police, with his principal henchmen.

What do we know about Malenkov? Not much. I've seen him a lot of times. But I've never had such a good look at him as that Sunday afternoon in mid-March just after Stalin's death and burial. That was when the Supreme Soviet met in the Kremlin and elected him chairman of the council of ministers, or premier, on Beria's endorsement.

Fat Man

Malenkov is a fat man, but he's one of those fat men who move with a certain grace. He's light on his feet and he walks with a quick, easy stride.

He has long black hair that he parts on one side. Dark intelligent eyes. If you call say eyes are intelligent. A triple chin and he affects the traditional party khaki jacket, long khaki trousers and usually black shoes.

His voice is firm and extremely clear. His delivery is that of a practiced orator. He looks at his audience when he speaks.

He seems sure of himself. He handled himself very well at this, his first public appearance after becoming premier. He paid not the slightest bit of attention to Beria, Molotov, Bulganin, Khrushchev or anyone else. He was in charge.

Few foreigners have had conversations with Malenkov. I have two notations from men who sat beside him in Kremlin banquets. He Conversationalist

Note No. 1: "He didn't talk very much and when I said him a joke he managed a faint smile. He seemed preoccupied. He volunteered no remarks to me. He had a certain poise. However, an unpleasant character. I'd say."

No. ¼: "He seemed interested in his food more than he was interested in me as a dinner partner. But talking through a translator, he did appear to be intelligent, though reticent. When I made some remark about the weather he said he was never very conscious of the weather. All in all, not the kind of a fellow I'd like to have a long trip on a tandem bicycle."

At 52, he is one of the youngest of the Communist leaders. And, of course, he's playing for time. He is consolidating his position, or trying to. Does he have time enough? And strength and intelligence enough? I believe so. And I believe that Malenkov, more than any single man, is running Russia.

Two Men Are Killed As Plane Nosedives

MONTREAL (CP)—Two men were killed Thursday night when their light, single-engined plane nosedived into a field at St. Francois de Salles, 15 miles northeast of here.

Dead are: Andre Guilbault, 29, the pilot, and Yvon Peloquin, 19, both of neighboring Ville St. Michel.

Is Not Highway No. 11 Which Will be Closed

TORONTO (CP)—The highways department announced Thursday that a secondary highway from highway 11 to Sgrucedale will be closed for 24 hours starting at 3 p.m. Saturday during dive-bombing exercises at the RCAF's Ennisdale airport.

The Canadian Press carried an erroneous report Thursday that a section of highway 11 would be closed during the exercises. The highways department explained that this report was caused by a transmission error in its office.

Niagara Falls Body Can Now Buy Bridge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Thursday passed and sent to President Eisenhower a resolution designed to make it possible for the Niagara Falls Bridge Commission to acquire the Whirlpool Rapids Bridge.

The resolution, which passed the House of Representatives July 7, would permit the commission to issue bonds payable from the revenues of the bridges it operates rather than just the Rainbow Bridge over the falls.

The purpose is to enable the commission to finance the purchase of the Whirlpool Rapids Bridge between the cities of Niagara Falls, N.Y., and Ontario, by issuing bonds secured from revenues of both bridges.

This Vaudeville Show Proved To be Nightmare

LEICESTER, England (Reuters) If there was ever a worse night than Thursday in the vaudeville producer Reggie Dennis can't remember it.

Dennis, producing the current program at the local Variety Hall here, saw the show go disastrously wrong.

First, Dennis himself. Handcuffed and chained, he hung head-down above the stage. Normally, he frees himself in 90 seconds. But they had to cut him down. He collapsed with cramp.

2. Knife-thrower Hal Denver, 38, misjudged and pinned his blonde wife's skirts and panties to the board she stood against.

3. George Mikowski's crash helmet slipped as he toured around a "wall of death" on a motorcycle 10 feet above the stage. He drove off the wall and onto the stage, dislocating his shoulder and bruising his arm. He is now in hospital.

4. Finally, fencer George Hartman slipped on the stage and his brother-partner's duelling foil cut a 12-inch gash down his back.

But the show went on Thursday night—with four of the artists in bandages.

Sunday School Lesson:

The Man Who Never Arrived

By ROY L. SMITH

Beware of that religious man who thinks he has arrived; the chances are he has only quit.

There is always something ahead for the man who has accepted the viewpoint of Jesus Christ, and who is endeavoring to really become a mature Christian.

There is always another step to be taken, another height to reach, another virtue to incorporate into our life, another personal evil to be overcome.

Paul Never Satisfied

In all the history of religion there is no example of any man having experienced a greater transformation as a result of coming to a new religious conviction than was the case with Saul of Tarsus, but never did Paul the Apostle ever boast that he had arrived. Instead, he said on one occasion, "I press on," and on another, "Though I have not attained."

It is said that Alexander the Great came to that point in his amazing career when he sighed because there were no more worlds to conquer, and very soon after that his life came tumbling down in an awful crash because of his inability to master and discipline his own desires and tempers. He took every world except that truest world inside his own heart; he failed at the point where every man must begin if he is ever to achieve life at its finest and best.

Dangerous Mask

One of the basic objectives of the Christian stands in bad repute is a go-getter age—mechanical. The big prizes seem to go to those who bluff, bluster, threaten, bulldoze, bludgeon, boast, and seize by force. But Jesus first, and later Paul as an interpreter of Jesus, declared that the most satisfactory life was that one achieved by meekness.

It was not that the meek are a weak, a pliable, or an inoffensive people. They are not. William Penn was one of the most vigorous figures in early American history, and the record of Pennsylvania is one of the most honorable. "There has never been a meeker man in the presidential chair than Abraham Lincoln, and none has more deservedly won immortality. Cardinal Mercier, of Belgium, was one of the bravest churchmen in all Europe at the time of the First World War, but he became a terror to the Germans by his very meekness. So also in the case of Bishop Berggav of Norway, the great Protestant leader; Clara Barton and Jane Addams, two very meek women, moved mountains, and Elizabeth Fry, the meek little English Quakeress, pried open the prison doors of all Britain in the interest of prison reform.

It often happens that the meek make greater progress than the mighty, because there is a power in peaceful ways which bluster never knows.

Let's Take an Invoice

Let's take an invoice occasionally just to see how much progress we have been making at the major task of life—living!

Have we learned to get along any better with other people during the last year? Are we able to overlook the peculiarities of those with whom we are compelled to work, so that their angularities are not reflected in inferior work on our part?

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 26: "Growing in Christ", Luke 2:52; Ephesians 4.

Are we less engrossed in things and more fascinated and occupied by ideas today, than we were a year ago?

Have we made any progress in subduing our tempers, disciplining our desires, and managing our moods?

Have we come to the place where we are able to enjoy our own company, or are we haunted by memories of shamefulness when we are alone, so that we have to have other people about us to enable us to forget our own humiliating past?

Have the passing years seen us becoming more and more convinced of the purity of our own convictions, and more and more charitable of those who differ with us?

Are we any improvement over ourselves this year, in contrast to what we were a year ago?

Tape Recordings Made of Books For Use by Blind

TORONTO (CP)—Tape recording of books for the blind and use of plastic in producing embossed dots for Braille readers are among new methods being developed to produce material for blind persons, Col. E. A. Baker, managing director of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, said Thursday.

The tape recordings will partly replace the disc type of record on which entire books are transcribed. They are expected to be of particular value in small countries where perhaps only four or five recordings of a single book are required.

Col. Baker said the new idea in Braille is to squeeze plastic through a screen and onto the paper.

"It seems to give permanent Braille dots which will last as long as the paper."

To Sail Atlantic in a Canoe

At Great Neck, N.Y., 33-year-old Yves Bertrand, a French engineer, is seen prior to sailing alone to Europe. The double-breasted canoe, in which Mr. Bertrand hopes to make a forty to sixty-day drifting-sailing trip to Le Havre, France, is 16-feet long and from outside gunwale to inside gunwale measures eight feet. Bert weighs 1,350 pounds, cost $2,500 and was six months in the building. A former mountain climber, Bertrand has named his craft "Konokonga," his spelling of the native name for the recent conquered Mount Everest in Nepal. Bertrand had made several long and more or less spectacular trips on foot, motorcycle, truck, but admitted that he doesn't have too much experience in deep-water navigation.—Central Press Canadian.

Timmins Crash Fatal To Ottawa Resident

TIMMINS (CP)—An Ottawa man died Thursday night of traffic-accident injuries despite first-aid treatment at the crash scene by a vacationing Toronto nurse and a provincial policeman.

Stanley V. Grey died in hospital after his automobile collided head-on with an ice-cream truck 20 miles east of here.

Mrs. Robert Dawson of Toronto, a nurse who has been visiting here, was one of the first persons to reach the accident scene. She helped Provincial Constable R. D. Fulton give first aid and rode to the hospital in an ambulance with the injured man.

Edmund Cutmet, 27, of New Liskeard, who police said was driving the New Liskeard ice cream truck, was admitted to hospital in a state of shock.

Jet Seaplane Shows Its Qualities

The U.S. navy's new plane, the Sea Dart, is a delta-wing experimental seaplane jet fighter. It is the first combat-type craft to employ hydro-skis for improved performance in take-off in rough water. Performance of the craft is still a military secret. Photo top shows the Sea Dart about to take off with the skis still touching the water. Strikers Have New Dodge, Check Trucks for Overloads

HAMILTON (CP) — Checking trucks for overloads is the latest tactic employed by striking steelworkers' Ontario truckers.

A provincial policeman at Sarnia yesterday described the method in this way:

"They stood beside the road and signalled trucks to stop. If the driver pulled up, they talked to him and, if he agreed, they examined his load check for possible infraction of overload regulations.

"So far they haven't reported any overload to us. But, if they do so, they are entirely within their rights and we have to proceed but to take the truck to the city weigh master."

Earlier police warned the strikers not to try to stop the trucking trade by running in the roadway.

The police were enforcing Premier Frost's order to "make sure strikers did not molest vehicles.

Seek Boost

As their wage strike by about 1,500 members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL-TLC) in the area between Hamilton and Windsor neared the end of its first week, the union called in a top official from Montreal, Frank Tobin, to seek an amicable settlement.

An outbreak Friday of beating of drivers and wrecking of trucks of merit and merchandise brought this advice to non-strikers from Crown Attorney Harold Thomson of Hamilton:

"Blow a man ride as a shotgun guard with each load to protect it."

Stanley Lotz, driver for a Toronto area carriage company, was burned about the head Friday night when a "thunderflash" bomb was thrown into the cab of his truck by a highway just east of Chatham.

Was Beaten

An R. Bravicord area, Ronald Fellows of Woodstock told police he was struck over the head with a cash and beat him up.

A transport truck was destroyed by fire in the yard of Reliable Transport Company in Kitchener.

Numerous trucking companies reported tires slashed, sulphur put in gasoline tanks and explosives tossed through windows.

Strikers followed a London truck into Wallenberg and asked police to compel the driver to open the truck for the strikers' inspection. Police refused to interfere and the truck went on its way.

The union also was asked for a 25-cent-an-hour pay boost. It has since pushed back the demand to an immediate 15-cent-an-hour increase with an additional seven cents by Aug. 1.

SEVEN KILLED

BELGRADE (Reuters) — Seven of 21 persons in a truck were killed when it fell from a bridge into the river Drava near Varazdin in Yugoslavia.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Showers will spread across most of Northern Ontario today, while southern regions will remain mostly sunny. Sunday will be warmer in all regions, with scattered thunderstorms across the north and occasional thundershower late in the day over southern regions.

Hole in Floor Admits Robber, Cashier Flees

CHICAGO (AP) — Thelma Myers, cashier in a currency exchange, glanced down and saw a masked man coming out of a hole in the floor.

She hotfooted out of the cashier's cage into the street screaming for police.

When officers arrived the man was gone, along with an estimated $300 from the cash drawer.

Under a table they found a neatly cut hole in the floor covered by a piece of linoleum. Police said the robber apparently cut the hole during the night and settled until Miss Myers arrived she removed the cash from a safe.

Passengers Jolted When Car Goes Out of Control

Going out of control when the driver suffered a heart attack, a motor car driven by Dr. Hugh G. Bell, 57, of North City, on Friday narrowly missed a cement culvert, and a hydro pole on the Belleville-Trenton highway, went across the ditch, then bounced back on a wire fence into a plowed field.

Occupants of the car were badly jolted, and two young girls were taken to hospital, one with a possible broken nose.

"It all happened so quickly that there was no time to warn anyone," Mrs. Bell after the accident. She said the car was heading directly for the hydro pole when she managed to reach out and turn the wheel sufficiently to avoid striking it.

Home-Made Armored Car is Used By Czechs to Crash Iron Curtain

MUNICH (AP)—A home-made armored car, so cleverly built that it fooled Czech border guards, crashed through the Iron Curtain today bringing eight persons to safety in the West.

Bavarian border police said a 51-year-old Czech mechanic, his wife and their two small children, two Czech soldiers and a civilian man and woman roared across the freedom near Wald-Muenchen in southern Bavaria. They asked asylum.

They first reported the vehicle to be a tank, but said later it was a beautifully-built armored car with tank treads, so well done that they had assumed it was a Czech army tank.

It was decked with foliage as camouflage and as it rammed through the barbed wire barrier near Wald-Muenchen, a Czech sentry fired a machine gun burst. He watched it open-mouthed. They apparently believed it a Czech armored reconnaissance car and held their fire.

The home armored car escape from a country whose citizens have braved bullets and grenades to flee the communist tyranny was also one of the most bizarre among a series of dramatic escapes from Czechoslovakia.

In 1951 Westerners were startled when a Czech engineer stole a train and crashed into the West. And early this year a Czech airliner was commandeered in the air and flown to the West.

There have even been cases of Czechs arming themselves and fighting their way West.

But today's escapade topped them all.

RED GESTAPO BOSS IN EAST GERMANY LOSES HIS JOB

May be in Disgrace Or on Way to Top

By DAN DE LUCE

BERLIN (AP)—Mystery today surrounded the career of Red Gestapo Boss Wilhelm Zaisser. Rumors he is under secret arrest in east Berlin, victim of a "Berlia purge" were offset by reports he would come back to lead both army and police.

Zaisser was suddenly replaced Friday as chief of state security by Ernest Wollweber and his 100,000 police armies put under control of the interior ministry.

It was the biggest Communist shake-up in the German Republic's four-year history.

Said Beria's Friend

Rumors were that Zaisser, who often bragged he possessed a direct pipeline to Lavrenty P. Beria, had lost power in liberty because of his generation-long friendship with the purged Soviet police boss.

Unconfirmed reports said Wollweber, in taking over Zaisser's office, had immediately begun a "clean-sweep" purge of all Zaisser's staff, seeking scapegoats who failed to weed out Red informers planted in soviet zone industry before the June 17 revolt of workers.

Both Zaisser and his chief aide in the security ministry, Communist Fritz Malik, have vanished at least temporarily from public view in the continuing governmental crisis.

Rumors Discounted

The rumors that Zaisser has been jailed, possibly executed by Communist organizations with headquarters in West Berlin, were discounted, however, by several officers who had deserted from the East German army last week. They said that Zaisser is more likely to make a comeback as minister of the interior controlling both the secret police apparatus and the 125,000 man Red People's Army.

Willi Stoph, present interior minister and member of the Communist central committee has been appointed minister of national defence, troops were proven "politically unreliable" in the bloody suppression of the June rebellion. As a member of both the politburo and the central committee, Zaisser had outranked him in the party.

Indians on Warpath Seize Barrie's Mayor

BARRIE (CP)—Just a week before the start of Old Home Week celebrations, Barrie was "attacked" by Indians Friday night.

A shirt arranged to draw attention to the homecoming celebrations, several bootloads of Indians, headed by Chief Thunderbird, captured Mayor James W. Harris, K.C., at A.C. Hardy, Chamber of Commerce president, and proceeded to be making preparations for a wiener roast on the local ball field.

Citizens chased away the Indians in the nick of time.

PRICES ARE CUT

DERLIN (Reuters)—The East German government today announced cuts in the price in a number of consumer goods, including a 50 per cent cut for tea, 30 per cent for cocoa and chocolate, 25 per cent for coffee, soap at 15 per cent less, silk stockings at 20 per cent less.

Any Secret Trade Weapon Should be Revealed Says PM

Prime Minister St. Laurent says it is the Progressive Conservatives have a "secret weapon" to demolish the dollar-pound trade barrier, they are "betraying" Canada if they don't disclose what it is.

The "secret weapon" topic was injected into the federal election campaign by the prime minister Friday at a Bridgewater rally closed out a two-day tour of Nova Scotia.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, still campaigning in Quebec, denied a governmental role what he said is spreading maladministration in the defence department.

At Dauphin, Man., CCF leader M. J. Coldwell said a CCF government would nationalize the farm machinery industry "to provide cheaper implements with modern, efficient and low-cost agricultural implements." Trade Questions

Mr. St. Laurent referred to the Progressive Conservatives' promise to expand world markets for Canadian products by breaking the dollar-sterling barrier, with keeping secret since 1949, then surely the Conservatives have been guilty of betraying the interests of the Canadian people to get a party advantage."

If Mr. Drew or any other Progressive Conservative has any real "magic formula" to enable Commonwealth and other countries to get more dollars for their Canadian goods, it was their duty to have given the idea to the government.

"I am afraid, though, the truth is that this is just another scurrilous piece of Conservative wishful thinking," he added.

"Treason" of Waste

At Shawinigan Falls, Que., Mr. Drew referred to the recent arrests of three army officers and said these were further symptoms of the "disease" of waste and bungling diagnosed in the Currie report on the army works services.

Overlapping of the supervision of Canadian Army camps was no better than before, the army commander-in-chief was still prevalent.

"When you see further arrests, you can see this disease has not been cured and is still spreading."

The second day of the federal election campaign, Zaisser had outranked him in the party.

Mr. Drew quoted Mr. St. Laurent as saying in Halifax Thursday the previous night that tax cuts promised by the Progressive Conservatives would mean reductions in expenditures and would make many recipients of these expenditures wonder whether the reductions would affect them.

"He is trying to create fear in the minds of those who are receiving government payments," Mr. Drew said. His party had made it clear it would not reduce family allowances or other social security payments but that taxes would be cut by $500,000,000-a-year by eliminating overtaxation, waste, extravagance and inefficiency.

Price Support "Failure"

Mr. Coldwell blamed the "pitiful condition" of agriculture—the gap between farm prices and farm costs—on the government's "inadequate and short-sighted" policies. The prices support program had been a "colossal failure." It was the packinghouses and large processing interests that the farmer, which had benefitted largely from the program.

The CCF leader said the Liberals' farm policy had failed in at least three important ways. "The government had permitted excessively wide price spreads to develop." It had failed to maintain anything near parity prices; it had failed to give the farmer adjustments to rise out of all proportion to farmers' returns.

Mr. Coldwell, Mr. Macdonnell, Progressive Conservative financial critic, said his party, "the party to vote for Drew as prime minister, is not running on a platform of a joke." Electors had only to look at Mr. Drew's record as premier of Ontario.

At Lancaster, N.B., Defence Minister Ralph Campney told Progressive Conservative pledge to lop $200,000,000 off "defence expenditures would be "just fantastic."

Record is Issue

At Wallaceburg, Ont., Health Minister Martin said the election issue is whether the government party by its record will get it is capable of leading the country in domestic and international affairs. "The government has done just that, he said.

At Port Hope, Finance Minister Abbott urged Canadians to think carefully before pressing for new and increased government spending programs: "A nation's tax capacity is limited. We are at the point where it kills the human incentive to productivity."

Overlooking Ottawa, Trade Minister Howe said government surpluses and new developments in the economists wouldn't believe the Canadian economy would expand as it did.

Mr. St. Laurent rests this weekend at Cacouna, Que., and on St. Patrick, Que., before the final two weeks of the campaign. He will speak at St. Jerome and St. Eustache, Que., today before returning to Ottawa. Defence Min. Coldwell will be at Teulon, Man., tonight and resume his campaign Monday at Winnipeg.

Change Plan to Send Scores Of Police to Timmins Area

TIMMINS (CP)—The provincial police have called off plans to send scores of officers to a gold mine strike scene here where 10 non-strikers were kidnapped and beaten Friday in a raid on Brodan Reef mine property.

Word came late last night it has been decided to send only 25 "reserve" policemen to take over from the 25 district officers who have been working long hours since the beginning of the strike Wednesday of the United Steelworkers of America CIO-CCL started two weeks ago. The 25 will be given a day's chance to rest and then will be assigned to duties in the Timmins district as routine investigations and traffic patrol.

No explanation was given for the change in plans. Earlier it was reported the district officers already were heading for this Northern Ontario gold-mining area.

The "reserve" men began arriving late last night from the provincial headquarters at Peterborough districts.

Inspector Alfred V. Whitley and Ralph Crozier and Corporals John Fulton and Carl Whidden questioned the 10 men kidnapped by the mine property about what happened when a group of pickets first invaded the mine workings.

About 20 of the 30-odd non-strikers were in the mine with cots and food Thursday eluded the pickets by fleeing down a mine shaft. They still were in the mine early today and Staff Inspector T. R. Trimble of the provincial police said guards have been placed to protect them.

The union disclaimed responsibility for Friday's melee, which took place when the pickets barred provincial police from the mine gates.

Low Temperature Surgery Used, First in Canada

TORONTO (CP —The first "low body temperature" surgery in Canada was performed yesterday at Vancouver woman who was suffering from a rheumatic heart disease.

Dr. W. G. Bigelow of Toronto told of the operation on Mrs. Doris Sleeman at the Toronto General Hospital and said it was the result of years of research and experiment.

Dr. Bigelow said Mrs. Sleeman's heart was in a state of "failure" when doctors decided surgery offered to carry oxygen to all parts of the body.

In the new technique, the body temperature is lowered by wrapping special cooling blankets around the patient. The chilling process, by slowing down the basic metabolic rate, slows down the body's need for oxygen.

This permits surgery on the heart under direct vision. In Mrs. Sleeman's case her temperature was lowered from 98.4 to 86 degrees. Normal body temperature is 98.4 degrees.

In the actual operation, Dr. Bigelow opened the mitral valve of the woman's heart and cleared an obstruction that had hampered the free flow of blood.

Hospital authorities said Friday Mrs. Sleeman's condition is "satisfactory."

LAST OF RIFLES OF SLAIN TRIO IS FOUND IN BUSH

Police Head Silent On Possible Suspects

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GASPE, Que. (CP)—Discovery in the bush of the last of the missing rifles belonging to three slain American bear hunters was announced early today and Capt. J. Alphonse Matte said pointedly:

The provincial police now are giving all attention to search in the bush."

At the same time he authorized The Canadian Press to quote him further directly:

"The search will be continued as long as the attorney-general (Clark) requires it. He is not satisfied that everything has been done to find the complete remains of the three victims."

Discovery of two rifles, last of the four known to have been carried by the trio, topped Friday's find. The all-day search also turned up one of the three missing pairs of binoculars, a hunting cap and more bones of the victims.

Silence on Suspects

Capt. Matte, who came from Quebec two days ago to take charge of the police investigation and search, could not be drawn into any discussion about suspects or motives for murder.

He made it clear that the inquiry and search is to ascertain what happened and how it happened. The Americans were killed and their bodies left to the degradation of bears.

Rifles, bones and other articles were found in an area extending about 400 feet from an unused logging camp where the scattered bones of 19-year-old Richard Lindsey and 20-year-old Noel Claar were found Thursday.

Coroner Dr. Lawrence H. Lind sey, 45, the youth's father and head of the hunting party from Wilmington, Del., has found last week at another camp four miles away.

Found in Bush

One of the rifles was found in the bush 200 feet east of the camp; the other 75 feet south. Earlier in the search a woman found near the remains of the elder Lindsey and one in the hunting party.

Capt. Matte offered no comment on reports that the search would continue in widening and that authorities in Montreal and other centres had been asked to question instructions.

Informants here said one phase of the extended investigation would be the possible disposition of equipment the hunting party. Although recovery of the rifles and pair of binoculars indicates there were more expensive pieces from the theory of theft.

But about $700 known to have been carried by the elder Lindsey has not been accounted for. Included have cooking and eating utensils and food supplies carried in the truck.

Hunters Shot

Evidence that the hunters were shot has officially disclosed by Quebec Privkey by Solicitor-General Bertrand Fortier, who said a bullet hole through the blood-stained shirt of one of the younger victims and of a bullet-damaged hat were belonging to the elder Lindsey.

Mr. Fortier refused to disclose any connection between the slaying of the hunters and the clothing to death and robbery Friday of Edgar Audet, store manager at Newport Richmond, 180 miles from here.

Mad Muskie of North Bay Lake Nips Man's Toe, Snaps at Swimmers

NORTH BAY (CP)—A four-foot muskie with a taste for toes is looking upon the eastern shore of Trout Lake, two miles west of here.

The muskie has nipped one man's toe, torn a trunk of wood from a paddle and snapped at half a dozen swimmers in the last week. The "mad muskie," as he has been dubbed by lakeshore residents is the "target for today" for fishermen in the area.

But the big fish, which has been frustratingly swimming under a wharf has spurned the best of fishermen's spinners and worms that have been dangled his way.

Monday, Cec Cole of North Bay was dangling his feet from the edge of the wharf when he felt a sharp stab of pain. He yanked his foot out of the water and looked down to see the muskie swim by.

A few hours later a fisherman near the same dock felt a tug on one of his paddles. He spotted the muskie with its teeth gripped on the tip of the paddle.

Since then six swimmers have been nudged by the big fish. And mothers in the area have stopped their children from swimming off the small Hardwood Island dock.

Korean Armistice Signing Believed Only Hours Away

Ban Arms and Ammunition On Planes Bound for Korea

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Military personnel heading for Korea from Japan were ordered to give up arms and ammunition at Tokyo's Tachikawa airport tonight amid mounting reports that a Korean truce may be signed within a matter of hours.

An important announcement expected from Gen. Mark Clark's Tokyo headquarters was delayed at the last minute without explanation.

There was no hint as to what the announcement would be, but Clark might announce the time for signing an armistice halting more than three years of bloodshed.

Allied and Communist liaison officers who met five times at Panmunjom before were reported to have wrapped up final details of a truce and completed plans for the signing ceremonies.

Exact arrangements for the signing were kept secret, but informed quarters believed original plans for top military commanders of both sides to appear at Panmunjom have been changed and that negotiators will sign instead.

There was no explanation for the order banning arms and ammunition aboard Korea-bound planes. It was the first order which would be given if a cease fire had been officially signed.

The order came from the commander of the Far East Air Force Wing and presumably came from higher up.

Heralded first for the truce signing are reported to call for the highest armistice negotiators—Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison Jr., for the United Nations command and North Korean Gen. Nam Il for the Communists—to sign the truce and put it into force. It would halt the fighting within 12 hours.

The top military commanders—Gen. Mark Clark, North, Korean Marshs, Kim Il Sung and Chinese Gen. Peng Teh-Huai—are believed at their respective headquarters later.

The reason was given for the reported change in plans, but Korean observers said Friday Kim might not want to be present at a ceremony—during it in a limelight switch by the unpredictable Reds to a peaceful conference. There was no word from the South Korean President Syngman Rhee.

Radio Secretary Dulles was noncommittal when asked about prospects of an early truce.

He told reporters as he left a Paris hotel Saturday that he was "neither optimistic nor pessimistic." And when they asked if he was optimistic that there was prospects of a truce signing ques the weekend, he replied:

"I'd like a little enlightenment myself."

Rhee Threats

President Rhee, who started bluntly Friday that some Allied agreements with the Communists he cannot be allowed to happen," and further threats at the signing deadline approached.

Gets Proposal While Training For Big Swim

LONDON (Reuters)—When two champion swimmers fail in love there is no better place to pop the question than in the middle of the tempestuous English Channel.

That is just what has happened to Margaret Feather, 20, plump and pretty English swimmer, and Alfred Abdel Moneim, 24, clean-cut Egyptian swimmer, Abdel Moneim Abdo.

Abdel is training Margaret for her annual attempt to cross the Channel. He proposed as Margaret glowed up from through the water covered with 16 pounds of thick grease.

"Abdel was in the boat shouting words of encouragement," said Margaret. "He bawled the most encouraging words of all—will you marry me?"

They hope to marry after this year's Channel swimming season. Abdel is being helped by swimming the Channel both ways.

Owners of Speed Boats on Oak Lake Warned

Complaints regarding water skiers and motor boats enthusiastically speeding about on Oak Lake endangering the lives of swimmers and other boat users, have been received by provincial police, it was stated today by Inspector A. McDougall.

The inspector asked the co-operation of such boat owners in enforcing speed or engaging in their sport away from areas frequented by swimmers and other boats.

"The practice of recklessly driving motor boats on small water areas is extremely dangerous and use which could have fatal results is, inconsiderate if not criminal," he should occur, he said.

The inspector pointed out that reckless operation of motor boats on inland waters is contrary to the Marine Act and noted that provincial police officers would patrol the Oak Lake area often in the future. Prosecutions will follow if reckless operation of boats is observed, he said.

HAROLD.—When L.O.L. 509, Rawdon, met at the hall on July 11, before leaving for the celebrations at Tweed, Bro. Walter Jeffrey a Past Master of No. 509, and the Master's chair and initiated his grandson, Bob Jeffrey into the Orange Order. It was an unusual occurrance, as it was also on July 12, 1903, that Brother Walter Jeffrey was initiated in Orangeman himself in the same Orange Hall.

Immediately after the initiation Brother W. J. Johnston presented Brother Walter Jeffrey with his honorary certificate for being a member in good standing for 50 years in the same lodge. Brother Johnston in his remarks to Brother Jeffrey stated fifty years ago the late William Jeffrey and his three sons were all members of the same lodge namely (the late) W. J. Jeffrey, Charles Jeffrey and Walter Jeffrey. And now we have the honor of having three generations of the Jeffrey family as members of No. 509 namely Walter Jeffrey, Frank Francis and his grandson, Bob.

Deputy Grand Lecturer, Brother Lorne Hagerman is a member of the same lodge, also one of three generations of the Hagerman family all in good standing in the same lodge, namely Brother Lorne Hagerman, his father, Brother John B. Lies a dear and loving son, the son we gave.
He sleeps not alone, for God, in His love and care,
Has taken him to be with Jesus there.

That he from me had gone.
At night I kneel and pray and look down,
On a grave not far from here.
Where lies the one I dearly loved.
The one I gave with tears,

Powerhouse Site

This is a striking view of the powerhouse site on the lower Niagara gorge showing the work proceeding on the sandlock, draft tubes and concrete substructure of the Sir Adam Beck No. 2 development under construction by Ontario Hydro. Some 7,000 workers are busy on the 1,200,000 horsepower project expected to be finished some time in 1956. First power from the plant will be generated early in 1954. — (CP Photo.)

Prosperity and Headaches Often Accompany Multi-Million Dollar Construction Projects

By HARRY KINGDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NIAGARA FALLS (CP)—Drop a multi-million dollar construction project in the middle of a community of 43,000 people and you have your share of headaches with it.

That's what is happening in Niagara Falls and adjacent Stamford Township where the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission is pushing a $304,000,000 development with an army of 7,000 workers.

Feeding, housing, clothing and entertaining a worker army of that size is big business. The Greater Niagara Chamber of Commerce estimates it has put an extra $25,000,000 in circulation—roughly one-quarter of all the business in the area.

Co-Operation Pays

But when you set out to build two monster tunnels 5½ miles long beneath a city, and to carve away millions of tons of rock in trucks, you can expect difficulties. Hydro and local officials did, and decided to do something about it.

Before the first sod was broken in April, 1951, both groups got together to iron out some common problems.

Hydro agreed to pay part of the cost of police, fire and health services and repair damages to roads. Hydro also built 10 miles of new roads to ease the pressure on local routes.

Municipal officials are happy about the co-operation. A. Eric Bridger, 38-year-old mayor of Stamford Township, said: "I cannot speak too highly of the manner in which this project has been carried on."

Among individuals there has been some resentment. A taxi driver said: "We get good business from the boys because their rides are usually worth a dollar. But our local people are a bit put out because we have to ignore them sometimes."

Entertainment Boom

Theatres, hotels, restaurants and stores welcome the crowds of new wage-earners. To one theatre manager the workers were the answer to television. Movie houses in their cities showed less of business but he could point to a full theatre and line-ups sometimes blocks long.

One hotel—the Metropole—is so popular with the workers that it has earned the nickname "The Hydro Pole." Other hotels also drew their share of business.

The Liquor Board opened a second store in the city this month.

What will happen to the area's business when the project is finished and the workers leave town?

The Chamber of Commerce is counting on new industries to take up the slack. Already a live-wire promotion campaign has attracted industries that will eventually provide about one-quarter of the $25,000,000 brought in by Hydro.

Start in 1954

Although Hydro expects to start producing power from the new plant early next year, it will be some time in 1956 before the complete 1,200,000 horsepower will be available. Then another two units may be added to the plant.

Even the schools faced problems. Men on the job came from an area of different countries and city schools were faced with a "bumper crop" of 1,056 night students eager to learn English. About half of them came from the hydro project.

The high school ran out of teachers and had to call in public-school principals and township school inspectors.

Stamford Township authorities say vast changes were scarce before the workers came. With the "invasion," boarding houses filled up and new construction spread quickly along suburban country roads.

Hydro built three "construction cities"—camps that hold about 2,000 men—complete with cafeterias and recreation halls. Some 300 key men were put up in a hydro-built dormitory and 70 homes were built or acquired for key married men. Another 180 families live in a hydro-operated trailer camp.

Local authorities built a number of houses under a federal-provincial housing scheme.

Salvation Army Aid

Unemployed men keep drifting into the city, looking for work. In one week the Salvation Army handled 200 requests for help—food, a place to sleep and sometimes clothes.

Those who live in Hydro camps seem to like them. Archie Yuill, a native of Lanark County now chief cook in camp No. 3, told of a number of men who moved out to find more home-like atmosphere in local boarding houses.

Before long they were back in camp. "A woman can't serve meat three times a day if she is going to make a profit," said Archie.

The three camp cafeterias dish up 14,000 pounds of meat and fish a week. Thursday is traditionally "steak night" at the camps. Butchers start early Wednesday to cut up the 2,600 steaks served at that one meal.

Some 2,000 gallons of tea are served each week but only 500 gallons of coffee. Tea is an old construction habit, says Ed Krupp of Pembroke, Ont., general camp manager. "They'll drink coffee for breakfast but after that they want tea."

Bought by Trader

Raw material for the cafeterias is bought by trader, usually from Niagara-area suppliers. Hydro runs a bakery that turns out 6,000 loaves and 3,000 pies a week. A spotless, central butcher shop and grocery warehouse send out food to the three camps.

The grey rows of army-type huts that comprise the camps don't look home-like, but they have advantages. Newcomers live two in a room, each with a single bed, and foremen have rooms to themselves.

The recreation building at camp No. 2 offers a choice of movies, television, bowling, billiards, snacks and religious services. Frontier College provides instructors for classes every night. Several times a year the men pool their talents for an amateur show.

Sick or injured workers go to the 30-bed Hydro hospital staffed with two doctors—Dr. Donald Grant of Saskatoon and Dr. J. Dale Black of Toronto—five nurses and six orderlies.

Accidents on the job have killed 17 men in two years of operation. Construction men have a rule of thumb that one man is accidentally killed for every $1,000,000 spent. On this basis the Hydro record is good: The project so far has cost $180,000,000.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

Every now and then certain birds become offensive. Ducks have on occasion made themselves unpopular with Saskatchewan farmers by destroying grain crops while "pecking" at it. Fires are being tried to frighten them off. The same methods came and Fish Department started four men on a two-year hunt for the pond of sawbill ducks, grabs and ducks in the area north of Portage la Prairie. In co-operation with the Delta Waterfowl Research Station two plans of attack were devised. The restraint is a modern scarecrow, topped by a piece of aluminum foil flashing in the sun. If this fails, noisy blank cartridges are fired off, in the hope that this will move the ducks to a stubble field.

A few years ago, because of complaints that salmon on the Pettiodiac River system in New Brunswick were being reduced in numbers, research work was started, and the discovery made that cormorants and kingfishers were to blame. The Canadian Wild Life Service was called and gave its approval of trying bird control.

In spite of earning such a good name for themselves in the past, cormorants are now on the black list. In the Lake Ontario area, commercial fishermen complain that these predacious birds are taking valuable fish, and also ruining their catch by mutilating the white fish in the nets. Accordingly, for some seasons the Ontario wild life authorities have attempted to do a certain how much harm is being done. Two things are certain: Cormorants are multiplying, and any move made to stop this has met with little success, in the Whitepegonis district of Manitoba cormorants are said to catch far more fish than they consume. An exhaustive study has been made, but the outcome is still uncertain.

What about the credit side? From the days of Noah up to the present certain birds have been used by man as messengers. Starlings land is fertilized by birds importing seeds. Hummingbirds fill from blossom to blossom, pollenating flowers. Insectivorous birds are useful all round as injurious insects; seed eaters mostly prefer weed seeds; the majority of birds of prey live on animals troublesome to us; fish eaters rarely catch what we relish. Herring gulls like garbage; Franklin's gulls have been known to stop a grasshopper plague; cuckoos' favorite food is tent caterpillars. Cormorants are eaten in China and Japan. With nesting ringed to prevent swallowing, they catch fish for the master, and for their droppings are with great success used as fertilizer.

SWISS DIE IN ALPS

Going to the Moss

One of the best means of heating is a peat fire and a BBC program, Michael Murphy described the annual cutting, crait of turf-cutting. Peat, or turf has a particularly humting fragrance, strong and spicy; a hint of it can be found in the homespun tweeds from Ireland or the Scottish Highlands, and the kelvel places, facing both sun and natives of these parts think it is one of the best smells in the world. Turf is be ing fuel in Ireland and world-famous for its smell.

Murphy described the annual Spring turf-cutting that takes place in Antrim's famous glens, and the part he played in it last year. The job is called "going to the moss", and as he went up the glen to his head a thousand feet above he saw that the white-washed cottages and tidy fields were deserted for nearly all their inhabitants were already at the moss. Only the old people and the babies were left.

The first thing a man must do when he reaches his own turf is to light a fire with bits left over from last year and on this all the cooking is done. The second thing is to get rid of the last year's sod, under which are of tough best grass 'or heather, with the traditional tool called a "flachs" and this reveals for the first "floor" of real turf, which is the best, a special turf spade.

A flacter is similar to an ordinary spade, but the blade is fitted with a short wing, which makes a rectangular cut with each thrust and so speeds the work. The cutter slices off the turf in blocks, a second worker picks up a block and tosses it to a third person, who places it on a barrow. When this barrow is full it is wheeled to a level place, facing both sun and wind, and the turf spread out thinly to dry. Success depends on the weather too, for rain and frost can ruin the turf.

As many as seven floors can be dug in a bank of turf, which is usually measured to about thirty yards long and one yard wide, and a bank of this size, if sufficiently deep, can yield enough turf to last a family throughout the year.

Whole families go up in the moss and most of them are barefooted, for the dark brown, squelchy juice of the turf is supposed to be good for hot, aching feet, and anyway, said Murphy, "It's good to get rid of your boots for a while." When all the cutting has been done and the turf dry it is driven home down the old turf roads and stacked in the lofts of the house. It burns best in an open hearth, with a heat that makes it unnecessary to sit close to the fire, where the men and women sit on winder evenings reading the traditional stories and incidents of the days "in the moss".

GARBAGE COMES INTO ITS OWN

A proposal to raise the level of Toronto Island by dumping garbage there won headlines in the Toronto Globe and Mail.

Of course, we appreciate the fact that residents of the Queen City are concerned about the future of their island in its battle with the waters of Lake Ontario. Still, we are not sure that the idea of using garbage as a remedy was not an important factor in the evaluation of the news value of that story. Probably the Toronto editor's sense of humor or appreciation of the bizarre was stirred by the role which garbage would play in the proposed solution.

Yet this use of garbage is by no means new. Here in Belleville garbage is being used to build up the level of land at Zwick's Island. Eventually this should result in a valuable addition to the city's park property. Now is Belleville the only Ontario centre which has discovered that garbage can be something better than a problem, that its disposal can actually assist in transforming otherwise useless areas into valuable property. There is one Ontario city, for instance, which had several abandoned quarries within its borders. It acted on the idea of filling one of these quarries with garbage, using the same sanitary fill method employed here at Zwick's Island. The fill has now almost reached the top of the quarry. Eventually the old quarry will become building lots.

We understand that Cleveland was the first city to employ this means of disposing of garbage. We do not know the name of the man who first conceived the brilliant idea of making refuse an asset instead of a liability — but if he could only have patented the method he would not have had much difficulty acquiring that crucial first million.

TRAINING STILL INDISPENSABLE

This is the machine age.

But no machine is better than its operator.

That fact is forcibly brought to our attention by evidence at the inquiry into the sinking of the lake freighter Scotiadoc.

The Scotiadoc was equipped with radar. This modern miracle showed the steamer Burlington to the Scotiadoc's master when the Burlington was still six miles away. Yet the two vessels collided.

Captain George Morriss of the Scotiadoc told the inquiry that he did not reduce his speed "because I figured we'd be all clear."

He also told the court that he picked up his knowledge of the ship's radar from radar men who checked the set and used the radar by "trial and error" methods.

Perhaps the collision would still have occurred if the Scotiadoc's master had had intensive and expert instruction in the use of his ship's equipment. But, surely, this evidence should lead to a regulation that every ship which carries radar should also have aboard a certificated technician. Without a trained operator, the machine is of dubious value; indeed in some cases it may prove a hazard, rather than a safeguard, by promoting a false sense of security.

CITY FATHERS CAN BREATHE EASIER

We don't know whether tension has been high enough at the Bell Telephone in these past few weeks, but if it was not it most certainly should have been.

Perhaps, however, the city fathers were unaware of the fact that they were sitting on a potential time-bomb and that the fuse had been lighted by a group of fifteen merchants some three hundred miles to the west, in Chatham, Ont. Fortunately, on Wednesday the fuse was doused by Mr. Justice Danis. He refused to continue a temporary injunction which would have cancelled a City of Chatham by-law prohibiting left turns at a main intersection.

The Chatham merchants argued they were suffering because motorists were forced to detour around the intersection and in so doing passed through their competitors' area.

If they had won their case, would Belleville merchants have decided to start a similar action regarding the ban left turns at the intersection of Bridge and Front Streets?

Things could have come to a pretty pass at the noonday and late afternoon rush hours.

THE REASON FOR RED CANDIDATES?

The Labor-Progressive (Communist) Party will receive free time for electioneering over the CBC national network.

It qualified for such air-time because it has named more than 66 candidates for the general election.

If any person was puzzled as to why the Communists should be running so many candidates, this may provide the answer.

But the time the party gets on the CBC will hardly be free. The Labor-Progressives have 99 candidates in the field. Many of them will lose their deposits. They have "invested" $19,800. CBC time would be cheap at those prices if it were not for one little gadget found on all radio sets. It is known as a switch and can be turned.

ANCESTRY

My great-grandaire to me was just
Of him, his son was all I ever/ knew;
Then to his care in time my father came
And neither was the one he chose to woo.

Her father's father long before had gone
To join with all I was not born to know.
Death comes, but still the family must go on,
And will until the last of us must go.
What hopes had they who lie so far behind?
What dreams had they for us they'd never see?
Mothers and fathers, gentle, gracious, kind,
Who lived and loved that we might some day be.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The homing instinct of birds is one of the mysteries to which as yet hasn't got a clue. The latest in the quarterly publication of the American Ornothologist Union, in the latest issue published a letter from Rosario Mazzeo, Symphony Hall Boston, describing a remarkable experiment with a Manx shearwater, one of the most famous sea birds as far as homing is concerned. Mazzeo visited the distinguished English ornithologist, R.M. Lockley, at his sanctuary, Skokholm an island off the coast of Wales.

Lockley had sent a shearwater aircraft as far as Venice, and it returned to its burrow on Skokholm. It took off over the Alps, 8 hrs line by bee line, and was home in 12 hours, 19 minutes.

Mr. Mazzeo was returning to Boston by air in a few days, so Lockley caught two shearwaters and gave him a cage for Mazzeo to take with him. Despite every effort was made to good shape when taken on the train journey and the ocean flight, one of the two sea birds failed to survive. But the other was in good condition when it arrived at Logan Airport in Boston harbor. After passing customs, the bird was rushed by car to the farthest point of the airport and liberated. It flew straight to sea.

In 13 days, 12 hours and 21 minutes, having traversed 3200 miles of land and sea at the rate of 250 miles a day, the shearwater arrived at its burrow on Skokholm.

A burrow on a tiny island on the vast rockbed of many of the world is a might small target. The bird had to be found after the migration and a place entirely remote from any past acquaintance with mercy of the bird of the bird's specific ancestry. Its mileage is calculated from a straight line home. But there is no telling what vast territory it covered in its flight, until it got onto the beam, or the familiar ground, or the air currents or natural influences whatever it is that is the secret of the myriad movements of birds and fishes appointed places all over the earth.

The Robbin' Robins

(By J. F. Bourne In The Ottawa Journal)

Broiled robins—that's what I am going to order when I grow old and rich and retire and go to Florida.

And I shall eat them without misgivings, and with little pangs, homes with the relish of a gourmet dining on frogs' legs. Revenge will be that sweet.

I never thought that the day would come when I would be able to make me see red. When I recall how carelessly I used to swat them, absent-mindedly with a spell, wonder if ever again I shall regain that first fine careless rapture. This Spring I was delighted when I heard the first robin. How I could subscribe for them in letter.

When the red, red robin
Comes rob, rob, robbin' along.

That is the way the song goes, as I sing it. Robins are cheeky, piddled robbers, and because they are they are not raspberries I am vindictive.

• • •

They are cute all right. The big baby will sit down on the lawn, turn somersaults, flap its wings, put his head back, and open his mouth, as he has got a dozen like him. It is a poster picture. There he will sit until his mother flutters up, picks a raspberry, flies over to him, and drops it down his gullet. I hope it chokes him. But it doesn't. It hasn't yet. Be just gulps; his Adam's apple bobs once up and down, and he sits and waits for it to opens his mouth for more. Away his mother goes for another of my raspberries.

That is the point exactly. I did not mind robins eating cherries, and fifo year I had lots of cherry-pillars. Nothing doing. They just sat until the currants and berries are on, and then they come flocking. Fair scrumptious they look, too.

Oh, they pretend to catch bugs! A whole family of robins will fly from the back lawn and hop about under the roses, going through all the motions of fielding, cocking their little heads to one side, and, but you can't deceive me. If they are with what's? They expect you to believe that they are looking for worms in the short grass. More likely than not they are listening for you with the pea-rifle. If they don't hurt you they pretend to slip up insects invisible to the human eye, and keep hopping forward the berry bushes. Suddenly, up they jump and away they fly with your raspberries.

Robbing is an obsession with them. Once they get a taste they are back at it as soon as you turn your back. They are peridiculous things; there is no reasoning with them. They seem to know that they are protected by law.

Protected for what? I raise the question. Protected for what? Not for what then if they stop eating bugs? I submit that a robin is a robin, and that nature he prefers the dessert course to the meat dish. I have no quarrel with them, as long as they stick to bugs, there we are not competing, it is a matter of fact I am on his side. It is our struggle to see who gets the berries that alters the case.

The red currants this year I saved only by covering them with bare cotton that we had left, by wrapping up each bush I turned that part of the garden into a semblance of a fairy mansion with the furniture under dust covers. But that was one of the red currants and the raspberries suffered.

Now, when the robins cries, crossing the berry patch and tied streamers of paper on them. As long as a breeze fluttered the paper at the identical moment when a robin was trying to poise in mid-air like a humming bird the scheme worked. The breeze kept dying down.

I would have had black cape this year. It was a good year for berries, and all indications pointed to a good harvest. When the robins and the bush cherry-pulls got there first I could not work up a rage. In a way, they were entitled to the birds. That is fair enough. But where-as I have been at war between red and black raspberries the robins blithely disregarded such distinctions. Red or black were all the same to them.

First came first served is their motto. And it is the late bird that gets the raspberry! The question occurred to me.

• • •

They spoil as many berries as they eat. I have noticed the notice many of my neighbors growing gardens of berries chase robins. I think that it was A. A. Milne in an essay on fruits in which he pointed out that robins ever luscious strawberries were, to crouch under netting to get at them. The trouble then is the berries were worth.— I believe that the whole stock of gardeners who have to fight for every mouthful they get. The grim struggle for existence still goes on.

The struggle is complicated by misguided sentimentality. Too many people think of robins as pretty birds that bring spring. They don't. They are pests. They are perdifferentiated robin. When a robin raises a family, he had his hundred dollars worth. He has earned it. If they get it early it keeps growing and becomes a part of the life of the faculty as well, and it dominates the town in which that college is located. And I feel the atmosphere as soon as you contact those who make up such a college and such a town. Chicago has been called the "I will" city. An apt name, for there is a spirit there and an entire business men and enterprises that lifts anyone who has ever lived in that city a foot above the rest with spirit and determination. Let that spirit and that "I will" unfortunately slips backward. Even in a horse it's the spirited one that wins the race.

Youth is full of spirit. Never, almost in the discovery and experience that great possession be disturbed. It is tragic to see the spirit of a child or young party. Often it has meant failure in later life. Let's find out and "Keep your chin up." It's the same as saying, "Keep your spirit up."

Never say, "Don't die on third"—keep your eye on home plate. Ever see how an entire baseball team takes on new spirit the moment a ball is hit into the stands for a home run? Get the spirit into your blood and keep it there!

Jolly Fat Man Here to Stay

(Galt Reporter)

There's a campaign on against the fat man. Insurance companies and food authorities have view with alarm the increased strain on the heart and arteries and warn of the dangers of being overweight.

But the fattest ones, who long have taken refuge behind such euphemisms as "heavy-set" or "stout" men must come into the open to defend their corporations. They will take some.

For those who care to consult them there are lengthy tables of statistics to prove the danger of doom at those who carry excess poundage. They are terrifying and worry much of that poundage.

But can our national disposition afford it? The fat man, like Old King Cole, was a merry old soul. Now, it seems, it no longer is sufficient to be fat and jolly; you must be jolly without being fat.

Is it possible? The mind's eye conjures up legions of food-lovers on the slimming regimen. If they deny their bay windows their natural form of expression, they will be mentally languishing involved in this form of self-repression? Will they be a shock to families and business associates?

And what of the possible danger to the national economy? Will the "stout" people, when they no one buys their pies, their lines of uncompleted form where they were once busy factories, confectionery firms and delicatessens?

We think not. Human nature being what it is, these industries are not in much danger. The fat man, once thinned, will fatten again as his energy and appetite return. And there are always those who are not a fig for stature, who delight just enjoying themselves and let the fat come with the lean.

Many Drivers Cannot See

(Boston Post)

Norman Olman, director of the Massachusetts Safety Council, which recently conducted a survey to examine 8,000 car drivers' vision, has found in every five had serious defects of vision. Most of the owners were greatly surprised that they had any defect, and even those who knew they had defective vision said they were right; because they were glimes. Of the number examined seven glasses were found to have only half vision in each eye, and about 20-50 for normal vision, which is below the minimum standard for safe driving required in New York. Most of them, when they had new lenses put in, found all the things that are seen are temporal but the things that are seen are eternal.

The Epistle to the Hebrews they grew up to be strong, healthy men.

Now the S.P.C.A. says a fat, well-fed cat will catch as many mice as a hungry one. The state of her stomach does not alter her zest for the fascinating mice and she feels better for not eating them.

Next will we be hearing it isn't good for ducks to swim?

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

I WAS FOND OF MY SICKNESSES

A snickersnee, says Webster, is a cutting weapon.

The hideous instrument designed for the painful and unnecessary removal of the obstructing tonsils is also a snickersnee of a sort, politely called a tonsil-tome.

Dr. Brady

This operation was the routine or standard treatment for enlarged (hypertrophied) tonsils in children, in the era before the profession of medicine was converted into a business by the trick specialists and kil-mick racketeers.

Removal of the obstructing portion of tonsil with the snickersnee was a minor operation, involving no more risk to life than the extraction of a tooth and was instantaneous, whether with or without local or general anesthesia. It relieved the few symptoms that were amenable to surgery.

The tonsillotome (accent the sill) is like a large economy size hypodermic needle. The cutting in the handle for the doctor's thumb and two rings about the first and second middle fingers.

A fourth ring at the finger end of the handle holds which, when the doctor places the ring around the portion of tonsil he wishes to cut off, snickersnee, at the same instant two prongs penetrate and hold the severed tissue.

This takes it jiffy.

The ever ready operations will be amused if they continue to venture to set about this alternative for the formidable operation. That is why one you can't say I didn't warn you.

"In the year-book of 1924 a surgical tonsil" stated in authoritative textbook of "Diseases of the Nose and Throat (Kyle) which was standard before the profession of medicine became a business, "it must be remembered that it is not a new growth but simply an enlargement of a physiological structure."

If I have said anything in these talks about enlarged tonsils that is even debatable it is the stubborn fact that many physicians or physicians who may thing to to answer the charge or to endeavor to correct the misrepresentation as publicly as possible. I'll give as much space to any reply a reputable physician may care to make as I am permitted to use in this column — modifying or withholding the physician's name as he or she may stipulate.

If I have already made it clear I beg to explain that these are hasty jottings and invite physicians who may question my teachings to dispute them in this column.

SPIRIT

Break a man's spirit and you break him. Take a basket-ball team, a city engaged in war or a nation as a whole—if each is inspired with spirit there is practically nothing that can stop them. That was a very appropriate name that Charles Lindbergh gave to the plane that carried him non-stop from New York to Paris—"The Spirit of St. Louis."

With an inspired spirit a person is constantly excelling himself! One of the great gods of the Indians was the "Great Spirit." Spirit is a person is his exalted soul. Something quite apart from his material frame. We hear a great deal about college spirit. Every college girl is proud of it. If they get it early it keeps growing and becomes a part of the life of the faculty as well, and it dominates the town in which that college is located. And I feel the atmosphere as soon as you contact those who make up such a college and such a town. Chicago has been called the "I will" city. An apt name, for there is a spirit there and an entire business men and enterprises that lifts anyone who has ever lived in that city a foot above the rest with spirit and determination. MEN OF FAITH

What is faith?

A young questioner answered this question by saying that "faith is believing what isn't true." His understandable mistake was due to the fact that he believed the things he saw in the world are the things that can be seen; but the Bible tells us that the things that are seen are temporal but the things that are seen are eternal.

The Epistle to the Hebrews defines faith as follows: "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, a test of things not seen." Faith is the power which enables us to believe that which cannot be proved by the senses. Faith is the power which enables us to add our efforts to the efforts of the Creator and so continue the process of creation. Faith involves believing in Him in whom we make our dreams come true. The Bible points us to a host of great things, believing that we will receive them.

This belief that we will receive them—in fact, the belief that we have already received them—is faith. Man can do very little forward making things happen in this world, but that man without faith usually finds his plans failing and his life filled with an aching sense of failure. The world's great achievers are always men of faith.

Mouse Diet Bad for Cats

(Windsor Star)

Research continues to gnaw at the mouse problem. Here's one instance, just the other day the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals announced from Toronto that mice aren't good for cats. They're carriers of toxoplasmosis, a general debility, and things like that.

Information of this kind strikes hard, and it may be well for cats themselves not to be kept from learning of it. Most of us have recollections of a fascinating family life by that would bring home mouse after mouse for her successive litters of kittens. Many would play mouse-hunt and tug-of-war with each captive, then eat it. And

Diamonds', Color Can be Altered By Atom Experts

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. atomic energy commission has proved it can change the color of diamonds but it isn't changing colors any more.

After bombarding 200 diamonds with radiation and thereby changing their color, the AEC has stopped, temporarily at least.

A fellow at the AEC said Thursday the commission wants to size things up and determine the policy before tampering with diamonds. So he said he knew nothing of a "report that the AEC had quit test it threw the whole diamond industry in a tizzy.

But Dr. George Switzer, a gem expert for the Smithsonian Institution, said:

"The situation already has the jewelry trade in a stew."

PICTON

Board Accepts Public School Building Tender

PICTON—The tender of the W. A. Brown Construction Co., Toronto, for construction of the new public school in Picton, has been tentatively accepted by Picton Public School Board. The acceptance is based on approval by the Department of Municipal Affairs and the Ontario Department of Education. The successful tender was the lowest of eight received and was for the sum of $278,250. Second lowest tender was that of the McFarland Construction Co. of Picton at $285,605 which is $9,318 higher.

Prior to the calling of tenders, applicants were notified that the lowest tender would be accepted, if conditions were adhered to and the municipal authorities approved. The successful tendering firm is building a number of schools in western Ontario.

Other tenders were received from Bennett-Pratt, Ltd., Richard and B. A. Ryan, St. Lawrence Construction Co., M. Sullivan and Sons, Tinlines, Ltd., Bradford Hoxal Ltd. Top tender was $337,500. As soon as the tender is approved, the town will proceed to issue debentures, and work cannot commence until the money is raised. This may require two months and the successful tendering company has agreed to extend the 30-day period of its tender to another month.

The new school is required due to over-crowding which makes it necessary to hold classes in five different places in town. It will be built on the site of the old Collegiate which burned and is now demolished.

It will be a one-storey structure with 20,000 square feet of floor space, 784 by 26 feet with extensions, brick and steel walls; glass doors, steel sash and hollow roofing. Architects are Page and Steele, Toronto.

A new collegiate institute is being built here by the McFarland Co. and will be ready for accommodation late in the fall as work is proceeding very rapidly.

Prairie Provinces Report Good Duck-Breeding Season

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

WINNIPEG (CP)—City folk in Western Canada have had plenty of fun this summer in grumbling about "nice weather for ducks." Rain has fallen just about every day at many points.

Ducks Unlimited comes up with the information that there has been too much rain even for ducks in some areas.

In its periodic report, "The Duck-Official," the organization says there has been too much water in southern Alberta.

"Many eggs have been seen floating in potholes and lakes," says western manager R. M. Hartley in his report. "I have seen abandoned nests due to floods."

However, the report in general paints a rosy picture for duck hunters. Most districts in all provinces have more ducks breeding than last year.

In the three Prairie provinces, 137 of the 240 districts reporting said there are more ducks breeding in the respective areas than in 1952. A total of 179 districts reported good prospects for the breeding season.

Hay Trade

With the fishing season in full swing around Kenora, Ont., Rex Kitaly of Barnes Lumber, hopes to create a plane service, report the tourist trade is really booming.

"If we can fill the planes from the American accents on the plane dock . . . passengers are the big summer business."

The American sportsmen are flown to camps within a 50-mile radius of Kenora, and as more camps are opening all the time, the fliers report passenger trade is rising steadily.

Fishing Moves

The bustling community of La Ronge, Sask., 145 miles north of Prince Albert, opened to the fur trade by explorer Peter Pond in 1790, last year attracted about 8,000 tourists.

Just a few years ago, La Ronge was a northern settlement, virtually unheard of, on the verge of the pre-cambrian shield and accessible only by air or canoe through a maze of lakes and streams.

Since a highway from Prince Albert has reached the village, however, it has developed into a thriving fishing mecca.

Building Boom

The road completion sparked a mammoth building boom. La Ronge's main street, which winds for two miles along the shore of the lake's many bays, is dotted with groups of new cabins. Facilities for fishermen have doubled each year since the road was built.

It is estimated that 70 per cent of the anglers who visited Lac La Ronge in 1952 were tourists from the American accents on the plane dock . . . passengers are the big summer business."

The American sportsmen are flown to camps within a 50-mile radius of Kenora, and as more camps are opening all the time, the fliers report passenger trade is rising steadily.

Fishing Moves

The bustling community of La Ronge, Sask., 145 miles north of Prince Albert, opened to the fur trade by explorer Peter Pond in 1790, last year attracted about 8,000 tourists.

Just a few years ago, Lac La Ronge was a northern settlement, virtually unheard of, on the verge of the pre-cambrian shield and accessible only by air or canoe through a maze of lakes and streams.

Since a highway from Prince Albert has reached the village, however, it has developed into a thriving fishing mecca.

Water Consumption During Recent Heat Wave Shows Big Increase

Railway President Remains Opposed To Seaway Plan

NEW YORK (AP)—The president of the New York Central Railroad has declined to go along with a suggestion by a U. S. senator that eastern railroads start fighting against the St. Lawrence seaway project.

Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem.-Minn.) wrote President William Wallace asking that the railroads "exhibit statesmanship in the national interest" regarding the seaway. He said the Eisenhower cabinet had given it full support.

Railway Head Replies

In a letter written July 21 and released Thursday, White replied to Humphrey:

"Such as the representative of a $2,000,000,000 corporation and as a private citizen and taxpayer, I am convinced the St. Lawrence seaway is something that we do not need . . .

"I cannot for the life of me understand why we would want to grant tax exempt to incur debt for a seaway that would be largely used only by foreign-owned vessels; that would be ice-bound for about five months out of 12; that would put cheap foreign labor in competition with well-paid American labor; would build up the port of Montreal in competition with American ports; that would be built without any of the normal arms of national defence—namely it is inland; and lastly, that would make necessary the defence of another channel of commerce, at time of war, to some extent at least comparable to the defence of the Panama canal and the Suez."

"We have in this country the cheapest transportation available anywhere in the world . . ."

No Meet Planned

Humphrey had written to White, believing eastern railroad presidents were to meet in Washington July 21 to determine their position regarding the seaway. White said the presidents' conference had planned no meeting for July 21 or any other time to discuss the matter.

Plea that State Develop Power Voiced by Dewey

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. Senator Dewey voiced with New York Governor Thomas Dewey's vigorous plea that the job be turned over to New York state.

The Senate public works committee recessed Thursday after hearing the New York governor urge Congress, over objections by his state should develop the 9400,000,000 project in co-operation with the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

Makes No Prediction

Dewey took a plane back to New York last night. He declined to predict what action the committee would take.

Dewey insisted to the senators that New York had an "indisputable" right to undertake the project, but the same time he contended that turning it over to private utilities would result in higher rates to power consumers.

The House of Representatives has approved a bill that would authorize five New York utilities to seek a license from the Federal Power Commission to carry out the project.

Private utilities, Dewey argued, "propose to take away our cheap power" and "sell it back to us at vastly increased prices." He said that would be "the rankest injustice I know."

SMITH—RATHBUN

C. Smith. The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. C. Macleod, uncle of the bride, assisted by Rev. H. B. Cook, Consecon. The church was beautifully decorated in summer flowers. Given in marriage by her father, she was lovely in a gown of beautifully fashioned nuptial lace with matching veil and fingertip length veil of pleated nylon net. The bridal attire set off the fitted bodice, trimmed at the back with satin buttons to below the waist. The sleeves were long and tapered. Fingertip veil was held in place by a Juliet cap trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink roses, nestled in a cluster of blue tulle.

SEES HUGE GROWTH

EDMONTON (CP)—Mrs. George Walbourn, who recently celebrated her 93rd birthday, can remember when Edmonton had a population of 250 and all around seemed to be solid bush." She moved west with her husband in 1881 and reached here on the second train from Calgary.

Regents' Struggle for Power in England Often Resulted in Violence, Bloodshed

LONDON (Reuter) — England has seen a number of regents since the Norman conquest in 1066, many of them powerful, over-ambitious men.

Their control of the throne, because of the Sovereign's youth or insanity often produced bloodshed and a bitter struggle for power among rival claimants.

A few regents, most of them in the early days, honestly upheld the crown as the protectors of the realm."

Interest in England's past and past regents has been revived since the government's announcement that the 1937 Regency Act will be amended later this year. The changes would make the Duke of Edinburgh regent if, for any reason, Queen Elizabeth II could not perform the functions of Sovereign.

First Known as "Justiciar"

England's first regents, known as "justiciars", were competent lively good rulers who wielded considerable power. William the Conqueror introduced the system as a convenience so that he could be away from his native land his beloved Normandy.

During Duke Lawrence, Odo of Bayeux established a high reputation for handling the affairs of state.

The Norman King's son, William II who succeeded his father in 1087, appointed Ralph Flambard Regent Ranulf Flambard held supreme power when the king was abroad and maintained complete control of judicial and financial matters when the Monarch was at home.

But trouble flared up in the kingdom about 20 years later when Henry I, known as the Fine-hearted, went off to fight in the Crusades. He left the government in the control of two men, the Bishop of Durham in north England and the Earl of Essex for the South.

Empress Unpopular

Richard asked his chancellor William de Longchamps to supervise the arrangements. Longchamps promptly installed himself as supreme ruler of both church and state. His reign was unpopular. Richard's jealous brother John, who signed the Magna Carta in 1215, had no trouble in starting a rebellion and seizing the throne.

Henry VI's grandson of the henpecked Anjou caused two regencies. First became he inherited the throne when he was nine months old and second because of his temporary absence in the Holy Land.

During the first of these regencies, his uncle John, Duke of Bedford, ruled in France and the freshly-conquered duchy of Normandy.

When Henry lost his mind, the Duke of York became regent and tried to remove from the throne. His own ambition to become king only led to death in battle in 1460.

Bearded Henry VIII's sickly son Edward VI inherited the throne in 1547 at the age of ten to set off a stormy period in the Royal succession. He was the son of Jane Seymour, one of Henry's many wives.

The Duke of Somerset, Jane Seymour's brother, failed as regent to prevent a rebellion. He was ousted in 1222 and beheaded by the Duke of Northumberland who nurtured a pet scheme for his son's advancement.

Northumberland's son wed Lady Jane Grey, Edward's cousin, to whom the sickly monarch left his crown upon his death at 16.

Catholics Persecuted

But the rightful heiress to the crown was Mary, daughter of Henry VIII and Catherine of Aragon, an ardent Roman Catholic. She soon deposed Lady Jane, cemented her and began her ruthless persecution of Protestants which earned her the name Bloody Mary.

George III, who suffered in late life from insanity, made his frivolous son regent in 1811.

The son, who ascended the throne as George IV on his father's death in 1820 is chiefly remembered for the fantastic and extravagant parties he held at Brighton and for his many taleframes and creditors.

Queen Victoria named her husband, Prince Consort Albert, regent for fear she would die before her son Edward VII came of age.

Come as You Are' Party Given For Mrs. Vickers

They called it a "Come As You Are" party. It was a farewell party to one of the "girls" and there wasn't a male in sight.

The party was given for Mrs. Fred Vickers, 85 Gordon Street, who has left for Winter Park, Florida, where she will remain for three months with her son, Alan, an umpire in the Florida Baseball League.

"Come As You Are" parties are not new but this one had an original touch.

It took place at seven o'clock in the evening and the hostess called for her guests and literally took them "as they were".

This reporter was told that the girls attended in all sorts of dress. Kimonos, house-dresses, pajamas of varying hues, with hair curlers, hair nets and bathrobe over nighties. The "hair-do" varied from a hurried attempt to unremoved curlers. Slippers were popular.

The refreshments consisted of coffee, tea and doughnuts.

But the "Come As You Are" party was only the beginning for Mrs. Vickers. That same evening, after a dinner guest of Mrs. Mary Cardaud. Later she was a party guest at the Bon Mots Georges Fozzen at the 9th Anti Tank Regiment sergeants' mess.

ANCIENT AND MODERN

EDMONTON (CP)—The staff of a sewing-machine booth at the Edmonton Exhibition blinked when Harold Fryer threaded them a 40 chins patented in 1884. Experts believed it to be one of the first portable models. It uses a curved needle and is operated with one hand.

SEAGOING CHIEF

VANCOUVER (CP)—Capt. S. G. Dahlquist of the motorship Canada had some unexpected lodgers on the ship's maiden voyage. He wore a feather headdress after being inducted into the Indian Tribe as Big-Chief-That-Stands-Out-In-The-Ocean.

Poodles Legalized

Poodles was legalized by King Gundobald of Burgundy in 516, but condemned by Pope Nicholas I and many of his successors.

Vanilla-Flavored Icecream Most Popular Survey Shows

For all the variety of flavors in ice cream that are offered by manufacturers, it would appear that the ice cream buyer in the city still prefer vanilla, a survey of retailers has revealed.

Following close upon the heels of vanilla is the second choice, chocolate. Dealers estimate vanilla ice cream outsells chocolate three to one in the city. Apparently the liking for vanilla is general across the country according to reports.

Some merchants in Belleville find chocolate occasionally leads in the sale of the vanilla, flavor, but this occurs only at intermittent periods and does not last. The third best seller is strawberry. Another, which is a great demand, whenever it can be obtained is the banana flavor. One storekeeper advised that when banana flavoring was in stock, no one bought anything else. Banana ice cream, apparently, is "tops".

South of the border they take their ice cream seriously. In some places, libraries and coffee ice cream may be purchased. The librarian is actually a black face cream cone. Both flavors, according to reports, are not favored where vanilla is.

Ice cream has long been recognized by nutritionists as being high in food value. A milk shake, for instance, with ice cream beaten into a liquid and the two well mixed, with added flavoring, is said to contain as many calories as a meal. Ice cream alone is extremely high in calorie value, and it doesn't matter which flavor.

Quinte W. I. Enjoys Talk on Foods, Florida Travelogue

The regular meeting of Quinte Women's Institute was held at Front Road Church Hall with 35 present.

Mrs. Sandercock, the president, opened the meeting. A few minutes silent prayer in memory of Mrs. Charles Grass, Sr., a member who passed away recently, was held.

Mrs. Myrtle Gresitrix took the motto "Home keeping hearts are happiest" and she followed into her subject most effectively and spoke on the foundation of the home, the family, mentally and spiritually, especially in regards to the children. Mrs. Gresitrix and daughter, Mrs. McKinnon, home economists, who gave an interesting talk on canning, producing and products, supper dishes, buying and the activities of homemaker with emphasis on guide stones as food rules including milk for everyone, sunshine fruits, fresh vegetables, cereal, fish, meat and eggs, and various ways of using them to avoid monotony; by varying the dishes, and making them attractive to look at by blending color.

Mrs. Blanche Reid and her daughter, June, favored with a duet with Bennie Parrott accompanying.

Mr. Wyatt was also introduced and gave a delightful talk on his trip to Florida, he gave the history of Miami and Miami Beach, highways across swamp; how hotels were built in such a short space of time and all the high lights—the sights as well as selling of the Seminole Indians and harvest jungle. His talk was most enlightening and interesting.

Mrs. Sandercock thanked both Mrs. Reid and Mr. Wyatt for their fine talks.

Refreshments served by Mrs. Reid and her daughter was enjoyed. Mrs. Sandercock gave a reading and Mrs. Reid gave the answer for the roll call—exchange of recipes.

Glamorous Model Overcame Handicap to Achieve Ambition

By JOAN BARBERIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Most ugly ducklings just need a little encouragement to get up and give the swans a run for their money.

That's the opinion of a glamorous Chicago model, Suzette Bauder, of low beauty height, the right clothes and a large dose of encouragement and help was responsible for one woman," says Suzette.

"And confidence," she adds, "can be her to be a happy and charming personality." Unlike way-out Hollywood, Suzette likes all takes work.

Dark-eyed Suzette should know, because she recalls leaving a Chicago photographer's studio in tears after he told her bluntly she was anything but photogenic.

The petite, 5-foot model was a sensitive teen-ager then, overweight by almost 20 pounds and with teeth she thought were a calamity. She was tall, too—five feet eight inches.

Still Determined

However, Suzette was still determined to be a model. Her father disapproved, but she took a job as a cashier and put her money and spare time into training. She attended a finishing school and eventually, 20 pounds lighter, Suzette was back again, under by Chicago photographers.

Suzette started as a life guard, as a model in a shop on Chicago's swank Michigan Boulevard, near Elizabeth Arden. She's been a dress buyer and an instructor at the Elizabeth Stevens Modelling School in Chicago.

Suzette now has other ambitions—she wants to help handicapped girls. She has already done some work of this type in Chicago.

"Naturally," said Suzette, "physiotherapists and psychiatrists do a lot of wonderful things these days for handicapped persons, but I've discovered what to wear, how to do their hair and hundreds of professional beauty 'know-hows' do not come into the field of the physiotherapist or the psychiatrist."

Suzette feels it's a pity such emphasis has been put on glamour through advertising and movies.

"It's been overdone," she said, "and it makes things extra hard for a girl who isn't pretty, or is deformed."

Suzette has just arrived in Toronto to instruct at a finishing school.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

A lot of us are getting pretty well fed up with the news and photographs of hundreds of motor accidents in the daily press. Every Tom, Dick and Harry, whether he's a drunken or reckless driver, gets the headlines . . . but the brave young men who are wounded and killed in action in Korea are listed in small print and hidden away in the back of the newspapers. Yet these men really are our heroes.

It seems to us that more stories about our Canadian fighting men would interest readers now, including the constant patter about the consequences of young smart alecs and drunken fools.

Effective Spray

Giving your own jalopy a complete paint job, is something of an achievement. Often such a project can turn out to be disconcerting. A friend tells us he was driving along through downtown Montreal recently when he saw a car completely painted dark blue including all the windows. In front of the driver was a small square patch, scratched clean, of paint to allow the driver to see out.

Apparently this amateur had got hold of a spray gun and didn't know about masking off the areas before letting the paint fly. Presumably he was on his way downtown to buy some paint remover.

No Mere Pressing

A new chemical process has been developed whihh can produce a cloth that is absolutely grease resistant and flame resistant. It doesn't need ironing after washing and dries in a couple of hours. It has the strength and shapeliness of nylon and the weight and fit of wool.

This wonder cloth is now made in the U.S. It will soon be turned out in Canada at a large plant now being built by Imperial Chemical Company at Millhaven near Kingston.

Old Stuff

There is a saying that, "By the time a man or a woman is 30, they should know something about life and by the time they are 40, they should have something."

It would seem that when a person is 30 he should know a good deal and have laid by a little. How easy this would be if we could all succeed in living a little below our income, instead of away beyond it.

Uncle Freelance says the only way to get away from a bear is to race downhill. Bears have short front legs and cannot run downhill without falling on their noses, we're told.

Much Red Tape Canadian Soldier Must Marry His Korean Wife Second Time

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA, July 25—Wed legally more than 1½ years and with an infant son, Corporal Gilles Grenier of Montreal is getting married all over again.

The Army says it wants to bear Canadian bells ring.

Mr. Grenier has come all the way from Korea to Japan for the 30-month tour of duty to say "I do" to Miss Kim Yong Sook, a girl he married take his Korean wife back home with him to Canada.

The 26-year-old corporal, who survived three engagements with shrapnel splits, lost his heart finally to winsome, 23-year-old Hee Balk-Wha of Seoul, a graduate nurse.

Paper Barricade

Now in charge of the medical supplies section of the 26th Canadian General Transport Company, RCASC, he has worked his way through the almost insurmountable paper barricade of formalities that protects all soldier's wives going abroad. He now has the Army's permission to marry Hee Wife.

The date is set tentatively for Friday, July 31, and the couple hopes to have Maj. J. J. Valois, the 1st Commonwealth Division's senior Roman Catholic chaplain, officiate.

The Greniers met near Uijongbu 17 miles north of Seoul, in 1951 when the corporal was given charge of the medical inspection room at the brigade's then newly-established NCO's school.

Hee Balk-Wha's civilians took ailment and injury to the sympathetic Canadian but finally had to seek help from the Korean chief of the 1 corps mobile civilian hospital in Uijongbu.

Miss Hee, graduate in nursing from the Severance Teaching Hospital in Seoul, a Canadian missionary hospital, was assigned. Together they treated an average of 250 patients a month.

Learns to Be Barber

The nurse spoke no English. The French-speaking Canadian knew only what English he had picked up since joining the Army the year before. But they got along fine.

In time they were married at the Seoul registry office, and then the romance was related. He told his wife he would send for her.

In Canada the paper barricade materialized. Finally Grenier compiled for return to Korea. His present wedding certificate, Maj. Jean Hesnion of London, Ont., proved sympathetic and helpful.

But in Seoul the corporal discovered in April his wife had despaired of seeing him again and gone to live with a friend at Chunchon.

He found her through a radio station announcement. Three days later she was in Seoul with Chief. So, their son, whom Grenier saw for the first time, their family will have spent weekends together.

Hopes For Transfer

Soldiers may draw only $25 a month and there are no facilities for raising families in Army units.

After the wedding, however, Mrs. Grenier will qualify for Army dependents' allowances, which will reduce their worries. But the corporal hopes for a transfer to Kure, Japan, before this year is out that his wife may learn English and study Canadian ways at classes sponsored there by the Canadian Red Cross for Japanese war brides.

"July 31 is going to be a great day for all the Greniers," Grenier says.

"Father and mother are going to be married and the baby is going to be christened. We're going to call him Georges."

WOMEN BEST DRIVERS

TORONTO (CP)—Reginald Scotland, president of the Association of Toronto Driving Schools, says there would be fewer traffic accidents if men drove as smoothly as women. He said four times as many women as men are taking driving lessons from the more than 100 Toronto area driving schools.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

It Takes Two To Make A Happy Marriage

No truer words were ever spoken than these which say that it takes two to make a quarrel.

But, even though it takes two man may now have made a perfect of it is the same way, it's just exactly as true that it takes two to make a happy marriage. Suppose variety of the name, that is; not just an armed truce.

This being so, the woman comes to the realization that life with her husband is going to be just one of those armed truces, rather than a relationship of love and understanding, because he won't do his part to make it so, what she does next depends on how much power her husband really means to her. If she loves him too much to be able to live with him unhappily, then she will choose the armed truce instead of a separation from him. If, on the other hand, she doesn't love him this much, she is likely to decide to go, on the theory that he is the one responsible for maintaining that truce is just not worth the effort.

One woman who realizes that it takes two to make a quarrel and peace tells me that after about five years of happy marriage she "everything started falling apart". Instead of the previous comfortable companionship in which she and her husband had always had, he began to spend half his evenings in a local bar, leaving her to her own devices.

Rough Close

"The people he associates with now," she writes, "are rough talkers and drinkers and acting. They drink heavily and frither away their pay on card games. I feel that my husband is picking up all their habits. A few times, I do hope that it I'll be acquainted with these people I might be able to see how to straighten things out with my husband. I went with him, and I was ashamed of my husband's actions and the way they acted. Because I guess I couldn't conceal how disgusted I was, my husband was very angry at me and said I treated all his friends like dirt. Which I weren't good enough for me.

"Well, they aren't, and they shouldn't be good enough for him either, only he seems to have changed so much that I don't even see it, or else he won't admit it.

"I've done everything I can to make him want to be home or, if he wants to go out, for us to go out together. I've asked him, I've used to, but nothing I say or do has any effect. He says I feel too much at the point where I will have to do something definite, even if it means leaving him. Because I can't see that there is anything for either of us in the kind of married life we now have. Besides that, I'm going to have to do something about my health, and money, because so much of his weekly pay check goes into liquor and card games that I'm afraid if things go on this way, we're going to be in a financial mess."

I worked before we were married, and I feel sure I could get my old job back, or at least some kind of job with my old employer because two or three times they've asked me if I didn't want to go back to work. But I feel all in a muddle, and keep wondering just what to do.

"Do you think I ought to be satisfied to keep on doing the best I can to get up with him and hope for on, in the hope that perhaps some day my husband will wake up and realize where it is all leading us, or should I just call it a day and go out on my own? I feel so much I do still love my husband, but one person alone cannot make a happy marriage. It takes two."

How Deep Is My Love

So, to go back to what I said at the beginning, what this wife will have to do, like every other wife in the same sort of situation, is to answer for herself the question: 'Just how deep is my love for my husband? Do I love him so much that the thought of life without him is intolerable, or can I face quite calmly a future from which he will be missing."

In spite of her statement that she still loves her husband, her letter in general gives the impression that she is not one of those wives whose lives would be unbearably empty if they had to go it alone. On the contrary, I get the feeling that, if she did decide to leave him, she would have the strength of character to refuse to let her marital failure poison the rest of her life and to pick herself up and go on to happier things in the fact that she is already thinking about plans further supports the evidence that she would not have too great difficulty adjusting herself to a change.

What I would suggest for the present moment is that she go back into business without leaving her husband immediately, and wait to see what effect such a step would have upon him. If she did this without giving a moral lecture about being forced into it by his irresponsible behavior; without, indeed, any comment or explanation whatever, but just leaving him to draw his own conclusions and so his own way, it just possibly might, in not too long a time, open his eyes and his mind. If it didn't and she felt hopeless about the future, she could be better off apart, she would be in a position to do the planning at the independence she would then have to develop in full.

Question:

I am planning a bridal shower for approximately 12 the end of this month and would appreciate any suggestions and recipes for a delicious but easy to prepare lunch. The general lunch at showers I have attended has been a "covered dish" luncheon salad, fruit bread, dessert and beverage, and I had something similar in mind, but would like to have your original suggestions, as much the better. —Mrs. D. S.

Answer:

I would suggest you make Individual Cheese-Frosted Sandwich loaves and place them on trays in the kitchen and garnish with celery hearts, carrot curls, potato chips, pickles, red green olives and radishes and parsley. These are very attractive. You may want to provide ice cream and cake too but I think that 12 to 16 have a large small strips of good fruit cake and a few nuts finely pulsi fruit to coconut macaroons and coffee would be ample.

Individual Cheese-Frosted Sandwich Loaves

These are ideal for shower or bridge or evening refreshments.

Take 12 to 16 two or three day sandwich loaf cut into 6 lengthwise slices (this does not include the crust). Spread with soft butter or margarine.

Filling: Mix until of spreading consistency, 1 cup cream cheese, 2 tbsp. of the buttered slices. Sandwich 3 back together, two unbuttered. Spread this on another two slices. Put the third buttered slice on top of the chicken-spread slices and top these with a buttered slice. Cut each sandwich loaf into 7 or 8 individual loaves crosswise. Each one of these is now "iced" with a cheese frosting made by softening 3 ounce packages of white cream cheese with milk until of consistency to spread. Add 1 tbsp. of cream, 1 tsp. of grated onion and 1 tsp. of finely chopped parsley. Spread on top and sides of each individual loaf as you would ice a cake. If you are handy with the pastry bag, you can make a fluted edge around the top of each loaf. Garnish with sprigs of parsley, or decorate with little rosettes of cream, or match-stick thin slices of dill pickle.

Question:

Your recipes are proving most helpful. In making plain black currant jam, how much sugar should be used for every cup of fruit? In making jam what causes a surplus of juice? What can be done with this juice? I've tried using it for drinks, adding water, but juice does not stay mixed with the water. I made rhubarb and pineapple jam and had about 3/4 pint of surplus of juice after boiling [an] 45 minutes. Lots of rain so thunderstorms. Will have a continued boiling until jam quite thick? Had I done so fruit would have been mushy. What proportion is in recipe will it top the flavor of the fruit? I do not like the taste on flavor preferring the fresh fruit flavor. My recipe for Rhubarb-Pineapple Jam is 4 cups rhubarb, 1 1-4 cups (1 can) crushed pineapple, drained, 2 oranges, 2 lemons juice only, 6 cups sugar. Put all ingredients in kettle, let stand 2 hours, stir well. Heat slowly and bring to boil, boil on medium heat 40 minutes. When thick and clear pour into glasses and seal when cool. Your advice would be appreciated.

Answer:

Black currants contain so much pectin that there is added water.

Black Currant Jam

Wash and remove tiny blossom end from black currants and measure. To 1 cup fruit add five cups water and bring to boil uncovered and boil 15 minutes. Add 4 cups sugar and bring to boil stirring, then boil for 8 minutes more. Test for jelly stage on cold saucer. Be satisfied with a soft jell tests as black currants jell very quickly. Remove from heat, skim the jam to the bottom of the jars to keep lids at top but most people like that feature. Wait for continued answer next week.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beekman

Shavers . . . A Trifle That Is Deluge!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Help, please! As my enthusiasm for my daughter-in-law is, I think, I've over-extended on one count. My husband and I had planned to give my son and his bride-to-be a quite considerable gift (cash for us) wedding present, and we also planned to give the rehearsal dinner or supper party. Both came the first shower, which was given quite far ahead of the wedding date. I was invited to this, and thinking that of course this would be the only shower to which I would be invited, I bought her very lovely and expensive gift and took it to the shower. Now nearer to the wedding date, I've been invited to four more showers—four! —and I even hear more may come. What shall I do? Would it be absolutely out-of-order for me to regret those I have to, and stay away from them, and so not have to plan on giving more shower presents? If you advise I must accept and do what would bother me most is set me to work to plan for the best in showers as beautiful and expensive presents as I can afford. I took to what I thought would be the "only" shower. What about this, Mrs. Beeckman?

Mother-in-law-to-be.

First, to show your courtesy and your social graciousness and your appreciation of the hospitality being offered to you, you just must, if possible, accept all these shower invitations. Then, at two or three pleasant thing to do, all around. Don't confuse the issue by going to the high and expensive standard of your first shower present . . . skip up your imagination and plan for each of these showers on inexpensive but a charmingly thoughtful and useful little something. Today there are so many wonderful and useful gadgets for kitchen and the late-afternoon party-service and for buffet parties. Make no comments, please, to the guest of honor or other shower guests, for differences between these presents (actions appropriate for shower presents) and your first shower gift.

Practical Procedure For Tentative-seating

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have just come to this resort to stay several weeks. There is a Summer Stock theatre quite near here, and we would like to invite some friends each week or every other week to drive with us to this theatre. Last evening we were discussing this question: Should the host, after he has given the tickets to the usher, also let the usher have a code him down the aisle—that is, the guests directly following the usher?

Reader

Not necessarily. It depends on circumstances. This is an entirely proper procedure, but it is not always work out as the practical thing for the host to do. He might be, and very often is, much more practical for the host to give the tickets to the usher, and then, rather than hold up the procedure in

Beauty

By HELEN JAMESON

Ringlet In Make-Up Changes

Stand-patters and die-hards who stick to the same make-up pattern, and cling to a hairdo that has seen its best days, make no progress along the beauty road. When the good looks parade marches by they are sitting on the side lines. The woman who would be up and at the well models in the cosmetic counter now and then to get her-self a new shade of rouge and lipstick. Cosmetic chemists are making new offerings all the time and it is just well. If not considerably better, to keep in touch with what is going on in the pulchritude industry.

There is a good rule; accent your natural skin coloring and choose your drug store blushes and lip coloring according to the shade of frock you are wearing. Don't overlook the red that rouges or lipstick color of which is likely to have an effect upon your complexion. All this is exciting and that's good for your. Spends my circulation.

Getting the right powder is important and it should change with the seasons. In mid-summer you may be a bit pale and may need a pinky-pale complexion. If you turn into a golden girl then, in late summer months you have to change to a deep rachelle or a light tan powder.

Powder must never be lighter than your natural color. If it is, it will not fulfill the mission for which it was intended and you will only achieve a pasty look.

The girl with the sallow complexion finds perfect powders difficult and then mix with it a little flesh-colored powder to give the spiderwal cost more life and character. Besides, usually of the opinion that only flesh tints are for them, she would do well to consider a powder with a golden cast.

The girl who has sun-bathed until her face is toasted should not use a face powder at all. Powder not one with a slight orange cast Between rouge and lipstick there should be color harmony, and fingertips should match up in a pretty manner. No sense staging a color fight.

When Black is worn at a festive evening affair make-up can be more dramatic than usual.

The smart woman has several shades of rouge and lipstick.

Heyday of London's Bargain Sales Appears to be Over

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The post-war heyday of London's bargain sales appears to be over. Reports from summer sales indicated that easy pickings are a thing of the past.

Bargain "snips" went to overnight queuers, to women with figures outside sizes 40 and 42, to those willing to pay £3 and up. Working women with £3 ($8.40) to £3 to spend—and a good scene of it in Selfridge's, Oxford Street and frayed tempers were the sum total of a day's bargain hunting.

No repetition seems probable of the golden post-war days, when stores cleared stock rather than lose out to the sudden rage for Dior's "new look." Fashions now change more slowly.

Higher-Price Range

Good bargains invariably are found in higher-priced clothes that are calculated by each new fashion range and garments originally sold at £20 to £40 can be bought for £8 apiece and under. Even though these still are the latest thing in fashion there is the average office worker, they are buys that few can afford.

In department stores of repute, suits and coats with known labels sold at £9 instead of £15 to £18 guineas. Silk dresses were £9, down from £14 to £22. £3 jersey dresses sold at half-price and model summer dresses were £5 to £6.

Those who wanted something expensive could get a Canadian squirrel coat slashed from the original £396 to £222.

There were good bargains in millinery. Many stylish bonnets were priced at 10 shillings and 15 shillings.

Poor Style, Quality

But many of the so-called lower-priced bargains in suits, summer dresses and coats were poor in style and quality. Shoppers could leave well-known department stores, selling half-price cotton dresses at £2, for starchy months at stores, showing gaily-printed rayons at £1 and even a quarter as the every-day price of 20 shillings.

Right through crowded stores for indifferent sales dressed, when the night comers, in women with figures outside sizes 40 and 42, to those willing to pay £3 and up. Many more . . . ahead of the opening date, spot an article they like and queue at the door giving them quickest entry to the corner concerned. More and more are leaving stores empty-handed if they can't get what they want at a price they are prepared to pay.

More men have taken to bargain hunting for wives with children, sales girls say. Apparently they are alert at spotting good bargains, and women become familiar about buying women's clothes. Nor are they so prone to buy anything in sight as they once were, just because the price has been sharply reduced.

Resurging Boston Red Sox Grab Twin Wins To Climb Into Third Place

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVEN, Sports Editor

BASEBALL TONIGHT!

The Regent baseball juniors chucked away a glorious chance to add another notch in their victory guns last night. They rammied home a four-run lead in the first inning against the Trenton Flyers and then let the fly-boys whittle away at the margin until they drew up on even terms. Tonight the kids entertain Johnny "Muscles" Mowatt and his variegated gang from the village of Bloomfield and this should be one for the book. The tilt takes place at the C.N.R. Recreation Field and gets under way at 6.30. The canning village cuties haven't had much luck against Bryon Reid's kids and the youngsters are out to hand them another drubbing.

CLOWN STUFF!

Al Schact, the ageless Clown Prince of Baseball, who has sent thousands of fans into near-hysteria with his funny diamond antics, figures this yarn as one of his favorite stories.

It happened when Al was playing the game and pitching for the Newark Bears against Buffalo. Joe McCarthy (now the Yankees' arch enemy) was captain of the Bisons and playing the infield. A Bison pitcher named Bader was slated to hurl the second game of a twin bill and Al told Joe he was going in against Bader because he had not been on base in six weeks and Bader always easy meat for him.

Anyway, Al goes in the second game and draws a walk.

"There is a fan," Al recalls, "who always sits behind first base hollering things at the players and he can get to be pretty funny. When I gets there, he yells, 'Mistah Al, that there is virgin territory. Don't wanduh too far."

"I turned to look his way and holler sumpin' back when Bader throws the pick me off. The ball could of got first. I dived back to the bag head first, but I am caught napping and a good throw will get me. The throw is low and wide and the ball hits me here on the hip and rolls underneath me.

"Jackson, the first baseman," Al laughed, "whoofs and starts looking for the ball. He thinks it's gone through. That fan is standing up pointin' and hollerin', 'In the ball-pen, Mistah Jackson. Out in the ball-pen.' I'm tying there and I reach and tech the ball in the ball-pen, see?

"Jackson is rubberin' around and I get up and run to second, see. Joe McCarthy in there hollerin' for the ball and they're all lookin' down towards the ball-pen and nobody see me at.

"I pull up on second and I say to Joe, 'Well I guess they don't want me.' And I dash for third.

"Now everybody's screamin' and yellin' and the crowd is hollering' and nobody knows where the ball is except me and that fan behind first base. And he's still wavin' and pointin' to the ball-pen.

"Well, I say to the third baseman, I guess they still don't want me,' and I take out for the plate and slide in like it's a close play. I rise like I reach back and dip the ball out of my pocket and let it fall.

"Out," says the umpire.

"What for? I ast him. 'The catcher dropped the ball. Didn't you see it?'

"'You're out for interference,' he says. 'I seen you dip that ball out of your pocket just now.'

"The ump makes his report to league president Ed Barrow and the next day he fines me $50 of my own money for makin' a travesty out of the game."

The story recalls some of those of the Bay of Quinte Baseball League — "clown princes", Ken (The Colonel) Dorrord, who was pitching for Picton against Napanee the big righthander suddenly walked to a spot ten feet behind the pitcher's box and there he stood there not moving while the crowd roared. The late Ken Colling, who was the base umpire, asked him what was wrong.

"Nuthin', replied the irrepressible Church. "I'm just plumb tired."

On another occasion, when catching, he went to the dugout and borrowed a catcher's mitt from a sports scribe. Everybody in the dugout wondered 'what for.' As he crouched behind the batter-Church would whisper, "Look, bud, betcha half you don't like me." He would repeat the offer. It was surprising how many batters he kidded out of hits.

Another time in Bowmanville when he was a spectator, Ron wrapped a two-dollar bill around a roll of paper cut to size and strolled up and down the stands yelling "Anybody want to bet fifty?"

Had someone flashed a fifty, the "Colonel" would have fainted.

In the series against Falconbridge in 1933, Church was coaching on the first base line. Adelaide LaFrance was on the mound for the northern squad. Pitches had men on second and third. Suddenly Church screamed "Throw me that ball." LaFrance to the utter amazement of the crowd and his team rolled the ball in the first-base direction. Church calmly stepped aside and two runs scored.

In another game of that series the Picton team had a man on third with the score tied in the last of the ninth. Church drew a walk. Suddenly, the crowd gasped. Church had deliberately started to walk to second. Although the Falconbridge pitcher was so surprised he stood still for a second or two until he realized what was going on. Then he hurried the ball in second. Meanwhile, the late Morley Durnford, who was up third, streaked for the plate. The Falcons paid no attention to the crowd's rear but were intent on trapping Church.

When he saw Durnford cross the plate with the winning run, he stopped dead in his tracks, duck out his shoulder and was tagged out. Wotta clown and wotta player!

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Hang Two Collars on Browns As Yanks Lose Fourth in Row; Braves Whittle Dodgers' Lead

By BEN FELDIGAE
Associated Press Sports Writer

If Ted Williams can find the fountain of youth, Boston Red Sox may yet have to be considered as pennant contenders in the American League.

Certainly the Williams-less Sox are burning up the circuit and, with New York Yankees continuing to slip, they've moved into third place, 7½ games behind the stumbling New Yorkers.

Williams comes out of the U.S. marines Aug. 1 and he will be back in his old club shortly after that. In his absence a bunch of youngsters, many of whom were stars in high school when the league first donned a Red Sox uniform in 1939, have caught fire.

Friday night they took a pair from the Browns St. Louis Browns 5-0 and 6-0 for their 14th and 15th victories in their last 18 games.

The league's ace-in-the-hole couldn't do a thing against Lefty Billy Hoeft in Detroit Friday night as they lost their fourth straight 5-1.

For the second time this week second-place Chicago White Sox blew a chance to gain ground on the Yankees. Philadelphia caught the Chicagoans in the ninth inning and went on to beat them 4-3 in 12 frames when Cass Michaels hit a two-run homer.

Tribe Drops

Cleveland dropped from third to fourth, eight games behind New York, by losing 3-2 to Washington in the National League Milwaukee Braves increased their first place Brooklyn Dodgers 11-6, cutting the Dodgers' lead to 5½ games. Milwaukee edged St. Louis 3-1 on two homers by Gran Hamner. New York defeated Cincinnati 3-1 and Chicago thumped Pittsburgh 7-3.

Billy Hoeft and Maury McDermott handcuffed the Browns for Boston in the twi-night affair at St. Louis. Henry gave up seven hits in winning his second game since being recalled from the minors. Tom Umphlett slammed a three-run homer in the first game, one of only three hits in the five American League games last night.

The other two circuit blows were the big one by Michaels that broke up the marathon in Chicago and a three-run blast by big Walt Dropo that gave Boston a lead Ted Kluszewski never relinquished against New York.

Art Houteman gave up a two-run triple to Mickey Vernon in the first inning but settled down and caught up to Washington, although they did close the gap to one run with a two-out rally in the eighth.

Milwaukee poured it on the Dodgers, scoring seven runs before the league-leaders made a four-run stand in the eighth. Eddie Mathews hit his 30th home run with one on in the fifth and Walker Cooper homered with two on in the same inning when the Braves scored seven runs—the most any club has scored in an inning against Brooklyn this year.

The Cardinals' contest was a real battle with Harvey Haddix of the Cards making the mistake of giving Hanmer two good pitches. Granny parked one in the second inning and again in the last of the ninth. The Phils now trail Brooklyn by 11½ games.

Ruben Gomez won his eighth game for the New Yorkers with a three-hitter over Cincinnati.

Ralph Kiner led a nine-hit Chicago attack with a double and triple,

Utah Scutah Atkins Out Cold That's What Made Nanjo Singh I'll See You in My Dreams

By GEORGE H. CARYER
Sports Editor

You can deliver Fred H'Aitkin, the Australian, back to his home garden a pooch named Nanjo Singh, the Horrible Hindu, back to his pallbearer and the shade of Hagalbyun, but you put them there the aroma won't be so strong.

"Quick, Watson, the Pill." That's all that was necessary last night in Memorial Arena when the Hate Incorporated emissaries stenched up the joint in a bout with the mat bulldozer Timmy Geoghegan and Don Jonathan.

And if Sammy Goddard's misuse (he was that guy in the white pants and "Referee" on his cap) still wouldn't keep whittinell he was doing in the ring) wonders where he was last night, the cat can be assured. The guy was sleepwalking in the arena here, Mon. Nite Wrestling forgot. The hate in and his banjo Aitkins from down under, bulldozed their way through three falls and due to a quirk of fate, or was it fate, the pooch-looking Australian got on the short end of the sc...e.

Screaming Good

The boys were all even at the Aitkin's mark, Timmy Geoghegan for the course, and Donny Johnny from the salt flats of Utah had the Aussie on the deck when Matilda in the third beat Wham. He hit him with everything in the Mormon temple. The salt oozed out of his ears.

Both were fine, fine polo-eared sisters and the Nanjo, while that wasn't as a bluey, Timmy, a Scotsman of the McCoy, who "kept" over the Irish, sea after a slow take-off from the Jacques Causeway, was sorry in the breaks, whacked into a pretzel, picked up the limping kangaroo and deposited him on the prostrate form of Aitkin.

Sammy (what makes him go), decided that there was no further use in fining the boys when he doesn't understand Irish, anyway), looked at the clock to see if he had time for a brew or two before the curfew, stared in amazement at the pocketful of sandwich lying in front of him, and raised the H'Aitkin flipper in token of victory.

The faithful screamed its approval and one guy we know turned their television sets back to the dealer.

The map of Ireland almost changed in that torrid first bout after Feroscious Jones threw everything but the Fiji Archipelago at the Scotch-Irish lad. Donny was Johnny on the spot several times and disdained the Irish Marquis of Queensbury rules for it. The Nanjo and H'Aitkins cleaned as often and as would think they were Americans politicians.

Finally Timmy hurried himself into the ring and ran smack into the Nanjo's upraised knee. The head was that of Killarney turned green in the gills as the Nanjo hissed in the face of Sammy. It was it, after eleven minutes.

But, sure and 'tis a long time that doesn't have a turnin'. In the next schmozzle 'twas the bushy haired lad with a long neck that doesn't have a turnin'. In the next schmozzle 'twas the bushy haired lad with a long neck and slash sleeper on the Horrible Hindu which put the Nanjo H'Aitkins brothel, fanned and flingied in his box stall.

Then came the third fall climax with the Scutah doling out plenty of punishment to both villains. Two noggins conked with a resounding hollow note and the Banjo stuck in the middle like oven wire.

Robert Durantion, the boulevardier from Perce and DiPaolo, the Italian champion, it says here, went the routine over a thirty minute semi-final and almost stole the show. Both are good-looking youngsters and their aggressive, fast style caught the fancy of the faithful. Zvonkin was disqualified in the opener against Dan Lewin.

Regents Draw With Tigers

Bryson Reid's Regent Juniors frittered away a four-run lead over the Flyers last night and had to settle for a 6-6 tie.

They went into the lead in the first with a four run bulge on two hits and an error. The Flyers came back in the third to tally three on four hits. They broke into the lead in the fifth on another splurge of three. The Regents caught them in their half of the fifth and there it stayed for the rest of the game.

The Regents had a chance of scoring it in the seventh when Don Hall got to third on a single, an error and a stolen base. However, he got too long a lead and was thrown out. Two pitchers later Paddy Gilmour slammed out a double and was thrown out when trying to stretch it for three bases.

Drummond started for the Regents and in four and two-thirds innings dished out three and each one retired. He was relieved by Gilmour, who hurled for the rest of the game and fanned two batsmen and walked none. Lawrence and Dan Flyers were in five innings of play struck out seven and walked four. Meagh relieved him in the sixth and got three via the strikeout route and walked one.

Gilmour led the Regents at the plate with a single and a double. Jim Drummond and each connected for doubles and Hall got his other base hit for the Regents —a single.

MacDonald was best in the field despite one of the Flyers slamming out a brace of doubles off a pitcher. Lawrence got the ball 'a ride, getting a triple and a single. McIfrag connected for a double and single. Noad got a pair of singles, while Meade and Jones got the other two singles for the Flyers.

British Cricket

LEEDS, England (CP)—Australia took a 92-run, first-innings lead over England in the fourth test cricket match played here as the English's fast medium bowler, Alec Bedser, who stole the second-day show.

Bedser took no less than six Australian wickets for 44 runs for the number of wickets taken by the tall Surrey star brought his total to 217, one better than the previous mark set by Clarrie Grimmett in an Australian Jeg break and googly bowler.

Australia with an overnight total of 162, was dismissed for a 167 Friday and Australia had scored 368 all out by the close of play, thus gaining a first-inning lead of 92 runs.

Three more days of play remain in this five-match test. Previous three matches in the five-match series for the mythical Ashes have all been drawn.

Royals Whip Toronto 4-1, Birds Nip Chiefs,

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The International Baseball race is getting tighter as the schedule nears the two-thirds mark. Only four games separate the first four clubs.

Buffalo holds the choice spot, with Montreal a game behind, Rochester is a half-game back of the Royals and Baltimore holds down fourth spot.

The league leadership might change during the week-end as all four clubs, except Buffalo, have a heavy week-end scheduled ahead of them.

The Bisons have only one game on tap—at Buffalo Sunday. Montreal will play a four-game series at Toronto. The rest of the teams in the loop will see action three times.

Friday night's play saw the pitchers and home-run hitters steal the limelight.

Ed Roebuck allowed only four hits as the Royals cruised to Toronto, 4-1, with Roebuck's eighth victory against nine defeats.

Rocky Nelson and Sandy Amoros gave the pitcher a unanimous decision, accounting for all Montreal runs. Rocky hit his 19th and 20th homers in succession, while Amoros belted his 17th.

Jocko Thompson of Baltimore hurled a six-hit three-hitter to edge a 3-2 shutout victory over Syracuse Chiefs. The Orioles got six runs on as third base on Thompson's walk, followed two outs later by Bob Wilson's shattered his victory, hitting four for four.

Righthanders George Conkright and Ellis Deal hurled Rochester and Wings to a 6-3 win over Richmond after tail-end Springfield Cubs. Conkright gained his sixth victory against seven defeats. Deal came on while Deal won his eighth in the game.

Don Richmond and Charley Kress rapped homers for the Red Wings, while Rochester outfielder Tom Burgess whacked two in the second contest.

Closing in on Canadian Court Crown

Southpaw slugger from Down Under, Merryn Rose (above), upped his stock as favorite to become the new Canadian men's singles tennis champ by ousting New York's Tony Vincent, 6-3, 6-3, 7-5, in quarter-final play at Toronto. Rose, the 23-year-old Davis Cupper, figured sixth in the world and No. 1 in the Canadian title hunt, joins fellow Australians Rex Hartwig and George Worthington in semi-finals. Australians Dominate Tennis Tourney Canadians May Bring Home One Title

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—George Worthington, 24-year-old Australian on the comeback trail after a year of illness and golf, will have the chance today to show if he is Davis Cup calibre.

The blonde Aussie, who says he hasn't a chance of being classed as a tennis player "because of personal differences" with an Australian official, is bilad to meet fellow-Australian Rex Hartwig in the men's singles final this afternoon. Hartwig is a Davis Cup nelman and ranked No. 2 in this tournament.

Worthington, who suffered what was described as a mild form of polio on the left side of his face in 1950 was put out of the game for 14 months. He figures today's match with the No. 2 foreign seeded player in the tournament is a "toss-up."

Worthington is one of four downunder players who have been practically running away with this year's championships. This is their first appearance in the tournament and they are favored to return home with at least one title.

They have gone past Canadian, Mexican and Japanese Davis Cup Players, as well as Americans in their class years to date over a starting line-up of more than 200 from five countries.

Only four Canadians are left in the closing rounds—Paul Willey of Vancouver in the final of the mixed doubles with Mrs. Hanna Gladek of Montreal, and Mrs. Dolechief of Toronto with Bess Summers, also of Toronto, in the mixed semi-final. The Toronto matron also is in the ladies doubles semi-finals with Mrs. Laura Lou Kuman of St. Petersburg, Fla.

The whole show belongs to the Australians. Here's how they stand so far:

Mrs. Thelma Long, No. 1 netter in her own country meets Melita Ramirez of Mexico in the women's singles early this afternoon and then teams up with the Mexican girl, 1952 Canadian titleholder, in the final of the doubles. Mrs. Long, a south-paw drive backhand artist, clinched a spot in the singles final by defeating Mrs. Dolechief 6-2, 6-1 in a quarter-final.

Mervyn Rose, top ranking player of the tournament and Hartwig, No. 2 seeded combination in the world, stroked their way through two matches Friday. Rose disposed of Jacques Guigerre and Val Haritt in identical 6-2, 6-2 in the quarter-finals and followed with a 4-6, 6-1, 7-5, 6-1, 6-2 triumph over Ed Moylan of Preston, N.J., and Robin Willner of Los Angeles in the semi-finals.

Today Rose tangles with Moylan in a semi-final of the singles and the winner of this match meets the winner of the Worthington-Hartwig set Sunday afternoon.

Worthington also is in the doubles semi-finals. Friday he paired with South African Jim Drysdale to eliminate Masanobu Kimura of Japan and Garry Tyrrell of Toronto 6-4, 6-1 in the third round and followed it with a 6-3, 6-2 triumph over Willey of Toronto and Wilson in the quarter-finals.

Main and Willey, the top seeded Canadian pair in the event, are 1953 Davis Cup players.

Americans Win Davis Cup Tie

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP)—The United States won the second-round Davis Cup tie against the British West Indies Friday.

Capt. Gardnar Mulloy and Bob Perry clinched the best-of-five series by winning the doubles in straight sets.

The scores were 6-2, 6-3, 6-3 over Ian MacDonald and Edward Aris.

Two singles matches remain to be day but are just a formality, since the U.S. now has won three matches.

In singles Friday Mulloy beat MacDonald 6-1, 6-4, 6-0 and Richard Bartzen of the U.S. defeated Ron Cooper 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

OFF MEAT DIET

CLEVELAND (AP)—Early Wynn Cleveland's burly pitcher, disclosed Friday he is shooting for his third 20-win season without meat, which he dearly loves.

Wynn said doctors—while hunting the cause for pains in his shoulders, had found he has a metabolic disorder. He had been eating meat three times a day, every day, seven days a week."

The doctors ordered him early in June to stop eating meat and fish.

"I felt weak at first, but gradually I began to feel better," Wynn said. "My shoulder feels fine."

Counting the win Thursday over New York, Wynn now is 10 and 7 lost seven so far and has a .376 earned-run average.

Canadians Bow To American Junior Golfers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Junior golfers from the U. S. capital scored an 8-3 victory over an all-star team from Toronto, in the third annual Simpson Cup matches Friday at Columbia Country Club.

The District of Columbia team swept the morning foursome for some for a 4-0 lead and went on to win four of the eight afternoon singles matches. The Canadians won three singles matches and one was halved. The point was not counted in the halved match.

The D.C. boys' victory margin was the same as it was in 1951. Canada was a 7-5 winner last year in Toronto.

The feature singles match went to Jack Lavery of St. Catharines, who scored a 3 and 2 victory over Deane Beman, newly crowned Middle Atlantic junior champion. Lavery was four up after nine holes but Beman fought back with over-par golf over the rugged par 70, 6,330-yard course.

Bill Bell, D.C. captain, captain of the Canadians and the Ontario team members, scored a 2 and 1 victory over par as was High Patterson of Toronto in their singles victories over Bob Ellis and Bill Hamilton of the host team. They beat Jerry McFerren and Jack Lavery respectively.

George Shorer of Hamilton was two up and four to play, but was tied by Larry Spellman, captain of the Washington team, with four straight pars.

Phil Hamilton, 13-year-old of Toronto, lost his singles match to Keith Bowie, 5 and 4. Brownlee Wilson, rival captain, is 5 inches in height and about three years old will make a match of it.

He was singled out by Vice-Nixon in the wind-up ceremonies. Spellman said he handed in his morning almost gave him and another caddy a fright. Both children in the scotch foursome play. They finally lost one down. The other caddy, Hamilton's brother, never showed.

Three other Canadian youngsters Lowrey, Shorer and Patterson, leave tonight for Niles, Mich., where they will U.S. Golf Association junior championship begins next Wednesday. They qualified in the district qualifying rounds last Monday.

Peewee Softball

Scoring eleven runs in the sixth inning the Rotary peewee softballers defeated Bootts by a 17-11 score at Firemen's Park last night.

The Booth kids were leading 11-6 up to the sixth when the roof fell and they were swamped under a flood of Rotary runs.

Dever went the route for the losers, yielding 18 hits whiffing four and walking five.

Keller and MacDonald shared the mound duties for Rotary, giving 15 hits, striking out-two and walking eight between them.

Rotary will play the second game of the tournament on Monday.

FAVORITES DOWNED

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y. (AP)—Scotch Victor and Direct Hurricane, favorites in the first race, Friday night as favorites went down to defeat in the two features at Saratoga Harness track program at Saratoga Raceway.

Scotch Victor, a 13-to-1 shot from the S.A. Camp Farms, Chatter, Calif., scored by a length and a half over Frank Ervin in the Arden free-for-all trot, doing the mile in 2:04 1-5.

Large-Mouth Bass Good Fighter

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT,
Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Salmon Flies.

It is always a source of envy once to me when I hear a fisherman speak disrespectfully of the large-mouth bass. Tragedy, they call him; not good fighters; not fit to eat because of "muddy" taste; and so on. They have convinced themselves and very convincingly per se was High Patterson of Toronto in their singles victories over Bob Ellis and Bill Hamilton of the host team. They beat Jerry McFerren and Jack Lavery respectively.

George Shorer of Hamilton was two up and four to play, but was tied by Larry Spellman, captain of the Washington team, with four straight pars.

St. Kitts Retain Lacrosse Lead Defeat Terriers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Athletics maintained their first-place position in the Ontario Lacrosse Association Friday night with a 12-7 victory over third-place Orillia Terriers.

Hamilton Tigers' 13-10 win over Fergus Thistles moved them within a game of fourth playoff spot. Peterborough trounced Mimico Montimers 18-4.

In the St. Catharines game the As led 3-3 at the end of the first quarter, 8-3 at the half and 13-4 at the third.

Goals scored for St. Kitts were by Al Frick, Max Woolley, and Lloyd Smith with three each, Jim Bragshaw, Ted Howe, and Bill Neilon, two each, and singles by Bill Bradshaw, Bob Melville, John Dewar and Don Frick.

For Orillia Lee Teaten and Ken Croft netted two each, while Merv McKenzie, Bruce Wester and Tony Dannino got one apiece.

At Fergus, Thistles led 5-1 at the first quarter but Hamilton tied it up 6-6 at the half. At the end of the third quarter the score was still knotted, 9-9, but in the final quarter the Tigers netted five to the Fergus four.

Tigers' Hamilton scorers was Jack Dorney with four followed by Jack Sibbald with three. Cubby Bron got two and Bill Rankin, Britt Bolton, Tom Kapula, Jack Handa netted singles.

For Fergus, J. J. Hill got three, Bill Allum two, and Harry Kazanjian, Don Campbell, Bob Dobbie, Ken Dance and Russ Black scored one apiece.

Mimico arrived at Peterborough with only six players for the game and other players were recruited from Peterborough and the Dunedas juniors who arrived a day early for a scheduled junior OLA game with Peterborough Pats.

Stellar goal-tending by Mimico goalie Bob Hunter and two goals by Jim McNeal gave Mimico a 2-1 score at the end of the first quarter. From there in, it was Peterborough all the way, leading 5-3 at the half, 12-3 at three-quarters, and 18-4 at the end.

Top scorers were Rinz Stafer with five goals, Roger Smith with four, Nip O'Hearn and Bob Allan with two each. Others were scored by Willy Logan, Bob Bailey, Bob Curtis, Ike Hildebrand and Jerry Fitzgerald.

Toronto Athletes Star in Track Field Opening

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Trophy hunters in search of the Canadian Track and Field Championship silverware won't have far to look. The boys to share will be perched in Toronto clubhouses.

Toronto athletes dominated the flood-lit opening of the Canadian Track and Field Championships last night, winning 13 of 18 finals at East York Stadium before a disappointing crowd of 200. Still, it was left to Selwyn Jones, an out-of-towner from Hamilton, to steal the spotlight.

Jones took the limelight with a double-barrelled victory, first in the three-mile run and 30 minutes later in the mile.

Today, with the six-mile run, javelin and discus scheduled in the morning and the remaining events on tap in the afternoon, Toronto again seems favored to top the list of winners, this because only about one-third of the original 164 entries are from outside. This was pared somewhat last night but officials had no accurate figures of those who withdrew.

Jones' twin victory was matched by Eleanor Miller of the Toronto Olympic Club, who won the 440 and 100-yard women's open sprints after winning heats in both.

Jones covered the three-mile course in 15:00.6 to beat Henry Kennedy, formerly of Glasgow, Scotland and now of Toronto, by 10 yards. Kennedy was the only runner who kept anywhere near Jones and he faded in the last four laps to make Jones an easy victor.

Miss Miller took the 60 and 100-yard events in 7:46 and 12:00.

Track and Field Club in number.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which Your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, JULY 26, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Encouraging planetary rays. Not only are the rightful Sunday interests strongly sponsored but extra essential work and social interests are, too.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Strong, benefic vibrations for you and yours. Be mindful of spiritual needs, there is no true contentment without love of and service to God.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Excellent influences from most major planets promise a satisfying day for all who think and act in accordance with God's laws.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Your Moon among the well aspected planets this stimulating, favorable Sunday. Start schedule going to church; you will receive blessings.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Happy outlook and though you may have some hard tasks, some setbacks, have faith in God's friendship, attend church.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Interesting, different tendencies in evidence. How you react, what you show of your real gifts will count most.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Help others where you can, but not at the expense of letting your own affairs drift, or of straining. Remember church.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—A tendency throughout Scorpio is to attempt too much. Today says take stock in this and all Rkely... unwise temptations. Pray.

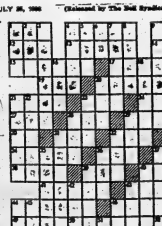
November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—While others are wondering, and often wandering, You are thinking, doing. So why not plan for the week ahead? Attend your church.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Being natural, and going about your affairs in a personable way are assets inherent in your Sign. Pray for peace.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—No time like now for showing your ability to maintain good will and help others. You can do far more than you realize.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—A quiet day, or may be a busy one with some exciting incident or people. Whatever it should be, don't neglect church.

YOU BORN TODAY: Ability to soothe others in trouble, to comfort the ill. This is a rare gift; use it for the daily happiness it should bring to your loved ones, and thus yourself. Develop your powers of concentration and you can attain unusual goals. Curb fretting over being crossed. Birthdate of: Geo. Bernard Shaw, famous wit, writer, dramatist.



NEW REFORMATORY

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—The province of Ontario has bought 115 acres on the farm of Marvin Chapman near here as the site of a new $1,500,000 reformatory for hard case prisoners, it was learned here today. Work on the reformatory is expected to start in about three months.

THAMES TURNS BLACK

LONDON (CP) — Nearly two miles of old father Thames turned black recently near Tilbury. Discoloration of the river was blamed on sugar leaking from a damaged barge vessel, in for repairs.

LAST HOLLYHOCKS

By Lady Hollyhocks in misty garden drear,
How gracefully they bow to greet the wind's caress!
In crimson, pink and rose bedight, they stately stand and nod.
And then they swing and sway, a dancing host of God.
So dainty and so fair of summer days a part
The merry faces bring a joy to every heart;
For they gladden both alike, the cottage and the hall;
The graceful hollyhocks that grow so slim and tall;
And when the winter comes, and clouds obscure the sky,
I'll dream of hollyhocks upon a summer day.

—Helen B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON — Following the roses, the hollyhocks are now in bloom and proclaim the arrival of mid-summer. Here and there throughout the town they display their colorful bloom, not only bringing beauty to lawns and gardens, but providing a screen for many unsightly spots. The summer home of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Hollyhock on Main street, which was radiant with these flowers and was known by the name of Hollyhock Lodge for many years.

I recall a grouph of hollyhocks in Florida around the bandstand in St. Petersburg. A contrast to the tropical flowers, they reminded one of home. But that grouph in the Southland seemed not so bright as those in Canada. Like the roses, they seemed out of place beside Turks caps, the Flame Vine and other southern flowers. And not the bill shaped Hibiscus.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carley and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Reed enjoyed a motor trip to Hunterville and other northern places over the week-end.

Donald Walker is spending a few days with friends in Pennsylvania.

Local factories have finished the canning of cherries and berries are now receiving attention. The Platt and Greer factories are canning berries, and rate is better. Last season a good crop of this perishable fruit. Many local women are busily employed picking berries by the day and working in the canning factory at night.

Miss Gladys Lemoh and Miss Mary Lemoh of Bath visited with Fred Ford motored to Picton on Sunday and visited Glenwood cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Garfield French and daughter Miss Ruth, Belleville, were in Wellington on Friday and with Mrs. Audrey Hall and Mrs. Doris Rickey enjoyed dinner at Grahamsdor.

Mrs. Alberta Smith was pleasantly surprised on Tuesday when her friends, Mrs. Ella of Windsor and Mrs. Ellis of Wooler arrived to spend the day with her.

Mrs. Maud Hall has been entertaining her brother Mr. Harry Learned and Mrs. Learned of Saskatchewan.

W.M.S. of Wellington U.C.

The July meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church was held at the pleasant home of Miss Gladys Pettengill. The president was in charge of the president Mrs. Clarence Tower. She extended a welcome to all and thanked the hostess for her hospitality. Mrs. Barton offered the opening roll call. Mrs. Wilton reported on Community Friendship and Mrs. J. L. Rose on Christian Stewardship. Mrs. Fleming reported on Temperance, giving an interesting talk attending the W.C.T.U. convention in Vancouver. Mrs. Tower reported the givings in the mite boxes and Mrs. Hamel gave the financial report with the new calls read by herself and Mrs. Vandewater. Miss Pettengill gave the devotional talk, ing as her subject, Canada, "Lord of the lands, make Canada Thine own," of the which is called on Mrs. Frank Harris who gave a vivid picture of her trip with Mr. Harris to Seven Islands near Labrador.

Information such as this on our own land is real missionary work, and was much appreciated. The presentation of a Life Membership pin was made to Mrs. J. L. Rose to Mrs. Barton Crunk, was to express the appreciation of her faithful work in the W.M.S. Mrs. Crunk expressed her thanks in a few fitting words. At the close a social time was enjoyed, the hostess serving refreshments.

Garden Calendar for July

By FLORA M. HAYELLE

The warmer the weather the greater the rate of evaporation. This makes it needful to supply additional to the perennial border, in fact almost all plants will benefit from it. It is especially valuable for those for garden's well being. If you are planning to be away for a week or more, and there will be no one to water the garden in case of drought. Good mulch material can be grass clippings, chopped hay, leaves or let the fall leaves into the grass; pulverized peat moss, leaf mold, or chopped straw. Mulching discourages weeds and cuts down hoeing time, and builds up the soil. The fibres become incorporated with the soil making it more porous, and at the same time more water retentive.

It isn't too late to start annual flowers, Virginia Stocks, Drumond phlox, calendula (Scotch marigold), night scented stocks, godetia, and snapdragon for fall bloom.

Can Get Faded Blooms

If you keep the faded blooms cut off baby rambler (polyantha) roses they will flower all summer. That goes for many annuals and some of the perennial plants. Keep seed from forming and the plant goes on producing bloom.

Lilac Failed To Bloom

If your lilac fail to bloom there are four things you can do to get it started —

(1) Apply lime to the soil, if it is too acid. This will require a soil test.

(2) Thin out some of the branches at the base of the plant.

(3) Root prune by digging a two foot trench around the plant, and about two feet out from the plant.

(4) When the trench is made, mix half a pound of superphosphate to every three feet of surface, then replace soil.

If you are bothered with crickets eating your tomatoes, sprinkle on a dust which contains chlordane around the plants. Red-spot has this ingredient and is useful in fighting squash bugs, those grey armored insects which ruin your vine plants in short order. Use the same for striped cucumber beetles, this quarter-inch long black and yellow bug which you see slithering out to the ground when you hook the plant. Use the dust generously once a week for effective control.

Cut back delphiniums to the ground, give them a generous application of plant food, water it on and look for a new set of blooms in August. They will be smaller and shorter of stem, but quite welcome in the perennial border. You can do the same for coreopsis, cut not quite back to the ground but take off all the top growth leaving about a foot high plant. You can do this again later and have lovely yellow and fresher all summer. Carnations will benefit from the same treatment. Sweet peas (Pinchin' or bottom, or corn flower) should be cut back, and bed new seed. Roses are dry to the ground pull them out and plant new bed this fall. They will come into bloom later next year and be ready for an early start in the spring. Be neglected to plant any bulbs this fall, but four plants can be set from seed. Widely spaced they develop into fine clumps of bushes, and have supplied us with many long lasting bouquets of well-veined blue, and wild rose pink blooms.

Last week we visited a park, and got a lot of pleasure looking at the bed by bed of annuals and perennials. There is nothing more striking than a solid bed of one kind when it is a riot of bloom. There were beds of stocks, from white and channels to deepest purple, with salmon, cerise, and coral included. Verbenas made up another brilliant bed. Snapdragons also made a handsome solid carpet of color. Geraniums in scarlet and salmon make the best bed of all. A salute to the parks board, they know how to choose, and display ornamental plants to perfection. We should take a leaf from their note book and plan one bed of one kind of flower for next year.

SIGNING OF TRUCE ENDS KOREAN FIGHTING

Armistice Signed Then Both Sides Issue Warnings

Not Peace But Uneasy Truce Settles Over War-Torn Land

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Generals of the United Nations command and the red armies signed today a compromise armistice in the bitter, three-year Korean war. It means not peace but nervous truce.

They signed in 10 minutes a document that took two years and 17 days to write. It calls for the fighting to stop at 10 p.m. tonight (9 a.m. EDT).

Hardly had they completed the signing when these ominous, clashing warnings were sounded:

The Chinese-Red Peiping radio boasted that the communists had won "a glorious victory" and cautioned red soldiers to remain "highly vigilant and guard against any disruptive actions from the other side."

UN commander Gen. Mark Clark told his troops flatly there will be no "immediate or even early withdrawal" from Korea and declared that the UN is staying ready—"a ready foe to the enemy and his emissaries that our might and power stand behind the pledges of the United Nations to defend the Republic of Korea against any aggressor."

Rhee Resentful

South Korean President Rhee declared again his conviction that the armistice "will prove to be the prelude to more war . . . more suffering and ruin . . . further Communist advance by way of subversion." He said South Korea will not disturb the truce for "a limited time" while a political conference tries to unify the country and work out plans for withdrawal of Chinese Communist forces from Korea.

The United States 8th Army commander, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, said the armistice was "just a suspension of hostilities, which we may not be preparatory to permanent peace."

Cannot Seize Control

And in Washington, President Eisenhower welcomed the armistice with thanksgiving, but warned that "we may not rest our case and guard nor cease our quest."

On the battlefront, only an occasional machine gun burst or artillery broke the silence. Only in the air did the war really continue, but in a decreased intensity. Fighter planes escorted Red troop concentrations and Sabre jets prowled the North Korean skies for MiGs, but front seemed to fight.

Asks Congress To Approve Seaway Project

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Robert Humphreys (Dem.-Miss.) asked the Republican policy committee Saturday to make St. Lawrence Seaway project "second legislation" in this session of the U.S. Congress.

Humphrey in a letter addressed to acting majority leader William Knowland (Rep.-Calif.), wrote:

"There can no longer be any doubt as to the administration's favorable views on this long-deferred yet long-needed project. Both the national security council and President Eisenhower's cabinet have expressed their unqualified support of the project as now presented to Congress . . ."

Charge Bowmanville Man Sent Stepdaughter Poisoned Candy

BOWMANVILLE (CP) — Police said today they have charged a 49-year-old Stanley Cowling with attempted murder and accused him of sending a box of poisoned chocolates to his stepdaughter six months ago.

Yvonne Saunders, 18, of Bowmanville told Ontario provincial police she received the chocolates while working at the Bowmanville hospital and passed them around to fellow workers on a bus. Node of the passengers was affected but Miss Saunders said eight of the chocolates contained enough arsenic to kill a horse.

Miss Saunders and her mother later indicated that the chocolates had been tampered with and took them to police.

The girl also told police she received some anonymous letters which threatened "to get you."

Cowling runs a farm near Bowmanville, about 60 miles east of Toronto.

There was only a nurse in attendance. "I didn't need anyone else," Dr. Hullinger declared. "We were equal to the situation.

His young wife calls him "a perfect husband."

"I look upon my doctor as a young man—perhaps just one or two years older than I am," she says.

Fourteen Flee From Hull Fire; Damage $35,000

HULL, Que. (CP)—Fourteen persons escaped down firemen's ladders during a 5 a.m. blazing inferno which destroyed a three-storey brick veneer building containing a num ber of apartments and a tavern.

Damage was estimated at $35,-000. One fireman was cut by flying glass in the two-alarm fire at Maisonneuve and St. Jean Baptiste streets on the south side of this city.

A 30-year-old nurse figured as the heroine. Lillian Lanctot, in a nearby house, caught sight of the flames from her window. Clad in pyjamas, she raced into the building to arouse some of the occupants who spread the alarm to the others in the structure.

Flames spread across the stairway, but the 14 persons wailed there in the third-storey balconies until firemen arrived, hoisting their ladders to the balconies.

Among those rescued was a young mother and her three-day-old baby.

Artillery Duel Reaches Peak Then Is Halted

Communist Barrages Take Late Toll of Allied Lives

By FORREST EDWARDS

SEOUL (AP) — Shooting stopped along the Korean battlefront at 1 p.m. tonight (9 a.m. Monday EDT), bringing to an abrupt halt 27 months of death and destruction.

While ground fighting was all but all in the final hours, mounting communist artillery fire took its toll of Allied soldiers up to the last minute.

At 10 p.m., a hush fell over the front.

The last man to die may never be named. Nor, perhaps will the last shell.

The front, usually aflame at this hour of night, just grew dark. Men heaved signs of relief, but with great caution. As the clock ticked off the seconds, they held their fire.

Silence came after a smashing artillery duel between Allied and red guns that began in mid-afternoon and built up a deafening crescendo shortly before 10 p.m.

Associated Press correspondent Randolph Said all firing stopped at 9:43 p.m.

A few seconds after 10 p. m. wild yells broke out from U. S. troops.

All day and into the night the Reds sent artillery and mortar barrages screaming into Allied lines west of Chorwon, the east-central front.

The barrages mounted in fury as the hours went by. Sometimes shells ripped front and rear line positions at the rate of four a minute.

Many Wounded

Even as the shooting ended, litter jeeps and ambulances wound down dusty hill trails from outpost ridges, bringing mofining, broken men to rear hospitals.

Randolph reported that between 8 a. m. and 9 p. m., a U. S. division east of Chorwon had been hit by 3,000 rounds of Chinese artillery.

Elsewhere on the 150-mile front, an anxious silence, shattered only by sporadic shelling or machine gun bursts, fell over the bunkers and trenches, where troops awaited the cease-fire.

Must Pull Back

Both sides are to pull back 1½ miles, within 72 hours, forming a 3½-mile buffer zone.

The diplomats then take over in an attempt to bring lasting peace to this war-torn land.

While United Nations troops waited for darkness—the usual time for Red attacks, the air war continued. U.S. Air Force said based planes unloaded bombs on Red troops and supply concentrations in the Kumsong bulge sector. It was at this same east-central front that the Communists two weeks ago hurled their greatest attack in two years.

The Reds failed to keep the few miles won at a staggering cost in human life. A map released by the UN command showed the armistice signing showed the Reds were given almost the same battle line bulge, plus some other ridges and flicrs.

Entire Community Is Arrested On Varied Charges Due Polygamy

SHORT CREEK, Ariz. (AP)—A big task force of law officers swooped down on the tiny, historically polygamous community on the Arizona-Utah border before dawn today and arrested 36 men and 86 women, they moved in to put down what Arizona's Governor Howard Pyle proclaimed "an insurrection against the state" directed by "a hard court of greedy and licentious men."

Some patriarchs of the strange cult dwelling in unworldly isolation below the Vermilion cliffs have as many as five wives, the officials say.

They have spawned a total of 263 children, and, Governor Pyle said, in the last decade no girl

NEW PROBLEMS FOR BOTH SIDES FOLLOW TRUCE

Diplomats Take Over As Open War Is Ended

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Diplomats took over the battle for Korea today, and with the lifting of the pressures of open war, a new set of problems and dangers arose between Allied and Communist governments alike.

Foremost among these on the Allied side is the threat of an eventual split in unity between the United States and Britain over admission of Red China to the United Nations.

As for the Communists, there is speculation already about the impact of the armistice on relations among Russia, Red China and North Korea—a situation about which Western governments know little but hope for much.

Many New Problems

It is too early to tell yet whether the uneasy truce that settles over Korea means the beginning of a new and more peaceful era in the world-wide conflict between the Communist and free nations. But officials have no doubt that it poses many problems which were beyond action while the fighting raged.

The first arena of the diplomatic struggle over these problems is due to be the United Nations general assembly, at a special session in New York next month. The assembly's primary task will be to set the stage for a political conference on Korean issues. That conference, under the truce terms, is to convene by late October.

In these sessions the major objective of the United States, presumably of other friendly nations, will be to seek world unification which both sides failed to win in the war.

The historic Allies conceive of this as unification under a non-Communist government of all Korea. That means they want the Reds to give up North Korea, and it raises the crucial question of if the Reds are willing to consider this at all, what

Offers Strikers Look at Books

KITCHENER (CP)—Roy Bauer, general manager of Canada Skate Manufacturing Company, Ltd., said he was at Hespeler today to show striking employees to go through the firm's books to see why their wage and other demands cannot be met.

The offer came after an unsuccessful attempt to settle the strike, in its 11th week, by union and company officials met with a government conciliation officer.

Mr. Bauer said four or five "responsible accountants" had contract a chartered accountant to go through the books. But he imposed two conditions.

"The findings must be disclosed to the employees and to the union employees," he said.

The company employs 70 persons. They are members of the United Automobile Workers of America (CIO-CCL).

St. Laurent and Drew Shift Their Campaigns to Ontario

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

Both Prime Minister St. Laurent and George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, today shift their election campaign attention to Ontario where Mr. St. Laurent, Coldwell and Solon Low, Social Credit chief, stump the Prairies. Ontario has the largest number of seats in the Commons —85.

After a two-day rest at his summer home at St. Patrick's Mr. St. Laurent embarks on his main Ontario campaign at London.

Mr. Drew after completing a long run in Quebec, will be at Ottawa in a short hiding of Hamilton. Mr. Coldwell speaks at Winnipeg.

Mr. Drew made five speeches Saturday, At Ormstown, he said Canada shouldn't have to "beg" for a better break in American markets.

The U.S. had barred Canadian dairy products despite international trade agreements and had "dumped" surplus textiles on the Canadian market, he said, thousands of Canadian textile workers unemployed or on short time.

Would Talk Peace

"It's time for Canada to talk frankly to the government of the United States. We must tell them we're going to enforce our anti-dumping laws and that there must be fair trade between us."

"Frank and manly" talk was the kind of approach appreciated by the present U.S. government, he said.

"In this game we hold quite a few cards," he said. . . . We're not in a position where we have to beg for consideration."

Mr. Drew also:

At Gimli, Man., Mr. Coldwell said the Progressive Conservatives won't amount to "a hill of beans" in the election.

He forecast that the Progressive Conservatives would lose their three Quebec and two Newfoundland seats and would have only a "corporal's guard" west of the Great Lakes.

Mr. Coldwell accused Manitoba's Liberal government of indifference to the "full exploitation" of Lake Winnipeg fishermen by the fishing industry. The prices spread between what fishermen received for their catch and the market price was 78.7 per cent.

He suggested a federal government marketing board which would set minimum fish prices at least a season ahead.

The people of Canada might not get fish much cheaper, but at least they would know that the men who caught it were getting a decent return.

Hits Pay Statement

At Erin, Ont., Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative member of Peel for the last 28 years, criticized a statement he attributed to Trade Minister Howe that it would be folly to elect a Progressive Conservative government because that party had been out of office so long it had no experience in governing.

"If that argument is carried to its logical conclusion, we would have a perpetual dictatorship," he said.

At Fitzroy Harbor, Ont., Revenue Minister McCann said that before Confederation in the last Canadian Progressive Conservative members hoped Mr. Drew "might quit as leader so that other members might become party leader."

Secession Issue

At St. Thomas, Ont., Finance Minister Abbott branded as "misguided" Progressive Conservative statements that a $200,000,000 treasury surplus for the fiscal year means a big surplus at the end of the year. Such a situation was created during the early months when tax receipts were high, but there was no reason to expect the figure to be high at the end of the 12 months.

At Port Hope, Ont., Mr. Howe said Canada's foreign trade can be "greatly increased" under the present government's policy to expand trade with every country in the world," he said.

U.S. Businessmen Are Uneasy, Wonder About Truce Effects

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The uneasy truce just launched in Korea is matched by uneasy business sentiment in the United States.

True, almost all phases of U.S. business and industry are booming. And business men are becoming more confident that good times will continue if neither war nor peace hit them.

Both U.S. government and industry leaders are assuring the public that this cease-fire won't change the economic boom. But the one hand, or business production and expansion plans on the other.

Seen Near Peak

Uneasiness, however, comes from two sources: 1. Widely-held belief that the boom must be near or at the peak if the psychological let-down after a cease-fire (as happened in Korea over Russia's internal troubles) will slow down government spending as in support of the economy has to make consumers and business men add to their cautious buying.

This could start the recession so many U.S. business men anticipate. And if it does make the recession sharper and deeper than commonly expected.

Many business leaders, however, publicly pooh-pooh this.

Emerson Motors president, H. R. Curtice, says a cease-fire in Korea will have little effect on the rate of military spending for the rest of this year. He notes that 20 per cent of U.S.-industrial output now goes for defense, and doubts if any cut-back would be more than about four per cent of over-all industrial output.

Other business estimates on the cut-back range from two to four per cent of total gross national product, the sum of all the goods and services produced.

Expects Gains

The U.S. National Association of Manufacturers president, Morris E. Sight, emphasizes that the American economy is a peacetime economy, not one based on war. He thinks the truce will lead to gains in merchandizing and design and to reduction of production costs.

U.S. government economists echo the belief that the business outlook is good, even if the fighting is a minor part. They warn against "unjustified psychological reaction."

Seventeen Die In Accidents In East Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seventeen persons were victims of accidental death in Eastern Canada during the week-end, all but one victims of traffic or boating mishaps.

Four persons were drowned in Ontario, while a Quebec and one in both New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Quebec headed the traffic list with five deaths reported while Ontario had three.

Victims in Ontario: Kathryn Reardon, 21, of Buffalo, N. Y., when caught in an undertow while swimming in Lake Erie near Fort Erie; Wolfgang Banto, 6, in Castiel Lake, Parry Sound district; Parry Sound; Edith Alice Gobert while swimming in Lake Nipissing near Redbay. Traffic fatalities: Edward Dupuis, 19, was run over by a truck in front of his home; Claire Crowe, 26, of Hamilton when the light truck in which he was riding went out of control and rolled over near Grand Valley; Mrs. Windsor, Russell Hill died shortly after a piece of wood struck her in the groin and severed an artery.

Truckers Start New Union

MONTREAL (CP) — Nell MacDonald, ousted business agent of the Montreal local, International Brotherhood of Teamsters' (AFL-TLC), announced Sunday formation of a new union and appealed to Quebec and Ontario transport drivers to free themselves from "American domination."

The appeal was made in a letter to all Quebec and Ontario locals of the Brotherhood, asking them to join the international body and help join his Quebec Transport Drivers' Union.

CANADIAN TROOPS ARE NOT EXCITED ONLY RELIEVED

Truce Took Too Long To Create Jubilation

By BILL ROSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—The expectation of an armistice in Korea was too long in the air for Canadian troops to get very excited about the announcement that the truce was to be signed in Panmunjom.

Rather than jubilation, the general attitude among the Canadians in Korea seemed to be relieved "well, that's that—at last."

The period of precarious peace which he initiated after three years of warfare brings to an end the most difficult type of soldiering encountered by troops anywhere: continued patrol assignments by soldiers unconvinced that the risk of being killed while an armistice was under discussion was worth it.

For more than two years, it has been hard on officers who have had to issue orders to men with best intentions, and on troops who were not always convinced of that.

No Special Order

Commenting on the truce news, Brig. Jean Allard, commander of Canada's 25th infantry brigade, said: "I have no special order of the day.

"We've had the ceasefire order ready for a month now, and we'll send it on to the troops as soon as we get it officially."

"As far as we are concerned, this is still only a pause in the fighting."

News of the impending truce ending the three-year war at least temporarily reached the Canadian forces while Robert Mayhew, Canadian ambassador to Japan, was visiting brigade headquarters.

Mr. Mayhew said he would continue his tour instead of going on to the Panmunjom truce talks.

Storms Sweep West, Ontario

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Severe electrical storms swept Western Ontario Sunday night, breaking the heat wave but leaving in their wake a trail of power blackouts, fallen trees and flooded streets and highways.

Cars had to be abandoned on the Kitchener-Preston highway after they stalled in a deep pool of water.

Power breaks were reported at Byron, Aldershot, a large area of Wentworth and Westminster township and Grand Bend.

Cuban Revolt Quickly Crushed But 54 Are Killed

HAVANA (AP)—President Fulgencio Batista slapped stern martial law over Cuba today after crushing an attack by some 200 armed rebels on two army posts in eastern Cuba. Fifty-four persons were reported killed, including 15 of the attackers, 18 soldiers and a police sergeant.

The government accused former president Carlos Prio Socarras, ousted by Batista in March, 1952, of responsibility for the attacks early Sunday on the Moncada army base at Santiago de Cuba and a rural guard post in the country town of Bayamo. That barracks commander, Col. Alberto Del Rio Chaviano, said the rebels hoped the attacks would revolution to cut Batista.

Army officials said that "great quantities" of ammunition seized from the attackers was marked "Montreal, Canada."

No Reprisals Against Miners Says Union

TIMMINS (CP)—Thirteen of 35 non-striking miners who fled unidentified angry strikers by fleeing down a mine shaft at the Broulan Reef, gold mines near here remained in the shaft Saturday night.

Ten of the men were driven out by the bargaining committee and walked out Saturday under a heavy provincial police escort. No attempt was made to arrest them. The union has invited the remaining thirteen to the surface but to come out, saying that no reprisals will be made against them.

Meanwhile, two former non-strikers applied to the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) local for strike pay and picket duty.

Union officials also disclosed that a donation of $1,000 was sent here by the Steelworkers' local 1-64 of Matheson, about 40 miles east of Timmins.

The Broulan strike began two weeks ago over a wage dispute.

Provincial police said they have gathered sufficient evidence to lay charges against 20 men in connection with the pitched battle at the Broulan Reef mine Friday morning.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP)—Cooler air from the northwest pressed across Southern Ontario during the night. A few thundershowers were reported during the leading edge of the cooler air. Today and Tuesday will be sunny across most of the province. Temperatures will be lower and humidity much less than Sunday in the southern regions, with the low during the night about 60 and afternoon temperatures in the low 80s. The north country will continue cool with the temperature at night near 50 and rising to 70 during the afternoon.

ACTION TAKEN AGAINST ILLEGAL HUNTERS

Conservation officers of the Toronto district of the Department of Lands and Forests apprehended two deer hunters in the Bancroft area a few days ago. The men had allegedly shot a large buck still "in the velvet" which was seized along with shooting equipment.

Court action will be taken, the officers said, and the total cost in fines, loss of rifles etc., could have kept the hunter well stocked with legal meat.

TECHNICIAN FINANCE OF MISS TORONTO

Norman Keffey, 23-year-old Toronto field technician for Canadian General Electric Co., was working in Tweed last week but what was interesting to the villagers was the fact that he is the fiancé of Miss Betty Gibson named "Miss Toronto" a short time ago.

Keffey said it was a Christmas card that started off their romance and they hope to be married next year. Earlier in the week, Miss Toronto stayed in a cottage near Campbellford to dodge the curious.

Montreal Youth Accidentally Shot Near City

A Montreal youth, Maurice Sis. Marie, 16, was accidentally shot in the left shoulder Saturday at the home of his uncle, Robert Jones, R.R.3, Belleville.

Maurice and his twin brother, Andre, were visiting at their uncle's home for the week-end and the brothers had gone to a woodworking shop and garage where a .22 rifle was hanging on the wall. Unfamiliar with fire-arms the boys took the rifle down and examined it and then as Maurice left the room, the rifle in the hands of his brother discharged, the bullet entering him in the shoulder.

The bullet was removed at Belleville hospital and the wound was reported not to be serious.

CHARGED AS RED

ATHENS (AP) — Nicholas Plomaritis, accused of being the outlawed Greek Communist party's secretary-general, began his trial before a military court today, standing beside him in the dock with 19 women, including Irene Chanou and Nikolitsa Kotsia, accused of aiding and hiding him.

A.N.A.F. Holds Annual Picnic At Weller's Bay

Nearly five hundred members, their families and friends of the Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans in Canada, Branch 381 were in attendance at the weather man on Sunday and held the annual picnic despite his efforts to frustrate their plans.

Sullen rain-filled skies threatened to put an effective quietus on the arrangements just after daylight, and at seven-thirty a heavy downpour fell over the city and district.

Officials hurriedly sought weather reports and were told the skies would be clearing about eleven o'clock. In answer to a deluge of phone calls put arrangements were released over the radio to the effect the picnic would go as planned at eleven-thirty.

For once the weather man was right, and patches of blue sky broke through the grey overcast. The sun appeared and the clouds and at eleven thirty, four chartered buses left the city for the picnic grounds. However, the rain delayed some cars in assembling and not as many as anticipated, were on hand.

A hearty breeze and warm sunshine dried the picnic grounds at Weller's Bay in Prince Edward county and in mid-afternoon rising temperatures made the outing a true "picnic" atmosphere.

Between fifty and seventy-five automobiles filled with picnickers followed the buses to the grounds, officials said.

Vice president Ray Denike, secretary Ken Edgecombe and Treasurer Bert Wells were three of the busiest men in the city prior to the "departure" as they completed the executive pitched in as did members and the picnic went into the record book as one of the best in years, despite the rainy start.

Warm water in a shallow sandy beach despite the presence of a few weeds of no consequence, swimmers when the heat descended in the afternoon. Old and young, mothers and maids enjoyed themselves while many sat in cars or on the grass while the fun was going on.

Free ice cream, candies, soft drinks, and water were given to the kiddies, while the oldsters ate ice cream and enjoyed hot dogs at the canteen operated by Sergeant Gordon (Hot Dog) Carter and Charlie Featherstone.

Jack Lacey, and Bert Wells at the microphone of the public address system supervised a splendid program and officials gave opportunity for those from mine to ninety to display their athletic ability. Handsome prizes were presented to the winners and runners-up.

There were sprints and dashes for youngsters both boys and girls from 5-7 up to 12-14.

Support was divided in a fun-packed baseball game that Trenton took on the ANAF. The stout boys of the Fire Department won the first ball and the ANAF the second. The debate as to which was the better team still is not yet over.

There was softball, too. The CNR took on the ANAF on the small diamond and by the time this reporter left the scene the total score had not been computed.

Many Hundreds Attend Lions Club Regatta

BANCROFT. — Perfect weather favored the Bancroft Lions on the shores of the lake. Annual regatta held on Baptiste Lake on Wednesday afternoon and many hundreds of people lined the south shore of the lake to enjoy a lengthy and varied program.

A special event, staged by the Dept. of Lands and Forests, demonstrated the fighting of bush fires from the air. Annual meeting float was attacked by fire extinguishing bombs dropped from planes and hoses, water containers and other equipment were parachuted down for the use of exposed firefighters on the ground.

The lake settled down to calm and ideal for power boat racing. Nipigon Little Fleas were able to work up thrilling sort of speed on the rectangular course.

A race for outboard power boats of 225 class was won by "Miss Madoc" piloted by Ed. Pine.

Results in other races were as follows:

Boys under 12 years—Bill Warner, Lorne Ray.

Boys under 15 years—Jack Wilson, Gordon Ray.

Boys 1-2 mile open — Milton Tranter, Jack Dickenson.

Girls under 12 years—Marion Sankey, Wendy Ray.

Girls under 15 years — Ginger Sankey, Audrey Leedy.

Ladies 1-2 mile open — Marlene LaBarge, Ginger Sankey.

Plane Rides

Plane rides were a big attraction as usual and two machines were kept busy giving sightseers an eye view of the area, commencing country, Bingo, pop and ice cream booths were well patronized, the latter particularly well since the temperature remained in the 80's for most of the afternoon.

A regatta dance held in Bancroft in the evening taxed the community hall to capacity and at midnight a ticket drawn from a rotating drum on the stage decided the winner of this year's raffle for Lakefield boat and Johnson 7 1-2 HP motor valued at $600. He was Mr. J. R. Campbell of 1207 Front Road, Niagara Falls.

The regatta constitutes one of the major money making projects of the Bancroft Lions and all proceeds go to the local welfare work.

Carnival Attracts Large Crowds

CAMPBELLFORD —Speed boat races held in connection with the Campbellford Rotary Club street carnival attracted large crowds on Friday night, when boats from Campbellford, Trenton and Toronto competed for prizes.

Class B—J. Ralston, Toronto, 1-1; Webster, Toronto, 2-1; Frankford, 2-2; J. Webster, Toronto, 3-3; Wm. Harsden, Oshawa, 4-4.

Class D—Ralston, Toronto, 1-1; N. Seward, Campbellford, 2-out; Bruce Osborne, Oshawa, out-2; Ozzie Nelson, Campbellford, 3-4; Wm. Harsden, Oshawa, 4-3.

Open Class—Gordon Burleigh, Oshawa, 1; John Ralston, Toronto, 2; Bruce Osborne, Oshawa, 3; Wm. Harsden, Oshawa, 4; N. Seward, Campbellford, out.

Harsden was in third place when his boat went out of control and he was thrown against the cement wall of the canal, placing him fourth.

Lions Club To Hold Street Carnival

FRANKFORD—This year the Frankford dance and carnival is being held on Wednesday, August 19th, barring unforeseen obstacles, and is being sponsored by the local Lions Club is an effort to raise funds for paying off their mortgage on the Frankford Arena, which they purchased for a community centre.

The main attraction of course, will be the dance, but there is also a "monster draw" which will take place during the dance, with several beautiful prizes and a breakfast suite (chrome), bicycle, smoker, Coleman camp stove, bi-lamp and several other prizes too numerous to mention.

Trenton News

Smith invited Reilly to look at his hand in a car parked in front of Kenney's garage on the market square Saturday. The animal grabbed him by the hand several times before he could get away.

Dr. J. W. Farley treated the injured man.

Personals

Mrs. Percy Shewman, of Toronto, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Fred Smith, of R.R. 1, Trenton, for a few days.

The arrangements for this year's picnic were ably handled by Lion Claude Moran. Supper was served at 6:00 p.m. and sports events followed. All members present a satisfying outing was had.

The sports events and winners were as follows:

Bag Race (boys to age 11)—Carl Johns, Peter Hicks, Billy Dafoe.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Prices seemed little affected by the signing of a Korean truce as the familiar mixed pattern established itself in light forenoon stock market trading today.

Across the board prices mixed within an extremely narrow range. Brokers explained that the market had discounted the final signing of a truce plan several times during the last three weeks only to rise again and repeat the procedure each time hopes were dampened. By now, these observers said the market had thoroughly discounted this last bearish event.

Uranium and New Brunswick base metals drew most of what little interest there was in trading.

In industrials, refining oils and banks eased while utilities and constructions edged forward.

Golds traded quietly as junior firmed. Holding companies were lower.

Interest in base metals focussed on lower-priced stocks.

Western oils showed a majority of losses but strength in leaders kept the group in the black indexwise.

Obituary

RAY BOWERS
(Queensboro)

Ray Bowers of Queensboro, died Friday, July 24, in his 45th year at the Belleville General Hospital as the result of an accident.

He was a resident of this district for the past eight years.

He was born in Prince Edward County, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Bowers.

The funeral took place from the Thomas Funeral Service Chapel at 2.30 Sunday, July 26, to the Rawdon cemetery. Rev. E. Gil Steers said the service at the chapel and at the graveside.

The pall-bearers were Stanley Moorcroft, John Thompson, Claude Warner, Donald Keen, Lyn McCoy and Eric McCoy.

Apartment Bldg. Damaged by Fire

Fire and smoke damage amounting to approximately $2,500 resulted Saturday afternoon in the basement of an apartment building on the Dundas Street East, where three families were forced out by smoke.

The blaze took place at mid-afternoon in the basement of an apartment occupied by D. S. Brenot and was believed caused by spontaneous combustion in a pile of rubbish. The family had left home early in the morning on annual holidays and the blaze was not discovered until it had gained considerable progress.

Flames forced out by smoke were H. F. Hicks, Gordon Barclay and S. Walker.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance said the blaze was held mostly to the basement of the three-storey structure but the fire did eat its way through the first floor in the hallway. Most of the damage was from smoke.

"It was fortunate the fire took place in the day time as had it occurred at night it would have received a greater start and loss of life may have resulted," the chief said.

Pension Fund's Deficit Grows, Is $115,598,000

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The debt, piling up in Canada's old-age pension fund, grows bigger by the month.

It climbed by another $3,411,000 in June to a peak of $115,598,000, the finance department's treasury statement showed today. It likely will get a lot bigger before the year is out.

The reason is that the tax revenue the fund receives can't keep up with pensioning costs.

That likely will mean a new financing headache for the government when budget time rolls around again next spring.

The fund was set up in April last year when Parliament adopted the principle of paying $40-a-month pensions to Canadians 70 years or over, whether rich or poor. This is known as the universal pension plan.

Previously, those 70 and over could get a pension— but they first had to show examiners they had no real substantial means of support. That kind of pension now is available for those between 65 and 70.

More Get Pensions

Under the old system—the pension for those 70 and over with a means test—some 308,800 Canadians were getting a pension by the end of 1951. The federal government paid three-quarters of the cost; the provinces the other quarter.

Now under the new system—the pension for those 70 and over without a means test—some 700,000 Canadians are getting the monthly cheques. The money comes entirely from federal taxes.

Govt. Policies Criticized

Speeches, Races and Contests Feature Lee Grills' Picnic At Searles Beach Saturday

Approximately 1,800 party members and their families and children turned out Saturday afternoon for the Lee Grills Provincial Picnic held at Searles Beach, Oak Lake where they enjoyed a full program of races and other contests and also heard their candidate and other speakers outline their party's program and at the same time criticize government policy.

Speakers at the afternoon included Mr. Lee Grills as P-C candidate for Hastings South; George S. White, Progressive Conservative standard bearer for Hastings-Frontenac; Hon. William A. Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare for Ontario; Mr. E. Thurston, ex-M.P.; Warden Jack Kincaid of Addington; Reeve Bonisteel, M.L.A. for Hastings East.

Favored by ideal weather conditions the picnic was popular both by residents from all parts of the riding and young and old alike entered enthusiastically into the races and other contests.

Many Special Events

There were races of all kinds for the kiddies as well as special events for the adults. The ladies had the ever-popular nail driving contest resulting in the usual bent nails and sore fingers. There was a married women's race and a husband's race contest for the ladies.

Race officials are still trying to figure out who won the married men's race but program chairman Keith Hubbard said he didn't come in first. He is still feeling the effects of the "horses" sort-ered midway in the race.

As well as prizes for the event winners, there was free ice cream for all the kiddies. After all it's no picnic for the children without ice cream.

In a men's softball game between the families and their city brethren the "Sodbusters" were said to have come off on the top end of a 12-10 score. Don Thomas acted as umpire.

The majority of families brought their own picnic lunch and tables on the picnic site were put to good use following the program of speaking. The Stirling Municipal Band was on hand and played several numbers during the afternoon.

Harry Rollins acted as chairman for the speech making program held from a specially decorated platform carrying pictures of the candidate and Progressive Conservative leader George Drew.

First speaker was Warden Jack Kincaid of Madoc who said he felt it was an honor to be on the platform with Mr. Grills, an old friend in county council. He wished Mr. Grills the best of luck in the June 10th election.

Able Candidate

George S. White said that in Lee Grills, Conservatives in the Hastings South had a very able candidate and one who was fully qualified to speak on agricultural as well as industrial matters.

Mr. White attacked what he termed a "whispering campaign" against Progressive Conservative leader George Drew. He said it had been instigated by the Liberals because Drew is the one man they fear. He denied the Liberal charge that Mr. Drew was dictatorial in his attitude. "If George Drew is a dictator then I never knew what the word meant," he said.

Mr. White referred to the 18-point Progressive Conservative program, referring particularly to the half million dollar tax cut promised by Mr. Drew. He said that this tax cut "can and will be accomplished under Mr. Drew."

A reduction in the 10 per cent sales tax would also directly benefit this riding. Mr. White said when a Progressive Conservative government was elected at Ottawa, county councils and school boards would be relieved of sales tax costs on purchases.

He said that a Dominion-Provincial relations conference was long overdue and declared that the municipalities are being squeezed by the bogging attitude of the Ottawa government, until their only source of income was the property tax. When Progressive Conservatives were elected municipalities would be allotted a proper field of taxation, he stated.

Provides Government

Mr. White continued by criticizing the federal government for the lack of leadership in the armed forces. That inefficiency still existed in the defence department was indicated by recent arrests for thefts at army bases.

Such inefficiency was what happened when a government was in power too long. "They get the idea they are in power by Divine right," he said.

In conclusion Mr. White stated that the promises of Conservative leader George Drew to reduce taxes would be carried out without any cuts whatsoever in the health, welfare and social services of the taxpayers.

Mr. Thurston speaking what he termed was the reckless expenditures of the government and the hidden sales tax which increased the price of articles purchased.

Jim Gunn, of Trenton, former president of the Progressive Conservative Association, said the election issue went far beyond the personal attributes of the two candidates in this riding. The issue, he said, was the present government and democracy in Canada. The Liberal government, he said would wreck it with their reckless with extravagance."

Candidate Lee Grills said the Liberal government had gotten far from the people. This was indicated by the fact that an August election would dis-enfranchise thousands of people.

"In choosing the election date, the Liberals were only thinking of the Canadian people, but a small group of party-minded officials at Ottawa, who say that as long as we are here Canada will be in a good government."

Refers to Record

Mr. Grills referred to his record in the county and in county council and said he had been conducting a strong campaign.

"I feel sure that we can win on August 10th, not on my ability, but on the Progressive Conservative party program and on the willingness of party members to get out and work."

Mr. Goodfellow as Minister of Health for Ontario said he would not refer to federal politics other than to praise George Drew as leader of the Conservative party. He said that Drew was the greatest statesman in Canadian life today and said he had put democracy into action as premier of Ontario.

He said Mr. Drew had recommended abolition of the means test on pensions. "I don't believe the Liberal claim that Mr. Drew is not social service conscious," he said.

Mr. Goodfellow strongly criti-

Abbott Defends Non-Payment Of Municipal Tax

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—On the grounds that every municipal taxpayer pays some federal income tax, Finance Minister Abbott Saturday night defended the policy of exempting government property from municipal taxes.

"What would be the purpose," he asked, "of (the government) paying taxes to a municipality and then having to tax the people of that municipality to get it back?"

The same principle applies to the levy of sales tax on things municipalities buy, he told a meeting of about 250 persons at Ealing school, where he spoke in support of Frank McLarthy, Liberal candidate in Middlesex East.

He estimated it would cost $30,000,000 to $35,000,000 if municipalities were exempted from sales tax and it means we'd have to tax exactly the same people" to take up that slack. It doesn't see the "logic or efficiency" in that.

"These advertisements are entirely dishonest," he said.

"The federal government at Ottawa doesn't contribute a cent to mothers' allowances in the province of Ontario. The legislation is administered by the government of Ontario."

Pays Tribute to Candidate

In closing Mr. Goodfellow paid tribute to Mr. Grills as a candidate, noting that he had been successful in his own business and had done a splendid job of administration while in county council and as warden.

Mr. Grills is the type of man we need. With George Drew he will do a good job for Canada," he assured.

Mr. Goodfellow was introduced by Roscoe Robson. Others seated on the platform included John Lennox, president of the Belleville Conservative Association; Bill House, Jr. of Trenton, and Norm Hickson, of Belleville.

CANADIAN TROOPS

Sunday he visited the 25th Canadian Field dressing station and the 22nd infantry workshop, and Commonwealth division headquarters. He left for Seoul Monday.

Meanwhile, it is an open secret here that Brig. Allard's time pyramidally has been spent mainly in studying the Korea west coast for a suitable location for a first the armistice is effected. He has been described on an island near Inchon.

On the island there could be established a leave centre, convalescent centre and even training schools.

The most likely prospect is that the Canadians will withdraw from their present positions 72 hours after 9 a.m. EDT Monday. Every effort will be made to create a buffer zone in their sector—already it is carefully planned and units know where every piece of equipment is to go.

Meanwhile in Tokyo, Lt.-Col. Don Dalley of the RCASC, from Ottawa and Kingston, the Canadian member of the armistice supervisory subcommission, is waiting with other members of the commission for the call to Korea, expected Friday.

New Industry Locates Plant In Trenton, Will Eventually Employ About 200 Workers

TRENTON, (Special)—Following three months of negotiations, Kenneth J. Couch, members of the Trenton Industrial Commission, today announced that Erie Forster of Canada would open a new plant here and eventually employ an expected 300 workers.

The firm manufactures parts for the electronics industry and now operates factories in Toronto, London, England, and at Erie, Pennsylvania. The Trenton factory would replace and expand the present Toronto plant, it was stated. The new Trenton plant will have a floor area of 20,700 square feet.

President of the firm, Richard Pyrling; his brother, Henry, vice-president and plant engineer, G. G. Forster, flew to Trenton and placed their approval on the site which had been selected by Mr. J. T. Pfiffner, general manager of the Toronto plant. The site is in the newly-opened industrial area near Downs Collier and owned by Senator W. A. Fraser.

The Erie Resistor Company are popular name in electronics which recently opened a Trenton factory in the same area.

Construction work on the plant site has already commenced by the Stenhouse Construction Company. The building will be 230 by 90 feet and will face the new road on Wragge Street.

Korean Truce Major Terms Are Outlined

1. All hostilities on land, sea and in the air cease within 12 hours.

2. All troops withdraw with their equipment within 72 hours from the demarcation line they occupy at the battleline. The Communist and United Nations armies both must pull back two kilometres (about 1¼ miles) from the line to form the buffer zone which will separate Allied troops from the North Korean and Chinese Communist forces.

3. Allies withdraw within five days from islands held off the North Korean coast.

4. No blockade of Korea is allowed.

5. No reinforcements.

6. A frozen takes effect at once on reinforcement of troops or equipment in both North and South Korea. Each side may rotate up to 35,000 men a month on a man-for-man basis, but neither may raise the level of men or arms it had in Korea at the time of the armistice.

6. A military armistice commission is set up, supervising the truce and settling any violations. The commission is composed of five UN and five Communist officers.

7. Ten joint Allied-Communist observer teams are organized for investigation on the battleline zone and the Han river estuary.

8. Five ports of entry are designated in North Korea and five in South Korea through which men and arms may enter and leave.

39 Inspection Teams

9. A neutral nations supervisory commission of four countries is created with officers from Sweden, Switzerland, Poland, Czechoslovakia. This commission has 39 inspection teams. One team will stationed in each port of entry at 22 mobile teams held in reserve. These teams will oversee all troop and equipment movement in the designated ports.

10. All prisoners captured in Korean war who desire to return home will be exchanged within 60 days after the armistice is signed.

Handle Prisoners

11. A repatriation commission five countries is formed to handle those prisoners who refuse repatriation. This commission is composed of one member each from India, Sweden, Switzerland, Poland and Czechoslovakia. It will act as commission chairman and umpire. India will furnish the custodial troops used to guard the prisoners. These troops may carry only small arms and may not fire unless they are attacked.

12. The neutral commission will take control of these prisoners from the UN command within 90 days after the armistice is signed.

13. For 90 days, the Communists will be allowed to visit the camps in South Korea and interview the prisoners to stress their "free freedom to return home to his peaceful life."

14. The fate of these prisoners still undecided. Their case for 90 days will be handed to a political conference.

A WISE PROPOSAL

A report from Fort William says that Edward Morin, official of the Seafarers' International Union, declares that this union does not seek to bar foreign vessels from the Great Lakes. It only wants foreign ships prevented from carrying cargoes between two lake ports. That is a reasonable request. It is one in which the union will certainly be joined by the ship-owners.

There have, in the past, been some suggestions that foreign vessels should not be permitted to trade on the lakes at all, that these are a sort of private pond belonging to Canada and the United States which should be reserved to the use of the vessels of those nations.

The geographical location of the lakes lends some appearance of support to this argument, but it is a poor one. Actually a lake port is the same as a seaport. Many nations have laws forbidding foreign vessels to compete against domestic ships in coast-wise trade, from one port to another port in the same country. It is an exactly similar rule which the Seafarers' Union is now requesting for the ports and this request should be granted.

But when foreign trade is involved, the situation is immediately changed. Goods purchased in Canada must be taken to a foreign port. Suppose we forbid a foreign vessel to carry freight. Then they must be transported by a Canadian vessel. But what if the country importing the goods has an exactly similar ruling, insisting that all goods unloaded in its ports must be brought there by its own ships? How can the goods ever be transported from Canada to a foreign land, or vice versa?

The absurdity of any effort to prevent foreign ships from plying the Great Lakes with cargo arriving from or destined to foreign ports immediately becomes apparent.

It is gratifying that the Seafarers' Union has recognized the fact and is limiting its request for protection from foreign competition to control of coast-wise trade between Canadian lake-ports.

UNFAIR TO WOMEN?

Not more than half the population is likely to get overly excited about the demand of the Canadian Federation of University Women that more women be named to the Senate.

The Federation would appear to be on solid ground in respect to the desirability of having a woman, or women, serving on the three-member Civil Service Commission. No government department could function properly if it was composed of all its female employees. It seems only reasonable, therefore, that at least one woman should sit on the Commission which selects and places these civil servants.

But the Senate is a different matter entirely.

In theory it is supposed to be composed of the best political brains in the country, with the word "political" in its correct meaning as pertaining to the science of government.

In practice, senators are generally selected because of their outstanding service to a political party — which may or may not mean they are the best political brains in the land.

There is no question, however, but that to meet the necessary qualifications under either of these interpretations demands that the appointee should have taken an active interest in politics for many years.

If few women have been named to the Senate, it is distinctly the fault of the women of the nation in general and university women in particular.

It may be argued that many women have sought to serve but have been rejected at the polls. If that is the argument, advanced, there are two alternative replies. Either the voters were right in rejecting the bids of these women for parliamentary seats, in which case past governments have certainly been right in refusing to appoint these women to the Senate. Or the voters were wrong, in which failure falls largely on the shoulders of women, who form a large segment of the electorate.

If some indignant university woman answers that political machinery is in the hands of men and women cannot wrest control of them, men will merely laugh. The men that women cannot control anything they want to control is one which will strike most men as decidedly funny.

The suspicion lingers that the reason why there are not more women in the Senate is that few women want to be Senators.

If the members of the Canadian Federation of University Women do not agree, they have a simple remedy. Nominate, and elect, women to the House of Commons.

BIRTHDAY TO BE FORGOTTEN

Since publication day for me
Three weeks away must always be.
These lines will reach the public eye
The twenty-seventh of July—
The day my blonde, with hair of gold,
Will be exactly two years old.

Of all the blondes, my favorite she—
My Janet's little Marjorie—
Who never pelts me anywhere
But what I bet she spends a share
Admiring ladies on the street
Upholding her say: "My! she's sweet."

The day this verse in print is seen
She will have lived two happy years.
Just two swift years of sun and shade—
Already countless conquests made!
Must she forget, as grownups do,
The time when she was only two?

My second birthday came and went.
Long last has been that glad event.
Upon
This verse in which the joy I've told
We both when she was two years old.

Living High, Cooking Bad

(Hamilton Spectator)

We find ourselves in considerable sympathy with Mr. James Forsyth, a seventy-year-old miner from Sudbury now visiting in Hamilton, who says he likes Canadian food "only in parts."

Canadian food "only in parts."

We have devoted a good many years in consultation to the subject of different quality of our national cuisine, at least as it manifests itself in public eating places, and we are prepared to offer Mr. Forsyths sympathetic understanding.

Bad cooking is one of the penalties of a high standard of living. (The others, of course, are the parking, dentists' bills and television.)

There are, we maintain, four reasons for this:

(1) Too high quality of the raw material eliminates—or more commonly, hides—the need for skill in cooking. Anything that is good enough plain cooking," while wonderful if performed in the home with loving care, can be, in the restaurant, a can simmer day-long on the back of an old-fashioned wood-fired stove but not on an electric one. A good salad requires gentle pick and fine and delicate; but food choppers are faster, so instead we get those mangled messes that look, feel and taste like cattle fodder.

Thirdly, a high standard of living, far from providing leisure for delicious living, makes leisure rare; therefore we demand meals which we can gulp down in the time we wait while they are prepared; hence the sandwich and the tasteless, tepid, tired, tortured steam-table.

Fourth, and by-one product of a high living standard, is an obsession with sanitation (except, of course, in the case of Stanley Bay); hence, for instance, we purify our beer to the ultimate degree and then wrap the bread we make from it with waxed paper—and what comes out is so sanitary that it is tasteless.

There is also another factor, not connected with high living standards, in which your race, Mr. Forsythe, should be proud. History has left a residue of Calvinism or Presbyterianism in our character and we never quite convince ourselves that we like to be pleasure, as opposed to eating to sustain life, is not just a bit sinful.

Pass the haggis.

Biggest, Best Not Synonyms

(Hamilton Spectator)

We have been brooding dejectedly over the episode in which a grower offered prize bull calves for sale in Central Market the other day was fixed because they did not come up to the regulation grade. The regulations apparently lay it down as law that a big new potato is good and a small new potato is bad. There is no doubt about the regulation before, and apparently this explains the hours we have been spending in search of these new potatoes. Because we happen to like small new potatoes, especially when they are peculiar: We also prefer small bull calves, and that when canned the small ones cost less than the big, in spite of the obvious fact that there is more work involved in shelling them.)

All this helps us to understand the frustration of the British in the matter of potato marketing and consumption standardization. They produced last year 230 million bushels, a calibre which experts generally agree is ballistically the most effective for the British Isles, and yet made the Americans to adopt it in place of their 180 bushel shot. The high-ranking officer in Ottawa explained why:

"We are smaller than the present American calibre, and you can't make Americans change their ideas. The idea that anything smaller can be better. To them Biggest and Best are synonyms."

Bears, Take Note!

(Windsor Daily Star)

A marauding black bear at Remore, Ont., ate two sticks of dynamite safely, but was blown up by the fifth. This provides a perfect piece of symbolism for marauding bears, and we can imagine it will catch on internationally.

Pure Science Of Great Value

(Milwaukee Journal)

Ralph J. Cordiner, president of the General Electric Co., said in New York the other day that he is increasing the company's research staff from 4,000 to 5,000.

In urging other companies to take similar steps, Cordiner pointed out that pure research and basic research are at the root of most modern progress. Much of the research can we discover the keys to many things which will make life more pleasant, labor easier and solve some of the serious problems that plague mankind.

This stand of Cordiner is in sharp contrast to that of Defense Secretary Wilson. In defending elimination of several research projects in his economy budget, Wilson recently had some disparaging things to say about pure science and basic research. He summed it up by flippantly saying that he was interested, as a military project, in why "people turn brown when they are fried."

The crack brought smiles to official faces, but trying to find out why potatoes turn brown when fried is the job of a quartermaster research project, Homer Bigart, Washington correspondent, disclosed. He visited and learned that what the quartermaster wants to find out is why potatoes and other fresh foods turn brown and spoil when they are cooked in fats. It's the same chemical process that makes "people turn brown when they are fried.

"Now, potatoes are the bane of the food industry," says Dr. A. Leroy Vorl, executive secretary of Michigan's potato industry. "On my basic research, the problem of why potatoes discolor, turning from steam-table.

Fourth, and by-one product of a high living standard, is an obsession with sanitation (except, of course, in the case of Stanley Bay); hence, for instance, we purify our beer to the ultimate degree and then wrap the bread we make from it with waxed paper—and what comes out is so sanitary that it is tasteless.

There is also another factor, not connected with high living standards, in which your race, Mr. Forsythe, should be proud. History has left a residue of Calvinism or Presbyterianism in our character and we never quite convince ourselves that we like to be pleasure, as opposed to eating to sustain life, is not just a bit sinful.

Personal Health Talks

DIET AND CONSTIPATION

Correction of the physic habit calls for:

(1) More wholesome psychology based on better knowledge of the physiology of digestion.

(2) Restoration of natural foods and nutritive elements which have been removed from the diet.

(3) Increase in the daily intake of vitamin B-complex.

(4) In cases associated with colon derangement, habitual use of enemas or so-called colon irrigations, medical treatment.

In earlier articles I dealt with the psychology involved. Several years ago the medical profession was impressed with the Dubois method in the treatment of neurasthenia and "psychasthenia", and feature of Dr. Dubois' method was to enlighten the patients so they would give themselves less mental worry. Such patients attempt to analyze their symptoms, and being utterly unprepared by physiology and pathology they draw wrong conclusions and "worry" themselves into "auto-suggestions." Well, a kind of re-education, if the almanac be true, and the bulk of morbid notions picked up from nostrum literature and the like can be called education, is precisely what most physic addicts need.

But, heck, we can't do that in a column.

Dr. Brady

The bowel function depends largely upon the character of the diet. Refinement or over-refinement of our modern diet is the large factor in the constipation habit. Especially the adoption of refined white flour in place of whole wheat flour a century ago gave millions who lived largely on bread, cake and other things made of flour the constipation habit. Then in our generation the ever gullible Yankee public has acquired the habit of eating more or less refined cereal products, and bits, too, has given millions the constipation habit.

There are a good many nervitic souls, or if you don't like that word say fuss budgets who could have fresh fruit for breakfast much of the time if they would, but no, they discard the valuable part of the fruit and take only the juice. This deficiency in their practice is accountable for the constipation habit in many instances.

Then there are the humorless folk who chew raw vegetables and greens because they imagine such stuff is "medicine" for them. No amount of raw vegetable or leafy relish can have as much of the virtue of fresh fruit as the physic such persons take as a matter of course. To say nothing of the fact that many people dare not eat berries, grapes, figs and other fruits containing seeds that the seeds "lodge in the appendix" or "obstruct the bowels" is to ignore the fact that in everyday mistakes that contribute to the constipation habit.

Lobsters Badly Used

(Ottawa Citizen)

While some electors fret at being left off the voters' list and others are critical of an election that takes place during the time of their annual vacation, Maritime fishermen take the election even more serious complaint.

The federal government has announced that it will give the fishermen the opportunity of voting, October 5, the date of the fishing season in Northumberland Strait between Prince Edward Island and the mainland. The election will be August 7 from the usual August 10. Fishermen will have to leave with their traps and return to their homes to cast ballots on election day.

Much as this may mollify lobstermen, it is a considerable discomfort for the long-tailed Hon. Paul Vaillancourt, Minister of Fisheries, to have to hurry home or turn purple at the thought of an additional three days at sea.

One idea of consolation for fishermen is the proposal that general election called since Confederation and prospects for another five are reasonable future are probably remote.

Clickety-Clack Should Remain

(By J. I.'ls the Gali Reporter)

What is the matter with our nerves? Have we become over-something-or-the-other or just tired?

Now they are going to take the "clickety-clack" out of railroad travel just as they took the wonderful (to me) fragrance from automobiles.

All my family liked the smell of petroleum. Everybody I know is a boy liked it. I still like it.

Who wanted it taken out? I have yet to meet anyone who will admit it. So why did "they" take it out? I like the smell of gasoline, but I am probably a few people who did not. I can remember Mr. Ford's first car, but not petrolnas.

Pretty soon someone will take out the "click" of the rail joint against a sailboat or the thunder of the surf against the seashore.

A lot of people have designs on the night songs of mockingbirds. I fear they are going them by turning out a lot of guinea hens who can "go wild" in no time.

How is a fellow going to know how fast he is travelling at night without the clickety-clack? How is he going to know that he is travelling at all and not stalled somewhere between stations with the boiler?

What's the use of travelling if you don't know it?

LOCATION AND HAPPINESS

Many people search for happiness all their lives and fail to find it. Happiness is not something to search for. It's something that happens when you do the things that please and satisfy you. Solomon put it in these words: "That is never a happy man who never wants to go."

People endure all sorts of hardships and inconveniences when they are engaged in something they like to do. They are full of expectancy. They are prepared to take the bitter with the sweet. If they have no objections, however, you just stand still. And people who stand still never get the chance to travel.

Happiness is bred in the mind and heart. And what you plant it in others it springs anew to you. Fault finders take the delicious fruit they never reach the main road to happiness. The happy hours lie hidden, and you stumble on them, that simple.

At that time when most boys are thinking about starting their careers, this young man's life have ended his. His early youth had been devoted to mischief and more serious escapades amounting to delinquency; now here he was, slightly educated, possessing a bad record, and worst of all, completely blind.

Today that boy is a successful businessman. His income runs into five figures. He has a fine house and some securities. He has a wife and children. Best of all, he is a respected member of his community. Looking back on his experience at that time when most boys are thinking about starting their careers, this boy might

Quebec Police Remain Silent On Gaspe Case

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GASPE, Que. (CP)—Provincial police maintained a grim silence today, as they intensified their efforts to solve the mystery of the wanton slaying of three Canadian Pacific Airlines tourists in the bear infested Gaspe wild-lands.

They parried most questions with: "All information will be made public when the coroner's inquest is reopened" this week.

The deaths of three men sometime have been described officially as murder but beyond that point police have refused to go. The veil may be lifted when Dr. Jean-Marie Roussel of Montreal, medico-legal expert, testifies at the inquest.

Dr. Roussel last week identified one of the slain hunters as Eugene H. Lindsay, 45. During the week-end, he performed autopsies on two other skeletons found last Thursday in the Schickshock mountains, 61 miles west of here. He identified them as Richard Lindsay, 21, son of Eugene, and Fred Clarr, 20. One Man Left

Dr. Roussel himself would not elaborate. In Quebec, Solicitor-General Bienvenu-Bourque said a fourth man of the hunters was shot.

He was apparently referring to a blood-stained sweater in which two holes—one in the front, the other in the back—indicated a bullet may have passed through the wearer's body.

The sweater, believed to be Richard Lindsay's, was found near one of the three bodies, all badly mauled by bears.

Gen. N. Plastiras, Former Greek Premier, Dies

ATHENS (AP)—Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, 68, three times premier of Greece and dictator for a day, died here Sunday of a heart ailment. He had retired because of illness in October and suffered a serious attack last week.

A white-haired soldier-hero, he had the reputation of being leftist and anti-royalist. His terms as premier were from Jan. 3 to April 9, 1947; from April 14 to Aug. 31, 1950, and from Oct. 27, 1951, to Oct. 7, 1952.

He won the nickname, "The Black Nivea," from the Turks during strife in Asia Minor in 1922. Led Revolt

In that same year, he landed with other officers on the island of Chios and precipitated the revolution that launched him on his political career. As president of the revolutionary committee he forced King Constantine to abdicate, dissolved Parliament and staged a trial in which several ex-ministers and generals were sentenced to death. A year later he deposed Constantine's son, King George II, and sent him into exile for 12 years. The present king, Paul I, is George's brother.

In 1935, when a general election favored the royalists, Plastiras seized the ministry of war and became a dictator. He lasted just a day and then fled abroad. Two years later he was sentenced to death in absentia.

In the bitter days of the Communist struggle just after the Second World War, Archbishop Damaskinos, then regent, prevailed upon Plastiras to return from Paris and become premier for the first time.

5 Acclamations Seen as Likely First Since 1930

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

When nominations for the Aug. 10 federal election close today, there may be acclamations for the first time since 1930—when there were seven.

Although there was a possibility of last-minute starters, in four Quebec seats and one in Ontario, only one candidate was in prospect as the deadline for nominations neared.

Up to today, only Liberals had been reported nominated in the Quebec ridings of Argenteuil-Deux-Montagnes, Dorchester, St. Hyacinthe-Bagot and St. Jean-Iberville-Napierville. In Ontario, a Progressive Conservative was the only nominee in Prince Edward-Lennox.

At Strike-Bound Mine

Pickets and provincial police argue outside the strike-bound Brouhan Reef mine property at Timmins, Ont. Provincial police from Haileybury, Sudbury and Peterborough districts are being brought in to assist those already on duty at the mine which has broken out between pickets and leading members of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) and employees of the mine. Some workers said they were kidnapped and beaten up. Others who entered the mine with cots and food are being protected by police guards. — (CP Photo.)

261 Candidates

On the eve of the close of nominations, an unofficial compilation by The Canadian Press showed 86 candidates in the running for the 262 seats in the constituencies in Prince Edward Island and Halifax riding each elect two members. Office-seekers have until 2 p.m., all through the week and all through the above is official nomination papers and pay their $200 deposit in 242 of the 262 constituencies. In the other 21 of 262 who contested the 245 seats ridings, all large and scattered, nominations closed two weeks ago. The total of 261 is 13 higher than the final figure of 248 candidates in 1949, when there were 262 seats, but 83 under the record number at stake in 1945.

Over 1,500,000 Dead

The war has claimed more than 1,500,000 in dead, wounded and missing. Allied troops, at the shooting wore through its dying hours, were appreciative. None wanted to be the last casualty.

Only a handful of patrol skirmishes, mostly between Chinese and South Koreans, were reported across the 116-mile front before dawn.

Frontline reports said American patrols went out only on defensive scouting missions, shooting only after the Reds fired first.

Jets Prowl Skies

Sabre jets—their wartime MiG bag totalling a record 800 destroyed—prowled North Korea's skies for the Russian-made jets. One 31-man Sabre flight roared north to the Yalu river and sighted 12 MiGs. But the Red jets fled to the safety of their Manchurian sanctuary, across which Allied planes have been forbidden to fly.

NEW PROBLEMS

price will they ask?

Authorities here do not know the answer, but they have an idea that what the Reds may ask is a seat for Red China in the United Nations, displacing Nationalist China; an end to trade embargoes against Red China, and satisfaction of Red China's claims on Formosa.

Kills Off Optimism

This prospect effectively kills off any optimism in official quarters about the chances of early unification of Korea. For while British officials have seemed to favor a seat for Red China once the Korean fighting ended, there is much overwhelming opposition to it in the U.S. Congress that the Eisenhower administration appears to have no choice but to fight any deal along that line.

The issue of Formosa is an even more bitter one for the United States, which recognizes the Chinese Nationalist government established there and also considers that Formosa in hostile hands would be a threat to the U.S. defence system in the western Pacific.

The U.S., Britain and France agreed early this month that they would maintain their policies of barring Red China from the UN and embargoing strategic materials to that country, pending further consultations.

British Stand Differs

But since Britain recognizes Red China instead of the Nationalist government and since there have been pressures in Parliament for a Red China seat in the UN, it seems unlikely that British authorities can long delay a demand for consultation on the UN and trade issues, now that the truce is a fact.

France's position is dominated by the fact that French and native forces are battling in Indo-China. Communist armies that have Red Chinese support. The French are weary of that long and costly war. Foreign Minister Georges Bidault told State Secretary John Foster Dulles here twice ago that only an armistice in Korea would intensify French public demand for peace in Indo-China.

Medical Men Make Korea Healthiest Theatre of War

(By BILL BOSS)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

IN KOREA. (CP) — Preventive medicine has made Korea one of the world's healthiest theatres for soldiers on foreign service.

Col. John S. McCannell of Victoria and Toronto, director of medical services for the 1st Commonwealth Division, told The Canadian Press:

"For all its mosquitoes, flies, fungi, and lovgems laden with bacteria from night-soil-treated rice paddies, Korea is far less a health hazard for Commonwealth troops than either the Middle East or the Far East.

"In some respects it is healthier, even, than Germany or Australia."

Big Reduction

As an example of how Korea has been brought into line during the last year, he said hemorrhagic fever—the so-called "Manchurian" fever has dropped sharply from 28 cases in the division during the first five months of 1952 to four for the same period this year.

Malaria has dropped from 47 cases during the same period last year to 23 while infectious hepatitis, caused by flies and other unhygienic factors, dropped from 66 to 34.

Dr. McCannell says the average daily rate of soldiers reporting sick in Korea is less than one per cent. "That's less than we expect in the ordinary training area at home," he said.

And since Oct. 1 the figure for diseases of the gastro-intestinal tract again is less than one per cent.

Using War Office statistics, McCannell says Korea's record is from fives to 10 times as healthy as other parts of the world where Commonwealth troops are serving.

Soldiers suffering from dysentry here number one-twentieth of those with the same complaint in the Suez Canal Zone and one-tenth of those in Malaya, Singapore and Hong Kong.

Good Comparison

The figures for diarrhoea equal those for the United Kingdom. They are one-fifth of those for the Middle East and one-half of the rest of the Far East's.

Skin troubles account for 19 per cent of the Commonwealth Division's patients. But they still are less than one-half of the Far East's, two-thirds of the Middle East's fewer than among British troops in Austria and roughly equal to the figures for the United Kingdom and the Northern Army group in Germany.

"The secret is that everyone here is extremely health conscious, from the divisional commander down," says Dr. McCannell. "Canadian figures are better than the divisional averages because we begin the soldiers' immunization in Canada."

Electronically-Steered Car May Make Backseat Driver Obsolete

By ED MORSE

NEW YORK (AP)—The happy auto driver of the future may be able to raise and lower the scenery without even glancing at the road.

The backseat driver, and jokes about same, may become as obsolete as the dinosaur.

You may be able to zoom along a superhighway on a foggy day watching a television show and with nothing to worry about but the cool drink in your hand.

You'd have no worries about staying on the road, passing other cars, or smash-ups with other careless drivers.

All of this may become reality through the magic of electronics, Model Being Tested

A model five-foot car electronically equipped now is being put through its automatic driving paces by Dr. V. K. Zworykin, television and electronic scientist of the Radio Corporation of America.

Zworykin and his assistants at RCA's David Sarnoff research center in Princeton, N. J., have a laboratory car which can:

1. Stop itself along prescribed route.

2. Stop itself when it approaches a metal obstacle.

3. Turn out of its own lane to pass a slower car.

Cable In Road Lane

In miniature, the scientists are working out a system which could be applied straightaways of the future so that passenger cars could operate the same way.

The system calls for a six-lane highway with an electric cable buried in the concrete in the middle of each lane. Each cable would set up a magnetic field of a certain frequency.

The cars of the future could be equipped with two coils, one on each side, to pick up the electrical waves from the cables.

If the coil on one side gets more of the signal than the coil on the other, electronic equipment controlling the steering gear would bring the car back on course.

For passing other cars, the two parallel road cables would be connected at frequent intervals with crisscross wires.

The presence of a stalled car or a slowly moving car ahead of the driver would be signaled by a "radio tail" sending up warning signals.

When your car picks up the warning, it is shunted over one of the diagonals to the passing lane.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Those Pre-Wedding Jitters

Every so often a letter comes to me from a girl in a dreadful state of inflamed because her wedding day is rapidly approaching and her mind is filled with doubt as to whether she really wants to marry or not.

In itself, this is perfectly natural, because when a girl is going to change all the way of life for good and start out on a wholly new and strange one, a shower of doubts will assuredly be only temporary.

On the other hand, there are cases of pre-wedding apprehension which are based on something more tangible, as, for example, when the girl is about to marry with a secret prejudice in her mind which she believes might wreck her marriage but is told her friends about it. There are girls who have written me that they had affairs before they met the man who wanted to become their husbands, and they are terrified lest the past should find out. Yet they are equally terrified of marrying under the stigma of a guilty secret. I think there are girls who get panicky as the wedding day draws because they love and have they honestly are not as much in love as they thought they were.

Here, now is a bride-to-be who doesn't know whether she should marry or not because she has been going with another man during her engagement without the knowledge of her future husband. Everything is set for the wedding and, as she puts it, "Our plans are so far advanced that I feel as though I am going out of my mind. I stay awake nights wondering what I should do. I honestly can't think. I could call off the wedding arrangements because I do love the fellow to whom I'm engaged to, and yet I don't feel sure now that I can fully be love because of the other man. Is it possible to be in love with two people at one time? For I'm not with either of them, I enjoy being with him and feel I really love him, but from time to time I think of the other one. Altogether, I am so confused that I just don't know what to do."

Not Really In Love

The young woman is by no means the first person to have asked the question: "Is it possible to be in love with two people at the same time?" For it is one that practically everybody faces at some time in their lives. My feeling usually is that the person who asks it is not really in love with either of the two people involved, and certainly not ready for marriage to anybody. In cases where there is no engagement, it is fairly simple to decide nothing until Time has had its chance to straighten out the confusion in the individual's mind and when, let us say, a girl is engaged to one man and believes she may be in love with another, but is not sure, then the only right thing is to tell her fiance she is confused, and ask him to be understanding enough to bear with her until she becomes sure of her own feelings.

Sometimes, however, this rule can be adjusted to fit special circumstances, and I think she should tell her prospective bridegroom something of her confusion but I think she might also tell him that, unless he wishes to call the marriage off, she would like to go ahead with their plans. The reason, I think this is because the two of them seem to be so much in love, especial, the man is devoted to her, and she realizes that, in spite of her confusion, she has a real affection for him. If she goes ahead and marries him, and makes up her mind to put the other man completely out of her life and her mind and devote herself to making a happy marriage, I believe she can succeed, and she should tell her future husband that she will do just that. But the decision to have nothing more to do with the other man must be firm and final. If she permits him to remain any part of her life in any way, she will destroy any chance of making the kind of marriage she really wants. If she cannot enter upon her present proposed marriage with wholehearted singleness of purpose, then, in all fairness to her fiance, she should call it off, however embarrassing it would be.

Clearly, it is up to her.

THE BIGGEST SEASON ever for knitwear is predicted and many fine yarns are appearing for daring designs. Smokin gray is used for a sweater and two-piece dress on slim lines, with wool fringe shaping a V-yoke fore and aft. The years is shown in sheer wool chenille — very new and attractive.

'I Wanna Cookie, Mum'

By Mary Moore

By MARY MOORE

Wishing "we could breakfast on berries and dine on the fruit of the trees" comes closer to realization than the old saw's assertion that it airs at other times of year.

But even when I serve big bowls of luscious raspberries or blueberries I have to hear seven-year-nagging hunger "for cookie with it Mum."

I suppose that's because I'm family first interest in eating (or my cooking) and I wouldn't work on new recipes for it and you wouldn't read this column and I'd be fired and have to go to the poor house.

Goodness — where's the mixing bowl, wheat's the flour, where's the sifter. Light the oven! Get crackin', Mary.

Pan cookies are my dish because you can whomp them up so much faster, but I patiently made these drop cookies because they're also so many interesting ingredients.

Fruity Drop Cookies

Sift the flour, measure 2 cups, put it in the sifter and sift with 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon baking soda, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon each of cinnamon and nutmeg and chopped dates and ½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts (or pecans). Cream ½ cup shortening or mixed shortening and butter and gradually beat in ½ to it ½ cup sugar, and when they are light and creamy beat into them 1 egg, add ½ teaspoon vanilla and ½ cup thick orange marmalade. Sift in the sifted dry ingredients. Drop from a buttered teaspoon on buttered cookie sheet. Bake in moderate (375 Fahr. about 15 minutes. These have a crisp and different and they won't last long unless you are a better hider than I.

Try finely chopped ginger instead of the nuts and raisins. We've taken 6 in his lunch when there's ginger in them.

Brown Favorites (ear whites)

Beat two egg whites until very stiff, and gradually beat into them ½ cup each white and brown sugar. Sprinkle over them a tablespoon flour, 2 cups corn flakes, ½ cup chopped walnuts, 1 cup shredded coconut and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Fold these last ingredients in. Drop from a buttered teaspoon on a buttered cookie sheet. Bake 30 minutes at 300 deg. Fahr. This is the second and pleasantest way to use up egg whites in households where a small baby is given only the yolks and whites are a nuisance leftover. In place of 1 cup of corn flakes you can substitute ½ cup rolled oats, but this makes them rather chewy.

Seshew Cookies

One cup finely chopped nuts, ½ cup butter or part butter, ½ cup tea and shortening, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 beaten egg, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 cups sifted flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt. Cream the butter well, and gradually beat the sugar into it, then beat in the egg and vanilla. Sift the dry ingredients together, add the nuts to them and combine mixtures. Chill.

Form into a 3-inch roll, and roll in waxed paper and chill for 2 or 3 hours. Then cut into slices ¼ inch thick with a sharp knife. Bake on unbuttered cookie sheet about 10 or 12 minutes at 350 or 375 deg. Fahr. Watch them if you bake them at 375. If you let them cool on the cookie sheet they will be crisper. If desired you can substitute ½ cup chopped candied cherries for ½ cup of nuts.

Answer (to Marion B. cont'd. from Saturday):

Pectin will help correct the fault you find with your jam — an excess of it. Another thing that will reduce excess juice is to boil your jam for 3 minutes then cover it and remove from heat and allow it to stand for two hours. This allows the juice to soak the fruit and oxygen to be absorbed out of the fruit. If you use pectin you add it after the soaking period and after you have boiled the jam up again. I am sure you will have no excess juice to cope with if you try both of these suggestions. If you do not like the lemon flavor when using pectin it is called for leave it out. While it is not strictly for flavor if you use pectin crystals it will do no harm. To the 6 cups rhubarb and 1 can of crushed pineapple called for in your recipe use 1 box pectin crystals and 5 cups sugar. Sprinkle over them a tablespoon flour, 1 cups corn flakes, ½ cup chopped walnuts, 1 cup shredded coconut and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Fold these last ingredients in. Drop from a buttered teaspoon on a buttered

GOOD MANNERS

Etiquette Simple Rules Provided At Times Of Many Receptions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Haven't I read in your column that today, even when the afternoon tea and reception are formal, and even when two or three hundred guests are to be invited, to the reception, it is entirely proper, really "customary", to serve extremely simple foods? My mother and my two dear aunts, one my father's sister, and one my father's sister, are all very conservative, and they are pretty firm in thinking that the "true formal wedding and reception" necessarily demands that, even at the late afternoon reception, a quite important meal be served—one hot dish, for example, such as chicken a la King or Lobster Newburg, and also cold meat or chicken or lobster salad such as chicken or shrimp or lobster, ices cream in fancy moulds, and so forth. The words' if much a moun is a "must", we don't think that if I have them ation or we will only be able to invite a few. What do you think? Please set us straight about this, Mrs. Beeckman. And please give us menu-suggestions.

—Bride-to-be.

Here I come, dear bride-to-be, very happy to assure you that at the formal afternoon reception the food usually served—and this is also true for the formal wedding and for the large reception—is indeed extremely simple! The bride and groom, of course, have the wedding cake, to be cut first by the bride and groom; and the cold beverage is served, champagne punch or whatever else may be desired. Delicate sandwiches are served—small thin ones. The majority must be the delicate white-and-brown bread sandwiches (the bread white-brown, whole wheat, perhaps pumpernickel or nut bread), to contrast with very simple fillings, such as thin cucumber and thin interesting cookies. Sometimes ice cream or water ice is served, but not often as it is, today in vogue, in fashion in wedding molds. (All of this simplicity is very different from the elaborate menus of yesterday's formal wedding receptions, and quite in keeping with today's casual and practical informality.)

How The Groom's Aunt May Sign The Letter Enclosed With Present.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The prospective groom is my nephew. I am a widow. What would be the correct way for me to sign my name on the card to be enclosed with my wedding gift?

P.K.

It's a charming idea, I think to register the aunt-niece relationship by signing the card you are to enclose with your wedding present to the bride-to-be, something like this: "Bob's Aunt Patricia sends her dearest love to you, and her loving wishes for your happiness, always." Or, if you prefer, the more formal: "Every good wish to you, Bride and Kirkland." If prefer the most formal of all, just sign your formal name (no courtesy) on the card to be enclosed, as it would be engraved on your visiting-card: Mrs. John Kirkland. (It is correct for a widow to use the name she used when her husband was living.)

Important Note: If you write a message on the card (as you doubtless will want to), then you must not sign your formal name. In this case, your message becomes a note to be signed, and you must sign it your informal name: Patricia Kirkland, or if you prefer, sign the note "Bob's Aunt Patricia."

The compass at present in general use is that patented by Sir William Thompson, later Lord Kelvin, in 1876.

Treasure Island Beauty Expert Opens

It has been the pleasure and privilege of your beauty reporter to interview Max Factor, the famous authority of Hollywood. He believes that many scrambled, disheveled heads are due to home shampooing that is not done properly. Young girls, especially, are likely to rush through the job, leaving soap scum on the shafts so that dull, lifeless hair and wavy lines evaporate! He stresses the need of a high grade shampoo modified according to whether it is dry hair, some for oily locks.

Next comes a rinse that shampooing only a week will keep the hair fresh and beautifully gleaming, "he says. "It allowed to go much longer than that, it will be noticeably lacking in luster and high lights. Let the locks 'and no rest' of your hair guide you.

Whenever strenuous play or work exposes the hair and scalp to an unusual amount of perspiration and atmospheric dust, shampoo as soon as you can, you'll have a delightfully laundered your glorious thatch just one or two days previously.

"If the first application provides enough lather do not shrink hand well and good. It may if you have a very short cut. If it doesn't keep repeating the application until you have so much lather that your hair seems also lost in it.

"After enough —suds have been washed up, gently massage the scalp with your finger tips using the fingertips. Never risk irritating your scalp with your nails. Such thoroughness is necessary if your shampoo is to be a complete success.

"The woman with heavy tresses, below shoulder length will find it handy to let the lather-softened growth hang down, protect head. Then she can take a fairly thick rope of hair between the palms of her hands and work the lather forth for a quick and thorough cleansing.

"No matter how perfectly the cleansing medium is applied and distributed, resultant hair beauty cannot be all that it should if the scalp and hair are not properly thorough.

"A bath spray does a better job than the shower that just beats down on the crown of the head. While the spray can be used along the entire hair line, front, back and sides."

Korean War Made Canada Aware of Defence Needs

By DOUGLAS ROW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Korea's tragic war brought Canada a long way along the road to national preparedness by providing an unmatched peacetime military program and by training thousands of men at home and in overseas theatres.

No international development short of general war since World War II has equalled its impact on the Canadian military structure and concept and the national budget.

But there will be nothing but relief in both military and civilian circles at a cease-fire which ends warfare which spilled more Canadian blood than the South African War.

Hitting Strength Increased

There is no comparison between Canadian military strength and organized potential today and that of pre-Korea 1950. The armed forces then totalled more than 120 per cent larger but their hitting strength has increased in a hundred ways.

The army, for instance, jumped from six combat units to four times that number and now has roughly enough units to provide a big part of two division. Enough men for more than an 18,000-man division got front line training in Korea.

The air force has increased its hitting power even more sharply. The navy has had all its sight modernized destroyers in Korean waters at one time or another and has trained 3,500 men there, more in two or even three tours of duty.

Spending Soared

Annual military spending has soared about four times. Military production lines have been tooled up in a wide variety of fields. Hundreds of millions of dollars worth of mobilization stores have been laid away.

Over those developments loom the battle losses. Korea took at least 296 Canadian lives and possibly another 200 in the total of missing men. The army's 25th brigade —actually a series of three brigades all using the same number 25 as they succeed one another—suffered by far the most Canadian casualties, 1,492.

These included 381 dead, 1,099 wounded, 26 missing, 90 injured in action and 18 prisoners of war.

The navy suffered three dead and three injured in action plus two ships sunk overboard. The air force has one officer missing in action, a prisoner, the South African War between 1899 and 1902 took 224 Canadian - lives through enteric fever and a total of 7,368 who went there. In the First World War, 60,000 Canadians were killed. In the Second World War, 42,000 were killed.

Canada's Korean casualties compared with 135,862 for the U. S. forces, of whom 21,501 were killed, and are part of a total of 270,413 casualties among United Nations forces other than the U. S. Total communist casualties are estimated at 1,987,000.

1,000 Manpower

Canada's manpower contribution in the Far East has totalled more than 8,000 at any given time and probably more than three times that during the period of the war. Trygve Lie, former UN secretary-general, once called Canada's role in Korea second, in ratio to population, to that of the U. S. among the powers fighting there. Largest forces on the UN side, however, came from South Korea and Japan.

In the first six months three Canadian warships were in Korea, Cayuga, Oriental-type building hastily constructed by the Consolidated corporation.

The chief negotiators began penning their names one minute after the appointed hour of 10 a.m. and were through signing the 18 documents in exactly one hour.

Each looked at the other for a long moment after they were through. Nam Il arose from the table and walked out the north door. Harrison walked out the south door.

Gen. Clark Rejoices

Gen. Clark signed nine copies of the truce document at Allied advance headquarters in Munsan three hours later. Almost all army and 100 reporters watched him sign in an army theatre building.

The nine other copies were sent to North Korea for signing by the Communist commanders, North Korean Marshal Kim Il Sung and Chinese Gen. Peng Teh-huai.

Tuesday morning the Reds will be handed the copies signed by Clark, and Clark will be handed the copies signed by Kim and Peng and Communist-signed copies in Seoul Tuesday. There will be no ceremony.

After the signing each side will have seven days to broadcast, in English, three in Chinese and three in Korean.

Immediately Clark signed the armistice was Brig. Gen. Choi Dok Shin, of South Korea trene delegate, who began boycotting the armistice talks late in May in protest against a cease-fire that leaves his country divided.

Attends as Observer

Choi said he attended as an observer on instructions from Rhee.

Attention swung immediately to the joint military armistice commission, which will supervise the truce and arbitrate any armistice violations.

A spokesman for the commission said the Allied members would meet with the Communist delegates at a time and place at Panmunjom Tuesday.

The first big task ahead in the armistice is the exchange of prisoners. There are 70,000 South Koreans, British, 3,313 Americans and about 8,000 South Koreans and Chinese civilians and soldiers being held by the Reds, and 74,000 North Koreans and Red Chinese held by the UN command.

Held 12,796 Prisoners

The secret record of the negotiations, made after the signing, showed that the Reds held 12,796 prisoners of war. The exchange of prisoners who want to return home is expected to begin in a week or less.

The UN said some 7,900 North Koreans and 22 Red Chinese captives have said they do not want to return home and it will turn over to a repatriation commission composed of Switzerland, Sweden, Poland, Czechoslovakia and India.

India's troops will guard them for the 90 days while Communist agents confer with them.

The Communists said they will return 12,000 captives including sick and wounded. The UN command said the Reds it will turn back prisoners at the rate of 2,400 able-bodied men daily, plus 300 sick and wounded.

ARMISTICE

Within 72 hours from the official end of the fighting, troops of each side must pull back 1½ miles, thereby creating a new buffer zone 3½ miles wide running the entire length of the 155-mile front. The 1,000 men manning the Panmunjom run smoothly in sharp contrast to the months of sharp words, counter-demands and walkouts that marked the long-drawn negotiations.

Without a word to each other, Lt.-Gen. William K. Harrison Jr. signed for the Allies and Gen. Nam Il for the Communists. Each man's ...

Up-And-Coming

In the wide-eyed National League City of Milwaukee, where everything is doped baseball has been blown up to larger than life-size. Ed. Mathews, handsome young rookie third baseman wearing uncle Bob's number 41, and they were in a class by themselves. Brave Bob Hazle, "the kid could write a new record book."

Mathews, the long-range slugging third baseman of the Milwaukee Braves, seems a long range bet to become an enduring figure on the baseball landscape, even after many of the aspects of the baseball boom in Milwaukee have faded. His home run figures for this season would be impressive for a seasoned player at the peak of his career. Mathews is only twenty-one, the idol of the Milwaukee fans with scored on the baby-sooner basis in his second season in the majors.

The Saturday Evening Post has a colorful article on the young "Brewer" in this week's edition. Good reading for baseball people and others.

Going Strong

Keith Wecse the pitching sensation from Centreville near Napanee, is the white-hot boy to go around Listowel way. Keith who showed a great performance last Sunday at Shallow Lake (pop 198) after he pitched the village team to a 3-0 win over Arnold's Bay-Shannonville, transferred his affections to the Western Ontario town this season.

From reports out of the west, Wecse is just about the best intermediate moundsman to be found out of the woods. The Listowel Legionnaires, whom Wecse toils for, are said to be riding high behind the fine mound work of the Eastern Ontario youngster.

But it would seem the Listowel master-minds are throwing all the heavy work on the youngster. Chick (Stratford Beacon Herald) Appel warns them that they might send the young pitcher to the well once too often.

"Wecse," Chick remarks "seems to be the only hurler on the Listowel team who can win consistently, but there is such a thing as wearing out a pitcher, even Wecse, despite his youth. That would be bad for the league all round. The former Shallow Lake, Napanee, (he lives down this away, Chick, so-fan) is perhaps the best pitcher in the group and even though he might head the Mosfoosils (Stratford) every time he pitches, it would be regrettable indeed if the same was to become true of the attractions of the competition."

"Naturally, Wecse will be used just as often as possible without gambling on burning him out and for the sake of the league in general, Listowel supporters and Wecse himself, it is hoped his pitching assignments are not overdone."

Wecse was a sensation in his amateur baseball days around these parts. Playing for his home village and later Napanee, the youngster set the pace for opposition midget, juvenile and junior teams. During one game played for his home city, Wecse pitched twenty-one batters without batting an eyelash. Later the Shallow Lake people grabbed him and either Babe Ruth or Ted Williams, said they were in a class by themselves. Maybe what Chick's "kid could write a new record book."

The Marysville Raceway (see Shannonville Speedway) will open on Wednesday night under a new management, it says here. Dick Burrows says the track has been revamped and he looks for a fair show come Wednesday. There will be a full field of Eastern Ontario stox low on hand including Frank Andru, Napanee, Earl Handley, Picton, "Dusty" Sanford, Belleville, Morley Shepard, Trenton and "Woody" Vandecar, Kingston. There will be open air dancing under the lights following the races. Burrows says any driver of a car holding one of the pink advertising sheets will be admitted free. First heat gets under way at 8:30.

Remember When

Canada defeated Cuba in the first round of the northern zone Davis Cup tennis competition at Ottawa 29 years ago today. Willard Crocker downed Rogelio Paris 6-3, 7-5, 6-3 in the crucial singles match. The Canadians were eliminated by Japan in the second round.

Virgil Trucks, Sox Mainstay With 8 Straight Victories; 'Bums Moider' Braves Twice

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Chicago White Sox, despite a disappointing home stand, represented the chief threat to New York Yankees' bid for a fifth straight pennant today. And they owe it to one man—pitcher Virgil Trucks.

Thanks to Trucks' four-hit 4-0 shutout over Philadelphia after the Athletics had taken a 4-3 opener Sunday, the White Sox were able to keep pace with the Yankees, who split a pair with Detroit. Were it not for Trucks' eight straight victories since he joined Chicago from St. Louis last June 13, the White Sox would be languishing in fourth place instead of cheerfully hanging on to the runner-up spot, seven games behind.

While all American League clubs were dividing doubleheaders, Milwaukee Braves trampled on the hapless 74-game lead in the National, thrashing Milwaukee pitchers 13-2 and 2-1 before 13,621 fans—the largest Ebbets field gathering in almost two years.

The bewildered Braves retained their 13½ game lead over the St. Louis Cardinals whipped Philadelphia Phillies, Friday for the 11th time in 12 games. They leave the Phils eight games off the pace. New York's fourth-place Cincinnati Reds trail by 20 games despite their sweep of a doubleheader from Pittsburgh, 10-7 and 5-1. The Cards are in fifth place, 11 games from the top.

Sox in Third

Boston Red Sox losing the second game to St. Louis 8-5 after copping the opener 7-5, remained in third place, 2½ games behind Chicago and behind New York and a half-game in front of Cleveland which moved from behind to nip Washington 7-6 after the Senators had won the opener 4-3.

The doubleheader between Chicago and Pittsburgh also ended in a split the Cubs winning the second 7-3 after the Pirates had eked out a 12 triumph.

Gus Zernial's bases-loaded single with two out in the eighth broke a 2-2 tie and gave the A's their first game 4-3 victory over Chicago. Washington scored twice in the ninth to defeat the Indians in the opener and give Bob Porterfield the victory over relief pitcher Art Houtteman. Homers by Wally Westlake and Bob Avila gave the Indians the second-game victory after Washington had taken a 6-0 lead over Mike Garcia.

Jim Dyck's third home run of the day scored three runs for the Browns in the seventh inning and broke a 5-2 second-game tie. The Red Sox took advantage of four Browns' errors in the first game to overshadow Dyck's two home runs.

New Yankees exploded seven doubles and four home runs to trounce the A's 13-5 in the first game and gave Bobby Shantz, 20-game hurler Stadium. Detroit won the opener 5-3 behind the sparkling relief pitching of rookie Bob Miller and Billy Hoeft.

A three-run eighth-inning rally keyed by Milwaukee's Bobby Thomson's first game and Carl Erskine's five-hit pitching in the second gave Brooklyn a victory over Milwaukee. Erskine fanned 10 for the second straight time in registering his 10th victory.

Lew Burdette, winner of seven straight without a defeat in relief was beaten in his first start for Milwaukee.

Larry Jansen pitched a six-hitter for the Giants' 2nd straight win. Dayl Spencer had driven in five runs in the opener with a pair of homers, a second inning with the bases loaded in the seventh inning to snap a 5-5 tie.

Stan Musial's three-run homer in the ninth offset two runs by the Philadelphia's Del Ennis and enabled the Cardinals to salvage the finale of a three-game series with the Phillies. Curt Simmons lost his fourth game in five decisions since his recovery from a foot injury.

A four-run fifth gave the Cubs a split after Pittsburgh had tallied twice in the sixth to win the opener. Sheriston Roy Smalley's bobble of Eddie O'Brien's slow roller presented Pittsburgh with the winning run in the first game.

Top Three Teams Stage Battle In Intercounty

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The race in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League remains tight.

Only 10 percentage points separate the top three teams and Waterloo Tigers, in third spot, are only one-half game off the pace being set by Kitchener Panthers. Brantford Red Sox in second place are three percentage points behind the Panthers and even in the games behind column.

The Panthers tonight have a chance to extend their lead when they meet fifth-place Oshawa Merchants at Oshawa while two second-division teams—St. Thomas and Galt—meet in the Grand river city in the night's only other scheduled game.

Kitchener pounded three Guelph pitchers for 19 hits Saturday to earn a 13-4 victory at home. The loss dropped the Maple Leafs to the basement behind the Panthers.

In other Saturday games Brantford edged St. Thomas 7-6 on a home run by catcher Luther Clifford Waterloo downed London 8-3 and Oshawa trounced Owen Sound 9-4.

At Kitchener, Chuck Fedoris was the pacesetter with three hits, Guelph starter Lew Fauth, pulled in the second, was charged with the loss. Relief pitcher Walt Jefferies finished the game after Fauth was tagged for the last five runs.

At St. Thomas Clifford's game-winning homer came in the seventh inning after Brantford had scored three times in the sixth to win a three-run sixth. Al Gertsiger went the distance for Brantford. St. Thomas starter Don Sommers, who pitched six innings, gave up 10 hits and was charged with five of the seven Red Sox runs. Joe Gregan, relief pitcher, gave up two runs and two hits to be charged with the loss.

Waterloo scored only a single run in the fifth and three in the sixth to down London. Waterloo won over the Majors at London. Hank Bitastti who held the Majors scoreless until the seventh when he was nicked for three, was credited with the victory. First baseman Bob Schnurr took over for the rest of the route.

A nine-run seventh inning was Galt's big innings in their victory over Oshawa. The Galtmen were tied for fifth place, 5½ games off the pace. Zeb Eaton, who allowed 10 hits, was the winner. He also hit five for five. Oshawa's Ken Drapcho, relieved by Hanrahan in the seventh, was the loser.

Argyle Gratton Paces 18th Win

TORONTO (CP)—Dunc Campbell's superior pacer, Argyle Gratton has received 71 wins in 19 races Saturday, winning both heats of the 2,000 Canadian Cup event at the Thorncliffe Raceway.

In the quinella races, a $344 payoff came when rank outsider Afton Princess, owned by Mel McLaren of Port Elgin, won, with Bob's Margaret, owned by Stedman Craig of Kingston, second.

CHICAGO (AP)—Unbeaten Hasty Road, ridden by Eddie Arcaro, streaked to a 2½-length victory Saturday in turfdom's richest race for two-year-olds, the $157,815 Arlington Futurity at Arlington Park. Saucy-Eyed Mexican Senorita Takes Home 3 Tennis Crowns

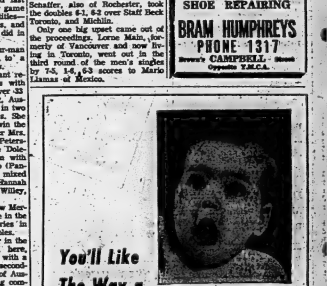
By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Melita Ramirez, saucy-eyed Mexican girl who joined the tennis circuit a short time ago, didn't have much chance in the Canadian tennis championships, today went home loaded with booty.

The 22-year-old girl, undecided about entering until 48 hours before the competition started last Monday because she felt her game was "rusty," picked up three titles—women's singles and doubles, and mixed doubles—just as she did in 1952.

Miss Ramirez led a four-man Mexican Davis Cup team to a sweep with the Australians.

The nurses' school attendant retained her women's singles with an easy 6-2, 6-3 decision over 33-year-old Mrs. Thelma Long, Australia, and was a big factor in two other Mexican triumphs. She teamed, with Mrs. Long to win the women's doubles 6-1, 6-2 over Mrs. Laura Lou Kuman of St. Petersburg, Fla., and Mrs. Hilde Doleschell of Toronto, and then with fellow-countryman Francisco (Pancho) Contreras to win the mixed doubles 6-1, 6-3 over Mrs. Hannah Sladek, Montreal, and Paul Willey, Vancouver.



The Aussies, with southpaw Mervyn Rose of Sydney the star of the two, kept pace with victories in the men's singles and doubles.
